Vin Diesel said that this December, they will start shooting the 11th Fast & Furious movie. Although I will say the squad is getting a little older. Half the movie is just them trying to get into the car.

Netflix has a new dating show called "Weight to Date" that will follow a group of people who have lost large amounts of weight and are now attempting to find love. Yeah, and here's the cruel twist: some of them are cake.

After living here for six years, Prince Harry and Meghan Markle are leaving California and moving back to the United Kingdom. Yeah, and while they're in the U.K., Harry and Meghan will officially remain non-working royals as opposed to the working royals who spend their days not working.

Some more news from the White House today [Aug. 20]. Melania Trump made her first public appearance in over a month at the Rose Garden event. Unfortunately, she saw her shadow, which means it'll be six more weeks of separating.

I heard that a middle school in Kentucky is under fire after sending students home with AI-generated materials, including a map that said "Olkchoma" and "North Dahota." I'm a little worried because the principal said they fixed the mistake and just added South Dahota.

A truck in Rhode Island caused an eight-hour traffic jam after it tipped over, spilling 40,000 pounds of squid. Thankfully, they were saved because someone was like, "Quick, calamari 911."

Jimmy Kimmel Live! ... With Jelly Roll!

Welcome to "Jimmy Kimmel Live!" I am your guest host, Jelly Roll, and contrary to what some of you all have been saying on the internet, I have not joined the Hollywood Illuminati yet. I'm still trying to get Guillermo to write my letter of recommendation.

I want to thank my friend Jimmy [Kimmel] for asking me to fill in for him. I don't fit the usual profile for a talk show host. I look like a guy who would get a DUI on a tractor.

All is fair: Love turns to 'War' on HBO

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

When a film or television series sees massive success after its release, the natural next step is a sequel or second season. We have seen this time and again with film franchises such as Scream, Star Wars, the Marvel Cinematic Universe and also with multiple-season series such as "Succession" and anthologies the likes of "American Horror Story." But when a production company greenlights two seasons before the pilot has even aired, that is usually a sign of studio confidence in outstanding content. And HBO knows outstanding content.

From "The Sopranos" and "Game of Thrones" to "The White Lotus" and "Hacks," some of the best television of the past two decades, regardless of genre, has been produced by HBO. This fall, the network (and its affiliated streamers) plans to add another juggernaut to its roster, and filming is already underway for a second season.

"War," a new legal drama featuring two opposing factions in a high-profile divorce case, premieres Thursday, Oct. 1, on HBO and the HBO Max streaming service.

The eight-episode series stars Sienna Miller ("Anatomy of a Scandal") as a well-known international actress named Carla Duval, who is engaged in a contentious divorce with her husband, Morgan Henderson, played by Dominic West ("The Wire"), a big name in the tech world. The splitting couple is central to the show's Season 1 plot, but the series goes further than to chronicle the expected emotional breakdown of a once-happy public relationship.

"'War' is a high-stakes legal drama following the lives of London's most powerful lawyers," reads the HBO logline. "[F]irms Cathcarts & Sons and Taylor & Byrne clash over a headline-grabbing legal battle, drawing ambitious young lawyer Jonathan 'Johnny' Warren [Archie Renaux, "Alien: Romulus," 2024] into a ruthless world where ambition is currency, betrayal is strategy and winning is everything."

The London-set series is created, written and executive produced by BAFTA and Emmy nominee George Kay, who counts among his credits the Omar Sy ("The Intouchables," 2011) led Netflix series "Lupin" and the Apple TV series "Hijack," starring Idris Elba ("Luther"), and co-produced by "New Pictures (a Banijay company) and Observatory Pictures, in association with Sky and HBO" (per HBOMaxLAPress.com).

Sienna Miller and Dominic West in "War"

Ahead of the Season 1 release, Kay met with Variety to shed a bit more light on the driving force behind the highly anticipated new drama.

