Late Laughs

Jimmy Kimmel Live! With Martin Short

According to [the] TSA, last Sunday [June 23] set the record for the most travelers ever screened in a single day, and there was chaos at the airports as you can imagine. All around the country, passengers were even more unhinged than the doors on a Boeing 737.

Tom Hanks is reuniting with director Robert Zemeckis for their fifth film together. Zemeckis directed Hanks in “Forest Gump,” which I believe is the only movie about Vietnam to be turned into a chain of whimsical shrimp restaurants.

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert (R)

Everything has changed forever and we can never go back, because over the weekend [Feb. 3-4], Apple released their augmented reality headset, the Apple Vision Pro, a breakthrough that will bring humanity to an unprecedented plane of digital omniscience for everyone who has $3,500 to blow on Wi-Fi ski goggles.

A new docuseries on Netflix right now is depicting Alexander the Great as gay, and it is sparking conservative fury. ... Alexander the Great was probably not “Alexander the Straight” because, according to historians, Hephæstion really was perhaps Alexander’s greatest love, noting that the Greeks didn’t have a word for homosexuality or to be gay; there was just being sexual. Yes, back then, there was only one sexual orientation: banging everything you can until you die of a paper cut at 26.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon (R)

Last night [Feb. 4] was the 66th Grammy Awards, and Taylor Swift made history by becoming the first artist to win Album of the Year four times. ... Everyone else there got an Emmy nomination for acting surprised when she won.

I saw that in a recent speech, [President Joe Biden] mixed up the current president of France with a former French president who died in 1996. Honestly, it could’ve been worse. I was half expecting him to say the president of France was the candle from “Beauty and the Beast.”

A man in Florida was arrested after he showed up to the airport fully naked and tried to walk past security. And since he was detained, Southwest had to find another pilot.

Late Night With Seth Meyers (R)

In honor of Valentine’s Day, Popeyes is offering limited-edition heart-shaped strawberry biscuits with a drizzle of icing, after which your heart will no longer be heart-shaped.

Former Trump White House aide Anthony Scaramucci said in a new interview that if Trump is forced to pay $370 million in damages for his civil fraud case, he may have to liquidate assets or take on loans, which would be crazy because [Donald] Trump hasn’t had to do that since the ‘70s, ‘80s, ‘90s, 2000s, 2010s, 2020s and a few times last week.

Olympics al fresco: Paris 2024 begins with outdoor opening ceremony

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

The Paris 2024 Olympics opening ceremony is causing somewhat of a “Seine” in the news. OK, that was an admittedly ridiculous pun, but the crux of the statement remains true. Airing live from Paris, France, Friday, July 26, on NBC and Peacock, the 2024 Summer Olympic Games are the first iteration of the long-running athletic tradition to host an opening ceremony (and many events) outside of a stadium.

The reason for this decision is not for a lack of stadiums — Paris has several sporting venues, which, like Stade de France, could accommodate large-scale crowds. The organizers preferred to have the ceremony, rather romantically, lit by sunset.

Due to kick off the festivities at 7:30 p.m. CET (10:30 a.m. in Los Angeles, or 1:30 p.m. New York time, for more local reference), the opening ceremony sees the 10,500 athletes parade in by way of 94 boats on the Seine, leaving the Pont d’Austerlitz, in the east, and headed to Pont d’Iéna, six kilometers to the west. With one boat to carry all the athletes from each competing country, as well as 80 jumbo screens with speakers and free viewing areas for the public, there is little doubt that the colorful procession will be the busiest and most beautiful start to any Olympics yet.

According to Olympics.com, “athletes on board the parade boats will get glimpses of some of the official Games venues, including Parc Urbain La Concorde, the Esplanade des Invalides, the Grand Palais, and lastly the Iéna bridge, where the parade will come to a stop before the ceremony’s finale at the Trocadéro.”

Craig Melvin is a host for the 2024 Paris Olympics

Along the parade route, 12 “artistic tableaux” are presented, drawing attention to the capital city’s famous monuments, architecture and history.

“We are delighted to have an opening ceremony that illustrates the meeting between sport and the city in the most beautiful way,” said Tony Estanguet, president of the Paris 2024 organizing committee. “With the natural light of the setting sun, the event will be even more sublime, with a truly poetic dimension, inviting both athletes and the public to appreciate the natural beauty of the City of Light.”

While the list of opening ceremony performers is still unreleased as of writing, an early-June news event offered journalists in France the opportunity to sit in on an opening ceremony dance rehearsal, guided by none other than Paris 2024 director of dance, Maud Le Pladec.

A successful dancer in her own right, Le Pladec has been focused on choreography since 2010, and according to an article by Céline Penicaud on Olympics.com, the artist has been hard at work training dancers for the big spectacle.

