Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

There's an update from HHS Secretary RFK Jr. During his confirmation hearings, Bobby promised not to mess around with our vaccines. But apparently his brain worm ate that memory because yesterday [Jan. 5] his health officials slashed the number of vaccines recommended for all kids. So now kids will have to build up their immune systems the old-fashioned way by licking everything in the Chuck-E-Cheese ball pit.

Speaking of things that are not necessarily good for you, a new lawsuit alleges that McDonald's McRib sandwich contains no meat. What was your first hint? That the McRib wasn't real when you saw the bones are also made of meat. We're also suing the makers of Dino Nuggets. Our core sample found zero T-Rex DNA.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Netflix just announced that the final season of "Stranger Things" has been viewed over 100 million times. Right now, the CEO of Netflix is like, "Quick, throw Vecna in 'Bridgerton.'"

McDonald's is facing a lawsuit claiming that the McRib doesn't actually contain rib meat. It's strange. The McRib doesn't contain rib meat. However, the Filet-O-Fish does.

Well, people in New York City are talking about this. Subway fares have officially jumped to $3 a ride. The subway is so expensive, musicians have started busking in the back of Ubers.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

Congress is back in session. The first order of business for Congress is to try and avoid another government shutdown at the end of the month. How are we already looking at another possible shutdown? The last one ended in November. Our government is running like the ice cream machine at McDonald's.

They've got a lot on their plate, including that Jeffrey Epstein problem. So far, the Justice Department has released 12,000 files, which sounds like a lot of files until you realize there are two million more. They are only 6% of the way there. If these files were Harry Potter books, we're not even at Hogwarts yet. We're still in the station.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting voted yesterday [Jan. 5] to dissolve itself, which will cut off a major funding source for NPR, PBS, and hundreds of local radio and TV stations. Things are so bad that Oscar had to get roommates.

A 535-pound bluefin tuna sold today [Jan. 5] at auction in Tokyo Fish Market for a record $3.2 million. It's also the first auction ever attended by a wealthy orca.

Taco Bell will begin offering the Quesaito, which is a burrito filled with ground beef, rice, chipotle sauce and sour cream and then wrapped in a cheese quesadilla. "Ooh, heading there now," said EMTs.

All I Want for the Olympics: Mariah Carey headlines 2026 Milano Cortina Opening Ceremony

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

A four-year wait can feel like a lifetime when something anticipated is on the horizon. For Winter Olympics spectators, the wait is over. For the athletes, however, the anticipation has only just begun. After four years of mental preparation and a lifetime of physical training and conditioning, Olympians from around the world gather in Milan, Italy, to kick off the 25th quadrennial Winter Olympic and Paralympic Games.

Don't miss the opening ceremony for the 2026 Milano Cortina Winter Olympic Games when it airs Friday, Feb. 6, on NBC. The ceremony — and the several sporting events that follow — can also be streamed on Peacock.

Seventy years after Italy's Cortina d'Ampezzo held the seventh iteration of the Winter Olympics, a new set of contenders arrives to seek athletic success. But, as always, before (most of) the games begin, there must be a welcoming celebration.

This year's opening ceremony is held inside Milan's San Siro Stadium, which is also known as the Giuseppe Meazza Stadium after the 1930s and '40s-era Italian footballer who became a manager in 1946 and throughout the '50s. The stadium boasts 75,817 seats, making it "the largest capacity stadium in Italy" (per sansirostadium.com) and the perfect venue for the inaugural event.

The Feb. 6 opening ceremony continues its proud introductory tradition, which first began in Athens during the 1896 Olympic Games. Likewise, the procession of athletes — which first occurred in 1908 — will once again inroduce spectators to the approximately 2,900 hopeful contenders representing 90 countries across 116 different events.

"The parade of delegations and the lighting of the Olympic cauldron will remain the highlights," reads the description of the opening ceremony on Olympics.com, "complemented by new initiatives promoting inclusivity and participation across the competition venues."

While athletes and spectators generally gather for the love of sport and support of their country, the 2026 Milano Cortina opening ceremony crew, led by the event management team at Balich Wonder Studio, has announced that their goal extends beyond simple support for friendly nation-based competition: "The aim is clear: to take the Olympic spirit beyond the stadium, engaging the public, athletes and communities in this major celebration."

