Late Laughs

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

I read that Goldfish is launching their first-ever gluten-free crackers. Not to be outdone, Nabisco announced their animal crackers will now be cage free.

The U.S. and Iran have both confirmed that they're close to a deal that would reopen the Strait of Hormuz. That's the good news. The bad news is it's been closed for so long, it's now called the Spirit Halloween of Hormuz.

Speaking of the Iran war, it just came out that during a recent Cabinet meeting, President Trump lashed out at Pete Hegseth over the military's missile shortage. I guess Hegseth thought we had more missiles than we actually did. In Hegseth's defense, when he looks at anything, he sees double.

Meanwhile, today [Aug. 6], Trump denied reports that the U.S. is running low on missiles and said that leakers of that story are "being hunted down." Well, we know one thing. They're not being hunted by missiles. We don't have them.

A circular house in California that rotates 360 degrees is on sale for $3 million. If you want to save $3 million bucks on a spinning house, just buy a normal house, get drunk and lie down.

The FAA just announced that they hired over 2,000 gamers to be air traffic controllers. Yeah, a drunk pilot talking to a stoned air traffic controller. What could possibly go wrong? I think it's a good idea, as long as they understand there's no extra lives.

Jimmy Kimmel Live! ... With Rosie O'Donnell!

I am your guest host, Rosie O'Donnell, and if you're wondering why I'm here, it all started like a heist movie. I was out of this talk show game living abroad. Then I got a secret message from Jimmy asking if I was interested in one last score. So I dusted off my koosh balls and here I am.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

The toy company Hasbro recently partnered with a San Diego restaurant to open an immersive cafe based on the classic board game Candy Land. Or if you prefer the game Risk, you can go to Taco Bell.

Representatives from Taylor Farms reportedly called the White House to ask them to delay an FDA recall announcement tied to the Cyclospora outbreak, though, if I understand correctly, Cyclospora makes it very hard to delay anything.

More than a dozen kids at camp in New Jersey fell ill last week after they allegedly ate chocolate that was laced with mushrooms, and that was the day they all learned how to make a campfire with their minds.

In an interview yesterday [July 28] on "Fox & Friends," President Trump said that the late Senator Lindsey Graham was "like a member of the family in a sense," except that he liked him and spent time with him and never mind about the family thing.

Reaching for justice: Spinoff 'Neagley' investigates a suspicious death

Jasper Jones, Adeline Rudolph, Maria Sten and Greyston Holt in "Neagley"

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

When it comes to law enforcement, some sensitive situations are best handled by forces from outside the official system. One such avenger, Jack Reacher, has been portrayed by "Titans" actor Alan Ritchson for four heart-pounding seasons of Prime Video's fan-favorite action series, "Reacher."

With the latest season soon coming to a close, Prime has answered viewers' desires for more "Reacher," with a brand-new spinoff centered around one of the show's most popular characters. Jump right from the "Reacher" Season 4 finale into "Neagley" when it debuts on Prime Video Wednesday, Sept. 16, with all eight episodes of the new series available to stream on premiere day.

Maria Sten ("Narcissa") reprises her role of private investigator Frances Neagley, a protégé of Reacher's who's been by his side since his Army major days but is now leading her own titular series. In the opening of the trailer for "Neagley," she is reassured by Reacher, who tells her she can always call on him if she needs help, however, it is clear that this time, she's the star of the show.

Both Season 4 of "Reacher" and the series premiere of "Neagley" set the action off with tragedy on a subway train. Per Prime Video, "when she learns that a beloved friend from her past has been killed in a suspicious accident, she becomes hell-bent on justice. Using everything she's learned from Jack Reacher and her time as a member of the 110 Special Investigators, Neagley puts herself on a dangerous path to uncover a menacing evil."

That friend of Neagley's is Tommy Crane, portrayed by "Supergirl" actor Jhaleil Swaby. Though Chicago police rule his death as an accident, surmising that he got high and walked into the train, that ruling does not sit right with Neagley. Together with her crew, she sets off on her own investigation, stopping at nothing to get to the bottom of Tommy's death.

