Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

It is Presidents Day [Feb. 17], so to those who celebrate — why? When I was a kid, it wasn't Presidents Day. We celebrated Washington and Lincoln's birthdays. Every February we would hang out stockings and wait for Abraham Lincoln to fill them with wooden teeth.

Friends, we live in truly paradigm-shattering times, which is why I was not surprised to be shocked by how startled I was that, this week, California introduced a bill to recognize Bigfoot as the state's official cryptid. Well that's strange and completely unnecessary; California already has a mystical furry creature — Randy Quaid.

If this bill passes, it will open the door for other states to officially celebrate their own local cryptids like New Mexico's Jackalope, the New Jersey Devil and, of course, the most hideous beast of all — the New York Giuliani.

It feels like every day we get news of yet another inexplicable chaotic move seemingly bent on undermining everything we as Americans hold dear, and today [Feb. 19] is no different because KFC is moving its corporate headquarters from Kentucky to Texas. What is going on? What is happening? What's next: Jersey Mike's becomes Maine's Micky's? Will Papa John step down as Pizza Pope? Burger King abdicates his throne to marry a common nugget? Kentucky Fried Chicken isn't just a name, ladies and gentlemen, it's part of Kentucky history. It was founded a century ago in 1930 in Corbin, Kentucky. Even now if you purchase KFC somewhere that is not Kentucky legally, they have to call it "Sparkling White Chicken."

Well, it turns out being an unelected donor running an unauthorized employee Kill Squad might get you sued at some point in the future. So, in new legal filings, the White House claims that Elon Musk is not in charge at DOGE. What? It's literally named after his favorite meme. This is the most confusing leadership structure since Ruth's Chris Steakhouse. Who is Chris? Why does he seem to belong to Ruth? Wait, does that mean we're eating Chris. Is he the steak?

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon (R)

Eight years after going off the air, "Duck Dynasty" is being revived on A&E. Meanwhile, Gen Z is like, "What is being revived on what?"

Delta Airlines just announced a new partnership with DraftKings. Yes, soon you'll be able to bet on which passenger goes full Karen on the flight attendants.

Jimmy Kimmel Live! (R)

I don't know if you know, this is one of our most anticipated days of the year in Hollywood — the nominations for the 97th Academy Awards. After a shaky couple of weeks, we finally have some good news: the list of Oscar nominees is out and Matt Damon isn't on it! Again, it's the little things that keep me going.

Hail to the chief inspector: Uzo Aduba stars in Shondaland White House mystery series

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Shonda Rhimes is back in the White House. After the success of her hit political drama "Scandal" and her stately English period romance series "Bridgerton," Shonda Rhimes and her prolific team are tackling a new project — and this one is taking some cues from famed mystery author Agatha Christie. "The Residence," a new, eight-episode locked-room murder mystery set in the White House, premieres Thursday, March 20, on Netflix.

While the series falls neatly under the Shondaland banner, which also includes the two aforementioned series as well as "Grey's Anatomy," "Station 19," "Inventing Anna" and more, "The Residence" is created and helmed by "Scandal" staff writer and "For the People" creator Paul William Davies.

Excited for the release of his new series starring Uzo Aduba ("Orange Is the New Black"), Davies told Netflix's news site, Tudum, that "'The Residence' is honestly a lot of things. It's funny, it's suspenseful, it's clever, it's totally farcical in places, it's genuinely romantic in others."

Regarding the series' plot and overall vibe, "The Residence" channels the Christie-era murder mystery and its recent descendants, such as Rian Johnson's "Knives Out" (2019) and "Glass Onion" (2022) films, as well as the Hulu/Disney+ sensation "Only Murders in the Building."

Insofar as the official logline is concerned, Shondaland and Netflix have offered the following description: "132 rooms. 157 suspects. One dead body. One wildly eccentric detective. One disastrous state dinner. 'The Residence' is a screwball whodunnit set in the upstairs, downstairs and backstairs of the White House, among the eclectic staff of the world's most famous mansion."