"I was really hungry to do a mainstream, high-end TV [show] with characters at the heart of it," Kay told Variety in the interview, adding, "I was really keen to do character stuff and do it in a high-end, unapologetically affluent setting, and go back to those kind of shows that I grew up loving. ... So I was thinking about doing this legal show because I love the idea that a case that you're working on as a lawyer is a kind of metaphor for your own life, where you're constantly bringing the personal into the professional."

Speaking to the fictional law firms themselves, Kay noted: "I wanted to do one traditional, older firm [and a] fresher firm with ambitions and less resources but always full of characters who are smart."

Importantly, as seen in the official trailer released by HBO and HBO Max on Aug. 6, each firm is unwaveringly dedicated to its clients and repeating the same rhetoric: "You are the wronged party here." Whether their steadfastness is born out of confidence or stubbornness, it's clear from jump that the two firms are as at odds as the soon-to-be exes.

Joining Miller, West and Renaux for Season 1 of "War" are Phoebe Fox ("The Great") and James McArdle ("Mare of Easttown") as legal and romantic partners Serena Byrne and Nicholas Taylor, and Nina Sosanya ("Baby Reindeer") and Pip Torrens ("The Crown") as Beatrice "Queen Bea" Ubosi and St. John Smallwood, their "fierce" Cathcarts counterparts.

Emma Laird ("A Haunting in Venice," 2023), Celia Imrie ("The Thursday Murder Club"), Aran Murphy ("Lola," 2022), Nick Mohammed ("The Martian," 2015), Archie Panjabi ("The Good Wife"), Shaheen Jafargholi ("Casualty"), Adrian Scarborough ("The Chelsea Detective"), Miles Jupp ("The Full Monty"), Akiya Henry ("The Rubbish World of Dave Spud"), Honor Swinton Byrne ("A Very Royal Scandal"), Alexandra Mardell ("Coronation Street"), Dylan Edwards ("Wanderlust"), Mark Quartley ("The Ipcress File"), Kartanya Maynard ("Heartbreak High") and Steve Furst ("Testament") also appear in the show's flagship season.

"War's" second season, which has already begun filming in London, stars Marisa Tomei ("Spider-Man: Brand New Day," 2026), Kelly Macdonald ("No Country for Old Men," 2007) and David Harewood ("Supergirl") as clients and "their lawyers become embroiled in an explosive defamation case" (per Warner Bros. Discovery Press).

"George Kay has created an incredibly compelling cast of characters who will have audiences rooting for them, despite the underhand tactics, dirty tricks and win-at-all-cost mentality they bring to battle against each other in — and out — of court," reads a statement from New Pictures executive producer and CEO Willow Grylls about the legal drama. "We are incredibly pleased to be trusted by Sky and HBO with a two-series order to bring their stories to viewers around the world."

Try to catch all the dirty dealings and underhanded deals when "War" begins Thursday, Oct. 1, on HBO. New episodes air weekly and will also be available to stream on HBO Max.

Catching strays: 'Animal Control' returns for a wild new season

Michael Rowland, Joel McHale, Vella Lovell, Ravi Patel and Grace Palmer star in "Animal Control"

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Getting a peek into the world of wildlife up close can be magical. Whether it's a day spent at the zoo complete with a trip to the gift shop or a respectful guided tour of a nature reserve, seeing animals in their habitats is a wonderous gift. However, sometimes wild creatures enter humans' territory and sample some of our creature comforts. That is when wildlife professionals get called in.

Catch the season premiere of "Animal Control" Sunday, Sept. 27, on Fox. The unconventional workplace sitcom is back this fall for its fifth season, seeing the members of Seattle's animal control unit encounter packs, gaggles, mobs and romps of critters in distress across the Emerald City. Joel McHale ("Community") returns as senior animal control officer Frank Shaw, the gruff, sarcastic animal whisperer who leads the lovable crew of officers responsible for herding unruly wildlife.