Also starring in "Neagley" are Greyston Holt ("Riverdale") as Det. Hudson Riley, Adeline Rudolph ("Mortal Kombat II," 2026) as Renee Birdwhistle, Jasper Jones ("To Die

For") as Keno, Matthew Del Negro ("Mayor of Kingstown") as Pierce Woodrow and Damon Herriman ("The Artful Dodger") as cult leader Lawrence Cole. Ritchson guest stars as Reacher.

The debut season follows Neagley as she further investigates the case of Tommy's death on the tracks of the L. She is joined in her efforts by Det. Riley, who helps as an official member of law enforcement who takes interest in looking at the case as a homicide. Keno witnessed Tommy's death, and once Neagley tracks him down to get his account, he enthusiastically joins her team. What he lacks in experience, Keno makes up for in willingness to jump into action, quickly agreeing to go undercover and sniff out ulterior motives of Echo Canyon Farm.

A collective that looks from the outside suspiciously like a cult, the farm is where Tommy was living before he died. Charismatic leader Lawrence Cole has the members of the farm hanging on his every word, maniacally yelling, "I am your own personal Jesus," in the series' trailer. It seems like a good place to start investigating where things went wrong for Tommy.

Based on characters from the Jack Reacher series of novels by author Lee Child, "Neagley" is co-showrun by "Scorpion" writers and producers Nick Santora and Nicholas Wootton. Child also executive produces alongside Don Granger ("The Gorge," 2025), Sam Hill ("CSI: Miami"), Adam Higgs ("FUBAR") and Lisa Kussner ("American Gods").

Carolyn Harris ("The Raven," 2012), Kenny Madrid ("Reacher") and Niko Fernandez (Horizon Zero Dawn) oversee "Neagley" for Paramount Television Studios. Directors for the first season include Hill, Phil Abraham ("Your Friends & Neighbors"), MJ Bassett ("NCIS: Tony & Ziva") and Gary Fleder ("Lincoln Rhyme: Hunt for the Bone Collector").

During this year's San Diego Comic Con, Ritchson and Sten sat down with Variety to talk about the success of "Reacher," which Ritchson aptly called "lightning in a bottle," and the upcoming spinoff series.

"I love the character of Neagley. I love her so deeply and I think when she's on 'Reacher,' we're just scratching the surface of who she is and what she can do," Sten said. About the deeper characterization of Neagley in the upcoming series, the actress said, "there's the whole mystery behind her background and what happened to her and why she is the way that she is. I think it's so exciting for people to finally be able to know what her deal is, and of course that's what we're going to be exploring in the show."

How does "Neagley" differentiate itself from "Reacher" and where does it overlap with its originating series? Sten explained: "It's all the things that we know and love about 'Reacher.' It's the person who stands up for the little guy, it's all the action that we love. I think where it really separates is there is a lot of emotionality to our show. I think especially halfway through the season, there's a particular episode that really changes the language of what the show is. I think the writers did such an amazing job in getting creative about establishing this as its own thing that can do things like that."

Catch the Season 4 finale of "Reacher" and the series premiere of "Neagley" Wednesday, Sept. 16, on Prime Video.

Best in Shows: 78th Primetime Emmy Awards honors outstanding TV

Mariska Hargitay hosts the 78th Primetime Emmy Awards

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Given the degree to which the television industry has changed in the past 25 years, it's hard to believe that the TV, as a device, has only been readily available to the average consumer for less than 80 years in total. According to PBS.org, a "1949 edition of the Sears, Roebuck catalogue was the first to offer televisions"; and 1949, it just so happens, also marked the first ever Primetime Emmy Awards. Although the ceremony was not nationally broadcast until NBC took up the honor in 1955, the Emmys has for the past 31 years been on annual rotation between the four major networks: NBC, Fox, CBS and ABC. Additionally, viewership methods have evolved beyond broadcasting-only to include live and delayed streaming options. Nevertheless, the annual

Primetime Emmy Awards has remained a shining example of "appointment television."

Tune in to the Primetime Emmy Awards — hosted by Law & Order franchise icon Mariska Hargitay and airing Monday, Sept. 14, on NBC and Peacock — to celebrate 78 years of excellence in prime-time television and, arguably, 78 years of the household TV set.

