Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

Hey, how was your weekend? Good. Great. Small talk over. Let's talk about Epstein. Last week, Democrats in Congress released a handful of salacious emails about [President] Trump from a trove of documents provided by the Epstein estate, including one in which Epstein says that Trump quote "knew about the girls." That prompted Republicans to accuse Democrats of cherry-picking. Let's pause there for a second. Guys, I'm going to say for this one, maybe go with a different fruit.

It's been such a tough couple of days for Trump, but yesterday [Nov. 17] he got to do something, you know, just for him. The event was the annual meeting of franchise owners that they call the McDonald's Impact Summit. It's the nation's second-biggest corporate fast-food conference right after Arby's: 'We have the Meatings.'

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Starbucks' new viral Bearista Cup sold out immediately, and now people are reselling it online for hundreds of dollars. Yeah, apparently cups are causing long lines and fights. Employees called headquarters like, "We have a large problem. Sorry, we have a venti problem."

According to a report, [President] Trump is pushing the Washington Commanders to name their new stadium after him. It was either that or changing the team's name to the Washington Orangeskins.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

That's the other thing that's not getting enough attention. Ghislaine Maxwell, Epstein's wingwoman. You know, she had that meeting with [President] Trump's deputy attorney general and former personal lawyer over the summer, then coincidentally got moved right out of regular prison and into the kind of prison Felicity Huffman was in for getting her kid into college. Under the Bureau of Prisons policy, convicted sex offenders like Maxwell are not typically eligible for minimum security. But I guess 34-time convicted felons [are not] typically eligible for the president of the United States, either.

So, thanks to Trump, she [Maxwell] now gets all these perks, including playtime with a puppy, which makes sense. She is the world's most famous living groomer.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

President Trump reportedly wants to build a new arch at the entrance to Washington, D.C., and has been reviewing designs for a small, medium and large-sized version. Let me save you the time. He's going with the large.

The New York Times last week published a profile on three people who are in romantic relationships with AI chatbots. It's heartbreaking, and I know. I had a girlfriend in college who left me for Jeeves.

The U.S. Mint yesterday [Nov. 12] ended production of the penny after 232 years. Well, still not the worst thing that ever happened to Lincoln.

Christmas with a cast: Winslet premieres star-studded project 'Goodbye June'

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Kate Winslet has, to date, had a bountiful career in the lime-light. Although the minds of many may jump to Rose, the first-class, door-hugging love interest in James Cameron's 1997 epic "Titanic," that role came just five years after her breakout role as Reet in the British sci-fi television series "Dark Season" at age 17.

By 34, the actress won her first Academy Award, for playing bus conductor Hanna Schmitz in "The Reader" (2008), and now, at age 50, Winslet is adding another boon to her ever-expanding resume: director.

Don't miss "Goodbye June," a collaboration between Winslet and her son, burgeoning screenwriter Joe Anders, when it premieres Wednesday, Dec. 24, on Netflix.

"Goodbye June" is, per Netflix, a drama that "takes place just before Christmas, when an unexpected turn in their mother's health thrusts four adult siblings and their exasperating father into chaos as they navigate messy family dynamics in the face of potential loss."

Perhaps relatable to many with siblings of their own, the holiday film boasts a star-studded cast that features Academy Award winner Helen Mirren ("The Queen," 2006) as the family's titular matriarch, who, aware of her worsening situation, resolves to "orchestrate her decline on her own terms," thus "bringing the family closer together through humor and blunt honesty."

In the trailer, which was released by Netflix Nov. 13, audiences are introduced to a complicated relationship between June's three daughters, all of whom are very different from one another and doing their best to process devastating news around the holidays while managing their own lives and families. And although their mother does appear to have made peace with her approaching demise — even asking for a touch of mascara on her lashes because she has "never died before" and wants "to look nice when it happens" — it is clear that June's family (husband and son included) has a long way to go to accept the death on their end.