“We train eight hours a day, all week long, and then we’ll get together a week before the Olympics to resume training and try it out under real conditions,” explains a 25-year-old dancer Penicaud refers to as Louise.

In order to safeguard some of the ceremony’s magic, each dancer reportedly learns their part alone, only seeing it with the others for the first time a week ahead of the Games — a rather impressive feat given that “nearly 3,000 artists will take part in the four opening and closing ceremonies of the Paris 2024 Olympic and Paralympic Games” (per Penicaud).

As for NBC’s coverage of the event, “Sunday Night Football” host Mike Tirico covers his fourth Olympic opening ceremony, this time alongside NFL Hall-of-Famer Peyton Manning (“Peyton’s Places”) and the first “American Idol,” Kelly Clarkson. NBC morning favorites Savannah Guthrie and Hoda Kotb will also host a special edition of “Today” from a bridge over the Seine.

Rapper/entrepreneur Snoop Dogg also has plans to report for NBC from various live evening events over the Games’ 16-day run — no doubt a follow-up performance to his and actor Kevin Hart’s (“Ride Along,” 2014) “Olympic Highlights” commentary series for Tokyo 2020 (which was delayed to the summer of 2021 due to the pandemic).

Snoop, 52, has plans to make the most of the Olympics and combine his love for sports with his love for entertainment. Planning to try out some events himself, the California native opened up to Time magazine reporter Sean Gregory in a recent interview.

“I definitely want to roll with the [U.S.] basketball team,” the rapper mused, “and I definitely want to try to get in the water.”

Snoop also expressed an interest in meeting the “crip-walking horse” from Tokyo 2020, saying, “I’m definitely trying to meet him. Hopefully, he’s in the Olympics so I can say, ‘What’s happening?’ to him. Bring him a couple of carrots, some apples or somethin’, know what I’m saying?”

Unfortunately for Snoop — and maybe also for German athlete Isabell Werth’s (female) horse, Bella Rose — the animal has since retired and will not be competing in Paris this summer. That said, the NBC special correspondent has plenty of other, human athletes to watch.

“The Australian swim team ... push[es] us [U.S.A.] to the limit,” said Snoop, “and I like Jamaica’s track team. And Canada’s basketball team [have] a shot to get to the gold medal round ... cause they’ve got a bunch of NBA players who are really seasoned and on top of their game.”

Don’t miss a history-making opening ceremony when the Paris 2024 Olympics begin Friday, July 26, on NBC and Peacock.

Train to nowhere: 'Snowpiercer' returns for final season

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

It's so cold it will freeze you to the bone in the dystopian world of "Snowpiercer," which moves to AMC and AMC+ from TNT for its fourth and final season premiere on Sunday, July 21. Set in a near future where Earth has become an uninhabitable tundra, a luxury train populated with the world's only remaining humans circles the globe, waiting for a thaw that may never come. Catch up on all the chilling action exclusively on AMC+, with all three previous seasons of "Snowpiercer" available to stream now.

Based on the 2013 film of the same name, that was directed by series executive producer Bong Joon-ho ("Parasite," 2019), the series explores the revolution that takes place when the classes clash on the train. After several years onboard the never-ending rail journey, the lowest-class "Tailies" revolt against their living conditions and the train's strict class divisions.

In a brutal, claustrophobic dystopia where a common punishment is the freezing and shattering of limbs by exposure to the elements, it doesn't take long for the oppressed to demand decency, if not equality. The leader of the resistance, Andre Layton, portrayed by Daveed Diggs ("Blindspotting"), has plotted and battled against the system and those who uphold it, such as Snowpiercer's head of hospitality, Melanie Cavill (Jennifer Connelly, "Top Gun: Maverick," 2022), and the billionaire creator of the train, Joseph Wilford (Sean Bean, "World on Fire"), in the hope that a better future is possible.

Hopping on "Snowpiercer" this season are new cast members Clark Gregg ("Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D.") and Michael Aronov ("The Americans"). In the official trailer for the upcoming season, Gregg's character is among a small group of armed enemies who force their way onto the Snowpiercer. Taking 100 passengers hostage and putting their lives at risk by exposure, they demand control of the train. While Andre is out for revenge against whoever took his daughter, Melanie must do what she can to resist or undermine the hostile takeover of Snowpiercer.

Daveed Diggs stars in "Snowpiercer"

Last season's finale saw passengers choose sides, split between Melanie aboard Snowpiercer and Andre on the secondary supply train, Big Alice. Snowpiercer would continue on the same track around the world while Big Alice embarked on an adventure to New Eden.

