Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

It's not just Lunar New Year. Today [Feb. 17] is packed with holidays. It's also Madri Gras, the beginning of Ramadan and at midnight Lent. Rarely do so many holidays converge, let alone on Taco Tuesday. Which is why tonight, ladies and gentlemen, I am declaring the first official Mardi Gramadana Taco Lent Day.

So, what can we look forward to this year of the Fire Horse? According to one expert, be on the lookout for heightened tensions in already heated relationships. You know what that means? More hockey players are going to bang.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Everyone here is talking about the historic blizzard that just slammed New York City. It is crazy out there. The only way I can get to work was by jumping in a German bobsled.

I read that Axe Body Spray is trying to prevent overuse of their product with a new mechanism that delivers a lighter, more controlled application. Now if you're wondering how much Axe Body Spray is too much, the answer is any much. You know you have a good product when you're looking for ways to make people smell less like it.

The grandson of the Reese's Peanut Butter Cup inventor has accused Hershey of quietly replacing the candy's ingredients to save money. Even worse, it's now flavored with Axe Body Spray.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

This is a very exciting time of the year when all the big awards get handed out for show business. The Oscars are next month. This month we have the PGA awards, the WGA, the BAFTA's, the SAGs and, of course, they're always coming up with new awards, not just here, but all over the place. For instance, President Trump today [Feb. 11] became the first and definitely only recipient of the undisputed champion of coal award. That's right. He received this handsome trophy from the Washington Coal Club, which is a real organization. I think you have to shoot a polar bear to get into it or something.

So, Valentine's Day is on Saturday [Feb. 14]. This is everything you need to know. Flowers are all sold out. There are no more dinner reservations. You're probably getting divorced. OK, but here's a little money-saving tip. You can save a bundle on candy hearts just by writing the words "I heart you" on a Tums.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

After winning a bronze medal in the biathlon competition in the Milano Cortina Winter Olympics, a Norwegian athlete gained attention online for confessing in an interview to cheating on his former girlfriend. In his defense, if you're a biathlete you have like twice the temptation.

Looking back with 'Forsyte': BBC period drama graces Masterpiece

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Turn on the television and step back in time with Masterpiece this spring. Known for its rich library of British imports and well-crafted costume dramas, from James Alfred Wight's (pen name James Herriot) veterinary saga "All Creatures Great and Small" to Hilary Mantel's recently wrapped Tudor drama "Wolf Hall," Masterpiece has plenty of content for lovers of history, period garb and novel adaptations. The newest show to join Masterpiece, however, is slightly different in that it is based upon an existing literary series but precedes all events committed to paper by its author, John Galsworthy.

"The Forsytes," based upon Galsworthy's Forsyte Saga trilogy from the 1920s, makes its Masterpiece premiere Sunday, March 22, on PBS. Check your local listings for details.

"Money and society dictate the rules in rapidly changing Victorian London, where four generations of the wealthy Forsyte family of stockbrokers navigate high-risk investments and the even higher expectations of making the right marital match," reads the series logline, which also lists "desire, ambition and betrayal" among the series' guiding themes.

The series aired its six-episode first season on Channel 5 in the UK last autumn. Moreover, Deadline has already confirmed a renewal for a second season, which is scheduled to film this summer in Bristol.

Whether or not "The Forsytes" will continue on Masterpiece will depend upon its reception stateside, as no network-specific renewals have been announced as of writing.

But given that Galsworthy's famous family has been adapted for television on two earlier occasions — with BBC Two's 1967 series "The Forsyte Saga" having been seen by upwards of 18 million viewers —

"The Forsytes" writer and executive producer Debbie Horsfield ("Sanctuary: A Witch's Tale") has faith that a new spin on the classic familial succession story will resonate with today's audiences.

"I've looked up the things that really fascinated me about the books, and those were things like the family saga, the rivalry between the generations, the damage that each generation inflicts on the generation that comes below," Horsfield told independent online period drama magazine Willow & Thatch in an interview. "Those are the things that really interested me, so I picked out those storylines from the books and basically played around with those. And I did use some of the hints we got in the books of what may have happened before the actual events of the books, and I've filled in some of those details."

