Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

This weekend was the official start of summer, as my audience knows all too well. Thank you, you brave souls, for waiting outside in the humidity that the Weather Channel has described as “the Devil’s trouser chili.”

Yesterday [June 23] Secretary [Kristi] Noem announced that the government would fund the construction of a brand-new detention center in the Florida swamps, which GOP state officials have dubbed “Alligator Alcatraz.” That really sounds like the name of a game on sale for 99 cents in the Nintendo eShop.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Well, guys, the U.S. is dealing with a historic heat wave right now. ... Seriously, it is brutal out there. You know it’s bad when the heat map looks like Elmo’s colonoscopy, you know?

The big news from the weekend is that on Saturday night [June 21], President Trump ordered U.S. military strikes on nuclear sites in Iran. Yeah. Remember when we were scared he was going to invade Canada? I miss that. I miss that.

Jimmy Kimmel Live! With Diego Luna

Welcome to Jimmy Kimmel Live! I am your guest host Diego Luna. I come from a galaxy, far, far, away called Mexico. You may know me as Cassian Andor from “Star Wars,” Félix Gallardo in “Narcos” or as that guy your mom thinks is Pedro Pascal.

I feel honored to have been invited by Jimmy to host his show for the next four days. ... I’ve never hosted a talk show before, but I will try my best. English is not my first language, so I hope you guys will help if I get, uh, what’s the word, deported?

Late Night With Seth Meyers

The CEO of the messaging app Telegram said in a recent interview that his multibillion-dollar fortune will be left to the six children he has with three different partners and the more than 100 children conceived through sperm donation. And I just have to say, it’s refreshing to see a billionaire who knows how many kids he has.

New York Gov. Kathy Hochul yesterday [June 22] declared a state of emergency amid a heat wave that’s expected to break 125-year-old records, which means it’s time for my favorite hobby: going down to Times Square to watch the Elmos faint.

New research suggests that marijuana use is associated with a higher risk of heart attack, mostly because you think every noise you hear is the cops.

Sonic Drive-In has announced it will offer a Picklerita Slush made with a pickle juice-flavored boba after asking themselves, “What is the absolute worst thing you could spill in your car?”

Making 'Washington Black': Edugyan novel gets adaptation on Hulu

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Edugyan's work resonates. By envisioning a 1960s-era Ghanaian civil servant who birthed an African American settlement in Amber Valley, Alberta, after he inherited land in her debut novel "The Second Life of Samuel Tyne," Edugyan paved the way for the breadth of humanity she would go on to cover in her later works.

Fourteen years later in 2018, the Calgary, Alberta, native's literary world expanded beyond that of her own home province as the epic tale of young George Washington Black led her from Barbados to Nova Scotia and along the Underground Railroad to a new life. Hailed by Kirkus Reviews as "a thoughtful, boldly imagined ripsnorter that broadens inventive possibilities for the antebellum novel," "Washington Black" — the name of the character and his story — now becomes a television series.

Designed as an eight-part limited series, "Washington Black" premieres Wednesday, July 23, on Hulu.

The story of George Washington Black's life is a harrowing one, described by the Library Journal as "a life so circumscribed that he's not even allowed to end it." Beginning in 1830s Barbados, readers — and now viewers — are introduced to their main character: Washington Black (Ernest Kingsley Junior, "War of the Worlds"), also known simply as "Wash," an 11-year-old boy born and raised on a sugar plantation and quite literally dying for freedom at his young age.

When he meets the estate owner's nephew, Christopher "Titch" Wilde (played in the series by "Lucifer's" Tom Ellis), a sudden traumatic incident forces Wash to flee his imposed routine of hard labor to seek both adventure and education by way of his new connections. For a decade, Wash accepts all the luck, generosity and kindness bestowed upon him, but even years later as he looks back upon the events of his life, Wash wonders why, of all the slaves on Titch's uncle's plantation, he was selected to lead a free and fulfilling life.

"As he navigates uncharted lands and impossible odds," the show's official description reads, "Wash finds the courage to imagine a future beyond the confines of society."

Co-showrun and executive produced by Selwyn Seyfu Hinds ("The Twilight Zone") and Kimberly Ann Har-ison ("The Crossover"), "Washington Black" also counts "This Is Us" star Sterling K. Brown among its many executive producers. Interviews to promote the show clearly illustrate Brown's pride to be a part of the series behind the scenes, although Brown hopes his onscreen role as Medwin Harris also inspires "belief and hope for modern audiences" (per USA Today).

