Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

There's some big news from Tinseltown because right now there's a huge bidding war going on over who's going to buy Warner Brothers. Warner's got a lot of juicy IP. We're talking DC superheroes, Harry Potter, Looney Tunes, Scooby-Doo, Fifty Shades of Grey, and the Lord of the Rings. Not to mention its erotic spinoff, Fifty Shades of Gandalf the Grey.

We learned that Netflix put in a bid to acquire Warner Brothers for $82.7 billion. That's a lot of cash. You know what that means? Someone somewhere must be paying for their own Netflix account.

My beloved parent company, Paramount, reportedly launched a hostile takeover bid for Warner Brothers, valued at $108 billion. Wow, I got to say, if my company's got that kind of green, I'm sure they can afford to uncanceled one of their best shows. Thank you. Thank you. CBS, you heard the people. Bring back "The Equalizer."

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

It is such a festive time in New York City. Doesn't it feel great? But it's absolutely freezing out there. It is so cold. It's so cold, tourists are begging to be groped by the Times Square Elmo.

A woman just got reunited with her dog that went missing five years ago, after it was found 2,300 miles away. The woman was thrilled while the dog was like, "Take a hint, Helen."

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

We are now eight days away from Christmas and three days away from finding out if our president was naughty or nice on that list he's been hiding. He's been sharpieing over it twice.

They had a Hanukkah reception at the White House tonight [Dec. 16]. Trump ate four latkes and two yarmulkes. It was weird.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

The maker of the robot vacuum Roomba said today [Dec. 15] that it has filed for bankruptcy. Apparently, the whole company got themselves into a corner and couldn't get out.

A California woman recently gave birth in a self-driving Waymo taxi. Then, to even things out, the Waymo ran over a pedestrian.

McDonald's today [Dec. 17] offered customers an Egg McMuffin for $2. If you're wondering what that has to do with the holidays, the oil will last for eight nights.

When asked in a new interview if he personally watched the video of a follow-up boat strike on suspected smugglers, President Trump said, quote, "I watch everything." Oh, I know. Trump's on the couch right now, like, "Another C+ monologue from Meyers."

Bath & Body Works has begun offering pizza- and ranch-scented candles. But if that sounds good to you, your house probably already smells like pizza and ranch.

Father, widower, killer: Dempsey, Imperioli make 'Memory' together

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

There is a quote, often attributed to John Lennon, that states that "life is what happens when you are busy making other plans." The turn of phrase — which actually stemmed from American writer and cartoonist Allen Saunders some 23 years before Lennon's lyric in the 1980 song "Beautiful Boy" — is often used in a positive, meaningful way, as if to say, "be patient and good things will come your way when they are meant to find you."

Unfortunately, life doesn't exclusively dish out good news.

In Fox's newest thriller series, "Grey's Anatomy" alum Patrick Dempsey stars as Angelo, a New York City hitman whose life takes a dramatic turn when he is diagnosed with early-onset Alzheimer's.

"Memory of a Killer" premieres Sunday, Jan. 25, on Fox.

Based on the Belgian action thriller film "De zaak Alzheimer" from 2003, which was also titled "La Memoire du tueur" in French, "Memory of a Killer" consists of 10 episodes in its first season and makes for a heartfelt and exciting addition to Fox's prime-time lineup.

"'Memory of a Killer' is a propulsive series with a noisy, unrelenting character hook that immediately grabbed our attention," said Michael Thorn, Fox Television Network president, in a press statement announcing the show. "In the spirit of '24' and 'House,' we're introducing a daring new signature Fox lead, a complicated antihero facing unimaginable danger. We're excited to bring this gripping new thriller to life alongside our long-standing partners at Warner Bros."

Angelo, the series' aforementioned "antihero," strikes a familiar chord with fans of the crime genre. Despite earning the bulk of his money through illegal means, Angelo has managed to keep that part of his life a secret from his family by maintaining his facade as a photocopier salesman. But when his wife dies and his daughter is put in danger, Angelo's mask begins to slip. Things become even more complicated when the detail-oriented hitman realizes his memory, too, is beginning to fail him.

"Alzheimer's is a foe he can't outrun," the Fox description begins, "and he knows too well how this ends, as his older brother is already lost to the condition."

"Angelo is exceptionally resourceful and talented, the best of the best. But he's about to be tested like never before — and now every minute counts," the official series description continues. "This is only made more difficult when he discovers that his wife's recent death may not have been an accident. So when someone comes after his daughter — who is pregnant — it's clear the wall between his lives has been breached. ... Now Angelo must hunt down his mortal enemy while continuing to carry out hits without giving away his diagnosis and still making it home in time to cook dinner for his daughter."