Motivated by a vision he had of dragon blood trees, Andre planned to take Big Alice and any passengers willing to take a chance along some of the most dangerous tracks of the rail system to a valley in the Horn of Africa. Miraculously, despite a derailment, passengers stepped off the train for the first time in years onto solid ground. Meanwhile, back on Snowpiercer, Melanie watched as an explosion went off in the distance, with shells heading in the direction of the train and no idea who had set it off as Season 3 came to a close.

The Season 4 premiere, titled "Snakes in the Garden," takes place nine months after the two trains went their separate ways, as passengers on both locomotives encounter new, unexpected adversaries. After spending so much time battling each other, outside forces are a complete unknown.

Returning this season are Rowan Blanchard ("Crush," 2022) as engineer Alexandra Cavill; Alison Wright ("Feud") as resistance member Ruth Wardell; Mickey Sumner ("Frances Ha," 2012) as lead brakeman Bess Till; Iddo Goldberg ("Peaky Blinders") as engineer Bennett Knox; Kate McGuinness ("Hollywood") as Tailie and resistance member Josie Wellstead; Lena Hall ("Becks," 2017) as performer Miss Audrey; and Sam Otto ("The State") as former brakeman John Osweiler.

Also reprising their roles are Chelsea Harris ("The Neighborhood") as Wilford's former head of security, Sykes; Mike O'Malley ("Glee") as brakeman Sam Roche; Roberto Urbina ("Recovery Road") as engineer Javier de La Torre; and Sheila Vand ("A Girl Walks Home Alone at Night," 2014) as Andre's ex-wife, Zarah Feraimi.

The final season of "Snowpiercer" is on the right track now at AMC, but the series faced derailment in early 2023, when Warner Bros. Discovery scrapped original scripted programming on TNT, putting the already-filmed fourth season of the show in limbo. Tomorrow Studios rallied and shopped the series around to other networks, eventually landing a deal to air on AMC.

A statement released by the studio's CEO, Marty Adelstein, and president, Becky Clements, shared high hopes for the upcoming season amid the cancellation drama: "We love 'Snowpiercer' and believe Season 4 completes a story with incredible talent that will entertain viewers while exploring issues of climate change and class warfare."

Tomorrow Studios holds the rights to the story, so there is a chance that there may be sequels in the future of the Snowpiercer franchise.

Don't miss the final revolution as "Snowpiercer" rolls into the station for its final season premiere, airing Sunday, July 21, on AMC and AMC+.

Love, religion and reality clash in all-new TLC series

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Compromised courtship: With a first season promising drama, uncertainty, heartwarming conversations (and a little heartbreak to boot), there's still time to get to know "Forbidden Love's" inaugural couples before the chaos begins Sunday, July 21, on TLC.

This brand-new series follows four couples who are deeply in love as they face the common hurdle complicating their relationships: religion. "Hailing from different faiths," TLC describes, "one partner from each couple is converting or has decided to relinquish their family-of-origin and culture entirely."

"Facing such intense traditional differences," TLC asks, "can their relationships endure the trials of converting or will their love falter under the pressure?"

Raised a devout Catholic, Laurie, 36, decided to abandon her religion after the untimely death of her father. After meeting 32-year-old Eli, Laurie's relationship with religion was tested, as Eli is a devout Orthodox Jew. After deciding to convert for her partner, Laurie now finds herself "giving up her clothes, changing her hair, taking classes, studying for tests and preparing to completely change her lifestyle," according to TLC, all the while questioning if the love of her life is worth losing her sense of self.

Next, we meet Lindsey, 34, and Elmer, 23, a couple facing some hard realizations of their own, as Elmer has recently left his Amish community and still struggles to adjust to the "English" world. Lindsey, who held many preconceived notions about the Amish community, believed Elmer would be a wholesome, devoted and shy partner. In reality, however, Elmer's wandering eye and the added pressures of a coming baby create endless tension, despite the couple's levity and obvious chemistry.

At 31 years old, Mohammad has spent his whole life as a practicing Muslim. Now married to Ashley, also 31, who was raised in a conservative Catholic family, Mohammad finds himself stuck between cultures, as he wishes for their 3-year-old daughter, Rozie, to be raised Muslim, and hopes that Ashley might convert. Meanwhile, Ashley struggles with the idea of living by strict Muslim laws and feels she "doesn't need to change a thing" (per TLC).

Finally, the series introduces Kris, 37, the son of a Pentecostal preacher, now in love with Lensa, 32, a Muslim woman who has already previously been involved in two arranged marriages. Both wanting the other to convert to their respective religions,

When cultures clash, "Forbidden Love" can bloom — this drama-filled new series premieres Sunday, July 21, on TLC.

Coastal canary: Coming from acclaimed underwater photographer Brian Skerry ("Secrets of the Whales"), the eye-opening, three-part docuseries "Sea Change: The Gulf of Maine" premieres its first episode Wednesday, July 24, on PBS.