To help with this goal, Balich Wonder has called in the big guns and asked R&B/pop icon Mariah Carey ("Emotions") to perform at the opening ceremony, which has been subtitled "Armonia" (meaning "Harmony," in Italian). Fresh off her Dec. 31 performance for "Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve with Ryan Seacrest" in New York and her Nov. 28 "Christmas-time in Las Vegas" show at the Park MGM Grand, Carey continues to promote celebration of all kinds through her masterful vocals, glittery style and uplifting energy.

"Mariah Carey fully represents the emotional atmosphere that accompanies the run-up to the Games," the Olympic committee wrote in a statement. "Music is a universal language that attracts different stories and sensibilities, and intertwines with the opening ceremony's theme of harmony."

Italian singer-songwriter Laura Pausini ("En Cambio No") is also set to perform during the opening ceremony, plus a tribute to late Milanese designer

Giorgio Armani has also been announced.

Armani, who died Sept. 4, 2025, at 91, is affiliated with the Olympics not just because of the Games' current ties to his home city of Milan, but also because the esteemed couturier designed the outfits that will be worn by Team Italy throughout the Winter Games. Armani also designed the Italian Olympic uniforms for London 2012 and the Italian flag bearer outfit for Turin 2006.

Known for his timeless and tailored take on functional fashions, Armani's legacy continues to be honored even after his death.

"I couldn't imagine a more inspiring collaborative project, one that features the city that gave me so much," Armani said of his Olympic project last May. "Working for and with Italian athletes is always a pleasure and a source of great pride."

For this year's Italian team uniforms, Armani sought out nature as an inspiration, stating, "I chose a single color, white, to suggest harmony with the snow-capped peaks."

Stateside, NBCUniversal is your home for all things Olympics, with 82 commentators covering events spanning Feb. 6-22 across NBC, NBCSN, Peacock, USA Network, CNBC and NBCUniversal's various digital platforms. Mike Tirico ("NBC Sunday Night Football") leads the charge as host of NBC's "Primetime in Milan," while Rebecca Lowe ("Barclays Premier League on NBC") hosts daytime programming on NBC and Peacock.

As is tradition, the network also welcomes former USA Olympians to provide commentary, which this year includes (but is not limited to) figure skaters Tara Lipinski, Ashley Wagner, Adam Rippon and Scott Hamilton; snowboarders Shaun White and Todd Richards; skiers Picabo Street and Ted Ligety; curler Tyler George; speed skater Joey Cheek; and four-time U.S. medalist Angela Ruggiero.

All in all, Olympics event coordinators are proud to provide viewers and participants alike with "a collective embrace weaving together Italian spirit, innovation, emotion and performances by world-renowned artists." Described as "a one-of-a-kind event designed to surprise, unite and leave an enduring memory for audiences across the globe," the 2026 Milano Cortina opening ceremony is not one to be missed.

Tune in to NBC Friday, Feb. 6, to get in on the action. You can also stream it live or later on Peacock.

'Interwoven' roots: New docuseries explores the connected histories of two American communities

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Stitching new squares into the American quilt is an ongoing project for historians, making connections between communities' stories that help tell the whole tale. A new docuseries, executive produced, written and hosted by "Finding Your Roots" host Henry Louis Gates, Jr., delves into the shared history of Black and Jewish Americans.

"Black and Jewish America: An Interwoven History" premieres the first of four episodes Tuesday, Feb. 3, on PBS. Check your local listings for your affiliate's premiere date.

To explore the two groups' shared experiences in America, Gates included perspectives from scholars, activists, religious leaders and writers.

Multi-hyphenate actor Billy Crystal ("Before"); Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright, screenwriter and author Tony Kushner ("Angels in America," 2021); playwright, professor and "Nurse Jackie" actress Anna Deavere Smith; civil rights activist and political analyst of "PoliticsNation" on MS NOW AI Sharp-ton; and writer David Remnick, who recently appeared in the Netflix documentary "The New Yorker at 100," are all participants in the series.

Children of civil rights figures Rev. Ralph Abernathy, Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel, Rabbi Israel Dresner and more also appear in the docuseries, sharing the legacies left behind by their relatives' work.

The realities of race in America have both united and divided Black and Jewish Americans throughout history. The two groups' beginnings in the country are very different, but the social climate of the early 20th century created bonds between Black and Jewish Americans brought together by shared struggles.

Not only were long-lasting civic partnerships forged during that time, but art influenced by the creative bonds between them flourished, influencing artists for generations. Music and movies that shaped art forms were produced during this time, while activists from both groups fought for workers' rights.