But for all the emotion and stress-related arguments between siblings in "Goodbye June," one thing that never goes away is the deep devotion that comes hand in hand with a good support system and a strong bond.

"I experienced the loss of a parent," Winslet told People magazine, referring to the 2017 death of her mother from cancer, "and I have gone through the juggernaut of emotions that the siblings in 'Goodbye June' suddenly have to face."

"Some of the most trying relationships in our lives can often be with the people we love the most dearly in the world, and that fascinates me," Winslet added during her interview with People. "I didn't want to shy away from the reality of that. Loss happens to us all and can bring about acutely odd moments with loved ones that rarely ever occur outside of those situations."

Mirren and Winslet, the latter of whom stars as one of June's daughters in the film, share the screen with fellow big names Toni Collette ("Hereditary," 2018), Andrea Riseborough ("To Leslie," 2022), Timothy Spall ("Mr. Turner," 2014), Stephen Merchant ("Extras") and Johnny Flynn ("Emma," 2020), to name a few.

Those familiar with the 2016 infection-horror "The Girl with All the Gifts" or Oscar nominee Armando Iannucci's 2019 film "The Personal History of David Copperfield" may also recognize Fisayo Akinade, who appears in the film as June's nurse. Shown in the trailer to be a caring and compassionate hospital worker who provides the most for those in his care, Akinade's character shines a light on the heartfelt acts of kindness that go a long way for those who need it most.

Of all the big names attached to the film, however, there is one lesser-known name that carries a lot of weight and without whom "Goodbye June" would not exist.

Joe Anders, son of Winslet and Oscar-winning director Sam Mendes ("Skyfall," 2012), is the source of the story and is credited as writer for the first time in his career. Aged 21, the budding filmmaker is now the age his mother was while filming her memorable "Titanic" role. Anders himself has already appeared in several films, including "1917" (2019), "Lee" (2023) and "Bonus Track" (2023), but "Goodbye June" marks the first project the aspiring screenwriter has penned. His mother sharing this first with him is a wonderful echo to the family themes within their film, especially since the actress said the idea of giving the film to another director felt like being "stabbed in the gut."

"As soon as we give this to another director," Winslet reportedly told Anders, "it becomes theirs. That's what happens. So I said that I want for us to really feel like we've done this. I want to direct it."

And so, after the necessary discussion, Winslet was attached to direct; a rather fitting match given the overarching familial themes of the film.

As for how it feels to sit in the director's chair for the first time, Winslet says, "It just feels great to have directed my first film in the 50th year of my life as a woman. It feels good, it feels good."

"Goodbye June" premieres in select theaters Friday, Dec. 12, before releasing Wednesday, Dec. 24, on Netflix.

Our 'favorite things': Rodgers and Hammerstein's 'Sound of Music' celebrates 60th Christmas

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Plenty has changed over the past 60 years. As a global population now nearly double in size since the 1960s, we have collectively witnessed the birth of new countries and the downfall of others, the growth of the internet and artificial intelligence, shifting morals amid socio-political change and, rather unexpectedly, a world-altering pandemic. And although the '60s are often referred to as "a simpler time," a time when children across North America and around the world watched a new film called "The Sound of Music" with their parents, ABC is proving that some things never change.

This holiday season, those children — many of whom are now parents or grandparents in their own right — can revisit "The Sound of Music" with their own families, whether as part of an annual tradition or as a one-off event thanks to a celebratory 4K Ultra HD restoration of the film, airing Sunday, Dec. 21. ABC has been airing the iconic musical annually on the Sunday evening before Christmas for the past 23 years, and the film's 60th anniversary will be no different.