Joining Dempsey on screen is a familiar face in "The White Lotus" star Michael Imperioli, who portrays Angelo's friend and boss, Dutch. Returning to a gritty role that would fit right into the world of "The Sopranos," the early-'00s HBO sensation in which the actor played budding mobster Christopher Moltisanti, Imperioli's Dutch is a talented chef who uses his Bronx-based Italian restaurant as a front for his criminal enterprise. Importantly, despite Angelo repeatedly putting his faith in his friend, Dutch hasn't exactly earned anyone's trust.

Odeya Rush ("Lady Bird," 2017) also joins the cast of "Memory of a Killer," as announced in July. Having previously starred in a gamut of projects, including a 2011 episode of "Curb Your Enthusiasm" and the 2023 conspiracy thriller "Dangerous Waters," among others, Rush portrays Angelo's daughter, Maria.

"Married young and pregnant, it seems she's chosen a quiet life," reads Maria's character description, as provided by Deadline in July. "But something stirs in her — a yearning for adventure. Might she be a chip off the old hitman block? Angelo is Maria's everything, so when his mind begins to falter, she's right there by his side to care for him. As she gets closer and closer to her father, she'll find that being close to Angelo is a dangerous place to be."

Other supporting characters include Joe, Angelo's equally criminal co-worker, played by Richard Harmon ("Final Destination: Bloodlines," 2025); Jeff (Daniel David Stewart, "Reacher"), Maria's unemployed inventor husband and the father of her child; Dave (Peter Gadiot, "Queen of the South"), a blissfully unaware local detective whom Angelo befriended following the death of his wife a few years earlier; and Special Agent Linda Grant, played by "Suits" and "9-1-1: Lone Star" actress Gina Torres, a determined and talented FBI operative who has become suspicious of Angelo while investigating one of his kills.

"'Memory of a Killer' is a redemptive story about a man who is losing his memory but gaining a conscience," says the Fox press release. "Angelo knows he must stop history from repeating itself and save his family — before he forgets the past."

Don't miss your shot to get inside the "Memory of a Killer." The first two episodes of the 10-episode series air across two nights starting Sunday, Jan. 25, on Fox.

One enchanted evening: Sparks fly at the masquerade in new 'Bridgerton'

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

A sizzling new season of regency romance is here to melt away the icy winter blues and thaw cold hearts. "Bridgerton" returns to Netflix with Season 4, Part 1, on Thursday, Jan. 29. A new chapter begins as the second-eldest of the Bridgerton children, Benedict (Luke Thompson, "Transatlantic"), sets his love story in motion.

Eyes meet at Lady Bridgerton's masquerade ball in a teaser for the upcoming season, and Benedict quickly becomes intrigued by a mysterious, beautiful stranger dressed in silver. Heated glances from behind elegant masks and chaste, gloved hand grazes on a grand staircase are exchanged between the two in the teaser, shrouding the woman's identity in secrecy beyond a forgotten evening glove. A new arrival to the very busy and interconnected social circle that Benedict was born into, Sophie Baek (Yerin Ha, "Dune: Prophecy") found a different way into the ball.

It is a real Cinderella story — Sophie is not one of the many debutantes who accept any London high society event invitation, or even a member of Benedict's preferred bohemian social scene. She is a maid who works for Lady Araminta Gun (Katie Leung, "The Wheel of Time"), something Benedict only finds out about Sophie once he coerces his sister Eloise (Claudia Jessie, "Toxic Town") into helping him track her down.

With help from other members of Araminta's staff, Sophie pulls together a costume for the masquerade ball and is sent on her way with the warning to leave the party by, of course, midnight. Sophie seems happy to just observe the grandeur from the sidelines, however the dominos of her risky romance begin to fall when Benedict notices her and asks Sophie for a dance.

The undercover maid tries her best to refuse the invitation, but her reluctance only further captivates Benedict. Soon, the pair are dancing alone outside where Benedict, far from the gossiping ears of the Ton, is more free to share his honest feelings with his dance partner. "You are perhaps the most intriguing person I've ever met," Benedict confesses. How can a lady resist that?

While Sophie has dreams beyond serving Araminta, the lady of the house has little clue that her maid is appearing as an eligible woman as she's presenting her own two daughters, eager to have them married off this season. Rosamund Li, portrayed by Michelle Mao ("A Big Bold Beautiful Journey," 2025), is Araminta's eldest daughter, whose determination is matched by her beauty. Also debuting is Rosamund's younger, kinder sister, Posy Li (Isabella Wei, "Black Doves").