With World War II, these cultural and political bonds were deepened when reporting of the atrocities of the Holocaust made it to America. The two communities, both impacted by the consequences of hate, came together for what is now considered the "golden age" of their alliance during the civil rights era, when community leaders collaborated to dismantle Jim Crow segregation.

As history has surged forward, divisions between the borders of all kinds of communities calcified and Black and Jewish Americans each prioritized their own issues, fragmenting the once more unified alliance. "Black and Jewish America" is a hopeful exploration of the rich connected history of activism and art between the two groups of Americans that could still see another golden age.

Gates shared in a statement that "this is a deeply personal subject" for the Alphonse Fletcher University Professor at Harvard University. "It's connected to my own coming of age during the heroic days of the civil rights struggle and is an urgent response to the violent forces I've seen reawakened in our society over the last decade."

The docuseries highlights the kinship, solidarity and shared ideals of justice that knit the two communities together in past moments of social upheaval in America. Gates further explained the objective of the series, saying, "By tracing the long arc of Black and Jewish history in America, I hope we can see each other more clearly, more honestly and find hope in our mutual stories of survival, resilience and solidarity. But this series is not only about the past. It is about us — and how, together, we can prevail over the forces of hatred that seek to divide us."

The series is directed by Phil Bertelsen ("Who Killed Malcolm X?"), Sara Wolitzky ("Makers: Women Who Make America," 2013) and Julia Marchesi ("Great Migrations: A People on the Move"). The directors collectively shared in a statement: "The Black-Jewish connection is complicated and was never inevitable. Our struggles overlap, but our experiences in America are distinct. And yet, the times these communities have come together, however imperfectly, produced defining art and civil rights gains in America. We are determined to tell the unvarnished story, in all its glory and messiness/complication."

"Black and Jewish America" is a production of McGee Media and Inkwell Media, in association with WETA Washington, D.C. Dyllan McGee ("Frederick Douglass: In Five Speeches," 2022) serves as executive producer. Directors Bertelsen and Wolitzky are co-executive producers, and Marchesi also serves as a producer.

The "unvarnished" perspective that is often used to tell stories in PBS docuseries consistently deepens viewers' understanding of the world and their place in it — from the exhaustively researched, complete histories of Ken Burns documentaries like the recent six-part series "The American Revolution" to affecting stories of our connection to the natural world with "Nature."

Similarly, Gates' long-running series "Finding Your Roots" tells the real stories of the ancestry of artists, celebrities and political figures. The show brings major historical events down to a personal level, highlighting how everyone has a connection to the making of America. Currently airing its 12th season, "Finding Your Roots" was recently nominated for a Primetime Emmy for outstanding hosted nonfiction series or special.

Don't miss the premiere of "Black and Jewish America: An Interwoven History" when it airs Tuesday, Feb. 3, on PBS.

'Below Deck Down Under' caters to Salt Lake City Housewives

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

SLC Down Under: Featuring clashing crew members, crashing waves and crushing boatmanes, Season 4 of "Below Deck Down Under" begins Monday, Feb. 2, on Bravo, with a supersized 75-minute episode.

Pack your bags (and your Drama-mine) and make your way to the sun deck in preparation for a season full of ups and downs, as Capt. Jason Chambers welcomes a new slate of guests — and a few new employees to boot — aboard his 196-foot Brodosplit superyacht, the Katina.

While some familiar faces may already be on board — including Second Officer Joao Franco, sous chef Alesia Harris, stew Jo Caron, stew Jenna Woudberg, deckhand Mike Durrant, deckhand Eddy Hounsel and deckhand Betul Yazici — Chambers will also be introducing "Down Under" viewers to the likes of chef Ben Robison and chief stew Daisy Kelliher — who some may already know as popular figures from the Below Deck franchise.

This season, fans can expect to see blossoming romances, tense confrontations and more between the ships' steadfast crew members, but Bravo also promises ample drama on the Upper Deck this season, as the "Down Under" crew attends to the ladies of "The Real Housewives of Salt Lake City" during a one-of-a-kind charter trip — marking a first for both franchises.

Noah Samton, senior vice president of unscripted productions for NBCUniversal, said the crossover comes after years of discussion at Bravo.

"This is something we discussed at Bravo for many years," he said, speaking to the Hollywood Reporter. "It felt like, finally, OK, we can't wait anymore. We got to make this happen."

