Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

I'm in a good mood because last night [Sept. 23], our friend Jimmy Kimmel returned to television. Jimmy spoke beautifully about free speech and unity. He made great jokes, showed his deep emotions. Got huge ratings. It did so well that Disney just announced next summer they're releasing "Guillermo & Stitch."

Kimmel's return was also huge on the YouTubes. Right now, his monologue is on track to break his personal record with 12 million views in 12 hours. Congrats, Jimmy. That [is not] easy. You know this business. That's pretty rare. Congratulations. That puts you just five billion views behind El Chombo's song with a dancing alien that sings in Spanish.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Well, guys, after Congress failed to reach a spending deal, the government shut down for the first time since 2018. Yeah, as a result, all nonessential government workers will be sent home without pay. Today [Oct. 1], President Trump looked at JD Vance and said, "JD, I'll see you in a couple of weeks."

Once funding runs out, some national monuments, like the Statue of Liberty, will likely close. You know things are desperate when the Statue of Liberty joins OnlyFans.

Amazon is launching their own grocery line with most items under $5. They're just like regular groceries, except now a dozen eggs are called a dozen eggzos.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

I'd like to extend a special welcome to those who are still conscious after watching Monday Night Football tonight [Oct. 6]. Welcome. It was the Jacksonville Jaguars against Taylor Swift's boyfriend and friends.

Tonight [Oct. 6] we are back to work in Hollywood after a week of shows in Brooklyn. We had a great time in New York. We really did. But I have to say it's very good to be back where I don't have to pretend to be happy for the Yankees anymore.

You know, with all the bad stuff happening, it is nice to hear some good news for a change. And oh, here it is. Costco is now offering Ozempic and Wegovy for half price. One month supply of those drugs is now only $500. You don't even need a prescription. All you have to do is order three hot dogs at the food court. They'll automatically give it to you.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

At the beginning of an address yesterday [Sept. 30] to high-ranking military officials, President Trump said that he had, quote, "never walked into a room so silent before." Oh, come on, man, those are career military professionals. They're too dignified to boo.

In an effort to improve reliability, New York's MTA has announced that later this year, the F train will swap routes with the M train, and it'll do so without warning while you're on it and already running five minutes late.

Breaking sad: Gilligan, Seehorn return for new collab 'Pluribus'

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Twenty years ago, the name Vince Gilligan elicited very little response from the average television viewer. Those who did recognize the name were more than likely "X-Files" fans who remembered it from 127 sets of opening credits for the show, all of which indicated that Gilligan was an executive producer between 1996 and 2002. All of that changed as of 2008, however, and now Gilligan's name is synonymous with his finest creation, "Breaking Bad," as well as its legally inclined spinoff, "Better Call Saul."

And although it has been 12 years since the end of former series and three years since the finale for the latter, Gilligan is still very much in the business of making good television. He is also still in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Gilligan's newest project, "Pluribus," premieres Friday, Nov. 7, on Apple TV+.

Kept very much a mystery, "Pluribus" sees the reunion of Gilligan and Rhea Seehorn, the latter of whom portrayed Jimmy McGill's (Bob Odenkirk, "Nobody," 2021) ex-wife and one-time business partner Kim Wexler in 61 episodes of "Better Call Saul." According to an interview between Seehorn and Polygon reporter Jake Kleinman, Gilligan approached Seehorn during "Better Call Saul" and after filming eventually wrapped, asking if the actress would be interested in a genre-bending project with a sci-fi bent. Seehorn, of course, accepted the offer.

"He came to me as 'Saul' was ending, and said, 'Well, I wrote something for you, if you're interested,' which is classic Vince," Seehorn recalled to Polygon. "When I stopped crying, I was like, 'Yes, I'm interested.' But he said, 'I'm not ready to show it to you.' And I said, 'That's okay. I'm on board.'"

Karolina Wydra in "Pluribus"

Seehorn had very little idea what Gilligan had planned for the series, but she knew she wanted to be a part of it — a feeling many fans of the writer/producer have shared since his days with "The X-Files." Upon learning the new show would be rooted in Gilligan's sci-fi/uncanny origins, Seehorn noted her delight, both for her involvement and for the uniqueness of the project itself.