Though his mother, Violet Bridgerton (Ruth Gemmell, "Penny Dreadful"), has plans for Benedict this social season — "you simply must marry, you have not met the right young lady," she tells him in the new season's official trailer — he sees himself as less of an eligible bachelor and more of another type of romance novel staple. "You're a rake," Penelope (Nicola Coughlan, "Derry Girls") and Eloise declare to him in unison in the trailer, referring to his preference for short-lived romances with no expectations.

Despite his reputation, Rosamund has set her sights on Benedict. It keeps him in Sophie's peripheral, too, however he doesn't connect his fantasy of the woman in silver from the masquerade to the maid of a house he's been invited to in order to court another. Sophie and Benedict come from such different worlds even if they shared a dance, something that Thompson told Tudum.

"You have to hold both of them — the romance and the reality — in your hand. In its best version, 'true love' happens in the middle of that."

The actress portraying the other half of this season's true love story also spoke to Tudum about her role. "What drew me to Sophie was that she immediately has obstacles — something that she constantly has to overcome," Ha told the Netflix outlet. "Whether it's this battle around social status or trying to hide her feelings from Benedict."

Returning Bridgertons include Jonathan Bailey ("Wicked: For Good," 2025) as Anthony Bridgerton; Simone Ashley ("F1: The Movie," 2025) as Kate Bridgerton; Florence Hunt ("Mix Tape") as Hyacinth Bridgerton; Luke Newton ("The Lodge") as Colin Bridgerton; and Will Tilston ("Goodbye Christopher Robin," 2017) as Gregory Bridgerton.

Meanwhile, outside of the family, Emma Naomi ("Professor T.") as Alice Mondrich and Hugh Sachs ("Queen Charlotte: A Bridgerton Story") as Brimsley both move up to main cast members this season, alongside other returning cast, including Victor Alli ("Gangs of London") as John Stirling; Adjoa Andoh ("The Red King") as Lady

Danbury; Lorraine Ashbourne ("Sherwood") as Mrs. Varley; Masali Baduza ("Noughts + Crosses") as Michaela Stirling; Hannah Dodd ("Find Me in Paris") as Francesca Stirling; Daniel Francis ("Stay Close") as Lord Marcus Anderson; Martins Imhangbe ("The Soldier's Tale," 2022) as Will Mondrich; Golda Rosheuvel ("Lady Macbeth," 2016) as Queen Charlotte; and Polly Walker ("Pennyworth") as Portia Featherington.

Don't miss Season 4, Part 1 of "Bridgerton," debuting on the streamer Thursday, Jan. 29, at the stroke of midnight, lest you turn into a pumpkin.

'American Idol' returns, seeing Carrie Underwood on the judges' panel

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Break a leg: Get ready to sing along, cheer for your favorites and vote for America's next superstar when "American Idol" returns to ABC Monday, Jan. 26.

Hosted by Ryan Seacrest ("Wheel of Fortune") since its debut season in 2002, "American Idol," now a television staple, has produced music legends such as Kelly Clarkson ("Because Of You"), Chris Daughtry ("It's Not Over"), Adam Lambert ("For Your Entertainment"), Jennifer Hudson ("If This Isn't Love") and Carrie Underwood ("Before He Cheats"), who dominated the series' fourth season and now stands as the most lucrative "Idol" alum with more than 16 million albums sold worldwide.

Entering its 24th season, "American Idol" now sees Underwood as a judge on the series that first catapulted the country singer into the spotlight, working alongside singers Luke Bryan ("Play It Again") and Lionel Richie ("All Night Long") as they judge the talent of amateur singers hoping to make it big.

Speaking to TV Insider, "Idol" showrunner Megan Michaels Wolflick ("America's Got Talent") promised an exciting season to come — one filled with twists and turns for viewers and contestants alike.

"We do have some changes," Wolflick explained. "I can't really get into any details, but we do have some big format changes coming for sure. There are going to be some surprises around every turn for sure.

"Idol" is more than a show," Wolflick added. "It's really an experience and something people are training their whole lives for [by] watching the show. Every class, every year, we get better and better talent. I just want to make sure people are excited because we are all only on once a year. It is event-like. Obviously, people on the radio are excited the NFL is back. It's exciting. I want us to be the same thing when 'American Idol' is back."

One of the series' most prominent changes comes during the audition process, which has recently expanded to include virtual tryouts, allowing competitors from across the country to audition for the series with ease. This year's audition process began with a nationwide search, with potential competitors singing their hearts out from all 50 states — and Washington, D.C.

Promising talent, drama and more, Season 24 of "American Idol" begins Monday, Jan. 26, on ABC.