The Hollywood Reporter then goes on to explain that "in a few months, viewers will gain access to 'a lot of fun little juicy tidbits' that arose from the crew's perspective of working for the ladies of Salt Lake City — including 'if the Housewives are good tipplers or not.'"

With Cristina Lopez ("Below Deck"), Steve Hernandez Jr. ("Save Our Shelter"), Mark Cronin ("Below Deck Mediterranean"), Tania Hamidi ("Bad Girls Club"), Julie Pizzi ("Vanderpump Villa"), Zachary Klein ("Utopia") and Farnaz Farjam ("Confessions of Octomom") acting as executive producers, Season 4 of

"Below Deck Down Under" begins Monday, Feb. 2, on Bravo.

Parents of the world: Sir David Attenborough ("Planet Earth") amazes audiences once again, with the premiere of "Nature: Parenthood," a five-part docuseries premiering Wednesday, Feb. 4, on PBS.

"Filmed over three years on six continents, in 26 countries, using the latest 8K filming technology," according to Silverback Films, producers of the "Parenthood" series, this latest glimpse into the natural world attempts to reveal "the joy and drama of animal parenthood in a rapidly changing world. ... From Orcas teaching their offspring to hunt Blue Whales, to Orangutans showing their young to make their beds, to Hippo families navigating the terrifying African night."

While each episode tackles a different biome — including the grasslands of Zambezi and India; freshwater streams twisting through the Amazon; oceans stretching between Australia and Indonesia; jungles overflowing with wildlife; and savannahs busy with conflicts between predators and prey — "Parenthood" aims to answer overarching questions that impact animals of all shapes and sizes, including how exactly human interaction has helped or hindered the process of raising young in the wild.

"'Parenthood' is an extraordinary celebration of one of life's great challenges: raising young," series producer Jeff Wilson ("The Mating Game") says. "Working with the world's best wildlife cinematographers and nature experts, we uncovered a huge number of fascinating and untold behaviors through incredible field craft and dedication. In an uncertain world, there are lessons to be learned from our animal characters that will resonate with all of us.

"The series is brimming with engaging character stories and extraordinary behaviors, many of which have never been seen before," Wilson continues. "Yet it already feels much more than a sum of its parts — there is a palpable connection in our stories between the challenges that animal parents face in a changing world and the human experience, and when combined with the cinematic wonder and spectacle Silverback does so well, it makes 'Parenthood' a unique and magical experience for our audience."

With episodes directed by the likes of Hugh Wilson ("Guardians of the Galapagos"), Joe Fereday ("Secret Lives of Orangutans," 2024) and Wilson, the five-part special, "Parenthood," airs as part of PBS's "Nature" series, with its first episode airing Wednesday, Feb. 4, on PBS.

"The Lincoln Lawyer" - Season 4

Based on Michael Connelly's ("Bosch") best-selling novels, Season 4 of "The Lincoln Lawyer" adapts "The Law of Innocence," the sixth entry in The Lincoln Lawyer series. Premiering Thursday, Feb. 5, on Netflix, Mickey Haller (Manuel Garcia-Rulfo, "Jurassic World: Rebirth," 2025) faces his toughest case yet when he's accused of murdering a former client, Sam Scales (Christopher Thornton, "The Pitt"). With time running out and public pressure mounting, Mickey and his team race to dismantle Sam's final scam and expose the truth. Their pursuit pits them against the district attorney's office, federal agents and unresolved shadows from Mickey's past that threaten to undermine his defense. "The Lincoln Lawyer" is created for television by David E. Kelley ("The Practice"), with Neve Campbell ("Scream," 1996), Becki Newton ("Ugly Betty"), Jazz Raycole ("Jericho") and Angus Sampson ("Insidious," 2010) starring this season.