Aduba shines in the lead role as consulting detective Cordelia Cupp, who is as awkward as she is intelligent — which is to say, very. Referred to by Netflix as "the most sought-after investigator in the world," Cupp is "known for her unexpected humor, relentless pursuit of truth and sharp eye for human behavior." It bears noting that Cupp is also an avid birder, demonstrating unmatched patience to accompany her keen attention to detail.

Joining the "Mrs. America" actress on screen is, as Aduba puts it, "an amazing group of phenomenally talented, good, good, good human beings who are generous, thoughtful, fun, gifted, talented [and] just awesome."

"It was straight jams every day with our cast," Aduba later added. "We loved coming to work every day."

More specifically, Aduba shares her screen time with "Fresh Off the Boat" and "WandaVision's" Randall Park, who plays skeptical FBI agent Edwin Park. Agent Park is assigned to work the state dinner alongside Cupp, but does not exactly jive with her methods. All told, however, the pair's conflicting views work wonders to balance each other's biases throughout the series.

Other members of the star-studded ensemble cast include Al Franken ("Saturday Night Live") as the Washington State senator; Andrew Friedman ("Better Call Saul") as the director of the National Park Police; Julian McMahon ("FBI: Most Wanted") as the Australian prime minister; Edwina Findley ("The Wire") as the White House butler; Paul Fitzgerald ("Dare Me") as President Perry Morgan; Molly Griggs ("Dr. Death") as the president's social secretary; Jason Lee ("My Name Is Earl") as the president's disheveled younger brother; Jane Curtin ("3rd Rock From the Sun") as the president's mother-in-law; and Australian pop sensation Kylie Minogue as herself.

Ken Marino ("Party Down"), Al Mitchell ("Stranger Things"), Isiah Whitlock Jr. ("Your Honor"), Mary Wiseman ("Star Trek: Discovery"), Taran Killam ("High Potential"), Nathan Lovejoy ("The Good Place") and Brett Tucker ("Big Leap") are also among many others in the supporting cast.

Additionally, potential viewers learned very early in the show's marketing that Giancarlo Esposito's ("Breaking Bad") character, White House chief usher A.B. Wynter, is the reason for the plot. The victim whose death kickstarts the series, the role was originally tied to "Brooklyn Nine-Nine" actor Andre Braugher, but was recast following the actor's sudden death in December 2023 (the series has been in production since 2022 and was postponed due to the industry strike).

"I couldn't be prouder and more honored to be stepping into Shondaland's 'The Residence' for someone that I loved and respected and cherished," said Esposito of Braugher following the recasting. "To be afforded the opportunity to create in his honor with this incredible team extends the depth and breadth of his legacy through all of us who loved him so dearly."

And although the extensive and well-respected cast does add to the show's wide market appeal, one aspect many viewers may not know is that "The Residence" was inspired by American journalist Kate Andersen Brower's 2015 nonfiction book titled "The Residence: Inside the Private World of the White House."

While it is true that no such murder has ever taken place at a state dinner, Davies explained his decision to use the New York Times Bestseller as the catalyst for his fictional whodunnit.

"One of the things that really struck me in reading [sic] Brower's book ... was the sheer theatricality of it all," Davies shared with Tudum. "People often use the term upstairs/downstairs to describe life in these big houses like the White House, but I really thought of it more in terms of onstage/backstage."

Don't miss your chance to step behind the velvet curtain when "The Residence" premieres Thursday, March 20, on Netflix.

Bouncing into March Madness: Movies to put you in the basketball spirit

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

For those who live in regions that annually experience four distinct seasons — and particularly for those regions with snow — this is precisely the time of year when dreams of sunshine and outdoor activity begin to occupy our minds. For many, this means a trip to the garden center and planning more gatherings outside, but for others, this is the time of year to enjoy March Madness, the NCAA's three-week-long men's Division I basketball tournament.

Running from Sunday, March 16, to Monday, April 7, March Madness is, according to NCAA.com, a "single-elimination tournament of 68 teams that compete in seven rounds for the national championship." And what better way to get in the mood for the biggest college basketball tournament of the year than to kick back and unwind with some of the best basketball films of all time? Below is a list of films, each centered upon the great sport of b-ball and available to rent or stream at your convenience.