Ready or not: Could you brave your way through the wild with no supplies, no training and no companions? Season 2 of "Extracted" premieres Monday, Jan. 26, on Fox, seeing a group of courageous competitors attempting exactly that.

Now entering its second season, "Extracted" sees untrained, amateur adventurers attempting to survive in the vast Canadian wilderness, facing perilous conditions, unpredictable weather and hungry predators, without any tactical gear or survival supplies.

For these brave contestants, the only shot at survival comes from the people closest to them, as players' loved ones — mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters, friends, significant others and more — are locked down in a secluded headquarters only miles away, watching their given player on a 24/7 livestream. Offered a list of resources, these family members must negotiate and compete for the right to send their loved ones assistance, essential lifelines and resources to combat nature's harsh conditions.

When things get tough, the family members can also decide to pull their player from the game with an all-powerful extract button, which removes the player — and their relatives — from the competition. The contestant who lasts the longest, proving their mettle as survivalist, earns themselves a life-changing $250,000 prize.

While "Extracted's" first season saw New York native Haley Lindell, a river guide, emerging victorious alongside her cousins Karly and Natalie, this year's winner will enter the game as one of 11 contestants, including Amey, 28, a dental hygienist; Summer, 37, a general manager; Roman, 21, a sales liaison; Eric, 29, an autobody technician; Katie, 29, an administrative assistant; Olsen, 20, a student; Luke, 33, a construction worker; Polly, 59, a math teacher; RJ, 26, a project manager; Doug, 55, a business consultant; and 30-year-old legal administrative assistant Jessica-Rey.

This season will also see the appearance of past "Survivor" winner Sandra Diaz-Twine (Seasons 7 and 20), who arrives at the "Extracted" headquarters alongside her daughter, Nina Twine, to cheer on and assist Nina's boyfriend, Eric. Additionally, Analyse Talavera of "Big Brother"

Season 21 and "The Challenge" Season 38 will appear alongside her mother, Stacy, as companions for the reality star's sister, Jessica-Rey.

From executive producers Robert Buchta ("Running Wild with Bear Grylls"), Dan Bree ("Alone"), Kourosh

Taj ("Up Close with Carrie Keagan"), Braden Aftergood ("Craftopia"), Rhett Bachner ("Lost on a Mountain in Maine," 2024) and Sylvester Stallone ("Rocky," 1976), Season 2 of "Extracted" begins Monday, Jan. 26, on Fox.

U.K. boyband Take That, subject of "Take That"

By Staff Writers
TV Media

"Take That"
"From the beginning, there was something within us that wanted to prove something," Mark Owen ("The Three Musketeers," 2011) says in the first trailer for the Netflix docuseries "Take That." Premiering on the streamer Tuesday, Jan. 27, "Take That" charts the rise, fall and record-breaking reunion of one of the U.K.'s most iconic boy bands. Fans can expect to see the band's long journey and personal relationships with each other over three episodes, using never-before-seen interviews and rare archival footage captured over 35 years. "From their early beginnings as a five piece formed in Manchester to becoming pop superstars," the synopsis reads, "relive the camaraderie, chaos and resilience that fueled their meteoric rise, dramatic split and one of the greatest comebacks in British music history." Directed by David Soutar ("Bros: After the Screaming Stops," 2018) and executive produced by Gabe Turner ("Untold"), "Take That" features all five members: Owen, Robbie Williams ("Better Man," 2024), Gary Barlow ("Kingsman: The Secret Service," 2014), Jason Orange ("Stardust," 2007) and

Howard Donald ("X-Men: First Class," 2011). Told in their own words, this is the deeply personal and definitive story of Take That.

"Mike Epps: Delusional"
From navigating breakups to embracing his "big break," actor Mike Epps ("Dolemite Is My Name," 2019) revisits the long and winding road to stardom, in "Mike Epps: Delusional," a stand-up special landing on Netflix this Tuesday, Jan. 27. In this latest endeavor — Epps' fifth special for the platform, following "Ready to Sell Out" (2024), "Indiana Mike" (2022), "Only One Mike" (2019) and 2015's "Don't Take It Personal" — the comedian shares hilariously unfiltered stories from his career, including the delusional moments and nonstop hustle that eventually led Epps to fame, landing him roles in "The Upshaws," "Survivor's Remorse," "I'm a Virgo," "Winning Time," the "Hangover" franchise, Snoop Dogg's 2024 sports comedy, "The Underdogs," and more. From Southpaw Productions, "Delusional" comes from director Royale Watkins ("A Million Little Things"), with Mark A. Ritchie ("Renaissance: A Film by Beyoncé," 2023), Thomas Cobb ("Crazy Heart," 2009), Niles Kirchner ("The Upshaws") and Kyra Epps ("Mike Epps: Ready to Sell Out," 2024) acting as producers.