"Cash Queens"

A daring heist kicks off a wild chase when Netflix's French crime thriller "Cash Queens" arrives on the streamer Thursday, Feb. 5, following five women who hatch a bold plan to solve all their financial struggles. Disguising themselves as men, they rob a bank and escape with 36,000 euros. But the quick score soon sets off a chain of consequences they never saw coming as they're pursued by a relentless group of politicians, police officers and gangsters — none of whom suspect that a group of seemingly ordinary women are behind the crime. "Cash Queens" stars Rebecca Marder ("The Crime Is Mine," 2023), Zoe Marchal ("Carjackers," 2025), Tya Deslauriers ("Le Négociateur"), Naidra Ayadi ("Stillwater," 2021) and Pascale Arbillot ("Borderline," 2011), with Sami Outalbal ("Sex Education"), Jeremie Laheurte ("Blue Is the Warmest Color," 2013), Steve Tientcheu ("Les Misérables," 2019) and co-creator Olivier Rosenberg ("Family Business") rounding out the cast of this eight-episode season. Written by Carine Prevot ("Family Business") and Rosenberg, Vincent Lefeuve ("The Animal Kingdom," 2023) serves as the season's executive producer.

"Queen of Chess" (2026)

Breaking records and barriers, Judit Polgar tells her story in Netflix's latest documentary "Queen of Chess," which lands on the streamer Friday, Feb. 6. From director Rory Kennedy ("Ethel," 2012), "Queen of Chess" charts the extraordinary rise of the Hungarian chess grandmaster, who was born into an experiment in Budapest, where her father set out to raise a prodigy. From childhood, Polgar treated the board as her arena, dismantling expectations and opponents with the same precision, and becoming the youngest international grandmaster at only 15-years-old — a milestone that shattered grandmaster Bobby Fischer's record and signaled her arrival among the greatest players in history. The documentary features interviews and archival footage to spotlight Polgar's fight against the game's ingrained sexism, her refusal to play in women-only events, and her relentless pursuit of the top global rankings — showing her dedication and fierce determination to break gender barriers in the game and become the greatest female player of all time. Executive producers include Meryl Metni ("Penguin Bloom," 2020), Stephen Nemeth ("Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas," 1998) and Regina K. Scully ("Money Monster," 2016).

"Vanished"

A romantic escape unravels into a chilling mystery when "Vanished" premieres Sunday, Feb. 1, on MGM+. Alice (Kaley Cuoco, "The Big Bang Theory") looks forward to a dream trip to Paris with her boyfriend, Tom (Sam Claflin, "The Hunger Games: Catching Fire," 2013), picturing sunlit cafes, quiet strolls along the Seine and the glittering skyline of the Eiffel Tower. But their trip takes an unexpected turn when Tom vanishes while aboard a train to the south of France. Suddenly alone and desperate, Alice embarks on a harrowing search that forces her deep into a web of secrets, lies and danger as she uncovers uncomfortable truths about the man she thought she knew. Also starring Matthias Schweighofer ("What A Man," 2011), Karin Viard ("Paris," 2008) and Simon Abkarian ("Casino Royale," 2006), "Vanished" is created by David Hilton ("My Little Eye," 2002) and Preston Thompson ("Pixie," 2020), with James Clayton

"Relationship Goals" (2025)

Ambition and unresolved romance collide in a newsroom love story when 2025's "Relationship Goals" premieres Wednesday, Feb. 4, on Prime Video. Leah Caldwell (Kelly Rowland, "About Time," 2013) is a brilliant TV producer on the verge of making history as the first woman to run New York's top morning show when her carefully built world is thrown off course by an unexpected rival: her ex-boyfriend Jarrett Roy (Clifford "Method Man" Smith, "Soul Plane," 2004), who insists he's a changed man after reading the New York Times bestseller "Relationship Goals." Once lovers and now professional competitors, Leah and Jarrett grapple with old wounds and lingering chemistry while vying for the same position. Meanwhile, as Leah and her close friends explore the book for themselves, they begin to rediscover what they want from love and relationships. Directed by Linda Mendoza ("Scrubs"), "Relationship Goals" is written by Michael Elliot

"Finding Harmony: A King's Vision"

mentary that traces King Charles III's decades-long commitment to the philosophy of "Harmony," a belief that humans are part of nature rather than separate from it, and that this perspective is vital to safeguarding the planet's future. Through stunning cinematography, personal reflections and unique interviews, the film explores the origins, evolution and scientific foundations of harmony, highlighting global environmental initiatives inspired by this vision — from sustainable communities to heritage conservation and regeneration projects at Dumfries House in Scotland and Highgrove Gardens in England. Narrated by Academy Award winner Kate Winslet ("Titanic," 1997), the documentary is directed by Nicolas Brown ("Human Planet") and produced by Passion Planet in collaboration with The King's Foundation for Amazon MGM Studios.