Part of a larger project helmed by Skerry — documenting how warming waters are affecting global ecosystems — this special presentation dives deep into the Gulf of Maine, where the water is warming at a rate 97% faster than the rest of the global ocean. This area, which spans 36,000 square miles and spans from Cape Cod to Nova Scotia, serves as a "canary in the coal mine" (so to speak), allowing us a glimpse of what's to come for the rest of the world as global warming rages on.

According to PBS, the docuseries "blends science, exploration, stunning natural history, and stories of human experience, to illuminate how what happens here could have profound global implications," utilizing stunning footage alongside informative conversations with scientists, Indigenous populations and fishers who live and work along the coast.

Coursing with nutrient-rich water and seeing a vast combination of sediment bottoms (in some places sand, others mud or gravel), the gulf temperate climate has resulted in "an extraordinary proliferation of life" (per GBH), with over 3,000 species living within — from microscopic plankton to massive right whales — together making one of the world's richest marine ecosystems, that more than 1.3 million people depend on for their livelihoods and countless more appreciate every day.

"But for all its storied bounty — and because of it — the gulf is also in peril, with some of its fisheries now depleted to extreme levels," explains PBS.

Speaking with PBS affiliate GBH, Skerry noted: "I remember going to Eastport, Maine, back in the '80s and '90s and it used to be like going into an aquarium. I did two trips over the past few years and it was like a ghost town."

"What once provided a seemingly endless supply of cod fish, lobsters and clams now allows us to witness firsthand the devastating changes brought on by climate change," he continues. "It's my hope that this series serves as a cautionary tale, as well as a tribute to one of my favorite places."

With episodes dissecting the impact of international trade, the marine life living within the gulf and the people leading efforts to protect it, "Sea Change: The Gulf of Maine" premieres Wednesday, July 24, on PBS, the PBS App, and on the NOVA YouTube channel.

"The Decameron" - Season 1

Don't forget your party favor for the 14th century's wildest party. Loosely inspired by Giovanni Boccaccio's collection of stories, the historical comedy-drama "The Decameron" premieres Thursday, July 25, on Netflix. Described by Netflix as a "wine-soaked sex romp set in the Italian countryside," the series, set in 1348, finds Europe in the grips of the Black Death. Hoping to escape the pandemic, a group of nobles in Florence escape to a grand villa in the country to wait out the worst of the bubonic plague in the lap of luxury. But, as the veils of polite society come down, a fight for survival reveals the true nature of the characters in the villa. Created by Kathleen Jordan ("Teenage Bounty Hunters"), the series stars Tanya Reynolds ("Sex Education") as Licisca, a servant; Jessica Plummer ("The Girl Before") as Filomena, a spoiled oddball from a noble family; Douggie McMeekin ("Harlots") as the rich and insufferable Tindaro; Amar Chadha-Patel ("Willow") as Dioneo, a physician; Lou Gala ("Julia") as the God-obsessed Neifile; Karan Gill ("Ladhood") as Panfilo, the son of a prominent political family; Zosia Mamet ("Girls") as Pampinea, another rich and insufferable noblewoman; Saoirse-Monica Jackson ("Derry Girls") as Misia, Pampinea's devoted servant; Tony Hale ("Arrested Development") as Sirisco, the steward of the villa; and Leila Farzad ("I Hate Suzie") as Stratilia, the stalwart housekeeper of the villa.

Saturday, July 20, 2024

"Resurrected Rides" - Season 1

Get ready to hit the road in style with the new series "Resurrected Rides" when it premieres Tuesday, July 23, on Netflix. From the original producers of the early 2000s MTV hit "Pimp My Ride," the new series, hosted by comedian and actor Chris Redd ("Saturday Night Live"), takes the busted-up beater cars of some lucky owners and transforms them into jaw-dropping, roadworthy rides. Featuring a cast of expert mechanics — including Shayna Guy, Saul Valencia, Oscar Valencia, Lacey Blair, Steven Nelson and Don Abenante — the series delivers mind-blowing transformations in every episode. Created and executive produced by Rick Hurvitz, the co-creator of "Pimp My Ride," the series' team of executive producers also includes Brandon Killian ("Ice Road Truckers"), Mike Odair ("Duck Dynasty") and Ari Shofet ("Pimp My Ride").