"One Last Adventure: The Making of Stranger Things 5"
After 10 years, 42 episodes and five seasons, it's time to wave goodbye to Eleven (Millie Bobby Brown, "The Electric State," 2025), Will (Noah Schnapp, "The Tutor," 2023), Mike (Finn Wolfhard, "It," 2017), Dustin (Gaten Matarazzo, "Lego Star Wars: Rebuild the Galaxy"), Lucas (Caleb McLaughlin, "The Deliverance," 2024), Max (Sadie Sink, "The Whale," 2022), Steve (Joe Keery, " Fargo") and the rest of the "Stranger Things" crew. To celebrate the final season of a cultural phenomena, journey behind the scenes and explore the creation of Hawkins, Ind., in "One Last Adventure: The Making of Stranger Things 5," a documentary special now available to stream on Netflix. Creators Matt and Ross Duffer (who previously worked together on "Hidden," 2015) share insights alongside series' cast, crew members, writers and directors — including writers Paul Dichter ("Muligan," 2012) and Kate Trefry ("Fear Street: Part Three - 1666," 2021) and director Shawn Levy ("Deadpool & Wolverine," 2024) — offering viewers a glimpse into the creation of "Stranger Things'" final chapter. Acting as a love letter to the monster-filled series, "One Last Adventure" highlights the dedication, perseverance and magic it takes to create an epic that turns its viewers Upside Down.

Mike Epps stars in "Mike Epps: Delusional"

"Shrinking" - Season 3

Loss, forgiveness and uneasy new beginnings are in store with Apple TV's comedy "Shrinking," which is set to return for a third season on Wednesday, Jan. 28, available on Prime Video via the Apple TV channel. Season 2 ended on a forgiving note for Jimmy (Jason Segel, "Windfall," 2022), who saved Louis (Brett Goldstein, "Ted Lasso") — the man responsible for his wife Tia's (Lilan Bowden, "NCIS") death — from dying by suicide on the train tracks, while beginning to repair his relationship with his daughter Alice (Lukita Maxwell, "Generation"). Season 3 finds Jimmy facing the next stage of his life as Alice leaves for college, forcing him to reckon with the quiet of an empty nest. At the same time, he cautiously steps towards a new connection with Sofi (Cobie Smulders, "Safe Haven," 2013), though it's guided — sometimes awkwardly — by neighbors Derrek (Ted McGinley, "Silent Thunder," 2023) and Liz (Christa Miller, "Scrubs"). This season also introduces a poignant guest appearance from Michael J. Fox ("Zootopia 2," 2025), seen in the official trailer in a waiting room sitting next to Paul (Harrison Ford, "1923"), who quietly admits he's seeing a doctor about Parkinson's disease. Co-created by Segel, alongside "Ted Lasso's" Goldstein and Bill Lawrence, this season also stars Jessica Williams ("Love Life") as Gaby, Luke Tennie ("Abbott Elementary") as Sean and Michael Urie ("Ugly Betty") as Brian.

"The Wrecking Crew" (2026)

Family secrets erupt when "The Wrecking Crew" premieres on Prime Video Wednesday, Jan. 28, following two estranged half-brothers, Jonny (Jason Momoa, "Game of Thrones") and James (Dave Bautista, "Guardians of the Galaxy," 2014), as they're forced to reunite after their father's mysterious death. As they dig for the truth, long-buried secrets reveal a conspiracy that threatens to tear their family apart. Set in the streets of Hawaii, the film is directed by Angel Manuel Soto ("Blue Beetle," 2023) and stars Claes Bang ("The Girl in the Spider's Web," 2018), Temuera Morrison ("Chief of War"), Jacob Batalon ("Spider-Man: Homecoming," 2017), Frankie Adams ("The Lost Flowers of Alice Hart"), Miyavi ("Maleficent: Mistress of Evil," 2019), Stephen Root ("Barry"), Morena Baccarin ("Deadpool," 2016) and more. "The Wrecking Crew" is written by Jonathan Tropper ("Banshee") and produced by Momoa, Bautista, Jeffrey Fierson ("Atlas," 2024), Matt Reeves ("The Batman," 2022) and Lynn Harris ("About a Boy," 2002).