Widely considered to be one of the best basketball films of all time for its honesty with regard to systemic issues and the college sports system, Spike Lee's "He Got Game" (1998) is available to stream on Disney+ or to rent from Prime Video. Best known for his New York-based "joints" "Do the Right Thing" (1989), "She's Gotta Have It" (1986) and "Crooklyn" (1994), writer-director Lee brings his unique sociopolitical vision to the athletic world as he tells the story of Jake Shuttleworth (Denzel Washington, "Training Day," 2001). A father and convicted felon, Jake has been temporarily paroled in order to convince his budding basketball star son, Jesus (played by real-life NBA star Ray Allen, "Harvard Man," 2001), to play for the governor's alma mater in exchange for a shortened prison sentence.

Co-starring Milla Jovovich ("Resident Evil," 2002), Rosario Dawson ("Ahsoka"), John Turturro ("Severance"), Hill Harper ("CSI: NY") and Zeld Harris ("Crooklyn," 1994), "He Got Game" has been praised for its realism with regard to the father/son

one-on-one matchup near the film's conclusion.

Another basketball film that tops the charts (and likely one of two that immediately comes to mind when someone mentions the genre) is Ron Shelton's ("Bull Durham," 1988) 1992 classic "White Men Can't Jump."

Available to stream on Hulu and Tubi, this buddy comedy stars Wesley Snipes ("Blade," 1998) and Woody Harrelson ("True Detective") as rival basketball hustlers who decide to team up in order to double their chances at success in street ball and, later, in a tournament. Praised for its accurate portrayal of street basketball culture and race relations, this laugh-out-loud sports flick also stars Rosie Perez ("It Could Happen to You," 1994), Tyra Ferrell ("Boyz n the Hood," 1991) and Kadeem Hardison ("Renaissance Man," 1994).

The other movie that may immediately jump to mind from within the basketball genre is "Hoosiers," the 1986 classic from director David Anspaugh ("Rudy," 1993), which is available to stream on Tubi and to rent or buy via Prime Video or Apple TV+.

Set in 1950s Indiana and starring the recently deceased Gene Hackman ("The French Connection," 1971) as a coach with a checkered past, "the film follows his efforts to train the local high school team to be the top pick for the state championship. Packed with inspirational messages and relatable quandaries, late film critic Roger Ebert hailed the film for "work[ing] a magic ... in getting us to really care about the fate of the team and the people depending on it," adding that "Hoosiers" is "a movie that is all heart."

Co-starring Dennis Hopper ("Blue Velvet," 1986) and Barbara Hershey ("Black Swan," 2010) as Shooter and Myra, respectively, "Hoosiers" is sure to put audiences in the tournament spirit ahead of March Madness.

Once b-ball fans have exhausted these classics, plenty more delights await via streaming and on-demand services, such as "Coach Carter" (2005) on Peacock; "Love & Basketball" (2000) on Starz; "Rebound" (2005), "Glory Road" (2006) and the 2023 remake of "White Men Can't Jump" on Disney+; and "Hustle" (2022), "High Flying Bird" (2019), "Amateur" (2018) and "Rez Ball" (2024) on Netflix.

Netflix subscribers also have access to the original 1996 "Space Jam," starring NBA superstar Michael Jordan, to encourage even the youngest fans to get into the spirit of the game. For those who do not have that particular subscription service, both "Space Jam" and its 2021 counterpart, subtitled "A New Legacy" and starring more recent NBA icon LeBron James, are available to rent via Prime Video and Apple TV+.

So why not gather the family to get into the March Madness spirit? After all, several timeless classics are just a click away. Likewise, don't forget to tune in to the NCAA's Selection Sunday on March 16 and watch the First Four take to the court March 18 and 19. Check your local listings for details.