Originally released as a limited roadshow on March 29, 1965, Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music" follows free-spirited musician Maria (Julie Andrews, "Mary Poppins," 1964), a postulant at Nonnberg Abbey in Salzburg, Austria, who is sent on assignment to serve as the new governess for the seven children of Capt. Georg von Trapp (Christopher Plummer, "Knives Out," 2019). Upon arrival at Villa Trapp, Maria learns that her new duties are far from simple, as each minute with the von Trapps proves more trying than the last. Facing everything from unruly children and a strict military-trained patriarch, to the encroaching terror of Germany's Nazi Party, Maria uses music to cope, teach and fight back in the face of persecution on the brink of World War II.

Shortly after its release, "The Sound of Music" garnered five wins out of 10 nominations at the 38th Academy Awards, including the Best Picture and Best Director awards, neither of which director Robert Wise was able to accept, as he was shooting "The Sand Pebbles" (1966) in Hong Kong at the time of the ceremony. Despite Andrews' Best Actress loss to Julie Christie for her role in "Darling" (1965), "The Sound of Music" — and Andrews' performance as Maria — hold steadfast in the hearts and minds of its viewers, even 60 years later.

Now restored in 4K for an improved viewing experience, "The Sound of Music" was rereleased in select theaters this past September, thus preparing fans of the classic musical for its upcoming 60th Christmas, thanks to its inclusion as one of Hollywood's holiday elite.

Other celebrations for the 60th anniversary include the city of Salzburg itself, which "Good Morning America" correspondent Maggie Rulli visited in the Sept. 4 episode of the ABC morning show and announced "they're opening a special museum exhibit for 'The Sound of Music,' there's a marionette show, and they're hosting a big gala with some of the former cast members."

Even Australia has been getting in on the action, as beloved Network 10 presenter Angela Bishop traveled to Salzburg this November to interview the actors who portrayed the von Trapp children more than half a century ago. Although Charmian Carr ("ABC Stage 67") and Heather Menzies-Urich ("Logan's Run"), who played Liesl and Louisa, respectively, have since died, the surviving on-screen von Trapps (who call themselves "the Non-Trapps") — Friedrich (Nicholas Hammond, "Once Upon a Time... in Hollywood," 2019), Kurt (Duane Chase, "Follow Me, Boys!" 1966), Brigitta (Angela Cartwright, "Lost in Space"), Marta (Debbie Turner, "Dancing with the Stars: South Africa") and Gretl (Kym Karath, "The Thrill of It All," 1963) — continue to treat one another like family.

"I think no more than two weeks will go by that we haven't been in touch," Karath shared in an interview later reported online by People magazine.

Unfortunately, Andrews, now 90, was unable to make the reunion in Salzburg, but her magnetic energy was still front and center, just as it is during each and every viewing of the iconic film. The same can also be said for Plummer, the Canadian screen legend who played the kids' father and died at 91 in early 2021.

Should "The Sound of Music" not appear on your holiday viewing list this year (or if you have more seasonal spirit to unleash — and we hope you do!), other ABC holiday events to consider include the 1990 classic "Home Alone" on Dec. 24 and the 40th Anniversary Disney Parks Magical Christmas Day Parade, airing Dec. 25.

It's also worth noting that AMC hosts a holiday movie marathon this week. Spanning Dec. 24 and 25, AMC is showing "Fred Claus" (2007), "The Christmas Shoes" (2002), "March of the Wooden Soldiers," a.k.a. "Babes in Toyland" (1932), "The Wizard of Oz" (1939), "The Holiday" (2006), "Trading Places" (1983), "Deck the Halls" (2006), "A Christmas Story 2" (2012) and Irving Berlin's 1954 classic "White Christmas."

Don't miss your chance to catch up on some holiday favorites this week and celebrate 60 years of the "Sound of Music" when it continues its Sunday night tradition Dec. 21 on ABC.

Sylvester Stallone recognized during 48th Kennedy Center Honors

By Caroline Colacutt
TV Media

Rockstars and "Rocky": Held on the Kennedy Center Opera House stage in Washington, D.C., this star-studded event recognizes America's most impactful artists. Celebrating creativity and culture, the 48th Kennedy Center Honors airs on CBS Tuesday, Dec. 23.