As the "de facto mayor" of Halifax's Black community, Harris "relishes his role in creating community, knowing that there is safety in numbers," Brown said in an email statement to USA Today, adding that "through his relationship with this young man [Wash], he [Harris] learns that being safe and being free aren't necessarily the same thing. And while he tries to teach Wash what is necessary to survive, Wash winds up showing him what it means to truly live."

"Washington Black" is a coming-of-age story, sure, but it is also so much more than that. Through sweeping vistas of 19th-century agrarian Barbados, up to Norfolk, Virginia — care of a makeshift hot-air balloon — and into Canada, Wash meets with Arctic explorers, fellow inventors and newly freed Black populations looking to start lives and careers of their own. Wash's experiences speak to the importance of representation and, more than anything else, to the resilience and strength of the human spirit.

"The world has felt like we're living in darkest night, stumbling to find and hold on to a North Star to make a way forward," said the show's co-creator, Hinds, in a piece on BlackFilmAndTV.com. "Like many of us, I've felt lost far too often. But writing 'Washington Black' these past two years has guided me back home."

"This tale [is] of the true human superpowers: hope, love, empathy, persistence," Hinds continued. "Those ideas have been my North Star; the promise that we will get through the long night and take flight like Wash under the light of the sun. This show has been a conduit to that faith for those of us who've been creating it, and we're beyond thrilled to be about the business of sharing it with all of you."

"Washington Black" also stars Eddie Karanja ("The Sandman") as young Wash; Lola Evans ("Choose or Die," 2022) as Wash's biracial love interest, Tanna Goff; Julian Rhind-Tutt ("Green Wing") as Erasmus Wilde; Charles Dance ("Game of Thrones") as

James Wilde; Rupert Graves ("Sherlock") as Tanna's father, G.M. Goff; Edward Bluemel ("We Might Regret This") as Billy McGee; Sharon Duncan-Brewster ("Dune: Part One," 2021) as Miss Angie; Shaunette Renée Wilson ("The Resident") as Big Kit; and Billy Boyd ("The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring," 2001) and Ntare Guma Mbaho Mwine ("The Lincoln Lawyer") as Willard and Gaius, respectively.

"Washington Black" is produced by 20th Television with Indian Meadows Productions and the Gotham Group. Ellen Goldsmith-Vein ("The Maze Runner," 2014), Maurice "Mo" Marable ("Woke"), Rob Seidenglanz ("The Chilling Adventures of Sabrina"), D.J. Goldberg ("Percy Jackson and the Olympians"), Wanuri Kahiu ("Rafiki," 2018), Jeremy Bell ("The Spiderwick Chronicles"), Lindsay Williams ("7500," 2019), Jennifer Johnson ("Cowboy Bebop") and Anthony Hemingway ("Underground") join Hinds, Harrison, Brown and Edugyan as executive producers.

Don't miss your chance to take flight with Wash and company when Edugyan's epic tale premieres Wednesday, July 23, on Hulu.

East coast to East Texas: 'The Hunting Wives' welcome a new member

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

A pot of small-town secrets boils over in the sticky southern summer heat in a new murder mystery streaming series. "The Hunting Wives," an adaptation of the May Cobb novel, premieres Monday, July 21, on Netflix.

Starring Brittany Snow ("Almost Family") as Sophie O'Neil, a relative newcomer to a cozy East Texas town, the series follows Sophie as she settles into her new, slower life and gains entry to a glamorous local social circle. New friends spice up Sophie's quiet new life, but they also bring something dark close to her — it is a thriller, after all. Someone will die and someone in the town is responsible for their death.

Leaving behind an established career in Boston in hopes of leading a more family-centric life with her husband, Graham (Evan Jonigkeit, "Archive 81"), and young son, Jack (Emmett Moss, "Hazard," 2024), Sophie said goodbye to the big city and hello to the kind of family stability that she craved growing up.

When the charm of her new hometown and her abundance of free time become less exciting and more routine, Sophie finds a new source of entertainment — the alluring life of one of the town's splashiest residents.

The Banks family is a generationally wealthy dynasty that amassed its riches in the East Texas oil boom. Socialite Margo Banks (Malin Akerman, "Dollface"), who married into the legacy name through her husband, Jed (Dermot Mulroney, "Chicago Fire"), is queen bee of the town's social scene, throwing lavish galas, looking down her nose at her many admirers and generally living a fully staffed life of luxury.

After meeting at one of Margo's can't-miss events, Sophie finds herself getting closer to this bewitching woman who stands out against the monotony of small town Texas life. In the official trailer for the upcoming series, Sophie sneaks away from the party's crowd to the bathroom for a moment alone, only to find Margo already occupying it. Sophie makes an impression, admitting she only needed the facilities to pop a Xanax in peace. "I think this party just got a whole lot better," Margo says, and suddenly Sophie has earned a spot in the socialite's inner circle.