"The Dragon Prince" - Season 6

The mystery of Aaravos (Erik Del-lums, The Elder Scrolls V: Skyrim) takes to the stars when all nine episodes in the sixth and penultimate season of popular animated series "The Dragon Prince" premiere Friday, July 26, on Netflix. The series follows two princes, Callum (Jack De Sena, "Avatar: The Last Airbender") and Ezran (Sasha Rojen, "The Flash"), as they team with an elven assassin named Rayla (Paula Burrows, "The Dangers of Online Dating") to bring to peace to the land. After retrieving the giant pearl that contains Aaravos' prison at the end of the previous season, Callum, Ezran, Rayla and their companions take a step back to consider their next course of action. In the meantime, Claudia's (Racquel Belmonte, "Heart of Dance," 2013) sanity rapidly deteriorates, while Janai (Rena Anakwe, "My Little Pony: Friendship

Is Magic") copes with Miyana's (Cecily Day, "Zoey's Extraordinary Playlist") betrayal. Created by Aaron Ehasz ("Avatar: The Last Airbender") and Justin Richmond (Uncharted 3: Drake's Deception), the voice cast for "The Dragon Prince" is rounded out by Jesse Inocalla ("Totally Killer," 2023), Omari Newton ("Continuum"), Adrian Petriw ("The Hollow"), Nicole Oliver ("Wonder," 2017), Luc Roderique ("Motherland: Fort Salem") and Benjamin Callins.

"Cirque du Soleil: Without a Net" (2024)

Soar to new heights with the exciting new documentary "Cirque du Soleil: Without a Net," premiering Thursday, July 25, on Prime Video. More than a year after an abrupt global shutdown, Cirque du Soleil started making moves to reboot its flagship production, "O." The film follows the talented group of performers and crew members as they face a mountain of hard work and uncertainty while they build the show back to its awe-inspiring, world-class standards in time for its reopening night in Las Vegas. With behind-the-scenes access like audiences have never experienced before, "Without a Net" captures the dramatic personal highs and lows of the world's most famous circus act on its journey back from the existential brink" (per Prime Video). From director and executive producer Dawn Porter ("Trapped," 2016), the film is also executive produced by Richard Bedser (The Bible," 2013), Eli Holzman ("37 Words," 2022), Ailsa Orr ("Pompeii: The Last Day," 2003) and Aaron Saidman ("Leah Remini: Scientology and the Aftermath," 2016).

"Troppo" - Season 2

It's time for more crime Down Under, as Season 2 of the Australian

Saturday, July 20, 2024

crime series "Troppo" premieres Thursday, July 25, on Prime Video. Set in the fictional rural town of Crimson Lake in northern Australia, the series, based on the Crimson Lake series of books by author Candice Fox, follows the exploits of ex-cop Ted Conkaffey (Thomas Jane, "The Expanse") and eccentric private investigator Amanda Pharrell (Nicole Chamoun, "The Gloaming") as they work to solve some strange and disturbing crimes. Season 2, inspired by the second book in Fox's series, "Redemption Point," picks up six months after Ted and Amanda solved their first murder. When a healing retreat leader with connections to an exotic drug ring and a "bikie" gang is found dead, Ted and Amanda find themselves back on another bizarre case. All the while, "Amanda tangles with an old enemy and finds a new love interest, [and] Ted's past stalks him and his family to Crimson Lake — with deadly consequences" (per Prime Video). Adapted for television by Yolanda Ramke ("Cargo," 2017), the series also stars returning cast members Radha Mitchell ("Man on Fire," 2004), Simon Lyndon ("Mystery Road"), Angela Punch McGregor ("Mary: The Making of a Princess," 2015), Ling Cooper Tang ("All Saints") and Sara West ("Neighbours"), alongside new additions Zindzi Okenyo ("Deadloch"), Ursula

Yovich ("Faraway Downs"), Miah Madden ("Paper Dolls"), Ethan Lwin ("Young Rock"), Chloe Delle-Vedove ("After Nightfall") and Brett Tucker ("Station 19").

"Mission: Impossible — Dead Reckoning Part One" (2023)

Sometimes, a story is far too big for one movie. When it comes to final hooray for secret agent Ethan Hunt (Tom Cruise, "Top Gun," 1986) and Impossible Missions Force, IMP for short, franchise owner Paramount pulls out all the stops. The result is one of the most expensive films ever made in "Mission: Impossible — Dead Reckoning Part One," which debuts Thursday, July 25, on Prime

Video. In this first of two parts, targets are placed on Ethan and the IMF when they set their sights on destroying a rogue AI known as the Entity. With the entire world against them, Ethan finds an unlikely ally in Grace (Hayley Atwell, "Captain America: The First Avenger," 2011), a professional thief. Together, they attempt to steal the only key that can shutdown the Entity before its operatives, including a powerful terrorist named Gabriel (Esai Morales, "NYPD Blue"), can get a hold of it. Written by director Christopher McQuarrie ("The Usual Suspects," 1995) and Erik Jendresen ("Band of Brothers"), "Mission: Impossible — Dead Reckoning Part One" also stars Ving Rhames ("Pulp Fiction," 1994), Simon Pegg ("Shaun of the Dead," 2004), Rebecca Ferguson ("The Greatest Showman," 2017), Vanessa Kirby ("The Crown"), Pom Klementieff ("Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 2," 2017), Mariela Garriga ("Luis Miguel: The Series"), Henry Czerny ("Mission: Impossible," 1996), Shea Whigham ("American Hustle," 2013), Cary Elwes ("The Princess Bride," 1987), Greg Tarzan Davis ("Grey's Anatomy"), Frederick Schmidt ("Angel Has Fallen," 2019), Charles Parnell ("Top Gun: Maverick," 2022), Rob Delaney ("Catastrophe"), Indira Varma ("Obi-Wan Kenobi"), Mark Gatiss ("Sherlock") and Marcin Dorocinski ("Jack Strong," 2014).