"School Spirits" - Season 3

Split River High was built on secrets, and Season 3 starts digging for answers when "School Spirits" returns, available to stream on Prime Video via the Paramount+ channel Wednesday, Jan. 28, with the season's first three episodes. Season 2 ended with Maddie (Peyton List, "Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Dog Days," 2012) ripping her way back to the living world after uncovering the truth behind her possession — but the victory was incomplete. The school's body count still didn't add up, Mr. Martin's (Josh Zuckerman, "Feast," 2005) cryptic warnings lingered and Simon (Kristian Ventura, "Gray Matter," 2023) was left stranded on the wrong side of existence, obsessed with what the ghosts were still hiding. Season 3 plunges Maddie into a darker reckoning. Haunted by violent visions and the responsibility of guarding both worlds, she races to uncover why Split River High breeds death. With Simon digging deeper into the school's scars and danger closing in from both sides, survival may demand sacrifices no one is ready to make. "School Spirits" also stars Milo Manheim ("Thanksgiving," 2023), Nick Pugliese ("13 Reasons Why"), Kiara Pichardo ("The Society"), Sarah Yarkin ("Happy Death Day 2U," 2019) and Rainbow Wedell ("The Bureau of Magical Things"). Created by Nate ("Robin Hood," 2018) and Megan Trinrud ("Made in Hollywood"), the pair serves as co-showrunners and executive producers.

'Next Level Chef' welcomes Sports Illustrated reporter as Season 5 contestant

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

The iconic three-tiered kitchen returns, when Season 5 of "Next Level Chef" makes its debut Thursday, Jan. 29, on Fox.

Led by celebrity chefs Gordon Ramsay ("Hell's Kitchen"), Nyesha Arrington ("Tournament of Champions") and Richard Blais ("MasterChef"), this one-of-a-kind cooking competition asks talented chefs to take part in a culinary gauntlet that will either make their careers or break them entirely as they're mentored by the greats in a series of increasingly complicated challenges. As always, the competitors will be split into three teams and will have to navigate "Next Level Chef's" three-tiered kitchen, with each level offering its own advantages and disadvantages — "from the glistening top floor to the challenging bottom of the basement," explains Variety. In the end, one chef will walk away with an impressive $250,000 grand prize.

After "Next Level Chef" was announced to return for a fifth and sixth season (coming soon to a screen near you), with Season 5 slated to premiere in the wake of the series' spinoff, "Next Level Baker," Michael Thorn, president of Fox Television Network, shared: "Next Level Chef' consistently raises the bar of culinary excellence as a high-stakes food competition fans love, an invaluable franchise for Fox and an increasingly popular global format. Extending the reach of this series with the new holiday competition 'Next Level Baker' once again exemplifies the strength of our incredible, long-standing collaborative partnership with Gordon, which celebrates its 20th anniversary this year."

Nyesha Arrington, Gordon Ramsay and Richard Blais star in "Next Level Chef"

Ramsay — who also hosts Fox series such as "Hell's Kitchen," "MasterChef" and "MasterChef Junior" — will be seen working alongside Sports Illustrated reporter Elise Jesse this season, who "took a break from the sidelines to

'dabble in cooking' alongside famed chef Gordon Ramsay," according to the Cincinnati Enquirer. Jesse announced her upcoming appearance on Instagram in December 2025, stating: "I had the honor and opportunity of a lifetime to compete on Season 5 of (Gordon Ramsay's) 'Next Level Chef'. This journey reminded me that growth lives just outside of our comfort zones, and sometimes the bravest thing you can do is simply say yes."

Will Jesse make it 'til the end? Will Ramsay return with more legendary crash-outs? Only time can tell.

Season 5 of "Next Level Chef" premieres Thursday, Jan. 29, on Fox.

Wicked: For Good

Set after Elphaba (Erivo) was branded the Wicked Witch of the West, the divide between her and Glinda (Grande) deepens. Elphaba lives in exile, fighting against the Wizard's (Goldblum) corrupt regime and trying to expose the truth behind his manipulation of power and propaganda. Meanwhile, Glinda rises as a beloved public figure, pressured to uphold the Wizard's rule despite growing doubts about her own role in the deception. As political unrest spreads across Oz, personal relationships fracture, as Elphaba and Glinda confront the consequences of their choices and the cost of standing by or standing alone.

Director: Jon M. Chu. Stars: Ariana Grande, Cynthia Erivo, Jonathan Bailey, Ethan Slater, Bowen Yang, Michelle Yeoh, Jeff Goldblum. 2025. 137 min. Fantasy Musical.

VJ Edgecombe of the Philadelphia 76ers

NBA Basketball

⑤ 8:00 PM

It’s a view from the middle as Giannis Antetokounmpo and the Milwaukee Bucks head east to take on Paul George and the Philadelphia 76ers at Xfinity Mobile Arena in South Philly. The 76ers have beaten the Bucks in their two previous meetings this season.