"The Hunting Wives" also stars Chrissy Metz ("This Is Us") as dedicated churchgoer and mother to a teenage girl, Starr; Jaime Ray Newman ("Little Fires Everywhere") as Margo's best friend, Callie; Katie Lowes ("Scandal") as another mom friend of Margo's, Jill; George Ferrier ("One of Us Is Lying") as Brad, Jill's doted-on son; Karen Rodriguez ("Swarm") as Deputy Sheriff Wanda Salazar; Michael Aaron Milligan ("Outer Banks") as Kyle; and Hunter Emery ("Orange Is the New Black") as Deputy Walter Flynn.

The trailer reveals that Sophie is more than a little reluctant to warm up to her new neighbors. "I'm not good with Texas people," she confesses to her husband while they are en route to a social gathering. It's just his boss, he consoles, as though that would be comforting. Said boss, Jed Banks, flirts with and makes a move on Sophie later in the trailer. He is just one of many residents of this small town who have grown bored with the safe boundaries of their lives, unveiling how brazen the local spouse-swapping ecosystem is.

After getting her first, coveted invite to one of Margo's fabulous events, Sophie lands a second invitation, this time to a secret Friday night shooting club. After a long day of skeet shooting and hog hunting on Margot's lake house property, the ladies surprise Sophie with the real reason these girls' nights are a clandestine operation. The squad hits the road and patronizes an out-of-the-way bar to all but cheat on their husbands.

They all have their reasons for finding solace in cowboys on the dance floor, whether it be revenge or boredom, and keeping Friday night shooting club a secret is just the price of admission to the hunting wives' exclusive status. With everyone incriminated, the hunting wives' private lives are as good as confidential, even Margo's dalliances, which tend to push the boundaries of what they all get up to away from home.

With barely concealed secrets, affairs and grudges hanging in the humid Texas air, it is no surprise that the weight of it all will cause someone to snap. Last April, Snow spoke to MovieWeb while filming the upcoming series in North Carolina, saying, "I think that people are going to be really surprised at how silky and salacious and sexy this show is."

Cobb, author of the novel by which the series is inspired, serves as executive producer of the show alongside showrunner and writer Rebecca Perry Cutter ("Hightown") and Erwin Stoff ("The Serpent Queen"). Before being picked up by Crave in Canada and Netflix in the United States, "The Hunting Wives" was developed for Starz before becoming a casualty of the separation of Starz and Lionsgate, the co-producer of the series with 3 Arts Entertainment.

Don't miss the premiere of the thrilling new murder mystery series "The Hunting Wives" when it drops Monday, July 21, on Netflix.

'Welcome to Plathville' returns, exploring new relationships and old wounds

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Family feuds: Change is the name of the game during Season 7 of "Welcome to Plathville," premiering Tuesday, July 22, on TLC.

Making their television debut in 2019, the Plath family — composed of parents Kim and Barry Plath alongside their nine children — has been allowing faithful viewers to learn more about their life in small-town Georgia long enough for fans to bond with their blond-haired, blue-eyed brood. While the series once revolved around the family's dedication to its religion, its old-fashioned ideals and to making music, much has changed since TLC first introduced us to the bunch.

As Season 6 came to a close in October 2024, many were keen to notice that relationships within the Plath family were changing episode to episode, especially as Kim and Barry navigated their divorce and ongoing duty as co-parents. Meanwhile, Ethan Plath — the family's eldest son — ended his tumultuous marriage to Olivia after years of apparent struggle, and younger brother Micah brought forth relationship drama of his own with his new girlfriend, Veronica, who wasn't keen to be featured on camera. With a family in the midst of turmoil, many fans were eager to see what came next for the once tight-knit Plaths.

According to TLC, this upcoming season is set to follow the family as its members continue to navigate past relationship conflicts, all while introducing new tensions — including the ongoing divorce proceedings between Barry and Kim, Micah and Veronica's rocky romance and daughter Lydia's impending nuptials to fiancé Zac.

Zac Wyse in "Welcome to Plathville"

As Collider explained, "In a family with nine siblings, many of them are at different stages of dating and courtship. But it seems each time a new addition joins the family, trouble soon follows."

Additionally, Season 7 will also explore the ever-changing dynamics between the growing Plath children and their parents, as some wish to rebuild and rekindle their relationships with both Kim and Barry, while other children prove themselves dedicated to forging new paths forward.