Home to the event, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts describes: "'The Kennedy Center Honors' recognizes and celebrates individuals whose unique contributions have shaped the way we see ourselves, each other and our world. Recipients have each had an impact on the rich tapestry of American life and culture through the performing arts. Whether in music, dance, theater, opera, motion pictures or television, each Kennedy Center Honoree has a unique place in the national consciousness and their influence has inspired audiences from all walks of life."

This year, five iconic artists will be honored for their lifetime artistic achievements, including country music icon George Strait ("The Cowboy Rides Away"); the legendary rock band KISS ("Detroit Rock City"), including members Paul Stanley, Gene Simmons, Peter Criss and Ace Frehley; the Tony Award-winning star of stage and screen, Michael Crawford ("The Knack... and How to Get It," 1965); Grammy-winning disco pioneer Gloria Gaynor ("I Will Survive"); and blockbuster superstar Sylvester Stallone ("Rocky," 1976).

Marking a bold departure from tradition, the Kennedy Center Honors will be presented by President Donald Trump. While previous celebrations saw celebrity hosts such as journalist Walter Cronkite ("CBS Reports"), Academy Award-winning actress Queen Latifah ("Chicago," 2002) or author-turned-diplomat Caroline Kennedy ("A Patriot's Handbook," 2003), this year's celebration will be the first time a sitting president leads the ceremony. President Trump also announced the 2025 honorees during a press conference given this past August.

Kennedy Center acting President Richard Grenell spoke candidly about the importance of the awards, saying: "For nearly half a century, this tradition has celebrated those whose voices and visions tell our nation's story and share it with the world. This year's honorees have left an indelible mark on our history, reminding us that the arts are for everyone."

Whether it be through music, film or stage, this year's honorees have crafted longstanding legacies through iconic performances.

The 48th Kennedy Center Honors airs Tuesday, Dec. 23, on CBS.

Collecting cash: Former "Queer Eye" designer Bobby Berk helps collectors turn their chaotic spaces into a calm oasis in the new series "Junk or Jackpot?," making its debut on HGTV and HBO Max Friday, Dec. 26.

Across six episodes, this one-of-a-kind makeover series follows Berk as he meets passionate collectors in desperate need of a home makeover. Before the building begins, however, Berk helps his clients inspect their wide-ranging and often overwhelming collections, delving into the emotional stories connected to every piece. Armed with a greater understanding of his clients, Berk then invites experts to come and appraise the homeowner's items, revealing the hidden monetary value of their massive collections. With cash offers in mind, the clients are then guided through the process of selling some of their items — at the owner's discretion, of course — using the money to fund a much-needed makeover that highlights and appreciates the client's collections.

According to a release from Warner Bros. Discovery, "The series premiere will find Bobby at Patrick's two-bedroom condo that has been overtaken by his beloved collection of marionettes, puppets, figurines and pinball machines. After Bobby hears how the immense trove is affecting Patrick's relationship with his partner, Roger, he'll encourage Patrick to part with some of the valuable items to finance a transformative overhaul of his main living space and home office. Once the pieces bring top dollar at auction, Bobby will bring new life to the spaces — and most importantly, calm to Patrick and Roger's lives — with stunning lighting, flooring and furniture as well as custom built-ins that provide the ideal display and essential storage for the cherished keepsakes."

Berk — who has been working as an independent designer for nearly 20 years and has plenty experience in the world of television makeovers — shared his appreciation for the series' unique approach, saying: "This show is about helping people reclaim their peace and sense of self, and it was so fulfilling to help these owners unlock their full potential through this process. So many of them were overwhelmed, not just by the amount of stuff in their homes, but by the emotions and memories attached to it all. Helping them find clarity and create spaces that reflect who they are was so rewarding."

Dig into a world of hidden treasures when "Junk or Jackpot?" premieres Friday, Dec. 26, on HBO and HBO Max.