Also returning to the animal control unit this season are Vella Lovell ("Crazy Ex-Girlfriend") as Emily Price, Michael Rowland ("The Life List," 2025) as Fred "Shred" Taylor, Ravi Patel ("Three Women") as Amit Patel and Grace Palmer ("Good Grief") as Victoria Sands. Frank and his team are typically overseen by Emily, the director of the region. However, last season's finale pulled a bait and switch with a recurring villain of the department, shaking up the precinct's hierarchy.

The team of officers has triumphed through difficult wildlife distress calls and the unbelievable egos of the animal control world together throughout the first four seasons of the series, but one antagonist has been stubborn as a mule since Day 1. Gerry Dee ("Mr. D") stars as the uptight, devious animal control officer Templeton Dudge.

Once a member of a rival precinct, Templeton's ambitions to replace Emily were directed at Frank instead last season, after a precinct merge made them colleagues. Templeton tormented the precinct all season, and the finale closed with the unfortunate news of his dream appointment. With the core group of officers dodging Templeton's attempts to sabotage Frank's changes of winning the coveted honor of animal control officer of the year, a new problem arose in its place.

Having kept their budding romance mostly to themselves, Emily and Shred loosened up for one fateful moment with a clandestine kiss in the photo booth at the gala. Thinking they got away with it and planning to make it official with HR paperwork as soon as they got back to the office, Emily and Shred tried to play it cool, but photographic evidence from the booth was displayed for the whole hall to see from the stage's digital slideshow.

So, while the team thought they were coming back to a Templeton-free workplace for the first time in a long time, their spirits were crushed in the last few moments of Season 4's finale. With Emily on leave for not reporting her relationship with Shred, it looks like everyone will be following Templeton's rules this season. With another will-they-won't-they office romance bubbling between Frank and Victoria, will Templeton's rule and Emily's example cool things between the could-be lovebirds?

There is no official word yet from Fox about what this new season entails, but if there was ever a local hero made to be part of the show, it would be Jimothy. Over the summer, everyone with a social media account became enamored of a special nocturnal bandit. When Seattle residents started sharing clips they had caught of an unusual looking raccoon, netizens went wild. Affectionately named Jimothy, the raccoon appears to have short spine syndrome that's given him a short body. With his regular-sized limbs, there is no better word for the way he gets around than "skedaddling."

For the first time in the show's run, "Animal Control" moves to Sunday night as part of the Animation Domination block. The sole returning live-action comedy on the network, the series only continues to gain momentum with each season. "Animal Control" has picked up fans post-broadcast through its availability to stream on Netflix and is the tentpole of Fox's sitcom slate. Joining that slate sometime during the 2027-28 season is a new sitcom from "Modern Family" executive producers Christopher Lloyd and Danny Zuker called "Mammoth," based on the BBC Two series of the same name.

"Animal Control" was created by Bob Fisher ("The Moodys"), Rob Greenberg ("How I Met Your Mother") and Dan Sterling ("The Last Man on Earth"). The co-creators also executive produce and write for the series alongside Tad Quill ("Scrubs"), with Jake Fuller ("Emily in Paris") and McHale also executive producing.

Don't miss a brand-new season of "Animal Control" premiering on its new night, Sunday, Sept. 27, on Fox.

Jeff Lewis returns to Bravo with new series, 'Still Flipping Out'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

'Flipping' chaos: The so-called "king of controlled chaos" — Bravo's very own Jeff Lewis, star of "Flipping Out" — takes viewers on a roller coaster ride of ups and downs as he tries to balance a busy career, business partnerships, workplace dynamics and more in his latest series, "Still Flipping Out," which makes its debut Monday, Sept. 28, on Bravo.

After 11 seasons of "Flipping Out," Lewis has taken on some new roles since fans last saw him. According to the series' description, "Still Flipping Out" will take viewers behind the scenes of Lewis' uncensored daily radio show, "Jeff Lewis Live."

"[Lewis] navigates the demands of his hit SiriusXM show on Radio Andy, an eponymous design empire, and everything in between," the description reads. "Though Jeff's world has expanded over the years, he maintains a tight circle of trusted employees that ground him and is never far away from his eclectic friend group — lovingly referred to as the 'chumps.'"