Examples of a few events viewers can expect to see in Season 1 of "The Forsytes" (without providing major spoilers) include at least one young woman's entrance into society and subsequent matchmaking, a socially stressful trip to Paris, a gold-mining investment with potentially dire consequences, several attempts to oust a business partner, and, of course, the harboring of many, many secrets.

The series is led by BAFTA-winning actress Francesca Annis ("Lillie") in the role of Forsyte family matriarch Ann. Stephen Moyer ("True

Tuppence Middleton in "The Forsytes"

Blood"), meanwhile, portrays Jolyon Forsyte Sr., while Jack Davenport ("Pirates of the Caribbean: Curse of the Black Pearl," 2003) plays James, Naomi Frederick ("Belgravia") plays Emily, Tuppence Middleton ("Mank," 2020) plays Frances, Joshua Orpin ("Titans") plays Soames, Justine Moore ("Without Sin") plays June, Eleanor Jackson ("Royal Mob") plays Winifred (now a Dantie, by marriage) and Danny Griffin ("The Gentlemen," 2019) is Jolyon Jr.

Millie Gibson ("Doctor Who"), Eleanor Tomlinson ("Poldark"), Tilly Walker ("The Conjuring: Last Rites," 2025), Tom Durant-Pritchard ("This Is Going to Hurt"), Owen Igiehon ("Disclaimer") and new talents Don Gallagher and Dexter Seaton also appear in all six episodes of the series' first season.

And, even though fans of the Forsyte family can expect a healthy dose of canon-centered content to scratch their Victorian-costumed itch, Horsfield promises several surprises along the journey.

"Even when a narrative is inspired by an existing piece of fiction, as a writer one has to eventually take on the characters as one's own in order to get inside their heads, to try to understand their motives, and eventually to let them have a life of their own, during which ... sometimes they do unexpected things," Horsfield told Willow & Thatch. "It's a key reason for not calling 'The Forsytes' an adaptation. We're very clear that it's a reimagining, inspired by Galsworthy's characters and narrative. In the end, it's all fiction, even if it feels as if the characters are real."

Joining Horsfield offscreen in executive producer roles are Sheena Bucktowonsing ("Doctor Who") and Meenu Gaur ("World on Fire"), while Damien Timmer ("Poirot") executive produces for Mammoth Screen and Susanne Simpson ("Miss Scarlet and the Duke") does the same under the Masterpiece banner for PBS. "Poldark" producer Michael Ray works as associate producer and "The Long Shadow's" Sarah Lewis serves as series producer for "The Forsytes."

Tune in to Masterpiece on PBS Sunday, March 22, for an all-new reimagining of "The Forsytes." Whether you are new to the series or returning for another iteration of a familiar story, the eternal dilemma remains the same: "Should one be ruled by the head or the heart?"

Unholy matrimony: A cursed wedding unfolds in streaming horror series

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Wedding planning is torture. For one bride-to-be, that sentiment is given new meaning when her nuptials descend into twisted chaos, as if the architect of her big day was the devil himself. Camila Morrone ("Daisy Jones & the Six") stars as Rachel Harkin in the new Netflix horror series "Something Very Bad Is Going to Happen," premiering Thursday, March 26. All eight episodes will be available to stream on premiere day.

In the week before Rachel is supposed to walk down the aisle to her fiancé, Nicky (Adam DiMarco, "The White Lotus"), unsettling things begin happening to the happy couple. The atmospheric horror series follows Rachel as she is put through the ringier while preparing to marry her betrothed. All the twists and turns the series takes are being kept under wraps for now, but the official trailer is a creepy delight.

An unnerving whisper repeats, "I'm sorry," throughout the trailer. Gus Birney ("Shining Vale") as Portia and Jennifer Jason Leigh ("All's Fair") as Victoria each utter it with startling sincerity, looking straight into the camera. Even the food apologizes. A neatly frosted sheet cake decorated with perfect pink roses reads, "I'm sorry, I thought you were going to kill me" in evenly piped script, one of several chilling images that flash across the trailer, signaling that things are not right here.