Munchies worth millions

'Sugar Rush: The Baking Point' offers a hefty reward in Season 2

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Brace your sweet tooth for Season 2 of "Sugar Rush: The Baking Point," available to stream now on Netflix.

Led by returning host Capi Pérez ("Veinteanera, divorciada y fantástica," 2020), this Mexican expansion of the Sugar Rush franchise sees six baking duos take on a gauntlet that has them creating extraordinary confectionery masterpieces as they fight for a life-changing one million pesos (about US$55,000) by presenting dishes to a pair of judges — chocolatier Luis Robledo Richards and pastry chef Gris Verduzco (or "Mis Pastelitos") — and some exciting guest taste-testers.

At the start of each season, the teams begin with 24 hours on the clock. This will be the only time the bakers can utilize throughout the season, with two rounds of competition — six hours of baking — to complete each day. When the clock runs out, so does that team's baking time, and whatever the bakers have completed must be presented to Robledo and Verduzco, who evaluate each dish's taste, appearance and closeness to the given brief. Only one team can win each challenge, but the teams that place in the bottom of each round will face an additional penalty, with 30 minutes of time deducted from their clock and one duo eliminated at the end of each episode.

Capi Pérez hosts "Sugar Rush: The Baking Point"

By the finale, only two teams remain standing, and whichever "takes the cake" will earn itself the grand prize and be crowned this season's winner.

According to a trailer shared ahead of Season 2's premiere, this round of gameplay will feature "many surprises," with unexpected teams joining in, challenges seeing the bakers "replicating reality" by crafting lifelike cakes, facing their fears with some spooky creations and, in one episode, even defying gravity with some jaw-dropping desserts.

Last season (spoilers ahead!), "The Baking Point" saw its first champions in bakers Ruth Cabeza and Rubi Esparza, after the final teams were asked to create "desserts inspired by the mystical creatures of Mexico" in a magical final episode. Despite a stuttering start — with the duo placed in the bottom during the season's initial round — the two came around as a surprising pair of underdogs, earning their million pesos before going on to become successful bakers and influencers, with hundreds of thousands of followers on their Instagrams (@ruth_cabeza and @brulee.pastele-riacreativa, respectively).

With 12 new bakers ready to make their mark — and earn a million pesos — Season 2 of "Sugar Rush: The Baking Point" is now available to stream on Netflix.

Arcadian

In a post-apocalyptic world where civilization has completely collapsed, Paul (Cage) and his two sons, Thomas (Jenkins) and Joseph (Martell), eke out a living on an abandoned farm. Nocturnal creatures stalk the countryside, hunting humans for sustenance. While Joseph is the more innovative and intellectual of the sons, Thomas is more rebellious. One evening, after failing to return home, Paul ventures out to locate Thomas. The two barely survive an encounter with one of the creatures, and with Paul seriously injured, the boys must utilize the skills their father taught them in order to keep themselves alive.

The Bachelorette

(22) 8:00 PM

Despite coming up short in the latest season of "The Bachelor," Jenn Tran's search for true love is just beginning. Which of the lucky men will continue to form a life-changing relationship? And which will be sent home this week? Jesse Palmer hosts.

The Great American Recipe

(33) (57) 9:00 PM

This week, while being judged by Tim Hollingsworth, Francis Lam and Tiffany Derry, the competing home cooks must serve their most cherished dishes from special life events, alongside their best family-style holiday meal. Alejandra Ramos hosts.

The 1% Club

(44) 9:00 PM

How well do you know what you don't know? During each new episode of this game show, contestants vie for cash prizes by answering questions that only a percentage of the American population can answer correctly. Each round, that percentage dwindles.

61st Street

WPIX 9:00 PM

Things start to get messy in this Season 2 premiere as Officer Johnny Logan (Mark O'Brien) finds himself the subject of a police department coverup after assaulting an innocent man. Meanwhile, Franklin (Courtney B. Vance) decides to expose the system.

Niece Nash hosts “Don’t Forget the Lyrics!”

Don’t Forget the Lyrics!