Taylor Swift, Lady Gaga and more celebrated at 2025 'iHeartRadio Music Awards'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Superstar singers: Together, artists and industry professionals alike join to celebrate the most-played musicians and songs on iHeartRadio stations and the iHeartRadio app throughout 2024 — and offer fans at home a peek of what's to come in 2025 — during the 12th annual presentation of the iHeartRadio Music Awards, broadcasting live from the Dolby Theatre in Los Angeles, Monday, March 17, on Fox.

In a show featuring thrilling live performances, exciting guests and surprise collaborations, iHeartRadio offers fans the opportunity to acknowledge winners throughout a wide array of genres and categories, including Song of the Year, Artist of the Year and World Artist of the Year; and fan-voted categories such as Favorite Soundtrack, Favorite Broadway Debut, Favorite K-pop Dance Challenge, Favorite Surprise Guest, Favorite Tour Tradition, Best Lyrics and more.

This year, "Espresso" singer Sabrina Carpenter and, keeping with tradition, superstar Taylor Swift ("The Tortured Poets Department") lead with a whopping nine nominations each across all categories. Swift will certainly be in attendance — and will grace the stage — as her worldwide, years-spanning Eras Tour will be recognized as "Tour of the Century."

Following closely behind these powerhouse pop singers are Kendrick Lamar ("Not Like Us"), Post Malone ("I Had Some Help") and Morgan Wallen ("Cowgirls"), who earned themselves seven, six and five nominations, respectively.

While her new song "Abracadabra" rocks radio stations across the country, Lady Gaga will also attend the night's event, being presented with the 2025 iHeartRadio Innovator Award.

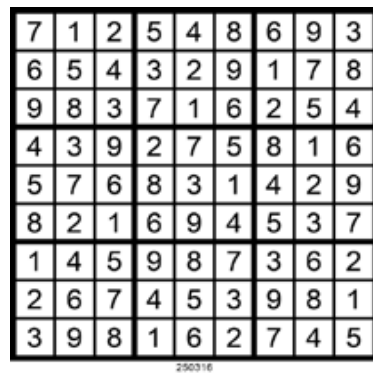

"Beyond creating music and performances that have inspired the world, Lady Gaga is an outspoken activist, philanthropist and supporter of many important issues including mental health, LGBTQ+ rights, HIV/AIDS awareness and body image issues," a statement given by iHeartRadio reads.

Additionally, singer, songwriter and producer Mariah Carey ("Fantasy") will be honored with the 2025 iHeartRadio Icon Award, as she remains one of the bestselling artists of all time with over 200 million records sold worldwide and 19 No. 1 singles (per iHeartRadio).

While celebrating many of our favorite artists, this year's event will also pay tribute to the resiliency of Los Angeles, as its communities rebuild following January's devastating wildfires. iHeartRadio has teamed up with the Annenberg Foundation, making it known that all contributions made to FireAidLA.org will be distributed to nearby communities in both short- and long-term initiatives.

Celebrating music, musicians and the resiliency of Los Angeles, the iHeartRadio Music Awards airs Monday, March 17, on Fox.

Relationship rodeo: With more twists, turns and relationship tumbles, the country-lovin' series "Farmer Wants a Wife" returns with its third season Thursday, March 20, on Fox.

Bringing in Kimberly Williams-Paisley ("Father of the Bride," 1991) to host the new season, this highly successful dating show has, according to the network, resulted in 226 marriages and 565 children (with four on the way).

Now, four brand-new, handsome farmers — Matt Warren, Jay Woods, John Sansone and Colton Hendricks — are eager to take a shot at finding love, each meeting singles that are ready to leave behind their city lives to embrace the fresh air, open fields and strong-armed farmers that rural living has to offer.

In a news release for the upcoming season, Fox introduced this season's upcoming bachelors, sharing: "These farmers are the cream of the crop. Farmer Matt is the California heartthrob who uprooted his life in Austin, [Texas,] to help save his brother and sister-in-law's avocado farm — he's our fairytale Prince Charming! Family, faith and football — that's Farmer Jay, the hometown hero who lost his football career to injury and put ev-everything he had into rebuilding the legacy of his grandfather's farm in Alabama. Farmer John is an urban cowboy — a high-flying St. Louis law student who dreams of living in the tradition of his family's farm in rural Missouri with his sweetheart by his side, if he can find her, of course! Our cheeky charmer with a witty sense of humor is Farmer Colton — a third-generation Arkansas cattle rancher, recently divorced and a single dad to his two-year-old son who is looking for a second chance at love."