Also starring in the thriller series are Ted Levine ("Mayfair Witches"), Jeff Wilbusch ("The Calling"), Sawyer Fraser ("Alaska Daily") and Zlatko Buric ("Triangle of Sadness," 2022).

Every shadowy moment of the trailer looks like it takes place on a damp, overcast day or a very long night, setting the eerie mood of the series. The trailer doesn't give much away in favor of building unease with a montage of creepy moments, like Rachel being circled by Portia and Nell (Karla Crome, "Misfits") as Victoria looks on, someone stirring an ominous red cocktail in crystal stemware, a strawman in flames and a peek into how remote Rachel's nightmare wedding week is.

Camila Morrone in "Something Very Bad Is Going to Happen"

Surrounded only by ghostly abandoned buildings and a snow-covered forest with bare trees, there doesn't seem like there is much to build an escape plan on as the horrors of the pre-wedding week ratchet up for Rachel. "Are you sure he's the one," questions the voiceover at the trailer's conclusion as Nicky smiles at the altar and lifts Rachel's veil. Is Rachel signing up for a life spent with Nicky's demonic family when she puts her signature on the marriage license? Or is the ceremony actually her sacrifice?

"Something Very Bad Is Going to Happen" was created by showrunner and executive producer Haley Z. Boston, previously a writer for the second season of Prime Video's conspiracy drama "Hunters" and "Brand New Cherry Flavor," a 1990s-set psychological thriller for Netflix. Boston spoke to Tudum, where she shared the inspiration behind the new series. Musing on her mother's advice not to marry the wrong person, Boston shared, "I've been to weddings where people say in their vows, 'I never once had a doubt,' ... I hear that and I'm like, 'That's crazy. What do you mean?'"

The fear of commitment and not knowing whether you truly, deeply know your partner was something that Boston said was a topic of discussion in the writers' room when penning the scripts for the show. "I had a team of writers, and I [got] their perspective on marriage and commitment," Boston told Tudum. "I had a married couple in the writers' room and it was very interesting to hear their stories."

The series is the first post-"Stranger Things" project from the Duffer Brothers to get a premiere date on their home streamer. Matt and Ross Duffer executive produced "Something Very Bad Is Going to Happen" through Upside Down Pictures alongside Hilary Leavitt ("Killing Eve") and Andrea Sperling ("The Vince Staples Show"). The Emmy-nominated "Baby Reindeer" director Weronika Tofilska is also an executive producer on the series and directed four of the show's eight episodes. Axelle Carolyn ("Creepshow") and Lisa Bruhlmann ("Servant") are also directors for the series.

Episode writers include Alex Delyle ("Fear the Walking Dead"), Kate Trefry ("Stranger Things"), Ben Bolea ("Bad Fan," 2015) and Alana B. Lytle ("A Friend of the Family").

The series premieres the same week as another project that explores the heightened fears of committing to someone you might not know. "Ready or Not 2: Here I Come," the sequel to the hit 2019 supernatural wedding night horror film "Ready or Not," premieres in theaters Friday, March 20. Anyone with a 2026 wedding date might want to tune in to both the movie and the upcoming series and take notes on the worst that could happen on the big day.

You are cordially invited to tune in to the premiere of "Something Very Bad Is Going to Happen" Thursday, March 26, on Netflix. All eight episodes of the horror series drop on premiere day.

Taylor Frankie Paul leaves 'Mormon Wives' to star on 'The Bachelorette'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Romancing a reality star: To star in "The Secret Lives of Mormon Wives," one doesn't actually have to be a wife. But for star Taylor Frankie Paul, romance, love and marriage might be just around the corner. The "Secret Lives" star leads as the sought-after single looking for a connection in Season 22 of "The Bachelorette," premiering on ABC Sunday, March 22. Episodes stream on Hulu the following day.

Taylor's history-making appearance marks the first time in "Bachelorette" history that a season will be led by a woman who was not previously part of the franchise, but fear not — the 31-year-old reality star and social media darling is more than capable of handling "Bachelorette" levels of drama.