In June 2026, the Nielsen.com Data Center released updated statistics for The Gauge, an online doughnut chart displaying recent trends in television content consumption. This chart, which derives its data from "a subset of streaming meter-enabled TV households" and "linear TV sources" within the National TV panel, attributes 48.5% of all television viewership to streaming. With this in mind, it makes sense that many of this year's Emmy-nominated series are streaming originals.

Dr. Robby and his team of co-workers and interns face all manner of medical issues, from the mundane to the severe and unusual. Nominated across 25 categories (nine of which are "Major," according to public-access encyclopedic site Wikipedia), "The Pitt" has only one nomination more than "Hacks," which streams on the same service.

Having released its fifth and final season this past spring, "Hacks" closely follows fictional aging stand-up comedian Deborah Vance (Jean Smart, "24") as she and her 25-year-old comedy writer, Ava Daniels (Hannah Einbinder, "Strange Planet"), navigate their relationship with each other and with their shared true love: comedy.

"It's a love story," series co-creator Paul W. Downs ("Broad City") told Variety in a 2022 video interview. "It's about two women who are cast aside by society and really need each other. We wanted to create characters that were flawed and needed to do a lot of growing."

Audiences have certainly latched onto the love story; to date, "Hacks" has won a total of 12 Primetime Emmys across four seasons and has the possibility of winning 24 more for its final season alone, should it secure wins for each of its nominations. And while that is possible, it's highly unlikely due to the number of nominees and the relatively complex nature of the voting process, which can be found, in detail, using the Emmy Awards page on TelevisionAcademy.com.

If you're looking for help assembling your own Emmy Awards predictions ballot, the Variety.com Awards Circuit has got you covered. Updated every Thursday, "the prediction pages reflect the current standings in the race and do not reflect personal preferences for any individual contender," reads the preamble atop the page predicting the Primetime Emmy for Outstanding Comedy Series.

"As other formal [and informal] polls suggest," continues the disclaimer, "competitions are fluid and subject to change based on buzz and events."

As of writing, Variety reporter Clayton Davis anticipates "Widow's Bay" as the winner for Outstanding Comedy Series and "The Pitt" for Outstanding Drama Series. For Outstanding Limited or Anthology Series, he selects Netflix's "The Beef" over "All Her Fault" (Peacock), "DTF St. Louis" (HBO Max), "The Beast in Me" (Netflix) and "Love Story: John F. Kennedy and Carolyn Bessette" (FX). Meanwhile, in the Outstanding Movie category, Davis has listed Netflix's octopus tale "Remarkably Bright Creatures" (2026) as the top contender, likely to edge out HBO Max's "Miss You, Love You" (2026), "Tom Clancy's Jack Ryan: Ghost War" (2026) and "Heads of State" (2025) on Prime Video and fellow Netflix film "People We Meet on Vacation" (2026).

Don't miss your opportunity to witness the distribution of accolades for a fantastic year of prime-time television. The 78th Primetime Emmy Awards airs Monday, Sept. 14, on NBC and Peacock.

'The Traitors: New Blood' opens competition to civilian contestants

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

From teacher to 'Traitors': The treachery continues as 22 everyday Americans settle into Scotland's Arddross Castle for "The Traitors: New Blood," an all-civilian iteration of TV's most murderous competition series, coming Thursday, Sept. 17, to NBC with a two-hour premiere. Each episode streams the following day on Peacock.

Building on the success of the Emmy-winning Peacock original series "The Traitors," this latest iteration of the competition sees ordinary civilians — not celebrities, as with previous seasons — working together through a series of thrilling, psychologically challenging missions to build a prize fund worth up to $250,000. Among these dedicated players, called the Faithful, are a hidden group of Traitors who race to eliminate the Faithful before they can be discovered and taken out of the game. If the remaining Faithful find and banish every Traitor, they share the prize fund — but if even one Traitor survives to the end, the Traitors take it all.