'Is It Cake? Valentines' special sees couples tackling all-new baking challenges

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Overflowing with sugar, spice and everything nice, "Is It Cake?" returns once again, with an all-new seasonal special — "Is It Cake? Valentines" — making its debut Wednesday, Feb. 4, on Netflix.

Mikey Day ("Saturday Night Live") returns as the series' charming host, this time inviting three couples — all masters of baking in their own right — to appear in the "Is It Cake?" kitchen, where they'll take on a myriad of seasonal challenges. As always, the couples' main goal will be to create cakes that are nearly indistinguishable from their real-life counterparts, replicating common, everyday items out of simple ingredients like sugar, flour and eggs. This time around, however, the couples in question will be asked to emulate items commonly associated with Valentine's Day, including heart-shaped chocolate boxes, flickering candles, romance novels, cherub statues and more — all seen in a brief trailer shared for the upcoming special.

Called a "special baking celebration packed with firsts" by Day himself, this return to "Is It Cake?" will also see the introduction of games designed specifically with the cultural holiday in mind, including a segment called "The Sweet-heart Showdown."

"With hearts pounding and money on the line," a synopsis teases, "these couples are in for the sweetest date night of their lives!"

Additionally, for the first time in the series' history, the special event will also feature games that the viewers can participate in from the comfort of their own homes. While details remain secret, excited fans can expect to hem and haw alongside judges as they try to decipher the show's titular question: is it cake?

According to The Wrap, singer-songwriter Ashlee Simpson ("Pie-es of Me") and her husband, musician Evan Ross ("How To Live Alone"), will appear alongside host of "The Great American Baking Show" Casey Wilson and her husband, screenwriter David Caspe ("Mr. Throwback"), as this season's totally-in-love celebrity judges.

Produced by Alfred Street Industries, with Dan Cutforth ("Top Chef"), Jane Lipsitz ("Project Runway"), Nan Strait ("Next Gen Chef"), Dan Volpe ("America's Next Great Restaurant"), Andrew Wallace ("Sugar Rush") and Cat Sullivan ("Nailed It!") acting as executive producers, "Is It Cake? Valentines" premieres Wednesday, Feb. 4, on Netflix.

"Kingdom of the Planet of the Apes" (2024)

It's a battle for the fate of the world in the 2024 action adventure film "Kingdom of the Planet of the Apes," available to stream on Hulu Monday, Feb. 2. Catching back up with the Planet of the Apes franchise several generations into the future, the apes are living harmoniously as the dominant species following the reign of Caesar (voiced in the reboot films by Andy Serkis, "The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring," 2001). With humans reduced to living in the shadows, the introduction of a tyrannical new ape leader, Proximus Caesar (Kevin Durand, "Ballers"), who is building his empire, threatens to tear down the ape's peace and further threaten humanity. Determined to find freedom from Proximus Caesar's atrocities, a young ape named Noa (Owen Teague, "It," 2017) embarks on a harrowing journey with a mysterious young woman named Mae (Freya Allan, "The Witcher") to secure a better future for all. From director Wes Ball ("The Maze Runner," 2014), "Kingdom of the Planet of the Apes" is written for the screen by Josh Friedman ("Snowpiercer"). The cast of the film is rounded out by Peter Macon ("The Orville"), William H. Macy ("Shameless"), Eka Darville ("Jessica Jones"), Travis Jeffery ("Galipoli"), Lydia Peckham ("Cowboy Bebop"), Neil Sandilands ("Sweet Tooth"), Ras-Samuel ("The Clearing"), Sara Wiseman ("A Place to Call Home") and Kaden Hartcher ("The Warriors"). Alongside the new film, the complete Planet of the Apes franchise, beginning with the 1968 original, are available to stream now on Disney+.

"Kill Your Darlings" (2013)

Follow some of the great poets of the Beat Generation as they deal with the murder of one of their own in the 2013 biographical drama "Kill Your Darlings," returning to Hulu Sunday, Feb. 1. Upon enrolling in the highly competitive Columbia University, poet Allen Ginsberg (Daniel Radcliffe, "Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone," 2001) is drawn to the likes of the unruly Lucien Carr (Dane DeHaan, "Chronicle," 2012), William S. Burroughs (Ben Foster, "Hell or High Water," 2016) and Jack Kerouac (Jack Huston, "Ben-Hur," 2016). The young men soon form a connection that serves as the spark to a new literary movement known as "The New Vision." However, the death of a professor (Michael C. Hall, "Dexter") lands Carr in deep trouble. Rounding out this all-star cast are David Cross ("Arrested Development"), Jennifer Jason Leigh ("The Hateful Eight," 2015), Elizabeth Olsen ("WandaVision"), John Cullum ("Northern Exposure"), Brenda Wehle ("St. Vincent," 2014), Erin Darke ("Good Girls Revolt"), Jon DeVries ("American Gangster," 2007), Leslie Meisel ("Li Divas") and Michael Cavadias ("Wonder Boys," 2000).