"I was so excited when Vince told me there was a sci-fi element to it, and that it's more psychological sci-fi, less space sci-fi," Seehorn shared with Polygon. Elsewhere in the interview, the leading woman also noted, "It's the kind of show that, even if I wasn't in it, it would be my type of show, because it engenders conversations about, like, 'What do you think about that? What would your position be, should you find yourself here?'"

And while none of Seehorn's press interviews for "Pluribus" provide any spoilers (a pretty standard clause in any promotional contract), she was exceedingly careful not to share anything that would give away the show's overarching themes. In fact, the questions she posited above provide more information about the series than anything currently available online, for a quick search of "Pluribus" in a search engine turns up exactly four teaser trailers as of writing.

In the first trailer, released July 25, we gaze upon an unknown woman of middle age, clad in a comfy pink sweatsuit, as she looms over a counter in what appears to be a high school or office building after hours. As the camera pushes through the large glass window and into the lobby where she stands, we get closer as the woman releases a glazed jelly doughnut from its box and raise it to her lips. With a determined top-to-bottom lick, she replaces the doughnut and proceeds to methodically violate its counterparts in kind. Dissonant music rises as the camera pans to a sign on the table that reads "Help Yourself" next to a hand-drawn smiley face. The scene cuts to black, proudly showing the title "Pluribus" before announcing the series release date and streaming service.

The later three trailers — although not quite as unsettling — also leave a lot to the imagination. The second trailer, titled "Sorry About the Blood" shows a dazed Seehorn in character as Carol, walking across an Albuquerque courtyard in blue jeans and a blood-spattered white V-neck tee. The words "Hello, Carol. We'll put things right. Sorry about the blood" appear on screen followed by a phone number: 202-

808-3981. That number also appears in another teaser, urging Carol to call but affirming there is "no pressure."

Lastly, released in late September, the most recent trailer (again, as of writing) is simply titled "Welcome, Carol" and features Carol as she arrives by car to what appears to be a casino hotel. Flashing on the electronic Westgate hotel sign are the words "Welcome, Carol" as she makes a left-hand turn and proceeds to her destination.

But, as many are asking, why keep matters so cryptic? Isn't a show's promotional material meant to entice and provide information so the viewer can know what they are tuning in for? Seehorn has a simple answer for that, too.

"It's just that Vince is asking you to experience this as it comes," the actress says. "He's playing with our preconceived notions about not just where we think the story is going to go, but what we would do in a certain situation."

So what will you do? Will you call the number or wait to tune in for the premiere? "Pluribus" begins Friday, Nov. 7, on Apple TV+.

Somebody to lean on: Three generations share one brownstone in 'Crutch'

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

With times being tough these days, multigenerational households are an increasingly common patch for life's limitations. After all, it takes a village to raise kids and keep grandparents occupied, right?

In the new Paramount+ sitcom "Crutch," premiering Monday, Nov. 3, on the streamer, one happy empty nester's humble abode is about to become a full house. All eight episodes of "Crutch" will be available to watch on premiere day.

Tracy Morgan ("30 Rock") is Francois "Crutch" Crutchfield, a brash, widowed Harlem shop owner who opens his door to find both of his grown children, grandchildren in tow, suddenly in need of a place to stay. Dear old dad receives his new long-term house guests, albeit with some weariness, and Crutch has even got a shoulder to lean on for advice on the new living situation. "Crutch" is a spinoff of the long-running CBS sitcom "The Neighborhood," starring Cedric the Entertainer ("The Steve Harvey Show") and Tichina Arnold ("Martin") as Calvin and Tina Butler, who know a thing or two about being an unexpected welcome brigade.

"We've got a lot of experience with dealing with grown kids that's never ready to leave the nest," Calvin reassures Crutch in the official trailer for the upcoming series, seemingly in town for a visit from their Los Angeles neighborhood. No time for questions this time, though. "We didn't mean right now," Calvin quickly follows up when Crutch tries to take him up on his offer of wisdom.