"New Blood's" first round of contestants include: Abbey Benjamin (37, nurse), Abby Lee (29, astrophysicist), Arisa Thomas (36, dog groomer), Ben McDonnell (34, barrel racer), Clyde Moser (32, teacher), Jay Vinnedge (36, physician), Joe Vanella (44, funeral director), Katie Fites (23, marketing manager), Kim Daily (37, lawyer), Kriste Lewis (52, realtor), Logan Smith (26, realtor), Madeline Kostopulos (26, construction manager), Mark Zgoda (26, personal trainer), Michael Foote (38, lawyer), Morgan Cook (30, content creator), Niyyah Hayes (29, therapist), Shane Beatty (32, ironworker), Sherry Kuehl (65, writer), Tomica Adams (54, pilot), Victor Vollbrechthausen (26, business executive), Wyatt Gillespie (26, designer) and Xavier Scruggs (38, MLB analyst).

In the season's first episode, "New Blood's" first Traitors will be revealed. But viewers can expect countless twists and turns, as the Traitors franchise has been known to throw numerous twists at the feet of its contestants, including "Secret Traitors," kept hidden from both the Faithful and the audience at home.

With Alan Cumming ("The Traitors") returning as host and executive producer, alongside Mike Cotton ("Fake or Fortune"), Sam Rees-Jones ("The Traitors U.K."), Rosie Franks ("Cooking with the Stars U.K."), Jack Burgess ("The Circle"), Stephen Lambert ("Undercover Boss") and Tim Harcourt ("Race Across the World"), "The Traitors: New Blood" premieres Thursday, Sept. 17, on NBC. It streams the next day on Peacock.

Haunted rivalry: Scary or not, here they come. Daring designers move into one of America's most haunted houses for a month of ghoulish competition in the all-new series "A Very Haunted Renovation," coming Tuesday, Sept. 15, to HGTV.

"An eerie and historic Victorian mansion sits vacant on a quiet street in Fremont, Ohio. No voices ring through its empty rooms — no live ones, anyway," says host Anna Camp ("Scream 7," 2026) during a sneak peek of the upcoming series. "Bihl Manor is one of the most haunted houses in America. Ghosts roam three floors of eerie spaces, tormenting all those who enter. Unoccupied, falling apart and on the verge of demolition, no one is brave enough to set foot inside ... until now."

Six renovation and design experts will pack their bags and make a home of Bihl Manor, where they "put their nerve, creativity and design skills to the test as they bring the home's spine-tingling spaces back from the dead," according to the show's official description. Joined by mentor Michel Smith Boyd ("Luxe For Less"), the designers will tackle weekly elimination challenges, facing celebrity guests like actress Cassandra Peterson ("Elvira: Mistress of the Dark," 1988), director Eli Roth ("Death Wish," 2018) and "Black Panther" (2018) production designer Hannah Beachler as they present their so-called "unnerving overhauls." In the end, one spirited designer will walk with a $50,000 cash prize — and more than a few spooky stories up their sleeve.

Previews for "A Very Haunted Renovation" have shared glimpses into the series' first season, including some of the struggles that contestants face while working and living in a haunted space. In the show's first episode, for example, the designers will be split into two teams for a bedroom design battle. With only four days to complete a massive makeover, the designers face a massive time crunch and must find their inspiration from Lizzie and Alvie Bihl, two ghosts rumored to haunt the sleeping quarters.

You can replace wallpaper and retile floors, but is there a remedy for sticky spirits?

From Grandma's House Entertainment, "A Very Haunted Renovation" makes its debut Tuesday, Sept. 15, on HGTV.

"Jo Koy: Blue in the Face"

Stand-up comedian Joseph Herbert ("Haunted Mansion," 2023), better known as Jo Koy, is back and ready to bring the house down with his sixth Netflix special, "Jo Koy: Blue in the Face," premiering on the streamer Tuesday, Sept. 15. Famous for his big-hearted family stories, Koy's hourlong set continues the boisterous, heartfelt comedy that's made him one of the top 10 grossing stand-up comedians in the world. "Blue in the Face" marks his sixth Netflix special, following 2024's "Jo Koy: Live from Brooklyn," among the platform's most-watched stand-up specials of that year. This time, he's riffing on a wild dental emergency, getting fired from McDonald's as a teenager and he gives a heartfelt tribute to his veteran stepdad. Filmed before a sold-out crowd at Adventist Health Arena in Stockton, California, the special arrives as Koy tours the U.S. on his Koy Meets World Tour. "Raw, relentless and laugh-out-loud funny," says Netflix, "Blue in the Face" is proof that Jo Koy never runs out of things to say. This sepecial is directed and executive produced by Shannon Hartman ("Patriot Act with Hasan Minhaj") alongside Koy, Mi-