Sure to be a season filled with drama, relationship woes and new frontiers, "Welcome to Plathville" returns to TLC Tuesday, July 22.

Phone-a-friend: Returning with host Jimmy Kimmel ("Jimmy Kimmel Live!"), "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire" debuts a brand-new season Wednesday, July 23, on ABC and Hulu. This celebrity-filled reboot of the original "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire" — which itself debuted in 1998, nearly 30 years ago — sees its A-list contestants pairing up with fellow stars to battle it out for a $1 million charity donation. Making its way back to ABC 18 years after the series' initial finale, this star-studded edition is now in its fourth season, with a long and impressive list of past celebrity contenders.

Last season, "Millionaire" saw the likes of Gillian Jacobs and Danny Pudi, both of "Community" fame; "Everybody Loves Raymond's" Ray Romano and Brad Garrett; Jason Ritter ("Matlock") and Natasha Leggero ("He's Just Not That Into You," 2009); Zach Braff and Donald Faison from "Scrubs"; Kelly Osbourne and Jack Osbourne from "The Osbournes"; Sophia Bush ("One Tree Hill") and Alex Edelman ("Unfrosted," 2024); "Full House's" John Stamos and Dave Coulier; Rosie O'Donnell ("A League of Their Own," 1992) and Lisa Ann Walter ("Abbott Elementary"); John Mulaney and Nick Kroll from "Big Mouth"; and Kenan Thompson and Kel Mitchell of "Kenan & Kel." This year, fans can expect to see just as many big names, though pairings have yet to be revealed.

Regardless of its contestants, "Millionaire" continues to offer the same fun-filled adrenaline rush. Speaking ahead of Season 3, Kimmel shared: "[This] show is a lot of fun because there's so much drama when you start getting up into the high dollar amounts. It doesn't matter who you are, it becomes very tense, especially when they're playing for charities that are meaningful, not just to them but to everybody. And that's one thing you don't get on a talk show: real drama and excitement. You get a lot of laughs, but you don't experience that kind of emotional roller coaster that you do hosting a game show. When you're making a joke, it's great because when it's so quiet, you can hear a pin drop. There's no better time to drop a pin."

From Sony Pictures Television's Embassy Row and Kimmelot — with Michael Davies ("Pop Culture Jeopardy!") and Kimmel serving as executive producers — "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire" returns Wednesday, July 23, to ABC and Hulu.

TV Media

"Happy Gilmore 2" (2025)

Adam Sandler ("Click," 2006) is heading back to the golf course in "Happy Gilmore 2" (2025). Premiering Friday, July 25, on Netflix. The original cult classic introduced fans to Happy Gilmore (Sandler), a short-tempered hockey player who stumbled into golfing greatness with his signature slapshot swing. Nearly 30 years later, Happy is dusting off his golf clubs once again after his daughter Vienna (Sunny Sandler, "Grown Ups," 2010) faces a setback in pursuing her dream of attending a prestigious ballet academy due to financial hurdles. With her future on the line, Happy comes out of retirement for one last shot at the pro tour — only to face off against a new group of viral-obsessed golfers and a very familiar foe: longtime nemesis Shooter McGavin (Christopher McDonald, "Happy Gilmore," 1996), who's still holding a grudge. Also reprising their roles are Julie Bowen ("Modern Family") as Virginia Venit, Ben Stiller ("In the Dark") as Hal L. and Dennis Dugan ("Jack and Jill," 2011) as Doug Thompson, with newcomers Eminem ("Funny People," 2009), Bad Bunny ("Bullet Train," 2022), Post Malone ("Spider-Man: Into the Spider-Verse," 2018), Travis Kelce ("My Dead Friend Zoe," 2024) and Margaret Qualley ("Maid"). From director Kyle Newachek ("Workaholics"), "Happy Gilmore 2" is written by Sandler and Tim Herlihy ("Saturday Night Live"), with David Bausch ("Kinda Pregnant," 2025) and Barry Bernardi ("Pixels," 2015) serving as executive producers.

"Critical: Between Life and Death"

Taking viewers to the front lines of London's trauma care system, the gripping six-part documentary "Critical: Between Life and Death" premieres Wednesday, July 23, on Netflix. From director Jermaine Blake ("24 Hours in Police Custody"), this docuseries pulls back the curtain on the urgent, split-second decisions that could mean the difference between life and death. Filmed with more than 40 cameras over 21 intense days across London's busiest trauma centers, the docuseries captures real emergencies as they unfold. Viewers witness patients at their most vulnerable — victims of car crashes, stabbings, strokes and cardiac arrests — as medical teams fight to stabilize them. As time ticks away, doctors, nurses and paramedics must work under immense pressure to save lives before it's too late. Produced by Andrew Fitzpatrick ("24 Hours in A&E"), Mahi Iftikhar ("DNA Family Secrets") and Rebecca Arnold ("First Dates").