Will Trent

⑫ ⑫ 8:00 PM

Georgia Bureau of Investigations Special Agent Will Trent (Ramon Rodriguez) uses his unique talents of perspective to make a difference in people’s lives and solve cases with the help of Atlanta PD Homicide detective Franklin Wilks (Kevin Daniels).

American Masters

③③ ⑤7 9:00 PM

This documentary focuses on the life and career of Holocaust survivor Elie Wiesel, who was a university professor, author, public figure and Nobel Peace Prize winner. Using his own words, the episode examines his passions, conflicts and legacy.

Doc

④④ 9:00 PM

After a car crash erases the last eight years of her memories, Dr. Amy Larsen (Molly Parker) is forced to navigate a world now largely unfamiliar to her. Fortunately, her teen daughter, Katie (Charlotte Fountain-Jardim), helps fill in what she’s missing.

Wednesday Best Bets

Ken Jeong and Rita Ora of "The Masked Singer"

The Masked Singer

(12) (44) 8:00 PM

Panelists Jenny McCarthy-Wahlberg, Ken Jeong, Rita Ora and Robin Thicke join host Nick Cannon to judge mystery celebrity performers as they attempt to sing and dance their way into America's heart or be voted off and unceremoniously unmasked.

Alaska State Troopers

A&E 8:00 PM

Alaska is America's largest and most wild state, yet a mere 400 state troopers patrol the expansive area near Fairbanks and the Mat-Su Valley — including many towns and villages only reachable by boat or plane. It's truly law enforcement in the wild.

Abbott Elementary

(22) 8:30 PM

Janine (Quinta Brunson) and her fellow teachers at Willard R. Abbott Elementary do their best to teach students at a Philadelphia public school where challenges exist around every corner — often because of the administration and deepening budget cuts.

Harlan Coben's Final Twist

(3) 10:00 PM

In each and every episode of this fledgling series, master of mystery Harlan Coben guides viewers through tragic and confounding tales of murder, exhilarating high-profile crimes and more, unraveling unbelievable secrets from cases along the way.

Junk or Jackpot?

HGTV 9:30 PM

Bobby sorts through an overwhelming collection of vintage clothes during this latest episode. While the collection in question proves fabulous, it leaves little room for its curator's existence as her house is overtaken by her bustling fashion business.

"Wicked Little Letters" (2023)

A barrage of scandalous letters rocks a sleepy seaside town when 2023's "Wicked Little Letters" arrives on Hulu this Tuesday, Jan. 27. In 1920s Littlehampton, residents begin receiving a torrent of anonymous letters laced with jaw-dropping insults and profanity. Inspired by the real-life case that once gripped Britain, the film pairs Olivia Colman ("The Crown") as Edith Swan, a prim English woman stunned by the obscenities, with Jessie Buckley ("Beast," 2017) as Rose Gooding, her unruly Irish neighbor and the prime suspect. As finger-pointing escalates into a national tabloid sensation, Rose is hauled into court — her fate seemingly sealed by gossip and bias. But Officer Gladys Moss (Anjana Vasan, "Black Mirror," "Killing Eve") and a group of local women start pulling at loose threads, uncovering contradictions, grudges and motivations that cast the town's assumptions into doubt. Directed by Thea Sharrock ("Me Before You," 2016) with a screenplay by Jonny Sweet ("Chickens"), "Wicked Little Letters" also stars Timothy Spall ("Mr. Turner," 2014), Gemma Jones ("Rocketman," 2019), Malachi Kirby ("Black Mirror"), Alisha Weir ("Abigail," 2024) and Hugh Skinner ("The Witcher"). Daniel Battsek ("The Killing of a Sacred Deer," 2017) serves as an executive producer.

"Idiocracy" (2006)

An "average Joe" wakes up after five centuries in a world where he's the smartest man alive in Mike Judge's ("King of the Hill") comedy "Idiocracy" (2006), following Army librarian Joe Bauers (Luke Wilson, "Legally Blonde," 2001) and sex worker Rita (Maya Rudolph, "Bridesmaids," 2011) as they enter a suspended-animation trial. When a bureaucratic scandal promptly shuts down the military base, the pair are left entombed and forgotten for centuries. Five hundred years later, a garbage avalanche disturbs their hibernation chambers, where Joe and Rita awaken to a world they no longer recognize. Joe, once considered to be average, is now the smartest person alive. His unexpected IQ bump sends him to the White House, where he's tasked with reviving a failing nation in a single week. But when Joe discovers crops are being doused with a sports drink that's triggering soil collapse and economic ruin, he has a plan that could save everyone. Co-written by Judge and Etan Cohen ("Men in Black 3," 2012), with Michael Nelson ("Drop Dead Gorgeous," 1999) as the film's executive producer.