"Monster: The Lizzie Borden Story"

The story of one of America's most notorious female serial killers unfolds in "Monster: The Lizzie Borden Story," streaming Thursday, Sept. 17, on Netflix. Ryan Murphy ("American Horror Story") and Ian Brennan's ("The Watcher") "Monster" anthology series returns with a fourth installment, this time turning the clock back to 1892 in Fall River, Massachusetts, where a seemingly friendly, mild-mannered Lizzie Borden (Ella Beatty, "If I Had Legs I'd Kick You," 2026) feels trapped by the domestic constraints of the 19th century and seeks a bloody path to freedom. Alongside the Bordens' live-in maid, Bridget Sullivan (Vicky Krieps, who starred as Ilse Koch in "Monster: The Ed Gein Story"), Lizzie finds an escape in a fantasy fueled by "sex, power and revenge" (per Netflix), setting the stage for the gruesome murders of her father, Andrew (Charlie Hunnam, returning after playing Ed Gein in "Monster: The Ed Gein Story"), and stepmother, Abby (Rebecca Hall, "The Town," 2010). Also starring Billie Lourd ("Scream Queens"), Jessica Barden ("The End of the Fing World"), Sarah Paulson ("All's Fair") and more, this eight-episode season marks the first time the series has focused on a female killer.

"Best of the Best" (2026)

Maitreyi Ramakrishnan ("Freakier Friday," 2025) and Priyanka Kedia ("Everything to Me," 2024) compete with the "Best of the Best" in Netf-lix's latest comedy from director Lena Khan ("The Tiger Hunter," 2016), premiering on the streamer Friday, Sept. 18. The film follows two childhood best friends, Maya (Ramakrishnan) and Anjali (Kedia), who "join UCLA's competitive Bollywood-fusion dance team, only to discover that the road to winning the U.S. championship is far more raucous and cutthroat than they ever imagined" (per Netflix). Also starring Chaneil Kular ("Sex Education"), Ankur Rathee ("Shehzada," 2023), Shreya Navile ("Month of Madhu," 2023), Becky Alex ("Fabric Skin," 2024), Nihar Duvvuri (who starred last year in the Broadway production of Kimberly Belflower's play, "John Proctor Is the Villain"), Nico Greetham ("The Prom," 2020), Amryn Khurana ("Legends," 2025), Tanishq Joshi ("Love You Right," 2021) and Lilly Singh ("Bad Moms," 2016).

"Reacher" – Season 4

Jack Reacher never asked for trouble, but trouble always finds a seat next to him. Season 4 of "Reacher" concludes Wednesday, Sept. 16, when the finale drops on Prime Video. Jack Reacher (Alan Ritchson, "War Machine," 2026) is minding his own business on a late-night New York subway when a distraught woman across the platform catches his eye. Before he can intervene, she's gone, and Reacher is left holding the loose thread of a conspiracy far bigger than a single tragedy. Digging into her death alongside her brother, Jacob Merrick (Chris Marquette, "Barry"), Reacher uncovers ties to a missing child, a corrupt Pentagon insider and a mother-daughter duo, Lila (Agnès Mo, "Groove Tails," 2026) and Amisha Hoth (Anggun, "Asia's Got Talent"), whose motives run deeper than money. Det. Tamara Green (Sydelle Noel, "GLOW") and journalist Russell Plum (Kevin Weisman, "Alias") work the same trail from different angles, while power players John (Marc Blucas, "Buffy the Vampire Slayer") and Elsbeth Sansom (Kathleen Robertson, "Beverly Hills, 90210") guard secrets worth killing for. As bodies pile up and enemies resurface, Reacher does what he does best, following the truth wherever it leads, fists first, into the highest echelons of power. Season 4 of "Reacher" is based on Lee Child's bestselling novel, "Gone Tomorrow."