"Hitmakers"

Netflix brings together 12 of the industry's chart-topping songwriters and producers for "Hitmakers," premiering on the streamer Thursday, July 24. This six-episode series offers a behind-the-scenes look at how modern hits are born when these musical powerhouses enter writing camps and collaborate to create hit songs for major artists such as Lisa ("Pink Venom") of Blackpink, John Legend ("All of Me") and Shaboozey ("A Bar Song"). The featured lineup includes hitmakers Jenna Andrews ("Butter"), Tommy Brown ("Thank U, Next"), Trey Campbell ("U Move, I Move"), Ferras Alqaisi ("Genesis"), Harv ("Forever"), Ben Johnson ("Liar"), Stephen Kirk ("Butter"), JHart ("Angel Baby"), Whitney Phillips ("Stuck With You"), Sevyn Streeter ("Next To You") and Nova Wav ("Cuff It"). With limited time and high expectations, the creative tension is real ... and so is the drama. From artistic clashes to unexpected friendships and new romances, "Hitmakers" captures what it really takes to write the next hit song. The docuseries is executive produced by Adam DiVello ("Selling Sunset"), Harvey Mason Jr. ("Riverdale"), Britt Burton ("Sing," 2016) and Kimberly Goodman ("Lizzo's Watch Out for the Big Grrrls").

"Shiny Happy People: A Teenage Holy War" - Season 2

Stepping into the world of Christian teen culture, "Shiny Happy People: A Teenage Holy War" premieres Wednesday, July 23, on Prime Video. Season 2 of the explosive docuseries "Shiny Happy People" is moving away from the Duggar family and instead is pulling back the curtain with "A Teenage Holy War," which zeroes in on the rise of Christian pop music, teen evangelists and the faith-based organizations that weaponized popular culture in the '90s and 2000s to draw in and control young believers. While the first season focused on the dark secrets of the Duggar family, "A Teenage Holy War" will tackle the rise and fall of Teen Mania, the once-hugely popular evangelical group behind the touring "Acquire the Fire" stadium shows. This season examines the way Teen Mania used high-pressure tactics and even psychological manipulation to ensure teens at their shows signed purity oaths and pledged their time to the group's global missions. Directed by Nicole Newnham ("Crip Camp," 2020) and

"Justice on Trial" - Season 1

Did the courts get it right? That's the question at the heart of Judge Judy Sheindlin's ("Judge Judy") newest series, "Justice on Trial," premiering Monday, July 21, on Prime Video, with all eight episodes following Judge Judy as she puts the justice system on trial. "Sometimes the impact of one decision by a police officer, a lawyer or even a judge, can change the way justice is delivered," Judge Judy says in the trailer. "We're taking landmark criminal cases and recreating them, using our own trial lawyers and yours truly as the judge. ... Were these cases fair and the outcomes just? For some, the jury is still out." The series explores issues with reenactments, trial transcripts and news footage woven together, presenting questions such as, "Is all speech protected by the First Amendment to the Constitution? If not, why not?" The series is created and executive produced by Judge Judy, with Casey Barber, David Carr ("The Curse of Oak Island") and Randy Douthit ("Judge Judy") also serving as executive producers.

"Wicked" (2024)

The untold story of Oz's most misunderstood witch casts its "Wicked" spell, bringing the 2024 film to Prime Video this Friday, July 25. "Wicked" follows Elphaba (Cynthia Erivo, "Harriet," 2019), a fiercely intelligent young woman born with emerald-green skin, who struggles with prejudice, misunderstanding and her own sense of identity. But when Elphaba

Cynthia Erivo and Ariana Grande star in "Wicked" arrives at Shiz University to see off her younger sister, Nessarose (Marissa Bode, "No Roles Written," 2019), her powers are accidentally unleashed. Seemingly wicked to those around her, Elphaba's powers draws the attention of Madame Morrible (Michelle Yeoh, "Kung Fu Panda 2," 2011), who offers to enroll her and privately tutor her in sorcery. To her dismay, Elphaba's forced to room with the dazzlingly popular Glinda (Ariana Grande, "Victorious"), and an unlikely friendship forms between the two. As Elphaba dreams of using her powers for good, Glinda is drawn to status and public admiration. But when Elphaba receives an invitation to Emerald City to meet the Wonderful Wizard of Oz (Jeff Goldblum, "Jurassic Park," 1993), she discovers the darker truth behind the Wizard's rule and the role she's expected to play. Forced to choose between staying silent or standing up for what's right, Elphaba embraces her so-called "wickedness" as a form of resistance, while Glinda must decide where her loyalties lie. Directed by Jon M. Chu ("Crazy Rich Asians," 2018), "Wicked" is based on the screenplay by Winnie Holzman ("Once and Again"), with Dana Fox ("Cruella," 2021) serving as an executive producer.