Having starred in "The Secret Lives of Mormon Wives" since 2024, the Utah native initially went viral for revealing the ins and outs of her #MomTok friend group's "soft-swinging" scene. After a public divorce from Tate Paul in 2022 and an on-again, off-again relationship with Dakota Mortensen — captured in the series — Taylor has earned herself a massive following by posting "comedic, heart-warming and bitingly honest content" (per ABC) on TikTok, never shying away from sharing her true feelings.

Despite her preparedness, Taylor has previously stated that her "Bachelorette" casting still feels "surreal" — a sentiment shared with host Alex Cooper on the "Call Her Daddy" podcast.

There, Taylor also said: "It has not hit me right now in this moment. I'm just thinking about it, and it's not real. And it's not going to be until I think the limo is pulling up, you know? And meeting the people."

The "people" in question are 22 well-meaning single men eager to earn Taylor's affections, including a professional athlete, a veteran, a photographer, a singer/songwriter, a cowboy, fellow single parents and a current member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (LDS) — which is not a requirement for Taylor, despite her own connection to the LDS community. In an interview with "Good Morning America," Taylor claimed to be open to dating outside her religion, adding that "learning about new religions and trying them" is something she's "always wanted to do."

"How you treat people is my No. 1," Taylor said during the same interview. "Down to things like, someone passing by, your neighbor or your server."

With an open mind and an open heart, Taylor Frankie Paul begins her search for love in the Season 22 premiere of "The Bachelorette," airing Sunday, March 22, on ABC.

Distinguished dancers: Celebrate a century of America's oldest contemporary dance company with the release of the two-part docuseries "Martha Graham Dance Company: We Are Our Time," which makes its debut Friday, March 27, on PBS.

A dancer and teacher for over 70 years, the incomparable Martha Graham was a revolutionary in the world of dance, founding one of the first racially integrated dance companies in the country. Graham choreographed dances that explored the female psyche, that were presented as acts of political protest and that questioned the "American identity," truly modernizing the art of dance.

"Often listed alongside artistic forces such as Picasso and Stravinsky, [Martha Graham] upended classical tradition with a striking vocabulary of movement that favored emotional truth over beauty," PBS explains.

Nearly 100 years after the formation of the Martha Graham Dance Company, the dancers, teachers and students who followed in Graham's footsteps are working to keep their founder's ideals alive and well.

"We are not making a sacred altar to Martha Graham," artistic director Janet

Taylor Frankie Paul stars in "The Bachelorette"

Eilber explains. "We are honoring her appetite for the new."

Through a series of stunning dance sequences, interviews with dancers across generations and through the words of Graham herself — voiced by Meryl Streep ("Out of Africa," 1985) in the documentary — "We Are Our Time" invites viewers to step behind the curtain and enter the world of modern dance, following some of Graham's most recent students.

In the series' first episode, cameras follow dancers from rehearsal to premiere as they prepare a new routine — a protest dance from choreographer Jamar Roberts, created in collaboration with Pulitzer Prize-winning composer Rhiannon Giddens. Next week's episode will see the dancers in question embarking on a world tour, reflecting on "both the exhilaration and the physical and emotional toll of life on the road," says the network.

"As the first American dance company to tour China post-pandemic, their journey echoes Graham's belief in movement as a universal language,"

PBS continues.

Directors Peter Schnall ("Ron Carter: Finding the Right Notes," 2022) and Cyndee Readean ("American Experience") say: "Capturing the athleticism and breathtaking elegance of each dancer in intimate settings, both in their homes and backstage, was a challenging yet thrilling experience."