Saturday, September 12, 2026

"You + Me – Against the World" (2026)

Adapted from Emma Green's bestselling romance trilogy, "You + Me – Against the World" premieres Friday, Sept. 18, on Prime Video, following 18-year-old Alma Lancaster (Vittoria di Savoia, "La mere et l'assassin"), a young woman caught between the life her wealthy family wants for her and the future she wants for herself. While her parents believe she is studying law, Alma secretly pursues filmmaking and finds an unexpected partner in Vadim Arcadi (played by newcomer Lucas Barski), a magnetic, solitary rebel with a troubled past. Forced to work together on a student film, the pair clash before an undeniable attraction draws them closer, turning their creative partnership into something neither can ignore. But as their relationship deepens, they begin receiving anonymous threats from someone who is determined to tear them apart and expose all the secrets that could destroy them both. The campus drama is directed by Manon Gaurin ("SKAM France"), who co-wrote the screenplay with Eliane Vigneron ("Balthazar") and Alix Letribot ("Baron Noir").

"Slow Horses" – Season 6

With MI5 under new leadership, "Slow Horses" returns Wednesday, Sept. 16, on Prime Video via the Apple TV channel, facing a deadly new threat from within the agency. Last season ended with Diana Taverner (Kristin Scott Thomas, "The English Patient," 1997) taking over as First Desk after Claude Whelan (James Callis, "Battlestar Galactica") lost his position over his handling of a terrorist plot, while Jackson Lamb (Gary Oldman, "Darkest Hour," 2017) was forced to confront a painful chapter from his past. Now, this season follows Taverner as she turns to Slough House for revenge. When Slough House spies start turning up dead, Lamb must find a way to keep his current and former agents alive — including those already believed to be six feet under. As enemies close in, deception becomes a survival skill for some of Lamb's joes, while others discover that pretending to be dead is harder than it sounds. In addition to Jack Lowden ("Dunkirk"), Rosalind Eleazar ("The Personal History of David Copperfield"), Christopher Chung ("Waterloo Road"), Aimee-Ffion Edwards ("Peaky Blinders"), Tom Brooke ("Preacher") and Saskia Reeves ("Wolf Hall"), "House of the Dragon's" Olivia Cooke returns as Sid Baker and Lenny Rush ("Am I Being Unreasonable?") joins the cast as a new addition. Season 6 is based on Mick Herron's "Joe Country" and "Slough House," the sixth and seventh books in his nine-novel "Slough House" espionage series.

Spooky September

Halloween haunts early on Food Network

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

The three months between the back-to-school and winter holiday seasons can feel long and brutal; temperatures drop, sunlight arrives later and leaves earlier with each passing day and sun-kissed beach days become foggy, distant memories. Thankfully, there is one celebration — one whose popularity has grown significantly in recent years — to help everyone embrace the looming darkness.

Halloween has been a monthlong Food Network event since 2011, when “Halloween Wars” premiered its very first season. Fifteen years later, “Halloween Wars” returns for Season 16, proving that spooky skeletons and horrifying headstones do have a place in the kitchen.

“Halloween Wars” launches its 16th season Sunday, Sept. 13, on Food Network.

Jonathan Bennett (“Mean Girls,” 2004) returns to host the confection-focused competition series, as he has done nearly every year since Season 6. Initially hosted by magician and comedian Justin Willman (“Cupcake Wars”) from seasons 1 to 4, Rossi Morreale (“Life’s an Itch,” 2012) hosted for Season 5 before Bennett assumed the “Halloween Wars” throne in 2016. Since then, Bennett has been the face of the competition, barring a brief hiatus from 2021 to 2022, in which the series was hosted by TV paranormal investigator Zak Bagans (“Ghost Adventures”).

Shinmin Li, Jonathan Bennett and Andrew Fuller in “Halloween Wars”

This season, “Halloween Wars” boasts a “Back from the Dead” theme, resurrecting returning champions to cater to the unofficial holiday’s rich tradition of honoring the dead and embracing the thinning of the veil between our realm and the afterlife.