While Crutch may have been enjoying his solitude just fine, family is family, so what are another four housemates? His oldest, daughter Jamilah (Adrianna Mitchell, "Snowfall"), turns up on Crutch's doorstep explaining that she is in the middle of a divorce from her husband, and she and her kids, Lisa (Braxton Paul, "Tiny Time Travel") and Mase (Finn Maloney, "Suncoast," 2024), need somewhere to live.

Per Paramount+, Jamilah is "a free-spirited naturalista with a dry wit and a sharp tongue." After her idyllic suburban life outside Minneapolis starts to fall apart, Jamilah packs up and heads back to Harlem, where her own kids may get to relive parts of her own childhood. Crutch is more than happy to teach the newcomers a thing or two, giving them a crash course in the subway and the creatures that call it home as well as how to come off "New York tough," in the trailer.

Crutch's son, Jake (Jermaine Fowler, "The Blackening," 2022), finds himself back in his father's upstairs apartment after a real attempt to fly the coop. Disillusioned by corporate greed, Jake left a high-paying job at a slick law firm to begin a more fulfilling career providing legal aid in Harlem. Though the new gig might come with more heartfelt thank-yous, those do not pay the bills, so subsidized housing is a necessity.

Incredulous at his son's reasoning for turning down a quarter-million-dollar salary, Crutch discloses some fatherly advice in the trailer, saying, "money can't buy you happiness, but it can get you so close you won't even know the difference." Jake is set on learning his own lessons, and maybe happiness really is in a lighter paycheck for him.

Tony-winning Broadway star Kecia Lewis ("The Blacklist") helps round out the cast of Crutch's family members as his sister-in-law, Antoinette, a divorcee who returns to the fold as soon as she hears her sister's kids have fallen on hard times. A correctional officer at Rikers Island, Antoinette usually doesn't have time for Crutch's antics, but she's willing to put their differences aside in order to help out.

Where Crutch tells it how it is, however cynically he sees it, his long-time best friend is his foil — a cheery, glass-half-full kind of guy. Adrian Martinez ("Stumptown") stars as Flaco, Crutch's loyal childhood friend and general manager of the flooring shop.

Morgan typically doesn't need a reintroduction. The actor and comedian is known for unforgettable performances, like his seven-season run as a cast member on long-running sketch show "Saturday Night Live" or as Tracy Jordan, one of the most quotable characters in "30 Rock." Crutch, however, needed a minor tweak. First appearing as Calvin's rich brother in a Season 4 episode of "The Neighborhood," the character in his titular show got a rewrite to be of more modest means and more distant relation as Calvin's cousin.

In a crossover event, Morgan stars as the rebooted Crutch in a new episode of "The Neighborhood," airing on CBS the same night as the new show's premiere. In the episode, Crutch takes a very hands-on approach to Calvin's request for flooring help, arriving in LA and promptly driving Tina crazy.

"Crutch" is executive produced by Morgan, Cedric, Aaron Kaplan ("The Chi"), Wendi Trilling ("The Unicorn") and pilot writer and series creator Owen Smith ("The Last O.G.").

Don't miss the premiere of "Crutch," streaming Monday, Nov. 3, on Paramount+.

Rock & Roll Hall of Fame welcomes Class of 2025 in live ceremony

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Masters of musicality: The star-studded 40th annual Rock & Roll Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony takes place Saturday, Nov. 8, at the Peacock Theatre in Los Angeles, while streaming live on Disney+ for music fans across the country.

With top-notch artists such as Elton John ("Rocket Man"), Olivia Rodrigo ("Deja Vu") and Doja Cat ("Paint The Town Red") announced as some of the evening's guests — as either performers or presenters — the upcoming celebration will see the introduction of the Rock Hall's Class of 2025, including Bad Company ("Shooting Star"), Chubby Checker ("The Twist"), Joe Cocker ("Feelin' Alright?"), Cyndi Lauper ("Time After Time"), OutKast ("Hey Ya!"), Soundgarden ("Black Hole Sun") and The White Stripes ("Seven Nation Army").