Sizzling hot summer

Disney+ keeps mouths watering all season long with food forward content

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Whether you're looking to fire up the grill, or if you're ready to cool off with an afternoon on the couch, Disney+ has you covered, with seasons of "BBQ Brawl" and "Ultimate Summer Cook-Off" available to stream all summer long.

Led by celebrity chefs Bobby Flay ("Beat Bobby Flay") and Michael Symon ("Symon's Dinners Cooking Out"), "BBQ Brawl" follows as the duo as they coach eight of the country's most reputable and respected barbecue cooks, split into two teams, leading the bunch through a gauntlet of increasingly complicated BBQ challenges. Both lead a group of their own, hoping to outshine their competitors, gain the judge's approval and earn themselves the champion title.

With Seasons 1 and 2 both available on the streamer as of Saturday, July 26, viewers will be transported to Austin, Texas, where chefs like Moe Cason ("World of Flavor with Big Moe Cason"), Chris Lilly ("Life of Fire"), Amy Mills ("Fire Masters"), Rodney Scott ("Chef's Table: BBQ") and Brooke Williamson ("Top Chef") dig in to judge which team does it best. In Season 1, Flay and Symon focus on more traditional barbecue feasts — including rib-eye challenges, mastering regional menus and wrangling Texas born beef.

Season 2, however, adds former NFL player Eddie Jackson ("Food Truck Face Off") as a new captain alongside Flay and Symon, adding not only a third team of 'cue-ers, but also opening the door to more diverse and complicated challenges. Despite a season opener focused on traditional tailgating, Season 2 broadens horizons for all involved, diving into brunch-ready barbecue recipes, fish-forward feasts, international favorites and even "barbecue of the future," which offers the competitors — and viewers at home — an opportunity to really get creative.

Meanwhile, "Ultimate Summer Cook-Off" — also available on Disney+ Saturday, July 26 — hosted by former "Food Network Star" Eddie Jackson, offers six talented chefs the opportunity to cook their way through a series of summer-themed culinary challenges, with its competitors vying for a $25,000 grand prize. From backyard burgers and kebabs, to lobster rolls, recipes featuring tropical fruits, and time-based challenges, the chefs must present their best attempts to judges Damaris Phillips ("Southern at Heart") and Jamika Pessoa ("Unique Sweets"), hoping their talents are strong enough to earn them a spot in the next round, making for four episodes of pure culinary chaos.

Fun in the sun is promised for all foodies involved, with "BBQ Brawl" and "Ultimate Summer Cook-Off," streaming on Disney+ Saturday, July 26.

Tony Todd in "Final Destination Bloodlines"

Final Destination Bloodlines

In 1968, a posh dinner at the revolving Skyview restaurant turns into a waking nightmare when 17-year-old Iris Campbell (Bassinger) experiences a horrifying vision: the tower is about to collapse. Her desperate pleas to evacuate saves dozens of lives. In present day, Iris's granddaughter Stefani Reyes (Jauna) is haunted by vivid, impossible nightmares of an event she never lived through. When her grandmother dies — violently — under suspicious circumstances, Stefani learns that Iris didn't survive by luck. She cheated death, and now Death is coming for her bloodline.

Directors: Zach Lipovsky and Adam Stein. Stars: Kaitlyn Santa Juana, Teo Briones, Richard Harmon, Owen Patrick Joyner, Anna Lore, Brec Bassinger, Tony Todd. 2025. 110 min. Horror.

Jay Pharoah hosts “The Quiz With Balls”

The Quiz With Balls

(44) 9:00 PM

Trivia never seemed so offensive as when the Sinclair-Bryant and Behrakis families battle it out in hopes of avoiding being hit with giant balls which could knock them into the water below. The more wrong answers you give, the harder questions get.

Survival Mode

(5) 10:00 PM

From the producers of “Date-line,” this new series shares the harrowing stories of everyday people who survived extraordinary life-or-death situations. Viewers get insight on how these people persevered in the midst of horrifying disasters.