After updating viewers on how his life has changed in the eight years since "Flipping Out" ended, Lewis offers a taste of what's to come in the series' trailer, introducing viewers to his "co-host chumps," whom he describes as "a close-knit group that know each other intimately." But just how intimately is yet to be seen, with "Still Flipping Out" promising conflict in Lewis' personal and professional lives.

While following Lewis through his day-to-day life, cameras will follow the likes of Shane Douglas, Lewis' chief-of-staff and secondhand man; Jamison Scala, producer of the "Jeff Lewis Has Issues" podcast; Lewis' social media manager, Annie Sharp; and more, including Lewis' beloved housekeeper, Aurora Chavez.

According to the network, Season 1 of "Still Flipping Out" will also see appearances from celebrities such as Andy Cohen ("Watch What Happens Live with Andy Cohen"), Reza Farahan ("The Valley: Persian Style"), Mercedes Javid ("Shahs of Sunset"), Meredith Marks ("The Real Housewives of Salt Lake City"), Phaedra Parks ("The Real Housewives of Atlanta"), Shannon Storms Beador ("The Real Housewives of Orange County"), Crystal Kung Minkoff ("The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills"), Molly Sims ("The Kelly Clarkson Show"), Carnie Wilson ("Sounds Delicious with Carnie Wilson"), Kym Whitley ("Act Your Age") and Joey Zauzig ("The Real Friends of WeHo").

With Cohen and Lewis himself also acting as executive producers, "Still Flipping Out" premieres Monday, Sept. 28, on Bravo.

Sink or swim: Big fish thrive in small ponds, but what happens when you toss the small guys out to the sharks? Inventors, business owners and investors alike navigate a sea of opportunity as "Shark Tank" returns Wednesday, Sept. 30, to ABC.

Season 18 will drop viewers into the tank alongside returning permanent sharks such as real estate tycoon Barbara Corcoran, cybersecurity tech inventor Robert Herjavec, "Queen of QVC" Lori Greiner, marketing mastermind Daymond John, KIND founder Daniel Lubetzky and venture capitalist Kevin O'Leary. This year, however, lifestyle mogul Kendra Scott and Harbinger Sports' Rashaun Williams (who first appeared as guest sharks on the show in seasons 12 and 16, respectively) will also join the pack of series regulars.

Throughout the season, Scott, Williams and the others will also be joined by an impressive list of new guest sharks, including the likes of YouTube superstar Jimmy Donaldson — perhaps better known as MrBeast — and the CEO of Beast Industries, Jeffrey Housenbold; writer, actor and comedian Mindy Kaling ("The Office"); former NFL defensive end J.J. Watt; Erin and Sara Foster, co-founders of apparel brand Favorite Daughter; and Steven Bartlett, host of "Diary of a CEO."

While ABC has yet to reveal which bright-eyed, hopeful business owners will be sharing their pitches in Season 18, fans can expect biting business, financial and career advice from the wise sharks.

Jeff Lewis hosts "Still Flipping Out"

Speaking of the selection process for fledgling business owners, Williams previously told TV Insider: "This is like the NFL Draft … I don't have to go through 10,000 pitch decks to narrow it down to 10 companies. They do it for me.

"I get to sit next to people who are entrepreneurs and some of the best investors in the country, asking questions that I don't get to ask," he continued, speaking of the series' hands-on approach. "And I get to see the reaction of entrepreneurs after I invest, which I've never seen before. And I sometimes cry, and I'm emotional about it, and I mean, this is a platform that I can take the financial literacy that I've been teaching for 25 years to the masses, because I love to teach … but the way my bank account is set up, I can't afford to be a teacher, so now I get to do both."

With Corcoran, Greiner, Herjavec, John and O'Leary all acting as producers for the series, Season 18 of "Shark Tank" premieres Wednesday, Sept. 30, on ABC.