Both Salt-N-Pepa ("Push It!") and Warren Zevon ("Werewolves of London") will be in attendance as recipients of the Musical Influence Award, while Thom Bell ("Love Is the Message"), Nicky Hopkins ("Jet Airliner") and Carol Kaye ("Slick Cat") will be presented Musical Excellence Awards. Furthermore, producer Lenny Waronker is celebrated with the Ahmet Ertegun Award, given to industry professionals known for having a major influence on today's rock 'n' roll culture.

Additionally, Missy Elliott ("Work It"), Flea of Red Hot Chili Peppers ("Can't Stop"), Iggy Pop of The Stooges ("I Wanna Be Your Dog"), Beck ("Loser"), Brandi Carlile ("The Story"), JID ("Enemy"), Killer Mike ("RUN"), Maxwell ("Ascension"), Questlove ("You Got Me"), Sleepy Brown ("The Way You Move"), Taylor Momsen ("Just Tonight"), Teddy Swims ("Lose Control"), Twenty One Pilots ("Heathens"), RAYE ("Escapism.") and TV legend David Letterman ("Late Show with David Letterman") are all said to make appearances throughout the night, though it has yet to be announced whether the stars will be performing or presenting awards to their industry cohorts.

"Each year, the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony brings together the most influential artists in music today to honor their heroes who have inspired their music and careers," John Sykes, chairman of the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame Foundation, says. "These artists come from around the world to create lifetime musical moments that will live on forever."

A once-in-a-lifetime event overflowing with talent, praise and performances, the 40th annual Rock & Roll Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony will stream on Disney+ Saturday, Nov. 8.

Survive and thrive: Another group of 456 players put their metaphorical lives on the line for a shot at winning a life-changing $4.5-million prize in Season 2 of "Squid Game: The Challenge," making its debut Tuesday, Nov. 4, on Netflix.

Inspired by the streamer's Korean original scripted series — the similarly titled "Squid Game," which premiered in 2021 with an impressive 111 million views across its first month, per Deadline — this high-stakes competition sees a show-stopping number of players taking part in a contest that tests their endurance, alliances and use of strategy, alongside their knowledge of popular childhood games, as they battle for survival, each hoping to earn themselves a part of the ever-growing prize pot.

According to Netflix, this latest season "raises the stakes higher than ever with shocking twists and never-before-played games," all pulled from the successful scripted series. "You'll recognize the rainbow race-tracks, flying stones, Gong-gi of the Six-Legged Pentathlon and, of course, the chilling presence of those pink guards," Netflix says, referencing some of the challenges faced throughout "Squid Game's" three seasons. Like their fictional counterparts, these 456 players will face harder challenges with each elimination — but unlike the fictional "Squid Game" contestants, these players won't face execution should they fail at a challenge. Elimination from the game is punishment enough.

"There was no red light in our decision to green light Season 2 of 'Squid Game: The Challenge,' the most ambitious unscripted show we've premiered at Netflix," Netflix Vice President, Nonfiction Series, Brandon Riegg says of the competition's long-awaited return. "We're so excited to continue the franchise of 'Squid Game' with our team in Korea and producers at Studio Lambert and The Garden for this epic competition series."

With Stephen Lambert ("The Traitors"), Tim Harcourt ("Race Across the World"), Nia Yemoh ("Love Island"), Stephen Yemoh ("The Circle"), Nicola Brown ("Celebrity Hunted") and John Hay ("Secrets of the Dead") as executive producers, the high-octane second season of "Squid Game: The Challenge" makes its debut Tuesday, Nov. 4, on Netflix. And for those interested in taking part in the ultimate challenge, you're in luck: the streamer is currently looking for contestants to take part in "The Challenge's" upcoming third season, so practise your hopscotch skills now.