The two-hour premiere “launches with two rounds of competition, beginning with terrifying head-to-head battles that could put even the strongest teams of former champions in jeopardy,” reads the Food Network description. “As the pressure rises, emotions boil over and the losing teams face a brutal ‘Do or Die’ Round 2 showdown where one team will be eliminated.”

Bennett is joined this year by Season 1 “Is It Cake?” winner Andrew Fuller and “Holiday Wars” judge Shinmin Li, both of whom “will evaluate each team’s spectacular compositions throughout the season and ultimately award $30,000 to the winning team.”

Don’t miss the two-hour premiere of “Halloween Wars” when it airs Sunday, Sept. 13, on Food Network. And stay tuned to #HalloweenWars on the network’s social media, where Bennett “will attempt mini-Halloween challenges” while Li and Fuller “share tips and tricks for easier home baking.”

Supergirl

Kara Zor-El (Alcock) tries to figure out who she is beyond being Superman's (Co-renswet) cousin. Unlike Superman, Kara remembers Krypton's destruction firsthand and grew up surrounded by loss, leaving her considerably more cynical and reckless. Kara spends her 23rd birthday traveling through space with her dog, Krypto, drinking and partying on planets with red suns where she can temporarily lose her Kryptonian abilities. Her aimless lifestyle changes when she meets Ruthye Marye Knoll (Ridley), a young alien girl whose father has been murdered by the ruthless warlord Krem of the Yellow Hills (Schoenaerts). After Krem's actions hit close to home, including an attack that leaves Krypto poisoned, Kara agrees to help Ruthye hunt Krem down and kill him for revenge.

Lucky Strike

Col. John Castle (Eastwood) is an American officer whose unit is sent into the Ardennes as German forces launch a massive counteroffensive. Castle and his men are caught behind enemy lines when their position is overwhelmed, and the attack seemingly leaves Castle the sole survivor. Badly injured and facing freezing winter conditions, Castle has to make his way roughly 30 kilometers back to an American rally point. He has very little equipment and is surrounded by German troops. His most important possession is a Motorola SCR-300 radio. Rather than simply trying to stay alive, Castle realizes that his radio can make him useful to the Americans. He begins using stealth, deception and spyecraft to evade German patrols and gather intelligence. His journey becomes a cat-and-mouse game as he moves through enemy territory, constantly having to determine which people he can trust and when he should risk making contact with Allied forces.

Director: Rod Lurie. Stars: Scott Eastwood, Colin Hanks, Aunjanue Ellis-Taylor, Taylor John Smith. 2026. 104 min. Action Thriller.

When the Minions accidentally appear in a Western being filmed, Hollywood executives realize that their chaotic behavior makes them incredibly entertaining and the Minions become silent-film sensations. The Minions move into a mansion and throw extravagant parties, enjoying their newfound fame. However, their success collapses when talking pictures arrive.

"Fast & Furious Presents: Hobbs & Shaw" (2019)

Expanding the world of the "Fast & Furious" franchise, "Fast & Furious Presents: Hobbs & Shaw," lands on Hulu on Monday, Sept. 14. As the 11th film in this speed-loving franchise, this spin-off sees key players from the east and west forming alliances, as American lawman Luke Hobbs (Dwayne Johnson, "Fast Five," 2011) teams up with a lawless MI6 operative, Deckard Shaw (Jason Statham, "The Expendables 4," 2023), to take down a cybernetically enhanced super soldier (Idris Elba, "Beasts of No Nation," 2015). From director David Leitch ("The Fall Guy," 2024), "Hobbs & Shaw" also stars the likes of Vanessa Kirby ("The Crown"), Joe "Roman Reigns" Anoa'i ("WWE Monday Night RAW"), Ryan Reynolds ("Deadpool," 2016), Eiza Gonzalez ("I Care a Lot," 2020) and Helen Mirren ("The Queen," 2006), among others.