"Splitville" (2025)

Nothing tests friendship and fidelity like love gone sideways when "Splitville" (2025) arrives on Hulu Friday, Feb. 6. When Ashley (Adria Arjona, "Father of the Bride," 2022) tells her husband Carey (Kyle Marvin, "The Climb," 2019) she wants a divorce, he seeks refuge with his closest friends Julie (Dakota Johnson, "Fifty Shades of Grey," 2015) and Paul (Michael Angelo Covino, "Hunter Gatherer," 2016), only to discover that their seemingly perfect bond relies on an open marriage — a revelation that challenges everything he believed about love and commitment. But when Carey and

Ashley join in on their arrangement, they cross a line that upends both marriages. As secrets emerge and boundaries blur, each of them must confront their own desires, insecurities and assumptions about love. Directed by Covino from a screenplay he co-wrote with Marvin, "Splitville" stars Simon Webster ("Brilliant Minds"), Charlie

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Stephen Colbert spoke in an interview about going to the Olympics with the speed skating team. Was he a skater?

A: Not even close. In fact, as is his way, he made that part of the joke.

Back in 2009, when he was still hosting his plucky Comedy Central show "The Colbert Report," Stephen Colbert ("The Late Show with Stephen Colbert") and his rabid fan base sped in to rescue the U.S. Olympic speed skating team.

It had lost its sponsor, threatening the team's ability to travel and compete in the 2010 Winter Olympics in Vancouver. Colbert heard about this (his show was focused on current events, so he seemingly heard about everything) and acted.

Stephen Colbert

He signed a sponsorship agreement on screen and then turned his show into a fundraising event for the team, with multiple segments devoted to the sport.

One particularly hilarious extended bit involved the host swapping his dress shoes for real speed skates — first to learn how to skate and eventually to race U.S. Olympian Shani Davis.

Of course, Colbert's on-ice ineptitude was part of the gag — he lost to Davis by more than 13 minutes — but his struggles to learn the sport seemed real.

Ultimately, his audience did manage to fill the team's funding gap. And Colbert really did join the team in Vancouver — as an "assistant sports psychologist."

The speed skating team went on to win four medals, no doubt thanks to Colbert's psychological support (but especially to his fundraising).

Q: I saw that John Malkovich was in the new "Ripley" TV series but not as the star. Were they setting him up to play an older version of Tom, like he did in the movies?

A: Teasing out the relationships between the various screen adaptations of Patricia Highsmith's Ripley novels is already a tough job. The fact that John Malkovich ("Dangerous Liaisons," 1988) plays different characters in them only makes it worse.

But the short answer to your question is no, Malkovich's appearance in Netflix's series adaptation, "Ripley," released in 2024, was not a prelude to playing Ripley again. It seems more like a fun nod to his previous portrayal of the character in 2002's "Ripley's Game."

That, at least, helps to explain how they got an actor of his stature to play a relatively small part: Reeves Minot, an art dealer and fellow criminal who helps Tom (played in the series by Andrew Scott, "All of Us Strangers," 2023) get a fraudulent passport.

Given that he's now established as a different character on the show, it would be a tricky proposition to put Malkovich in the lead in any future seasons.

Even the idea of "the movies," as you put it in your question, is a little complicated. "Ripley's Game" came out just a few years after the much higher-profile "The Talented Mr. Ripley" (1999), which featured Matt Damon ("Good Will Hunting," 1997) in the title role. But those two films had nothing to do with each other besides the source material.

Indeed, Highsmith's novels have been adapted numerous times over the years, with each production being entirely its own thing.

It's also not known yet if there will be another season of "Ripley." Netflix billed it as a miniseries, and it faithfully covers the complete first novel, but that novel, of course, had sequels. Creator Steve Zaillian ("The Irishman," 2019) said in an interview on Netflix's website that he'd love to adapt those in the future, but at the moment, there's nothing concrete in the works.