"LEGO One Piece"

Get ready to set sail with the beloved pirates of Netflix's "One Piece" as they come together to form the Straw Hat Pirates in "LEGO One Piece," a two-part animated special premiering Tuesday, Sept. 29, on the streamer. In the first two seasons of the live-action series, the Straw Hats faced the menacing Arlong Pirates, went head-to-head with deadly Baroque Works assassins and battled fearsome metal monsters. Now, their extraordinary adventures are being reimagined in brick form, through Usopp's (Jacob Romero, "Grey's Anatomy") wonderfully exaggerated perspective, bringing all the characters to life in a playful new way. As the crew journey into "a treacherous stretch of ocean known as the Grand Line," (per Netflix) they fight off "a crazed pirate clown, marines, fishmen and a criminal syndicate, all while exploring islands full of unknown dangers." In addition to Romero, the special includes the voices of Inaki Godoy ("The Imperfects") as Luffy, Emily Rudd ("Hunters") as Nami, Mackenyu ("Knights of the Zodiac," 2023) as Zoro, Taz Skylar ("Boiling Point") as Sanji and Mikaela Hoover ("Superman," 2025) as Tony Tony Chopper. "One Piece" creator Eiichiro Oda serves as an executive producer.

"East of Eden"

A dark saga of love, betrayal and the battle between good and evil comes to Netflix when "East of Eden" premieres Thursday, Oct. 1. Florence Pugh ("Lady Macbeth," 2016) stars as Cathy Ames, the indelible antihero at the center of Zoe Kazan's sweeping adaptation of John Steinbeck's 1952 novel of the same name. Arriving in California's Salinas Valley, Cathy becomes entwined with the Trask family, particularly brothers Adam (Christopher Abbott, "It Comes at Night," 2017) and Charles (Mike Faist, "West Side Story," 2021). Beautiful and fiercely guarded, Cathy sees the world as a place filled with evil, and her arrival brings a force that neither brother can easily understand or contain. Adam falls in love with her and dreams of building a life together, while Cathy remains driven by desires of her own. Their story stretches across generations, following the Trasks as family legacies, personal choices and old wounds ripple forward through time. Among those caught in the family's orbit are Lee (Hoon Lee, "Warrior"), their devoted servant; patriarch Cyrus Trask (Tracy Letts, "The Lowdown"); and Adam's sons, Aron (Joe Anders, "Cape Fear") and Cal (Joseph Zada, "We Were Liars"). From the American Civil War to the First World War, the seven-episode limited series from writer-executive producer Zoe Kazan ("The Plot Against America") explores what families pass down, what individuals inherit and whether the past truly determines who someone becomes.

"Doing Life" (2026)

Writer-director Tyler Perry ("Beauty in Black") explores love, resilience and redemption in "Doing Life," premiering Friday, Oct. 2, on Netflix. Anika (Naomi Baker, "All American: Homecoming") is struggling to keep her family together when she begins exchanging letters with Carousel (Jay Reeves, "The Six Triple Eight," 2024), an inmate serving the remainder of his prison sentence. What starts as a small act of kindness slowly becomes a lifeline for them both, despite the distance and circumstances keeping them apart. As they grow closer, they are forced to confront the mistakes and hardships that have shaped their lives. "Their connection ignites a powerful journey of love, redemption and the hope of breaking free from their troubled pasts, proving that even the most inconceivable of relationships can transform lives and secure second chances at happiness" (per Netflix). "Doing Life" also stars Cornell Young IV ("Beyond the Gates"), Mike Massa ("Indiana Jones and the Dial of Destiny," 2023) and Briana Price ("Divorced Sistas").