Seymour Hersh, subject of "Cover-Up"

By Kimberly Tremblay
TV Media

"Cover-Up" (2025)

Tracing the explosive career of Pulitzer Prize-winning investigative reporter Seymour Hersh, "Cover-Up" premieres Friday, Dec. 26, on Netflix. Over five decades, Hersh uncovered some of the darkest chapters in modern U.S. history — from the My Lai massacre, where women, children and the elderly were slaughtered during the Vietnam War, to the torture and abuse of detainees at Abu Ghraib. "Cover-Up" examines what Hersh sees as a long-standing pattern of impunity across the U.S. military and intelligence agencies, revealing how he pieced together each explosive investigation using his notes, primary documents and hard-won sources. Through archival footage and Hersh's own records, the film traces the step-by-step process behind his most consequential reporting. Directed by Mark Obenhaus ("Steep," 2007) and Laura Poitras ("All the Beauty and the Bloodshed," 2022), and executive produced by Brad Pitt ("Mr. & Mrs. Smith," 2005) and Dede Gardner ("12 Years a Slave," 2013), the film is both a portrait of a relentless journalist and an indictment of institutional violence.

"Christmas Gameday"

Kicking off Thursday, Dec. 25, on Netflix, "Christmas Gameday" unwraps a huge holiday doubleheader as the Dallas Cowboys face the Washington Commanders, followed by the Detroit Lions taking on the Minnesota Vikings — complete with special live performances and plenty of seasonal cheer. Netflix's on-air roster brings big personality and big expertise to both matchups, starting with the Washington, D.C., pregame show featuring host Kay Adams ("NFL Sunday Ticket: Fantasy Zone") alongside analysts Austin Ekeler ("The NFL on CBS"), Michael Irvin ("NFL 360") and Devin McCourty ("ESPN College Football"), plus special guests Bert Kreischer ("Bert Kreischer: Lucky," 2025) and Tom Segura ("Tom Segura: Disgraceful," 2018). The action then shifts to Minneapolis, where Jamie Erdahl ("NFL Network: Exclusive Game Series") leads coverage with analysts Manti Te'o ("NFL on FOX") and Brandon Marshall ("The NFL on CBS"), with WWE superstar Seth Rollins ("WrestleMania 31," 2015) joining as a guest.

"Elway" (2025)

From baseball draft pick to NFL legend, "Elway" traces the extraordinary journey of one of football's most iconic athletes. Premiering Monday, Dec. 22, on Netflix, the documentary offers an intimate look at the career of John Elway, one of the most celebrated athletes of the past four decades, tracing the defining moments that shaped his life on and off the field. Directed by Ken Rodgers ("Hard Knocks: Training Camp"), the film explores his early years as a two-sport prodigy drafted by the New York Yankees, his rise through college football and the relentless drive that made him an NFL legend. It captures his greatest triumphs, including two Super Bowl victories as a player and a third as a Denver Broncos executive. "John Elway's career isn't just iconic, it's darn near mythological," Rodgers told Netflix. Produced by Skydance Sports, Make-Make and NFL Films, "Elway" celebrates the legacy of a once-in-a-lifetime athlete.

"King of Collectibles: The Goldin Touch" - Season 3

Netflix's "King of Collectibles: The Goldin Touch" is back for Season 3 with more jaw-dropping treasures, unexpected bidding wars and unbelievable stories behind the world's rarest collectibles. Premiering on the streamer Tuesday, Dec. 23, Ken Goldin

("Hollywood First Look") and his savvy team are steering viewers through the thrilling action inside one of the world's leading auction houses for rare collectibles. From sports cards and vintage comics to historic artifacts and pop culture icons, each episode this season reveals the stories behind these extraordinary items and the emotional drive of the collectors who pursue them. This year, the stakes are higher than ever as bigger auctions, bolder risks and larger-than-life personalities fuel the competition. Ian Sambor ("Shark Tank") and Russ Friedman ("Keeping Up with the Kardashians") serve as executive producers.