④④ 8:00 PM
Contestants take the stage to sing songs performed by the studio band. The words appear on screen until they stop in this televised karaoke contest. But if the performing contestant can keep singing the correct lyrics, they earn a shot at $1 million.

After the First 48

A&E 8:00 PM
After a young man gets shot to death at a motel party, investigators and prosecutors from Tulsa, Okla., must rely on two accomplices betraying their friends to get answers regarding the dangerous chain of events that led to one man’s death.

The Real Housewives of Orange County

BRAV 9:00 PM
With tensions high between Gina and Jenn, the ladies get their game on and take their aggressions out in a game of flag football. Meanwhile, Shannon grapples with feelings of inferiority and Gina goes through with a tough decision.

Masters of Illusion

WPIX 9:00 PM
Everything from sleight-of-hand to escape artists will find its way to the stage as host Dean Cain welcomes cutting edge magicians to mesmerize a studio audience. Viewers’ disbelief will be sawn in half. Better yet, no bunnies were injured in the process.

Friday Best Bets

Tacarra Williams hosts "Totally Funny Kids"

2024 Paris Olympics

⑤ 1:30 PM

Warm, friendly France hosts the 2024 Summer Olympics as the Opening Ceremonies gets underway. It features participating nations' athletes parading through the stadium as the host nation highlights its best side. Stay tuned for the torch-lighting ceremony.

WWE Friday Night SmackDown

(44) 8:00 PM

Despite felling Roman Reigns for the WWE Championship at WrestleMania XL, the Bloodline is still a thorn in Cody Rhodes' side. Instead of the Tribal Chief, Solo Sikoa has stepped up to lead and thus challenge Cody for the top title at SummerSlam.

S.W.A.T.

③ 9:00 PM

Heading south of the border in order to escort a fugitive back into the States, things go from bad to worse as the team heads north. Then, Hondo (Shemar Moore) finds himself having to rescue an old witness who has information related to the case.

Totally Funny Kids

WPX 9:30 PM

The youngest members of the family get their moment in the spotlight — whether they want it or not — as host Tacarra Williams highlights the craziest and funniest videos featuring kids. At the end of each episode, one clip is named the week's funniest.

"Dress My Tour" - Season 1

Shoot for the moon (and for some Hollywood stars) with the new competition series "Dress My Tour," premiering Tuesday, July 23, on Hulu. Hosted by model and actress Kate Upton ("The Other Woman," 2014), the series brings 11 aspiring fashion designers to the forefront, with cameras following along through their "raw, emotional journey of creating stunning fashion pieces worthy of the music world's biggest names" (per Hulu). Giving viewers a peak into the fast-paced, unpredictable industry, "Dress My Tour" challenges the contestants to create jaw-dropping outfits for stars including JoJo Siwa ("Karma"), Paula Abdul ("Opposites Attract"), Toni Braxton ("Un-Break My Heart"), Ty Dolla $ign ("CARNIVAL") and more. At the end of it all, the designer who proves they truly have the chops to make it in the fashion and music industries will walk away with a $100,000 grand prize. The designers will be mentored and judged by multiple Emmy-winning costume designer Marina Toybina ("The Masked Singer") and creative director, choreographer and Emmy-nominated director Laurieann Gibson ("Lady Gaga Presents: The Monster Ball Tour at Madison Square Garden," 2011). Contestants include Keiandrea Daniels, Veejay Floresca, Michael Shead, Rey Ortiz, McCauley Star, Afaf Seyam, Jessica West, Todd Fisher, Julissa Peralta, Cierra Zachaeus and Traviance Dunn.

"Wayne Brady: The Family Remix" - Season 1

Multihyphenate talent Wayne Brady has captured laughs and entertained audiences for decades, with his improv work in "Who's Line Is It Anyway?" and his hosting duties in shows like "Let's Make a Deal" remaining highlights and endearing him to audiences. But there is much more to the talented actor, comedian, host and singer than what audiences get to see onstage (or onscreen), and fans are getting access to the performer like never before with his new Freeform reality series, "Wayne Brady: The Family Remix," which premieres Thursday, July 25, on Hulu. In his personal life, "Brady has turned the term 'modern family' on its head" (per Freeform). Still best friends with his ex-wife, Mandie Tackett ("Manband! The Movie," 2007), the pair remain close as they co-parent their 21-year-old daughter, Maile, and run their production company, A Wayne & Mandie Creative, together. Plus, "Jason Fordham, Mandie's life partner since 2009, handles the family's cinematography and post-production, and Mandie and Jason have an almost 3-year-old son, Sundance-Isamu" (per Freeform). Bringing audiences an intimate look at their blended family life, the series explores points of view and values that many — including Brady's own family — have a difficult time understanding. From Fremantle and A Wayne & Mandie Creative, the series is executive produced by Brady, Tackett, Shahram Qureshi ("The Cupcake Guys") and Rachel Tung ("Kitchen Nightmares").