"A Love Other Than Yours" – Season 1

From director Hwang Seung-Ki ("Justice"), a couple's relationship is put to the test when Season 1 of "A Love Other Than Yours" continues with a new episode Sunday, Sept. 27, on Prime Video. Namgung Ho (Seo Kang-joon, "Cunning Single Lady") and Lee Mi-do (Ahn Eun-jin, "My Dearest") have been together for 10 years, and somewhere along the way, the spark between them has faded. Ho, an easy-going assistant manager with a natural gift for winning people over, sees marriage as the obvious next chapter. Mi-do, however, is struggling to find her footing as a film director after a painful setback leaves her questioning herself and the life she has built. Then, she meets Han Tae-seung (Lee Joo-ahn, "Snowdrop"), an ambitious attorney whose arrival awakens feelings she cannot easily dismiss. Drawn closer to Tae-seung, Mi-do begins to see her relationship with Ho differently, forcing them both to confront what has changed between them and decide whether their love is enough to carry them forward.

"The Fire Inside" (2024)

Claressa "T-Rex" Shields (Ryan Destiny, "Star") throws her first punch toward Olympic history in 2024's "The Fire Inside," now streaming on Prime Video. Directed by Rachel Morrison ("Mudbound," 2017) from a screenplay by Barry Jenkins ("Moonlight," 2016), the film traces the true story of Claressa "T-Rex" Shields, a teenager determined to fight her way out of the chaos of her upbringing in Flint, Michigan. When she walks into a boys-only boxing gym and demands a real shot at training, reluctant coach Jason Crutchfield (Brian Tyree Henry, "Atlanta") finally gives her one, marking the beginning of a truly remarkable story of hope and perseverance. Under his tough-love guidance, Claressa claws her way through the ranks while battling poverty, an unstable home life and the weight of a hometown in steady decline, eventually earning her place on the 2012 U.S. Olympic team. At just 17, she becomes the first American woman to win Olympic gold in the sport. But glory doesn't pay the bills: back home, Claressa faces financial insecurity and a near total absence of endorsement deals, even as her male Olympic teammates cash in, leaving her to wonder if she will have to pawn the very medal she fought so hard to win.

"Once Upon a Time... In Hollywood" (2019)

Leonardo DiCaprio ("Titanic," 1997) plays a fading Western star clinging to old Hollywood glory in 2019's "Once Upon a Time... In Hollywood," now streaming on Prime Video. Written and directed by Quentin Tarantino ("Pulp Fiction," 1994), the film unfolds in 1969 Los Angeles, where former Western television star Rick Dalton (DiCaprio) wrestles with a career that has quietly slipped away from him. His days are filled with day drinking and easy company from stunt double and best friend Cliff Booth (Brad Pitt, "Fight Club," 1999), a war veteran whose stunt career has stalled amid old rumors, and a loyal pit bull named Brandy. Rick's agent, Marvin Schwarz (Al Pacino, "The Godfather," 1972), pushes him toward Italian westerns he considers a step down, while just next door, rising actress Sharon Tate (Margot Robbie, "I, Tonya," 2017) and her director husband settle into their new home, unaware their idyllic Hollywood dream is being quietly watched by members of a nomadic cult camped out at a nearby movie ranch. As the summer wears on, Rick heads to Italy to salvage his career while Cliff holds down the fort back home, and when August finally arrives, old grudges and new dangers collide in one unforgettable night, one that could rewrite the fate of everyone living on that quiet street forever.

'Best Bakes' by Chef Danielle

Scone queen comes to YouTube

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

A good baker knows that even a simple scone could make the most formidable opponent in the kitchen. Although the bread's concept may seem simple, common mistakes such as over-kneading, overflouring, inconsistent butter temperature or ;too high a cooking temperature can seriously impact one's enjoyment of the British breakfast bun. So who better to turn to for a trustworthy scone recipe than someone who has spent half their life committed to perfecting the formula?

Danielle Sepsy ("The Big Brunch"), aka the "Scone Queen," mastered the art of scones at age 13 and she now hosts "Best Bake Ever," which began streaming on Food Network's YouTube channel (@FoodNetwork) Thursday, Aug. 27. New episodes will continue to drop weekly, but if YouTube is not your preferred streaming method, not to worry: FoodNetwork.com has also noted that it plans to bring the series to its television network later this autumn.