"Sanctuary: A Witch's Tale" - Season 2

Prepare to return to a world of secrets and danger when Season 2 of "Sanctuary: A Witch's Tale" premieres on Prime Video via the AMC+ channel, Thursday, Dec. 25. Set a year after the harrowing events of Season 1, this new season finds Sarah Fenn (Elaine Cassidy, "Felicia's Journey," 1999) and her daughter, Harper (Hazel Doupe, "Say Nothing"), living undercover in Scotland, desperate to conceal Harper's extraordinary powers. But tensions are escalating fast — newly enacted anti-witch laws have sparked a surge in hate crimes, convincing Sarah that an even darker turn is imminent. Her fears deepen when The Moot, the ruling witch council, delivers an ultimatum: return to the Sanctuary as their covert informant or have her magic bound forever. Determined to keep her abilities and shield Harper, Sarah returns home, only to be confronted with a shocking new murder. Based on the novel by V.V. James, Season 2 of "Sanctuary: A Witch's Tale" stars Elish Liburd ("Everything Now"), Stephanie Levi-John ("The Spanish Princess") and Amy De Bhruin ("Borderline"), with Ingrid Goodwin ("Ridley") returning as series producer.

"Sinners" (2025)

Evil stirs where the past still lingers in "Sinners," coming to Prime Video on Friday, Dec. 26. From writer-director Ryan Coogler ("Black Panther," 2018), "Sinners" is set in 1932 Mississippi and stars Michael B. Jordan ("Fantastic Four," 2015) as identical twin brothers Smoke and Stack Moore, who return to Clarksdale after years of working for the Chicago Outfit. With ill-gotten money in hand, they purchase a rundown sawmill from a landowner and start a juke joint that's meant to give their Black community a place of music, joy and escape. Joined by their musically gifted cousin, Sammie (Miles Caton, "The View"), and a circle of friends and workers, the opening night is a success ... until Sammie's performance draws the attention of Remmick (Jack O'Connell, "Starred

Up," 2013), a vampire hiding from Choctaw hunters. When Smoke refuses him entry, Remmick's brood begins turning townspeople, including Stack's former lover Mary (Hailee Steinfeld, "The Edge of Seventeen," 2016). The juke joint soon becomes a battleground as Smoke, Stack and their friends fight to survive until sunrise, when the vampires can finally be destroyed. "Sinners" is executive produced by Pete Chiappetta ("Superman," 2025) and Will Greenfield ("Euphoria").

Food Network embraces the festive season with nonstop content

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

No matter what you're celebrating or who's coming to dinner, Food Network has you covered. Indulge in some seasonal bites and holiday delights, with an impressive lineup of festive episodes from some of the network's popular series — starting with a new episode of "Girl Meets Farm," making its debut on Food Network Sunday, Dec. 21.

With only four days until Christmas, "Girl Meets Farm" host Molly Yeh has plenty to prepare. Keeping the atmosphere cozy, she starts off by cooking an Asian-inspired chicken pot pie with a scallion pancake crust, served alongside potsticker stir fry, orange broccoli and cauliflower, and a dessert of five-spiced gingerbread cookies. After sharing this year's preparations, "Girl Meets Farm" then returns to Christmases past, with three more episodes airing back-to-back. Molly dazzles with pastrami meatballs, rolled potato flatbreads, sweet buns and more, offering inspiration for both savory meals and sweet, indulgent treats.

The following day (Monday, Dec. 22), viewers are treated to even more holiday-centric delights, as the Season 12 finale of "Holiday Baking Championship" makes its debut. In this final episode, host Jesse Palmer ("The Bachelor") asks his bakers to make large-scale, over-the-top "naughty vs. nice" cakes for guest judge Zac Young ("Unique Sweets"), who helps decide the recipient of this year's $25,000 award and the title of "Holiday Baking Champion."