"100 Nights of Hero" (2025)

A medieval fairytale lifts off the pages of Isabel Greenberg's ("The Gilded Age") beloved novel and lands on the screen in director Julia Jackman's ("23 Red," 2018) fantasy drama, "100 Nights of Hero," streaming Friday, Sept. 18, on Hulu. In a kingdom ruled by rigid law, Cherry's (Maika Monroe, "It Follows," 2014) marriage has gone unconsummated, and she has 100 nights to conceive an heir or face certain death. Her husband Jerome (played by "The Night Manager's" Amir El-Masry), unwilling to fulfill his duty, strikes a deal with his friend Manfred (Nicholas Galitzine, "Red, White & Royal Blue," 2023): if Manfred can win Cherry's affection before the deadline, he will inherit Jerome's castle and fortune. Left alone in the castle with only her maid, Hero (Emma Corrin, "The Crown"), Cherry finds comfort in her company as Manfred continues to pursue her. To help Cherry escape his advances, Hero tells her tales of the ladies who risked everything to read, write and make their own choices. As Cherry listens, she begins to question the rules that have controlled her life, and soon, she and Hero grow closer than either of them ever expected. When Jerome returns and learns what has happened, whispers of witchcraft turn the court against them. Facing judgment for crimes of the heart and the pen, Cherry and Hero are offered one chance to save themselves. Instead, they write their own ending, and their defiance echoes long after the castle doors close.

"The Green Knight" (2021)

A young knight strikes a dangerous bargain with a mysterious stranger in 2021's "The Green Knight," available now on Hulu. On Christmas morning, Gawain (Dev Patel, "Monkey Man," 2024) leaves his lover, Essel (Alicia Vikander, "The Man from U.N.C.L.E.," 2015), to rejoin his uncle, King Arthur (Sean Harris, "Mission: Impossible - Rogue Nation," 2015), at the Round Table. A mysterious giant called the Green Knight (Ralph Ineson, "The VVitch: A New-England Folktales," 2015) walks into the hall and offers them a deal: any knight who strikes him may keep his axe, but must find him again in one year and take the same blow in return. Gawain accepts and beheads him. The Knight picks up his own head, reminds Gawain of his promise, and rides away. A year later, Gawain sets out for the Green Chapel, wearing a girdle his mother says will protect him. On the road, thieves rob him, a ghost asks for his help and a fox becomes his only companion. At a castle along the way, a lord and his wife offer him shelter, then test his honesty with a wager of their own. Each stop brings Gawain closer to the chapel, and to the moment he must keep his word or lose his head. "The Green Knight" is written and directed by David Lowery ("Pete's Dragon," 2016).

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison

Q: My mother-in-law constantly gets Alec Baldwin and John Travolta mixed up, and it made me curious: have they ever starred together?

John and Helen Travolta in "Saturday Night Fever"

ture joke — you were an adult in the '90s if you can't tell Alec Baldwin ("The Marrying Man," 1991) and John Travolta ("Saturday Night Fever," 1977) apart.

And they have indeed been up for a lot of the same parts. For example, various reports say that Baldwin was considered for Travolta's iconic roles in "Pulp Fiction" (1994) and "Face/Off" (1997).

Despite all that, the two have never appeared on screen together.

The closest they came was, in fact, very far away indeed: they both appear in archival footage in the bizarre, pseudo-real art film "I'm Still Here" (2010), in which Joaquin Phoenix ("Gladiator," 2000) plays a version of himself trying to transition into a rap career.

But dozens of other stars appear in the film in the same capacity — part of its attempt to shore up its realist bonafides — and they didn't actually have to physically "appear" at all.

And that's it. Other than that and showing up on some of the same entertainment news and awards shows, Baldwin's and Travolta's careers have been totally separate. Whether that's made them easier or harder to tell apart is up to fans, including your mother-in-law, to decide.

Q: It's been bugging me for years: why do I recognize Miranda from "House of Payne"? What else is she in?

A: Today, Keshia Knight Pulliam ("Madea Goes to Jail," 2009) is best known as Miranda Payne, formerly Miranda Lucas, in the long-running, hit syndicated sitcom "House of Payne," and for her strong sideline in Lifetime TV movies. But more than a generation ago, and for years afterward, she was only Rudy Huxtable from "The Cosby Show."

You have to give Pulliam credit: not a lot of child stars find adult stardom, and the other so-called Cosby kids — her siblings in the iconic '80s sitcom — haven't fared as well.

It may have helped that she took a good, long break. For a whole decade after "The Cosby Show" ended in 1992, she was completely absent from the screen.