Enamored with baking since she "was able to stand on a stool," Sepsy is a master in the kitchen. It should come as no surprise then that in "Best Bake Ever" viewers will "learn how to make scones ... cakes, muffins and cookies, ensuring sweet tooths everywhere will find everything they need to get their fix" (per FoodNetwork.com).

Danielle Sepsy hosts "Best Bake Ever With Danielle Sepsy"

In Episode 1, Sepsy tackles two different takes on the classic chocolate chip cookie — "thin and crispy" and "soft and chewy" — clearly stating that "there is a place for both." Whether it comes down to texture or flavor, everyone has their preferred take on the familiar classic, which is something Sepsy has learned over the past seven years of running The Hungry Gnome, her own bakery based on Long Island, New York, where they reportedly churn out (according to her own admission) upwards of 1,000 chocolate chip cookies a day.

As of writing, there has been no indication as to how many episodes "Best Bake Ever" will release or if episodes will be grouped by season. There are, however, plenty of places to catch Sepsy while you wait. To date, the Scone Queen has appeared as a guest on talk shows such as "Today," "Tamron Hall," "Good Morning America" and "The Drew Barrymore Show," in addition to her work as a contestant on Dan Levy's ("Schitt's Creek") HBO series "The Big Brunch."

Don't miss baking with one of the best: "Best Bake Ever" drops new epsiodes Thursdays via @FoodNetwork on YouTube.

Affection

Following a traumatic event, Ellie (Rothe) wakes with few memories of her life in a strange man's (Cross) isolated home. Bruce assures Ellie that her memories will come back in time, despite her inability to recapture the bond with her husband and child. Plagued with strong memories of a very different life than what Bruce shows her, Ellie's waking life becomes a nightmare as she tries to restore her true memories and escape.

Two decades after launching his own stand-up showcase, Byron Allen marks the milestone from late night's most coveted timeslot, freshly vacated by a legendary predecessor. Archival clips honor a run that's featured hundreds of comedians over the years.

Doc

"A Complete Unknown" (2024)

From director James Mangold ("Logan," 2017), Bob Dylan's (Timothee Chalamet, "Dune," 2021) rise to fame begins in "A Complete Unknown," streaming Sunday, Sept. 27, on Hulu. At the height of a rapidly changing music scene, a 19-year-old Bob Dylan steps off a bus in New York City in 1961, guitar in hand and a stack of songs scribbled in his notebook. He tracks down his hero, folk legend Woody Guthrie (Scoot McNairy, "Argo," 2012), and catches the attention of Guthrie's friend Pete Seeger (Edward Norton, "Fight Club," 1999), who takes the young singer under his wing and introduces him to Greenwich Village's tight-knit folk scene. As his talent turns heads, Dylan falls for Sylvie Russo (Elle Fanning, "Margo's Got Money Troubles") and begins writing music with rising star Joan Baez (Monica Barbaro, "Top Gun: Maverick," 2022). As he moves from performing in coffeehouses to concert halls, Dylan's fame begins to strain his relationship with the folk community that first embraced him. When Dylan starts moving toward electric music, he faces fierce resistance from fans and fellow musicians, culminating in his controversial performance at the 1965 Newport Folk Festival, which marks a major turning point in his career.

"One of Them Days" (2025)

There's no rest for the wicked… or for the broke. Starring Keke Palmer ("Nope," 2022) and singer-songwriter SZA ("Kill Bill") — in her breakout acting role — the buddy-comedy, "One of Them Days," makes its debut Wednesday, Sept. 30, on Hulu. As best friends and roommates, Dreux (Palmer) and Alyssa (SZA) always have each other's backs. But when Alyssa's boyfriend blows the girls' rent money, Dreux must put her frustration aside to keep that promise — no matter the expense. With a tight midnight deadline, the girls begin a chaotic journey through Los Angeles, doing whatever they can to make up the cash before their landlord comes knocking. With a screenplay written by Syreeta Singleton ("Insecure") and Lawrence Lamont ("Rap Sh!t") acting as director, "One of Them Days" was nominated for multiple NAACP Image Awards, including Outstanding Motion Picture, Outstanding Ensemble Cast in a Motion Picture, Outstanding Actress in a Motion Picture (Palmer) and more. Joshua David Neal ("Before the Dark," 2017), Janelle James ("Abbott Elementary"), Aziza Scott ("You, Me & Tuscany," 2026), Vanessa Bell Calloway ("The Vince Staples Show"), Lil Rel Howery ("Get Out," 2017), Katt Williams ("72 Hours," 2026) and Maude Apatow ("Euphoria") also star.