While more seasonal episodes air throughout the week, Christmas Eve promises an outstanding collection of episodes from "Giada's Holiday Handbook," seeing the celebrity chef tackle everything from Christmas cocktails and competition-worthy appetizers to outstanding festive feasts, such as The Feast of the Seven Fishes, a traditional Christmas Eve meal served in many Italian American households.

Finally, Christmas Day arrives with marathons of delicious episodes from "Santa's Baking Blizzard," "Holiday Wars" and "Beat Bobby Flay: Holiday Throwdown," seeing Food Network stars and celebrities such as Casey Webb ("The Elevator"), Jeff Mauro ("The Kitchen"), Kardea Brown ("Delicious Miss Brown"), Shinmin Li ("Halloween Wars"), Carla Hall ("Good Morning America"), Amanda Freitag ("American Diner Revival"), Esther Choi ("Heat Eaters"), Maneet Chauhan ("Festive Cooking with Maneet") and Bobby Flay ("Bobby Flay's Barbecue Addiction") embracing the holiday season.

Delicious from start to finish, celebrate the 2025 holiday season with Food Network, starting Sunday, Dec. 21.

"The Wonderfully Weird World of Gumball" - Season 2

Dive back into Elmore's wonderfully unpredictable universe when "The Wonderfully Weird World of Gumball" returns to Hulu Monday, Dec. 22, for Season 2. This season brings the Watterson family back for another round of reality-bending, anything-goes adventures in Elmore, where the laws of physics — and common sense — rarely apply. Gumball (Alkaio Thiele, "Wizards Beyond Waverly Place") and Darwin (Hero Hunter, "Chicago Fire") find themselves swept into a fresh surge of absurdity, from a chaotic promposal that has Penny (Teresa Gallagher, "Cars 2," 2011) pretending to die, to a wild-animal takeover of the suburbs, to a witchy student cult attempting a yearbook seance. Alongside their sister, Anais (Kinza Syed Khan, "Batwheels"), and the ever-eccentric townsfolk, they face each bizarre crisis exactly as a family should: together. Created and executive produced by Ben Bocquelet ("The Amazing World of Gumball"), the season is guided by executive producers Matt Layzell ("Pinky Malinky") and Erik Fountain ("The Princess and the Frog," 2009).

"The Life of Chuck" (2024)

From the minds of author Stephen King and director Mike Flanagan ("Midnight Mass"), 2024's "The Life of Chuck" debuts on Hulu this Friday, Dec. 26. Based on the novella penned by King in 2020, the film sees Tom Hiddleston ("Loki"), Jacob Tremblay ("Room," 2015) and Benjamin Pajak ("Where It's Beautiful When It Rains," 2022) as its leads, retelling the story of Charles Krantz's (Hiddleston) life across three distinct chapters, shared in reverse chronology. We first meet Chuck in Act Three, where viewers find the 39-year-old dying from a brain tumor, bedridden as the end of the universe approaches. Next, the film joins Chuck as he attends an important banking conference, before it transports viewers back in time, introducing the audience to Chuck as a young child, finding the young boy navigating an extreme level of grief after the loss of his parents. Poignant and strange, "The Life of Chuck" also stars Chiwe-tel Ejiofor ("12 Years a Slave," 2013), Karen Gillan ("Guardians of the Galaxy," 2014), Mia Sara ("Ferris Bueller's Day Off," 1986), Carl Lumbly ("A Cure for Wellness," 2016), Mark Hamill ("The Long Walk," 2025), David Dastmalchian ("Oppenheimer," 2023), Harvey Guillen ("Werewolves Within," 2021) and more.