"Irrational Man" (2015)

A philosophy lecture takes a dark turn in writer-director Woody Allen's ("Manhattan," 1979) 2015 film "Irrational Man" — available now on Hulu. At a small Rhode Island college, brilliant but despondent philosophy professor Abe Lucas (Joaquin Phoenix, "Joker," 2019) drifts through lectures and bourbon, convinced life lacks meaning. His nihilism only heightens the curiosity of chemistry professor Rita Richards (Parker Posey, "Superman Returns," 2006) and star student Jill Pollard (Emma Stone, "La La Land," 2016), both drawn to Abe's intellect and wounded charisma. While Abe beds Rita and debates Dostoevsky with Jill, his despair deepens ... until a chance eavesdropped conversation in a diner electrifies him with purpose. Outraged by a judge's cruel manipulation of a custody case, Abe constructs a philosophical justification for murder, deciding that eliminating one corrupt man could serve a greater good. The thrill of transgression revives him: his teaching sharpens and his romance with Jill blooms. But as detectives begin suspecting Abe's involvement and Jill pieces together the truth, Abe's experiment in "ethical" homicide spirals toward a second, even more monstrous act. "Irrational Man" stars Jamie Blackley ("Snow White and the Huntsman," 2012), Joe Stapleton ("Castle Rock") and Allie Gallerani ("The Institute," 2017), with Adam B. Stern ("Blue Jasmine," 2013) executive producing.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
 TV Media

Q: In the first season of "Roseanne," the boss at Wellman Plastics was Booker, played by George Clooney. Later, they had a new boss, Mr. Faber, but they never explained what happened to Booker. What happened to him at Wellman?

A: Despite being played by one of today's most famous people, George Clooney ("Ocean's Eleven," 2001), Booker was only ever a minor character on "Roseanne." And, in fact, Clooney wasn't even famous at the time. So it's not surprising that the show's writers never bothered to close out his story.

He was their boss, and he later started dating one of the main characters, Jackie (Laurie Metcalf, "Lady Bird," 2017). At the end of the first season, when Roseanne (Roseanne Barr, "Look Who's Talking Too," 1990) and company are gathered at their local bar after quitting their jobs, he's there, too, and says he's also "unemployed."

George Clooney starred in Season 1 of "Roseanne"

That led to a popular fan theory: Booker got busted for dating a subordinate, contrary to workplace policy, and was fired, leading to his replacement by the bullying Mr. Faber (Fred Dalton Thompson, "The Hunt for Red October," 1990). The fact that Booker says he's unemployed suggests he didn't leave Wellman Plastics by choice. Again, though, this is just speculation.

All that happens in the Season 1 finale, and it's the last we see of Booker for years. He pops into the show once more, briefly, in Season 4, to cheer up Jackie at a Halloween party.

By this point, Clooney was still struggling to find his big break. He was taking bit parts and one-offs, though the following year (1992), his short-lived cop show, "Bodies of Evidence," debuted on CBS. Then in 1994, he would start his run on the smash-hit NBC medical drama "ER," and go from there to superstardom.

Q: I loved Alan Tudyk in "Firefly," and I know he has gotten into voice work recently, but has he done any other TV shows?

A: This is a classic good-news/bad-news situation. The good news is yes, Alan Tudyk — who played wisecracking pilot Wash in the cult-classic sci-fi series "Firefly" from 2002 to 2003 — has gotten another crack at sci-fi series glory with the USA Network/Syfy dramedy "Resident Alien." But the bad news is: you already missed it.

"Resident Alien's" fourth and final season finished airing in August.

He played an alien who crash-lands on Earth and begins masquerading as a small-town Colorado doctor. Hard sci-fi with a wacky edge is very much Tudyk's wheelhouse, and he won a lot of acclaim for his performance.

"Resident Alien" was the most successful of his post-"Firefly" live-action TV projects, but it wasn't the only one. He was also a chief support on the ABC sitcom "Suburgatory" from 2011 to 2014, and had the lead in the Adult Swim news-parody show "Newsreaders" from 2013 to 2015. Directly after that, he starred in the streaming comedy "Con Man" from 2015 to 2017.

Amid all this activity, as you say, he launched an even more successful voice career. As a sci-fi fan, you may have heard him in 2016's "Rogue One: A Star Wars Story" or 2004's "I, Robot."