"Chad Powers" - Season 2

Think fast, run faster. The titular, eccentric football star returns to the field once again, in Season 2 of "Chad Powers," now available to stream on Hulu. Dialed in and ready to win, Russ Holliday (Glen Powell, "The Running Man," 2025) — now better known as Chad Powers — is a superstar on the field, but his odd behavior off it has everyone suspicious — especially Coach Hudson (Steve Zahn, "The Righteous Gemstones") and Gerry (Colton Ryan, "The Girl from Plainville"), who are beginning to smell something fishy. This season, the walls are closing in on Russ's lie, and if he and Danny (Frankie A. Rodriguez, "High School Musical: The Musical: The Series") want the Chad persona to survive the regular season and lead the Catfish to the CFP, the only person who can help them is the last person who'd ever want to: Ricky (Perry Mattfeld, "The Idea of You," 2024).

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Does the "MASH" finale still hold the record for the most-watched episode of a TV show?

A: A whole avalanche of caveats and qualifications have to accompany this, but, within the strict phrasing of your question, the answer is yes.

The cast of "MASH"

The "MASH" finale, titled "Goodbye, Farewell and Amen," aired Feb. 28, 1983, and was watched by about 106 million American households, according to figures from the TV-ratings nerds at Nielsen.

The biggest quibble here is that we're just talking about episodes of TV shows and not live events. Because according to Nielsen, the annual Super Bowl broadcast routinely beats that number. Indeed, 19 out of the 20 most-watched broadcasts are Super Bowls — the "MASH" finale comes in at No. 13.

Next, we of course have to address the "American" part of this. Other countries have their own shows that were, within their borders, bigger phenomena than "MASH" was.

But you could argue none of them had the same cultural impact. For example, in Canada, all 20 of the most-watched broadcasts were live sports events — not a TV episode among them (yes, most were hockey).

But in case all this qualifying seems to be taking away from the popularity of the "MASH" finale, consider this: the second-most-watched episode of a TV show falls more than 20 million viewers short of "MASH's" mark.

It's the "Dallas" episode "Who Done It," which revealed the person who shot central character J.R. Ewing (Larry Hagman, "Nixon," 1995). It drew just under 84 million.

Q: I miss Ego Nwodim on "Saturday Night Live." What's she been doing since?

A: It's amazing to note that Ego Nwodim ("Mr. Throwback") only left "Saturday Night Live" in 2025, considering the number of projects she's done since. And considering the content of "Saturday Night Live," it's even more amazing to note that they've mostly been kids' movies.

Most notably, she did a voice in this year's Disney-Pixar animated comedy "Hoppers," which reunited her with former "SNL" castmate Vanessa Bayer ("Trainwreck," 2015), among a huge number of other stars.

Nwodim also appeared in the 2025 film "Gabby's Dollhouse: The Movie" and in 2026's "Backyard Sports: The Animated Special."

But it hasn't all been child's play, so to speak. She also had a supporting role in Hulu's workplace comedy series "Not Suitable for Work" earlier this year, and in the star-studded 2026 Netflix film "Little Brother."

And now she has a pair of big projects coming up.

First, she'll have a role in Prime Video's "Barbershop," a TV-series adaptation of the hit 2002 film "Barbershop" and its various sequels. It's filming now with no release date set.

And then, she turns back to kids' stuff with the star-studded 2027 film "CoComelon: The Movie" being made by DreamWorks.