POV

(33) (57) 10:00 PM

As Samuel turns 21, he’s eager to gain more independence, but after battling health issues, inaccessible spaces and ableist barriers, the path hasn’t been easy. But with help from a community of disability activists, Samuel fights to find a way forward.

In the Eye of the Storm

disc 10:00 PM

In the summer of 2024, a sudden wave of shark attacks swept across America’s Gulf Coast, captured by dozens of witnesses. Now, survivors and witnesses share their stories of fear and survival as an ordinary day at the beach turned deadly.

Joel McHale hosts “The 1% Club”

America’s Got Talent

(5) 8:00 PM

As more amateur performers step up to the “AGT” stage, judges Simon Cowell, Mel B, Howie Mandel and Sofia Vergara have the difficult task of filtering the good from the bad. Which dreams will continue? And which will be crushed? Terry Crews hosts.

The 1% Club

(44) 8:00 PM

During this latest episode, a professional mascot, a psychic and a rabbi compete amongst the 100 contestants vying for the $100,000 grand prize. All they need to do is answer questions that only 1% of the American population can get right.

Renaissance: The Blood and the Beauty

(33) (57) 9:00 PM

In this series finale, Michelangelo (Charles Dance) works on theistine Chapel as Raphael (Joshua Duffy) works on the Pope’s (Scott Alexander Young) private apartment nearby, both hoping to outdo the other and gain the favor of the church.

Next Gen NYC

BRAV 9:15 PM

Tensions rise in the group as they return from Jersey, with Riley calling out double standards and Emira dropping a bombshell. At Georgia’s bowling night, Ava’s loyalty sparks major drama and Brooks steps out of Meredith’s shadow and carves his own path.

Wednesday

Luke Camilleri and Jewel Staite in "Family Law"

Match Game

(12) 7:00 PM (22) 9:00 PM

It's the return of a revival as the iconic game show is back in this series premiere with Martin Short hosting. Four contestants need to match answers with six celebrities in hopes of winning $25,000. Stars include Selena Gomez, BD Wong, Ziwe and more.

Celebrity IOU

HGTV 8:00 PM

When Josh Gad looks to surprise his college BFF with a refreshed studio and backyard entertainment space, he calls Drew and Jonathan for the job. With the direction of creating a space that inspires creativity and community, the brothers get to work.

Family Law

WPIX 8:00 PM

This Season 4 premiere finds every part of Abigail's (Jewel Staite) life in a state of upheaval as Ben (Benjamin Ayres) is off the wagon, Sofia (Eden Summer Gilmore) has written a tell-all and Harry (Victor Garber) doesn't give her equity partnership.

Human Footprint

(33) (57) 9:00 PM

Biologist Shane Campbell-Staton journeys to the Colorado River to explore how humans have tried to tame water for centuries. From canals to massive dams, he examines how these efforts have shaped nature, wildlife and the communities who depend on them.

"Trophy Wife: Murder on Safari"

Bringing viewers into the heart of a deadly love triangle, "Trophy Wife: Murder on Safari" premieres Monday, July 21, on Hulu. The three-part docuseries unravels the twisted true story of Larry Rudolph, a millionaire Pittsburgh dentist whose dream safari turned into a deadly scandal. "After Larry is forced to choose between his wife of 34 years, Bianca, and his mistress, one of them is found dead in Larry's safari cabin in Zambia," the docuseries' synopsis states. "The local authorities rule it an accident, but back in the U.S., suspicions mount. As investigators dig deeper, they uncover decades of salacious patterns in Larry's personal and professional dealings, including affairs, fraud and more. But the question remains: Could this apparent egomaniac commit murder? And if so, does the FBI have the evidence to prove it?" Based on Rolling Stone's gripping 2022 feature "Before the Dentist Knows You're Dead," the docuseries features interviews from an eclectic mix of voices such as Larry's former business partner, the couple's insurance broker, FBI agents, Lori Milliron's daughter and the former U.S. ambassador to Zambia. Directed by Dani Sloane ("Girl in the Picture," 2022), "Trophy Wife: Murder on Safari" is executive produced by Erin Lee Carr ("Mommy Dead and Dearest," 2017).

"Washington Black"

Based on Esi Edugyan's bestselling novel, the eight-part miniseries, "Washington Black," makes its debut on Hulu this Wednesday, July 23. From creator Selwyn Seyfu Hinds ("The Twilight Zone"), this series follows the 19th-century odyssey of George Washington "Wash" Black (Ernest Kingsley Jr., "The Sparticle Mystery"), an 11-year-old boy born on a Barbados sugar plantation, whose prodigious scientific mind sets him on a path of unexpected destiny. When a harrowing incident forces Wash to flee, he is thrust into a globe-spanning adventure that challenges and reshapes his understanding of family, freedom and love. As he navigates uncharted lands and impossible odds, Wash finds the courage to imagine a future beyond the confines of society. Sterling K. Brown ("This Is Us"), Tom Ellis ("Lucifer"), Rupert Graves ("Sherlock"), Eddie Karanja ("The Sandman") and Lola Evans ("Out of Darkness," 2022) round out the series' impressive cast.