"Inside" - Season 3

Secrets, sabotage and a million-pound prize collide when Season 3 of "Inside" premieres Monday, March 23, on Netflix. Created by the Sidemen — and featuring "Britain's Got Talent" judge KSI — the series traps 12 influencers and celebrities under one roof for seven days, where every outrageous challenge and impulsive decision chips away at a shared £1 million prize. The Sun announced in a December 2025 article the lineup of celebrities that are set to take part in the show, which includes "Strictly Come Dancing" star Saffron Barker, "Love Island" alum Indiyah Polack and Chloe Ferry of "Geordie Shore" fame. Streamers Marlon Lundgren Garcia and Lydia Violet, YouTuber Ben Azelart, fitness influencer Eddie Hall, online personality and journalist Chian Reynolds and model Anna Malygon are also set to appear in this season. "Inside: USA's" Vikram Barn, Joshua Bradley and Tobi Brown return as executive producers.

The Season 3 cast in a scene from "Inside"

March 24, on Netflix. From legendary producer Nah Yung-suk ("Youn's Kitchen") and actor Lee Seo-jin ("Behind Every Star"), the series throws planning out the window as two longtime friends reunite and set off on a spontaneous journey across Texas, guided only by instinct and curiosity. What begins as a simple trip quickly becomes unpredictable, with surprise encounters, unfamiliar terrain and split-second decisions shaping their path. Joined by their crew, the group must adapt as each new destination brings unexpected challenges, humor and reflection.

With no roadmap to follow, the experience becomes less about where they're going and more about what they discover along the way.

"Heartbreak High" - Season 3

Graduation looms and secrets threaten to explode when Season 3 of "Heartbreak High" arrives Wednesday, March 25, on Netflix. Season 2 ended with the shocking reveal that Rowan (played by Sam Rechner, seen recently in the 2026 horror thriller "Scream 7") was the elusive "Bird Psycho" who set fire to the school, blaming Amerie (Aysha Madon, "Love Me") for his brother's (Jude Hyland, "Janet King") death before the two fled the scene together. Now, the final season finds the students on the brink of adulthood, counting down to graduation while pretending everything is under control. But when a revenge prank spirals dangerously off course, Amerie and her friends are forced into damage control, bound by a secret that could cost them their futures. As university offers, relationships and reputations hang in the balance, loyalty is tested like never before. With time running out at Hartley, the class must decide who they want to be before the truth makes that choice for them. James Majoos ("Granny Flat Comedy"), Chloe Hayden ("Spooky Files") and Asher Yasbincek ("How to Please a Woman," 2022) also star in the series from creators Hannah Carroll Chapman ("Home and Away"), Ben Gannon ("The Heartbreak Kid," 1993) and Michael Jenkins ("Rebel," 1985). "Heartbreak High" is a reboot of the Australian teen series of the same name from the mid-90s.

"Bait" - Season 1

The name's Bond. James Bond. Or is it? A once-in-a-lifetime audition puts one actor's life in the spotlight in Prime Video's latest original series "Bait," which premieres all six episodes Wednesday, March 25. From Oscar- and Emmy-winning actor Riz Ahmed ("Nightcrawler," 2014), this new comedy follows Shah Latif (Ahmed), a struggling actor who finally lands the audition he's been chasing for years. But across four chaotic days, Shah's world begins to close in as every part of his life is suddenly up for discussion as his family, ex-lover and the public weigh in on whether he's right for the role.

As pressure mounts, Shah spirals into an existential crisis as the line between performance and reality starts to slip. The series also stars Guz Khan ("Four Weddings and a Funeral," 1994) as Zulfi; Sheeba Chaddha ("Badhaai Do," 2022) as Tahira; Sajid Hasan ("Dhoop Kinare" as Parvez; Aasiya Shah ("Raised By Wolves" as Q; Weruche Opia ("I May Destroy You") as Felicia; and Ritu Arya ("The Umbrella Academy") as Yasmin. Furthermore, Ben Karlin ("The Daily Show") executive produces and serves as showrunner alongside Ahmed.