Throughout this relationship rodeo, the farmers and their potential partners will travel through Alabama, Tennessee and Texas, taking part in speed dating events, camping mixers and lavish balls as they get to know their city-slicking counterparts through a "countrified" lens. Near the end of the season, the remaining women will also be invited to bring their families back to the farmer's homesteads, where the bunch will experience rural living and immerse themselves in the realities of farm life.

"Some will blossom," says Fox, "while some will head out to pasture."

With Paul Franklin ("The Mole"), Chris Culvenor ("Dating Around"), Ben DeNoble ("Very Cavallari"), Jayne Parker ("Crikey! It's the Irwins") and David Tibballs ("Finding Magic Mike") serving as executive producers, Season 3 of "Farmer Wants a Wife" begins Thursday, March 20, on Fox.

As local high school seniors collect their diplomas at graduation and look towards their futures, it soon seems like the world could be ending instead as they find themselves right in the eye of the storm. Including never-before-seen footage filmed by the citizens of Joplin, "The Twister" is told through the eyes of the young people who were involved as "in the fierce 200 mph winds of the twister, they discover the power of their resilience as they fight for survival — each with a transformative story spurred by their experiences of that day" (per Netflix). In the aftermath, the town rallied together to overcome and rebuild, rallying around hope to endure. Directed by Alexandra Lacey ("Mansions: The Lost Tapes," 2018).

Top chefs fight for the throne in new culinary competition

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

The biggest names from the culinary world enter a game unlike any other as the epic new series "House of Knives" premieres Tuesday, March 18, on Food Network.

Hosted by Scott Conant ("Beat Bobby Flay"), this brand-new competition asks its contenders to utilize strategy, survival skills and, of course, culinary talent, as they battle for a seat on the "House of Knives" throne — a coveted seat earned by the game's best players.

"Each episode names a weekly ruler based on challenges that reflect the contenders' personal stories, food influences and cultures," explains Food Network. While one claims fame, the least successful chefs are banished from their kitchen-size kingdom, to be replaced by a new, surprise culinary legend. In the end, the player who lasts the longest earns himself a $100,000 grand prize.

In the series premiere, Conant invites six of the world's most prestigious chefs to his culinary battleground, where skill and strategy are praised in equal measure.

Who are the six in question? According to the network, Anne Burrell ("Secrets of a Restaurant Chef"), Shirley Chung ("Tournament of Champions"), Kelsey Barnard Clark

Scott Conant hosts "House of Knives"

("NFL Tailgate Takedown"), Poppy O'Toole ("Cooking with the Stars UK"), Viet Pham ("Food Network Star"), Jonathon Sawyer ("The Best Thing I Ever Ate"), Martel Stone ("Wildcard Kitchen"), John Tesar ("Top Chef") and Claudette Zepeda ("The Cook Up with Adam Liaw") are all set to appear in this first season. The exact contenders, however, have yet to be announced.

Regardless, these six chefs (in whichever combination they appear) will be asked to create dishes that highlight a signature ingredient, each to be judged by the Culinary Council — Judy Joo ("Korean Food Made Simple") and Marcus Samuelsson ("On the Rise with Marcus Samuelsson"). The winning chef will become the very first to sit on the "House of Knives" throne, while the least successful are banished before the next round. Afterwards, a game-changing advantage is given to the chef who brings the most spice to the kitchen.

"The House of Knives arena is all about extreme talent and gameplay — only the strongest contenders have a chance at the crown," claims Betsy Ayala, head of content, food, for Warner Bros. Discovery. "Our viewers are in for a unique experience watching these chefs fight for their name by showcasing their personal food style and stories."