"Sleeping Dogs" (2024)

Sometimes not being able to leave well enough alone can lead to the unravelling of a web of lies. Former homicide detective Roy Freeman (Russell Crowe, "Gladiator," 2000) finds out the hard way in the crime thriller "Sleeping Dogs," which is available to stream Friday, July 26, on Hulu. Suffering from Alzheimer's, Roy takes part in a clinical trial for an experimental drug to help him deal with his memory loss. To keep his mind active, Roy takes a look into the murder of Dr. Joseph Wieder (Marton Csokas, "The Equalizer," 2014). When things don't line up with his foggy recollection of events, Roy takes it upon himself to solve the murder and hopefully regain key memories from the past. In addition to Crowe and Csokas, the film also stars Karen Gillan ("Guardians of the Galaxy," 2014), Tommy Flanagan ("Sons of Anarchy"), Thomas M. Wright ("Everest," 2015), Harry Greenwood ("The Nightingale," 2018), Pacharo Mzembe ("Love and Monsters," 2020), Lynn Gilmartin ("Poker Face," 2022), Paula Arundell ("Gods of Egypt," 2016), Elizabeth Blackmore ("Evil Dead," 2013), Kelly Greyson ("Broken Memories," 2017), Arthur Angel ("Red Dog," 2011), Adam T. Perkins ("Zombie Ninjas vs Black Ops," 2015), Ming-Zhu Hii ("Peter Rabbit," 2018), Simon Maiden ("Upgrade," 2018), Jasper Bagg ("Thor: Ragnarock," 2017), Jane Harber ("Offspring"), Cameron Leonard ("Bloody Hell," 2020) and Ryan O'Grady ("The Pope's Exorcist," 2023). Based on the 2017 novel "The Book of Mirrors" by E.O. Chirovici, "Sleeping Dogs" was adapted to film by director Adam Cooper ("Allegiant," 2016) and Bill Collage ("Exodus: Gods and Kings," 2014).

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I just saw a trailer with Henry Cavill as James Bond, but it didn't have any more information about the release or anything. When is that movie happening?

A: It's not. Unfortunately, you were taken in by a fake trailer made by a fan (presumably) with the help of some video tech and artificial intelligence.

The trailer, posted by a YouTube account named KH Studio, uses footage from other films, as well as some digital animation, to make a very believable trailer with Henry Cavill ("The Witcher") as superspy James Bond and Margot Robbie ("Barbie," 2023) as an unnamed Bond girl.

KH Studios says, far down in the description text, that "this is a concept trailer created solely for artistic and entertainment purposes." But they titled the video "Bond 26 — First Trailer," so at least some of the confusion is their fault.

But they were also capitalizing on some real-world speculation. For years, people have made a game of guessing who the next Bond will be. That game heated up when Daniel Craig ("Casino Royale," 2006) announced he would abandon the role after 2021's "No Time to Die."

Cavill is among the big stars considered to be in the running. Odds-makers (yes, people actually bet on this) put him among the most likely candidates, along with Aaron Taylor-Johnson ("Kick-Ass," 2010), James Norton ("Little Women," 2019) and many others.

Q: I was wondering if you had heard if Robert Downey Jr. made "Sherlock Holmes 3" yet? If so, when was it released?

A: The long-awaited third installment of the successful Sherlock Holmes movies, with Robert Downey Jr. ("Iron Man," 2008) as the titular sleuth, is still on hold. But it's "alive in our hearts," according to Downey's wife and producing partner, Susan.

"There's no update, other than it's still very much alive in our hearts," she told ScreenRant.com earlier this year. "There needs to be a really strong reason, it needs to be a great story, and we do have some things in the works."

People have been wondering about the film for over a decade now — since the second film in the series, "Sherlock Holmes: A Game of Shadows," was released in 2011 and earned a half-billion dollars at the box office.

But one reason people, including the Downeys, are talking about it again is the news that the films' original director, Guy Ritchie ("Snatch," 2000), is now working on a TV series called "Young Sherlock" that looks at the great detective as a boy.

That's good news for folks who just want to see more of Ritchie's take on Holmes. But people specifically interested in seeing Downey Jr. in the role might worry that this new series means the third film is dead — hence Susan's assurance that it's still "alive."

While Susan focused on the story, another key requirement for making the film is finding space in Robert's schedule. He's one of the most in-demand stars of the moment, thanks largely to his success in the Sherlock Holmes and Avengers movies. Indeed, "Sherlock Holmes 3" is just one of the 21 different movies he's either possibly or definitely involved with right now, according to IMDb.com.