Oscar Isaac stars in "Frankenstein"

By Kimberly Tremblay
TV Media

"Frankenstein" (2025)

A haunting reimagining of the timeless horror classic, "Frankenstein" arrives Friday, Nov. 7, on Netflix, with director-producer Guillermo del Toro's ("The Shape of Water," 2017) spine-chilling creation breathing new life into Mary Shelley's legendary tale. The film follows brilliant but egotistical scientist Victor Frankenstein (Oscar Isaac, "Star Wars: The Force Awakens," 2015) as his obsession with conquering death drives him to create a living being from the remains of the dead. But when his experiment succeeds, Victor is horrified by the monstrous results (Jacob Elordi, "Euphoria"), setting in motion a devastating chain of events that entwines the fates of both man and creature. Mia Goth ("Pearl," 2022), Felix Kammerer ("Eden," 2024), Charles Dance ("Game of Thrones") and Christoph Waltz ("Only Murders in the Building") also star.

"Death By Lightning"

A shocking true story of power, obsession and betrayal strikes in

Saturday, November 1, 2025

Netflix's latest drama miniseries. Arriving Thursday, Nov. 6, "Death by Lightning" dramatizes the epic and stranger-than-fiction tale of James Garfield (Michael Shannon, "The Shape of Water," 2017), the reluctant 20th president of the United States, and his greatest admirer, Charles Guiteau (Matthew Macfadyen, "The Three Musketeers," 2011) — the man who would ultimately assassinate him. With episodes directed by Matt Ross ("American Psycho," 2000), the miniseries also stars Betty Gilpin ("Isn't it Romantic," 2019), Nick Offerman ("The Last of Us"), Bradley Whitford ("The Cabin in the Woods," 2011) and Shea Whigham ("Wristcutters: A Love Story," 2006). "Death by Lightning" is created by Mike Makowsky ("Bad Education," 2019) and is inspired by Candice Millard's ("American Express") novel "Destiny of the Republic."

"The Vince Staples Show" - Season 2

The sharp-witted, offbeat world of Vince Staples ("White Men Can't Jump," 2023) returns Thursday, Nov. 6, on Netflix. Season 2 of "The Vince Staples Show" picks up after the shocking Season 1 finale which saw Vince's confrontation with "White Boy" (Patrick Walker, "Doc") end in gunfire. Still haunted by that night, Vince sets out in search of inner peace but finds himself dragged back into chaos at every turn. As he wrestles with guilt, fame and the absurdity of everyday life in Long Beach, California, Vince discovers that escaping his past may be more difficult than anticipated. Created by Staples and executive produced by Kenya Barris ("Black-ish"), the series also stars Andrea Ellsworth ("Truth Be Told") and Deanna Reed-Foster ("Chicago Fire"), with Zack Fox ("Abbott Elementary") guest starring in Season 2.

"Dr. Seuss's The Sneetches"

The timeless Dr. Seuss story "The Sneetches" springs to life Monday, Nov. 3, on Netflix, reimagined as a heartwarming musical special set on a sunny island where Star-Belly and Moon-Belly Sneetches once lived side by side. That is, until their differences drove them apart. When young Stella (Amari McCoy, "Hot Wheels Let's Race"), a Star-Belly Sneetch, meets Pearl (Sophie Petersen, "Grace and Frankie"), a Moon-

Michael Shannon in "Death by Lightning"

Belly Sneetch, the two form an unlikely friendship that challenges generations of division. The pair show what truly matters isn't a star or lack of one but kindness, courage and understanding. Also featuring the voices of Christopher Fitzgerald ("Girl Most Likely," 2012) and Jamie Sara Lewis ("Twinkle Toes Lights Up New York," 2016), this charming special celebrates unity and the simple truth that Sneetches are Sneetches, no matter what they look like.

'Wizards of Baking' returns for a magical second season

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Return to the fantastical world of Harry Potter with the Season 2 premiere of "Harry Potter: Wizards of Baking," making its debut Sunday, Nov. 2, with a super-sized, two-hour premiere on Food Network and streaming the next day on HBO Max.