"Strange Harvest" (2025)

The otherworldly horror, "Strange Harvest," lands on Hulu this Tuesday, Dec. 23. Acting as a found footage mockumentary, this dark and twisted flick follows a group of detectives tasked with finding a sadistic serial killer, Mr. Shiny (Jesse J. Clarkson, "The Outer Wild," 2018), who was first known for committing grotesque crimes in the 1990s. Now, Mr. Shiny has returned, making his presence known by killing a local family and enticing law enforcement by leaving a trail of mysterious bloody clues in his wake. After 15 years, Kirby (Peter Zizzo, "Impulse," 2023) and Taylor (Terri Apple, "The Fair," 1999) — the case's original detectives — are brought out of retirement, asked to assist with the investigation however they can. What they don't expect, however, is to discover an ancient cosmic prophecy, one that just might explain Mr. Shiny's reign of terror. Andy Lauer ("Screamers," 1995), Matthew Peschio ("Spirit of Fear," 2023), Allen Marsh ("They Live Among Us"), Roy Abramsohn ("Dying to Sleep," 2023), Adriana Baranets ("Sadness Knows No Boundaries," 2025), Christina Helene Braa ("Miss Brown," 2023), Janna Cardia ("The Thinning," 2016), Brandon Christensen ("Superhost," 2021) and Lisa Cole ("A Lovely Family," 2025) also star. Stuart Ortiz ("Grave Encounters," 2011) directs.

A scene from "The Wonderfully Weird World of Gumball"

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I just watched the new "Frankenstein" movie on Netflix. I thought Christian Bale was going to play the monster, but it was some other actor named Jacob something. Was I wrong?

A: You weren't wrong about Christian Bale ("The Dark Knight," 2008) playing Frankenstein's monster in a new movie — you were just wrong about which movie.

Earlier this year, while famed horror-fantasy director Guillermo del Toro ("Pan's Labyrinth," 2006) was getting buzz for his new "Frankenstein" film, which promised to stick very closely to the original book by Mary Shelley, film star-turned-director Maggie Gyllenhaal ("Secretary," 2002) was getting an equal amount of buzz for her very different take.

Christian Bale stars in "The Bride"

Gyllenhaal's movie, "The Bride," is actually a remake of the 1935 monster movie classic "The Bride of Frankenstein," which took Shelley's monster in a different direction — more camp and thrills, less commentary on turn-of-the-19th-century Europe.

Fittingly, the new films take very different approaches to the monster as well.

Del Toro's monster is a shambling, visually disturbing mess played with pathos by Jacob Elordi ("Euphoria"). Whereas the first-look images from Gyllenhaal's "The Bride" show Bale as a tattooed, almost dashing version of the monster.

As you point out, del Toro's film beat Gyllenhaal's movie to the screen, but only by a couple of months. "Frankenstein" was released on Netflix in early November, while "The Bride" is slated for a theatrical release in March.

Q: Is there any chance Richard Curtis will do a sequel to "Love Actually"?

A: The holiday season means a lot of things to a lot of people. For many, it means watching "Love Actually" (2003) and wishing there were more.

Alas, not all Christmas wishes come true.

Writer-director Richard Curtis ("Mr. Bean") has a few different projects on his plate, as usual, but none of them is a sequel to his beloved Christmas rom-com anthology.

It's not clear which of his projects is next. He has two pitches currently making the rounds — a new take on the fairytale "The Little Mermaid," and another called "Lost for Words," about an actor who becomes romantically entangled with his translator.

He also said that he's planning a series called "Old Bean," which would revisit his classic Mr. Bean character (played to great acclaim Rowan Atkinson, "Johnny English," 2003) in old age. "He's always had a kind of grumpy selfishness which might adapt well," he said in a 2021 documentary celebrating the character's 30th anniversary.

But these are all just in the idea stage at this point (and the "Old Bean" idea is four years old at this point). They may never make it to screen.

It should be noted that he did revisit "Love Actually" a few years ago, but not as a movie. He wrote and directed a TV special in 2017 called "Red Nose Day Actually," which reunited many of the stars from the original film to offer an update on where their characters ended up.

It was part of the popular Red Nose Day fundraising telethon in the U.K. Thus it was quite a big deal over there, but didn't make much of a splash in North America.