Produced by theoldschool, "House of Knives" premieres Tuesday, March 18, on Food Network.

"Good American Family"

Taking on the difficult intricacies of what makes a family, the new limited drama series "Good American Family" premieres Wednesday, March 19, on Hulu. "Told from multiple points of view, as a means to explore issues of perspective, bias and trauma," says Hulu, the series follows Michael (Mark Duplass, "The Morning Show") and Kristine Barnett (Ellen Pompeo, "Grey's Anatomy"), a Midwestern couple who adopts Natalia (newcomer Imogen Faith Reid), a girl with a rare form of dwarfism. As Mark and Kristine raise Natalia alongside their three biological children, questions about Natalia's background and true age begin to rise. Now, defenses are up on all sides as the truth becomes clear. As their unique story plays out in the courtroom, it grips the tabloid headlines in the process. From creator and executive producer Katie Robbins ("Sunny"), the series also guest stars Dulé Hill ("The West Wing"), Christina Hendricks ("Good Girls") and Sarayu Blue ("Expats"). Directed by Liz Garbus ("Harry & Meghan"), "Good American Family" is written by Robbins and fellow executive producer Sarah Sutherland ("The Affair").

"O'Dessa" (2025)

Rock into an uncertain future when the new rock opera from Searchlight Pictures, "O'Dessa," premieres Thursday, March 20, on Hulu. Set in a post-apocalyptic future, the film follows the titular O'Dessa (Sadie Sink, "Stranger Things"), an ordinary farm girl. Embarking on an epic quest to recover a precious family heirloom, O'Dessa's journey "leads her to a dangerous city, where she must use the power of destiny and song to save her true love's soul" (per Hulu). Directed and written by Jeremy Jasper ("Patti Cake$," 2017), the musical also stars Murray Bartlett ("The White Lotus"), Kelvin Harrison Jr. ("Genius"), Mark Boone Junior ("Memento," 2000), Regina Hall ("Black Monday"), Bree Elrod ("A Friend of the Family"), Pokey LaFarge ("Sun Records") and Dora Dimic Rakar ("Last to Brake"). Michael Gottwald ("Wendy," 2020), Erika Milutin ("The Day of the Jackal") and Noah Stahl ("The White House Effect," 2024) are producers.

"Anora" (2024)

Taking on the complexities of love and disparity, "Anora" premieres Monday, March 17, on Hulu. The movie follows Anora (Mikey Madison, "The Addams Family"), a young woman working at a strip club in New York who falls into a whirlwind romance with Ivan (Mark Ey-delshteyn, "Guest from the Future"), the son of a wealthy Russian oligarch. When the couple elopes, Anora is swept into a luxurious lifestyle. But this comes at a price; her new in-laws, Nikolai (Aleksei Serebryakov, "Nobody") and Galina (Darya Ekamasova, "The Americans"), are determined to get their marriage annulled by any means necessary. For assistance, the family turns to Father Toros (Karren Karagulian, "Tangerine"), a local priest who keeps an eye on Ivan, at the family's request. His helpers are Garnick (Vache Tovmasyan, "Stone Cage") and Igor (Yura Borisov, "Invasion"), two men tasked with getting Anora out of the family home. As tensions rise, Ivan flees, leaving Anora to face the situation alone. From writer-director Sean Baker ("The Florida Project," 2017), the movie also stars Luna Sofia Miranda ("Youthful Pleasures," 2023), Ella Rubin ("The Girl from Plainville," 2022), Paul Weissman ("Four Letter Words," 2000), Ivy Wolk ("Friendship," 2024), Masha Zhak ("So Pretty," 2019), Alena Gurevich ("First Shift," 2024), Charlton Lamar ("Marry Me," 2022) and Ross Brodar ("Amsterdam," 2022). Produced by Baker, Samantha Quan ("NCIS: Los Angeles") and Alex Coco ("Red Rocket," 2021).

Q: I've noticed that the lighting in the pinnacle "Flashdance" dance was quite dark. Was it done to set the mood or was it just a style of the time? Perhaps they were trying to make sure we didn't notice a body double.