Hosted by James and Oliver Phelps — perhaps better known as Fred and George Weasley, respectively, from the Harry Potter film franchise — this latest endeavor into the Wizarding World brings professional bakers to the Warner Bros. Studios in Leavesden, England, where Harry Potter's — as played by Daniel Radcliffe ("Weird: The Al Yankovic Story," 2022) — fantastical journey was first brought to life. There, surrounded by original sets from the series' eight movies, eight pairs of international bakers are given weekly tasks in which they must create, per the Warner Bros. description, "massive, spell-binding and delicious showpieces inspired by moments and themes from the Harry Potter saga," each presented to chefs Carla Hall ("The Chew") and Jozef Youssef ("Inside the Superbrands") for judgment.

Across six spellbinding episodes, the Phelps twins will also be joined by special guests from the films — including Warwick Davis ("Willow," 1988), Afshan Azad ("Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire," 2005) and Devon Murray ("Angela's Ashes," 1999) — who help in judging creations for accuracy, while also taking a walk down memory lane.

This second chapter of competition begins as the competitors are sorted into one of the four Hogwarts houses — Gryffindor, Slytherin, Hufflepuff and Ravenclaw — by the Sorting Hat and then must create something that represents their respective homes. In a sneak peek shared for the upcoming season, one team in particular can be seen creating the infamous Chamber of Secrets, complete with a deadly basilisk and Tom Riddle's iconic diary.

While a team's win brings certain glory, it also comes with an extra boost this season, as the top teams will be offered an extra bonus: an advantage for themselves in the following episode or the chance to bestow an impediment on another team.

When all is said and done, only one team can emerge as the season's overall champions, chosen during a grand finale in which bakers must create a showpiece celebrating "The Goblet of Fire's" 20th anniversary.

A magical celebration of the Wizarding World, Season 2 of "Harry Potter: Wizards of Baking" premieres Sunday, Nov. 2, on Food Network and streaming the next day on HBO Max.

"Love + War" (2025)
From war zones to family ties, bravery is never without sacrifice. Oscar winners Elizabeth Chai Vasarhelyi ("Meru," 2015) and Jimmy Chin ("The Rescue," 2021) follow photographer Lynsey Addario in "Love + War," premiering Friday, Nov. 7, on Hulu. Addario has risked everything to capture the harsh realities of war, from the Middle East and Afghanistan to Ukraine. This documentary follows Addario's rise in the male-dominated world of conflict photography. Her work comes with constant danger; she has been kidnapped twice while on assignment, each time paying the personal price of leaving her husband and two sons behind. Behind the camera, Addario is torn between her dedication to journalism and her responsibilities as a mother. "Love + War" is a gripping, intimate portrait of commitment, resilience and the cost of following one's calling when it threatens everything you love.

"All's Fair" - Season 1
Is all truly fair in love and war? Find out when Season 1 of "All's Fair" premieres on Hulu this Tuesday, Nov. 4. This legal dramedy follows a team of brilliant female attorneys who walk out of a male-dominated law firm to build their own empire. Kim Kardashian ("The Kardashians"), Naomi Watts ("King Kong," 2005), Glenn Close ("The Wife," 2017), Niecy Nash-Betts ("Claws") and Teyana Taylor ("Straw," 2025) star as divorce attorneys who turn heartbreak, scandal and deceit into a roadmap for their clients to regain control over their lives. Behind the scenes, Allura Grant (Kardashian) is going through a divorce of her own and goes head-to-head with Carrington Lane (Sarah Paulson, "Run," 2020), the attorney representing her husband (Matthew Noszka, "Star"). But their firm quickly becomes a force to be reckoned with as they challenge the status quo and rewrite the rules in a city where all's fair in love and war. This season features a lineup of guest appearances from Grace Gummer ("Mr. Robot"), Elizabeth Berkley ("Shell," 2024), Jessica Simpson ("That '70s Show"), Jennifer Jason Leigh ("Fargo") and Brooke Shields ("Jane the Virgin"). "All's Fair" is created and written by Ryan Murphy ("Glee"), Jon Robin Baitz ("Feud") and Joe Baken ("Doctor Odyssey").