"Match Game" (Season 6)

Canadian comedian Martin Short ("Only Murders in the Building") returns as host of "Match Game," when the series' sixth season premieres on Hulu this Thursday, July 24. In this star-studded game show, four new con-

Ernest Kingsley Junior in "Washington Black"

tants join each week, and are given a list of questions that replicates the ones given to the "Game's" celebrity panel. To earn themselves a chance at a $25,000 prize, the contestants must try and match their responses to the celebrity panel's answers, attempting to correctly complete a fill-in-the-blank sentence. "Match Game" comes from FremantleMedia North America, with Alycia Rossiter ("The Bachelor") and Short himself acting as executive producers.

"Mad About You" (Seasons 1 - 7)

First comes love, then comes marriage, then comes ... everything else. Through the ups and downs of their relationship, New York couple Paul (Paul Reiser, "Aliens," 1986) and Jamie Buchman (Helen Hunt, "Twister," 1996) share their lives and offer wit and wisdom about relationships in "Mad About You," coming to Hulu with seven laugh-filled seasons this Thursday, July 24. Paul is a documentary filmmaker and Jamie works as a public relations specialist. Together, they grow and mature as they learn the art of staying married and loving it. Along for the ride is their ever-tolerant dog, Murray; Jamie's best friend, Fran (Leila Kenzle, "Identity," 2003); Jamie's sister, Lisa (Anne Ramsay, "A League of Their Own," 1992); and Paul's cousin, Ira (John Pankow, "To Live and Die in L.A.," 1985).

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I've been rewatching "The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air" and I recognized the young guy playing Hilary's boyfriend Ice Tray. Who is it? I'm guessing I know him as an older man?

A: Most of us know Don Cheadle ("Crash," 2004) as an older man — he's one of Hollywood's biggest stars. It goes to show that even multi-award-winning, writer-producer-actors have to start somewhere.

But actually, that wasn't even his start. Cheadle had been a struggling actor for a few years before he appeared in the first season of the hit sitcom "The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air" in 1990.

His first role was actually five years earlier, as an unnamed fast-food worker in 1985's "Moving Violations," a screwball comedy about driving-school students. The roles grew gradually from there, but it took 10 years before he landed what's generally thought of as his breakout role in 1995's "Devil in a Blue Dress," which earned him multiple award nominations.

Of course, keen TV heads will remember that before that breakout role, he had a series-regular role in "Golden Palace," the "Golden Girls" spinoff that ran for a season from 1992 to 1993. Plus, he had a recurring role as D.A. Littleton in "Picket Fences" at the time as well.

Cheadle was far from the only big name to drop in on "The Fresh Prince." Other future stars such as Milo Ventimiglia ("This Is Us"), Michael Clarke Duncan ("The Green Mile," 1999) and Chris Rock ("Saturday Night Live") had early roles across the show's six-season run.

Q: What ever happened to Wentworth Miller from "Prison Break"?

A: After going from near-obscure to being one of the biggest stars on TV, Wentworth Miller ("Underworld," 2003) branched out a little, then did more "Prison Break," then settled into a long-running role in a whole new universe. But "Prison Break" still won't quite let him go.

His role as Michael Scofield, a building engineer who essentially breaks into prison to help his brother break out, brought the young Miller to fame in 2005. When it initially ended in 2009, Miller leapt at the chance to try new things.

For example, he starred in the hit horror-action film "Resident Evil: Afterlife" in 2010, and then branched out into writing and producing with the award-winning 2013 indie film "Stoker."

Soon after, Miller took on the role of Leonard Snart, also known as Captain Cold, in the DC Comics series "The Flash" on The CW. He kept that up while also appearing, in the same role, in the sister series "DC's Legends of Tomorrow," part of the wider DC universe that CW had going on.

But even with all that on his plate, he couldn't resist the invitation to return to his "Prison Break" role when Fox aired a revival season in 2017.

And now, he's returning to those days again, in a fashion: he and "Prison Break" co-star Dominic Purcell ("Blade: Trinity," 2004) are reportedly working on a new show together. "Snatchback" is about a team of hostage rescuers and is said to be based on a true story.