"Pretty Lethal" (2026)

Perfection demands sacrifice. But this time, the cost is survival. "Pretty Lethal" lands on Prime Video Wednesday, March 25, following five ballerinas who come together when their bus breaks down on the way to a prestigious dance competition, leaving them stranded and exposed deep in the wilderness. With nowhere else to turn, they seek refuge at an eerie roadside inn run by Devora Kasimer (Uma Thurman, "Pulp Fiction," 1994), a former ballet prodigy whose unsettling calm masks something far more dangerous. As the night unfolds, trust shatters and fear sets in, forcing the dancers to put aside their differences and rely on the strength forged through years of brutal training, "turning grace, discipline and even pointe shoes" (per Prime Video) into weapons for survival against a deadly threat. Also starring Iris Apatow ("Euphoria"), Lana Condor ("To All the Boys I've Loved Before," 2018), Millicent Simmonds ("A Quiet Place," 2018), Avantika ("Mean Girls," 2024), Maddie Ziegler ("Ballerina," 2016) and Lydia Leonard ("Da Vinci's Demons"), "Pretty Lethal" is directed by Vicky Jewson ("Lady Godiva," 2008) and produced by Kelly McCormick ("Atomic Blonde," 2017).

"House of David" - Season 2

A new fight for the crown unfolds when "House of David" returns for Season 2 Friday, March 27, on Prime Video. Last season's finale saw David (Michael Iskander, "The Kelly Clarkson Show") killing Goliath (Martyn Ford, "The Machine," 2023) with a single, decisive sling stone — catapulting him into legend as King Saul's (Ali Suliman, "Arthur the King," 2024) power began to slip. Now, this new season of "House of David" picks up as Israel teeters on the edge of ruin, with Saul's rule weakening by the day. As David rises from humble shepherd to hardened warrior, he is drawn deeper into a dangerous world of war and politics, torn between loyalty to his king and the destiny that now calls him forward. "As families fracture, forbidden loves spark and alliances shift, faith and power collide in a struggle that will decide Israel's future" (per Prime Video). Returning this season is Ayelet Zurer ("Daredevil: Born Again") as Queen Ahinoam, Stephen Lang ("Avatar," 2009) as Samuel, Indy Lewis ("Industry") as Mychal and Oded Fehr ("The Mummy," 1999) as Abner, with series creator-executive producer Jon Erwin ("Truth & Treason," 2025) directing.

Fieri brings top chefs to Flavortown for menu-based cooking competition

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

The eponymous Flavortown is brought to life in Guy Fieri's latest series, "Flavortown Food Fight," a one-of-a-kind culinary competition continuing Wednesday, March 25, on Food Network.

Each week, Fieri invites three new chefs to visit Flavortown — a competition arena offering a changing lineup of Fieri's favorite restaurants, ranging from food carts and fast-casual eateries to the "finest fine-dining restaurants in the world" (per Food Network). The competitors will be able to choose their own adventure as they compete to select which food establishment will lead that week's challenge. Will it be "Mexican Street Food" or "Five Star Fine Dining"?

During these real-world, menu-based challenges, chefs utilize their culinary knowledge and technical skills to tackle unexpected ingredients, never-before-seen recipes and more, presenting their creations to the Mayor of Flavortown himself, Guy Fieri, and two guest judges. The winner of each episode earns a shot at $20,000 and the opportunity to defend their title against two new chefs the following week.

In the series premiere, Fieri kicked off the competition with the help of judges Maneet Chauhan ("Tournament of Champions") and Graham Elliot ("MasterChef USA"), who oversaw chefs Angelo Sosa, Kayla Pfeiffer and Trimell Hawkins as they utilized the spices of Flavortown. The following week, the competing chefs — including newcomers Maria Mazon and Brad Miller — tackled handheld foods.

Guy Fieri in "Flavortown Food Fight"

This week, Fieri welcomes chef Josh Smith, executive chef at Bourbon Steak in Las Vegas, and culinary educator/food content creator Saba Duffy, who previously won "Chopped: Martha's Rules" in 2020.

Throughout the season, viewers will also be treated to appearances by Fieri's son, Hunter Fieri ("Diners, Drive-ins and Dives"), who stops by Flavortown to present the menu for some of the upcoming cooking challenges. According to People, Fieri's wife, Lori ("Guy's All-American Road Trip"), also makes "a very important cameo in 'Flavortown Food Fight.'"