"Sovereign" (2025)
When distrust turns into defiance, there's no way back. Inspired by true events, 2025's "Sovereign" premieres Friday, Nov. 7, on Hulu. This gripping

Lynsey Addario as seen in "Love + War" thriller follows Jerry (Nick Offerman, "Parks and Recreation") and Joe Kane (Jacob Tremblay, "The Life of Chuck," 2024), whose deep distrust of authority explodes into violence after a confrontation with a small-town police chief spirals out of control. What begins as a tense standoff quickly escalates into a full-scale manhunt, turning the father and son into fugitives and the town into their battleground. As law enforcement closes in and each decision pushes them further from redemption, Jerry and Joe must face the consequences of their actions and the dangerous ideology that binds them together. From writer and director Christian Swegal ("Proud Mary," 2018), "Sovereign" also stars Dennis Quaid ("The Day After Tomorrow," 2018), Thomas Mann ("Me and Earl and the Dying Girl," 2015), Nancy Travis ("The Vanishing," 1993), Martha Plimpton ("Task," "Prime Target") and Ruby Wolf ("The Featherweight," 2023), with Adam Anders ("Glee"), Colin Bates ("Infamous," 2020) and Blake Elder ("House of Darkness," 2022) serving as executive producers.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: In the past year I've noticed that background noise and music is drowning out people talking on TV. It has become so bad, it is impossible to understand what the announcer or actors are saying. (My hearing was just tested a month ago, and it is just fine). What is going on?

A: There are a number of things conspiring to make dialogue less understandable these days — for everyone.

The two biggest factors are both the result of supposed technological advancements: bigger, flatter TVs that sacrifice sound and better sound-recording technology that crowds out dialogue as it crowds in music and sound effects.

Modern, flat-screen TVs generally have to put their speakers on the back instead of the front or even the bottom.

Oscar-winning audio engineer
Tom Fleischman

The result is the sound having to bounce off something before it reaches your ears, and becoming distorted en route.

But the problem starts before the show ever gets to your TV. Better microphones mean that actors can mumble and whisper through their lines in ways that used to be impossible, according to Oscar-winning audio engineer Tom Fleischman (he won his statue for mixing the 2011 film "Hugo").

Meanwhile, the advent of digital sound recording, instead of recording on tape, means that filmmakers can include more different sources of audio at the same time.

"Suddenly we were able to run 200 tracks at once," he said in an interview with CBS News last year. "A lot of layering, a lot of sound effects, a lot of music. It makes it harder to get the dialogue to read through it."

It's all very frustrating, but the fact that you're not alone means there's plenty of advice out there for fixing it.

Tech website CNET.com suggests checking your TV's sound settings (look for sound presets like "dialogue," "news" or "speech boost" or else just try to reduce the bass and increase the treble) and/or investing in an external speaker.

Q: I was sorry to hear that "The Franchise" got canceled. What is the actor who played Daniel, the put-upon assistant director, doing now?

A: While the cancellation of the HBO Max comedy "The Franchise" was probably a disappointment, Himesh Patel ("Don't Look Up," 2021) might have been at least a little glad to have some free time again.

He's been in demand since his breakout role in the lead of the 2019 rom-com "Yesterday."

For example, "The Franchise," whose eight episodes all aired in 2024, was just one of three things he appeared in that year.

He starred in the indie crime comedy "Greedy People" and the German-made psychological sci-fi drama "The Assessment," both in 2024.

Earlier this year, he appeared in the dystopian comedy "Bubble & Squeak," which got good reviews when it debuted at the Sundance Film Festival.

He's only increased that impressive pace, as three of his films are now in post-production.

Most notably, he has a spot in the star-studded cast of "The Odyssey," the new adaptation of the classical Greek epic due out next year. It's not yet known who he's playing, but he'll be doing it opposite Matt Damon ("The Departed," 2006) as the Greek hero Odysseus.

Patel also has a voice role in the animated adventure "High in the Clouds," due out in 2027. Plus, he will reprise his role as Dr. Watson in "Enola Holmes 3," which currently has no release date set.