A: All three of your theories are at least partially right.

Starting with the last one, it's absolutely true that most of the dancing was done by a double. "Flashdance" (1983) director Adrian Lyne said so, while praising star Jennifer Beals ("Four Rooms," 1995) for nonetheless being the best part of the film.

"I thought she was vulnerable and sweet. You just liked her. I was pleased with that casting of her, and she couldn't dance," he told OneTake-News.com's Thomas Ellinidis in a 2023 interview celebrating the film's 40th anniversary. "That was kind of a dangerous thing to do, letting the body double do all of the dancing, but it worked out."

Ellinidis went so far as to tell the director that the dark lighting helped hide the fact it wasn't Beals in the scene, but Lyne wouldn't be led: he has never said himself that the lighting was a way to hide the substitution.

He has, however, talked about using dark, dramatic lighting — single-spot lights, backlighting and more — for artistic effect. And he has said that he "stole" lighting techniques from legendary director Bob Fosse ("Cabaret," 1972).

And it's worth noting that "Flashdance" cinematographer Donald Peterman got an Oscar nomination for his contributions to the film's look. So the Academy, at least, saw art and not trickery.

Q: I was at the gym and saw a show where Kenneth the Page from "30 Rock" was touring weird houses. At first, I thought it was just a guest spot, but he was in multiple episodes. What was it? Is that what he's doing now?

A: That wasn't just a guest spot. That was Jack McBrayer — best known, indeed, for playing Kenneth on "30 Rock" from 2006 to 2013 — hosting the HGTV reality show "Zillow Gone Wild," in which he "tours some of America's wackiest and wildest homes that have recently been on the real estate market" (per HGTV)

And yes, that is what he's doing now, in the sense that it's still going on, and also in the sense that, in general, he just pops up in random stuff you don't expect.

Last year, for example, he had a supporting role in the comedy film "Unfrosted," about the history of the Pop-Tart, as well as an episode of "Grey's Anatomy." He also showed up, as himself, in an episode of TBS's "Stupid Pet Tricks" and the year before as a guest judge on the food-based reality show "The Big Nailed It Baking Challenge."

He's been supplementing that with a lot of voice work, both for children's shows such as Disney Junior's "Eureka" and for grown-up shows such as "Star Trek: Lower Decks"

But "Zillow Gone Wild" is his biggest recent project — a series based on a virally popular social media account created by real estate listings company Zillow. It showcases the weirder properties they come across.

He's hosted one season so far, but it was a pretty big hit for HGTV and was renewed for a second season, to air later this year.

Q: What is Ted Levine doing now? I've kind of lost sight of him since "Monk."

A: Ted Levine is a tricky guy to keep track of.

If you saw him in "Silence of the Lambs" (1991) playing ultra-creepy serial killer Buffalo Bill, you might expect to see him in something similar next. Nope. Try the martial arts flick "No-where to Run" (1993) with Jean-Claude Van Damme ("Kickboxer," 1989) instead, where he played a corrupt housing developer's henchman. Or wait a while and catch him as the strait-laced Capt. Stottlemeyer on the cozy mystery hit "Monk" (2002 to 2009 on USA Network).

Not a lot of people are fans of all three of those titles.

Fewer still would also be fans of "Mayfair Witches," the AMC supernatural fantasy series in which Levine has most recently been plying his trade. He appeared in the most recent season, playing Julien Mayfair, a patriarch of the Mayfair family of witches — a character who is somehow as different from his "Silence of the Lambs" part as he is from his "Monk" part.

Levine also just finished work on the film "Starbright," an adventure about a woman who finds the secret to making wishes come true. That one is due out in April.

And he's currently shooting "Something Very Bad Is Going to Happen," a new Netflix horror series from Matt and Ross Duffer, creators of Netflix's smash hit "Stranger Things."

It's about as varied an acting resume as you'll find anywhere, which suits Levine fine. In a 2013 interview with Starburst Magazine, he summed up his taste in roles, saying it's all about the challenge. "The role that I play now is the one that's most intriguing to me."