"For the first time in television history, we're opening the gates of Flavortown and inviting some of America's most talented chefs to showcase their skills in a never-ending list of off-the-hook restaurants that you'll only find here," Fieri says, in an announcement for the series. "We've been building out this universe for years, and I'm stoked to finally invite everybody in!"

Pack your bags, hop in the car and show up hungry, a new episode of "Flavortown Food Fight" premieres Wednesday, March 25, on Food Network.

Michael Schoeffling and Molly Ringwald star in "Sixteen Candles"

Happy's Place

(12) 7:30 PM

Sisters — you can't live with them, but you can't live without them. At least, that's the case for Bobbie (Reba McEntire), who can't run her dad's old tavern without the input of her equally opinionated half-sister, Isabella (Belissa Escobedo).

Celebrity Jeopardy!

(12) (22) 8:00 PM

The quarterfinals for Season 4 continue in this new episode, seeing "Gilmore Girls" Sean Gunn, "Sex and the City's" Cynthia Nixon and stand-up comedian Roy Wood Jr. answering questions in the form of a question. All winnings go to charity.

United Football League

(44) 8:00 PM

The United Football League season opens spring action as the powerhouse Birmingham Stallions head north to Lynn Family Stadium in Louisville, Ky., to take on the brand-new expansion team, the Louisville Kings, led by new head coach Chris Redman.

Sixteen Candles

TCM 10:00 PM

Angst and anxiety are in store for Sam's (Molly Ringwald) 16th birthday, which is being overshadowed by her sister's (Blanche Baker) wedding. As she pines for the older Jake (Michael Schoeffling), only nerdy Ted (Anthony Michael Hall) seems interested.

"Mike & Nick & Nick & Alice"
(2026)

Get ready for a genre-bending thrill ride when "Mike & Nick & Nick & Alice" drops Friday, March 27, on Hulu. A wild mashup of action, comedy and sci-fi, this caper throws two longtime gangster partners — Nick (Vince Vaughn, "The Break-Up," 2006) and Mike (James Marsden, "Enchanted," 2007) — into the most chaotic night of their criminal careers, complicated by their shared love for the sharp-witted Alice (Eiza Gonzalez, "Godzilla vs. Kong," 2021). When Nick and Mike find a time machine, their past and future selves collide, plans go haywire and a night of misadventures becomes a mind-bending trip through time. Also starring Keith David ("The Princess and the Frog," 2009), Jimmy Tatro ("Home Economics"), Stephen Root ("Barry") and Emily Hampshire ("Schitt's Creek"), the film is written and directed by BenDavid Grabinski ("Are You Afraid of the Dark?") and executive produced by Richard Middleton ("Hitchcock," 2012) and Vanessa Humphrey ("Persuasion," 2022).

"Love Overboard" - Season 1

A brand-new dating series sets sail when Season 1 of "Love Overboard" premieres Thursday, March 26, with all nine episodes streaming on Hulu and Hulu on Disney+. Hosted by Gabriela Windey ("The Bachelorette"), this series invites a group of flirtatious singles aboard a lavish luxury yacht, where sun, sea and romance promise the adventure of a lifetime. But life on deck isn't all champagne and ocean views, as contestants face a series of demanding challenges that test both strategy and chemistry to unlock the yacht's most extravagant amenities. Among the hopeful romantics are David, a pediatric trauma therapist; Enna, a content creator; and Bella, a spirited line dance instructor. They're joined by a colorful cast that includes entrepreneurs, athletes and influencers, each hoping to find a genuine connection. But hidden "shipwreckers" lurk among the passengers, quietly disrupting new connections and turning smooth sailing into choppy waters. As they navigate love and betrayal on the high-seas, only one couple will prove their bond is strong enough to weather any storm. "Love Overboard" is produced by Alex Cooper's production company Unwell Productions. Cooper, host of the Call Her Daddy podcast, serves as an executive producer alongside Matt Kaplan ("To All the Boys I've Loved Before," 2018), Mina Lefevre ("XO, Kitty"), Jeff Jenkins ("The Simple Life") and Russell Jay-Staglik ("The Real Housewives of New Jersey").

"The Faithful: Women of the Bible"

Faith, rivalry and destiny intertwine when "The Faithful: Women of the Bible" arrives Monday, March 23, on Hulu. This sweeping biblical drama reimagines the lives of five influential women from the Book of Genesis, weaving together stories of love, ambition and faith that helped shape the foundations of history. At its heart is Sarah (Minnie Driver, "Good Will Hunting," 1997), the wife of Abraham (Jeffrey Donovan, "Law & Order"), whose longing for a child leads her to make a desperate decision involving her servant Hagar (Natacha Karam, "9-1-1: Lone Star") — a choice that forever alters their family's path before a miracle arrives later in life. Elsewhere, Rebekah (Alexa Davalos, "The Man in the High Castle") takes bold steps to secure the future of her favored son, setting off a chain of events that will echo through many generations to come. Meanwhile, Leah (Millie Brady, "The Last Kingdom") and Rachel (Blu Hunt, "Sherlock & Daughter"), once inseparable sisters, become rivals in both love and motherhood. Carol Mendelsohn ("CSI: Crime Scene Investigation") serves as an executive producer, alongside Julie Weitz ("Game of Silence") and Rene Echevarria ("Carnival Row"), who penned the pilot and will also serve as showrunner. "The Faithful" is produced by Fox Entertainment Studios and distributed worldwide by Fox Entertainment Global.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I heard rumors that there's going to be a new "Ocean's" movie. Is that actually happening?

A: It seems to depend on whom you ask. But for a movie franchise that's all about getting a big group of people to work in perfect sync on a single project, it's concerning that the actors don't seem to be on the same page.

The plan is to bring the cast members (those still with us) from the 2001 smash "Ocean's Eleven" and its sequels back together for a fourth installment — predictably titled "Ocean's Fourteen."

In December, George Clooney ("Good Night and Good Luck," 2005) told Variety that it's on track to start filming this winter, and the idea is solid: "There was something about the idea that we're too old to do what we used to do, but we're still smart enough to know how to get away with something, that just appeals to me."

A few weeks after that, Julia Roberts ("Pretty Woman," 1990) said, again to Variety, that she saw the script and was "surprised" at how good it is.

However, Matt Damon ("Good Will Hunting," 1997) said in a January interview on the "Still Watching Netflix" podcast that he had been "hearing about it" but hadn't even seen a script.

Damon was a crucial part of the original ensemble, so him being left out seems unlikely. Is this a bit of "Ocean's"-esque misdirection to throw journalists off the scent? Is it an elaborate prank that notorious joker Clooney is playing on him? Both are quite possible.

But it's also possible the sequel — something fans have been desiring for years — isn't as far along as we'd like to think.

Q: I've been rewatching "ER." I know Noah Wyle is on that new medical show "The Pitt," but I'm curious where some of the others ended up — especially Dr. Lewis. Where is she now?

A: By all indications, Sherry Stringfield ("Guiding Light") is living the life, and career, she wanted all along — a pursuit that caused controversy in "ER's" early days.

Stringfield's character, Dr. Susan Lewis, was a central piece of the "ER" ensemble for the show's first three seasons, when it was developing into the late-'90s TV phenomenon it would become. And Stringfield herself got Best Lead Actress Emmy nods for each of those seasons.

But she chose to leave in the middle of all that success (and the middle of Season 3), saying she wanted a normal life.

She entered semi-retirement, taking a few roles, doing some teaching and focusing on herself and her family. But she said that work-obsessed Hollywood took that as an attack. "It's like when you walk away from a really wonderful job like that, you start messing with everyone's priorities," she told Entertainment Weekly at the time. "It's like you're dismissing them."

But she has nonetheless been able to carry on as she wished, taking roles every so often, including two returns to "ER," and raising her family on her terms (she has two children).

Most recently, she did a four-episode arc on "Criminal Minds: Beyond Borders" from 2016-17, and before that, a role in the cause-based indie drama "The Dog Lover" (2016).

That means it's been nearly a decade since she was last on screen, but with her approach to acting, that doesn't necessarily mean retirement. Time will tell.
