Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

I love MarineTraffic. It's the best app of all time. It shows you every boat in the world that has a registered AIS transponder and provides its navigational status, speed and reported ETA and that's for all types of seafaring and river going vessels. We're talking cruise ships, sailboats, tankers, cargo ships, and if you're feeling frisky, tugs and escort tugs. MarineTraffic, I got it right here. MarineTraffic is so amazing. My staff tells me it's the ultimate conversation stopper, which is great because once everybody else shuts their yaps, I can finally focus on the boats.

Oh, wait a second. Hello, where are you going? Liquefied natural gas tanker Gaslog Windsor. I hate to see you go, but I love knowing where you're going at exactly 9.8 knots. That's MarineTraffic. You know their slogan: "Shh, Dad's watching his boats."

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Today [March 19], the White House asked Congress to give them $200 billion in additional funding for the war in Iran. Yeah, $200 billion. President Trump heard and was like, "Iran must be getting one hell of a ballroom. That's ballroom money."

I saw that Costco is selling a two-foot-tall, 10-pound chocolate Easter bunny. Eating it is tough. You never know whether to start with the ears or the insulin.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

We are glad to have you on one of the least productive workdays of the year. The NCAA men's basketball tournament started today [March 19]. Thirty-two teams play today, 32 play tomorrow. They'll whittle that down to 16 and then eight. Then the final four and then the Finals and the winner goes to the White House to hand their trophy over to President Trump.

This is actually a sad time of the year for me. My grandmother died from March Madness. The weird thing is it happened in May.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

Apple CEO Tim Cook dismissed rumors this week he's planning on retiring and said that he "can't imagine life without Apple," because whenever he does, he gets quite the jolt from his Apple shock collar.

Two hundred and seventy people dressed like the Nintendo character Mario recently gathered in New York at a GameStop store. Of course, if you want to see a gathering of 270 Marios, you can just check out New Jersey.

While hosting the Naval Academy football team last week, President Trump said that former White House doctor Congressman Ronny Jackson told him that if he did not eat junk food, he would live to be 200 years old. Wait a minute. He's not 200 years old? Every photo looks like he drank from the wrong chalice in "Indiana Jones."

Loftis goals: A cursed town's mayor courts tourism in 'Widow's Bay'

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Sometimes, the efforts of one determined man are the only thing keeping a community from becoming a ghost town. In the new Apple TV horror-comedy series "Widow's Bay," Mayor Tom Loftis (Matthew Rhys, "The Americans") attempts to entice tourists to visit the titular small island town with ghosts of its own. The first three episodes of the series will be available to stream on premiere day, Wednesday, April 29, with the remaining episodes dropping weekly on Wednesdays through June 17, with a special two-episode release on Wednesday, May 27.

Lying just off the coast of New England, the island town of Widow's Bay, lacking in modern amenities, has been struggling. Though he is not well liked or respected much by his fellow community members, Tom is fixated on creating a future for Widow's Bay as a tourist destination for the next generation to inherit. If imagining a bright future for a place with a name like Widow's Bay wasn't hard enough, Tom's town is deficient in basic things like reliable Wi-Fi and cell service, making his dream look that much more impossible.

So, where is the horror part of the horror-comedy? Well, just as Tom's efforts are paying off and vacationers are welcomed to the island, his superstitious constituents are proven right after all — the old wives' tales of the curse that hangs over Widow's Bay turn out to be true. Decades of calm on the island caused Tom to wave off curse concerns, however the arrival of outsiders upsets the balance that kept the peace in Widow's Bay.

Whether the horrors are enough to keep the Widow's Bay population to locals only remains to be seen, but according to the series description from Apple TV, the series "blends genuine horror with character-driven comedy." Tom seems to be alone in his ambitions for the island, which draws some cruel laughs from his failures and missteps.

In the official trailer for "Widow's Bay," Tom welcomes a guest to the island whom he catches getting a briefing of the community's history at town hall. The visitor tells Tom that he'd been warned by someone on the ferry that "bad things happen here." On the defensive, Tom assured him that the superstitions are charming and "what town doesn't have a checkered past?" Unfortunately, Tom ends his reassurances as they stand in front of a section of the town museum dedicated to the island's history of cannibalism. "I don't think that's right," Tom says in an attempt to smooth over some unsavory town lore.

The arrival of tourists on the island is the beginning of a new chapter in Widow's Bay's horrifying history. In the trailer, gruesome, unsettling scenes flash in montage as Tom tries to keep his latest tourist from fleeing the island in fear. Prolonged stare downs from locals, a group of people making their way toward a massive bonfire set on the shore of the bay, a hand with filthy long nails creeping over the edge of a bathtub and a few attempted attacks from seemingly possessed residents hint that some serious evil has been unleashed on the island.

Before the trailer was released, Apple TV teased two short, wordless peeks into the series. In December, the official premiere date announcement included a quick clip of the local bar closing up for the night — a glimpse of a quiet, dark street followed by interior shots of the pub's lights being flicked off one by one, leaving Tom in darkness as he sat alone with his empty tumbler. The official sneak peek, released in early February, follows Tom as he quickly gets up from his kitchen table and follows the sound of sirens wailing. A number of townspeople look out at the coastline at what must have caused the alarm.

Also starring in "Widow's Bay" are Kate O'Flynn ("Everyone Else Burns"), Stephen Root ("Barry"), Kingston Rumi Southwick ("Based On a True Story"), Kevin Carroll

("The Leftovers") and Dale Dickey ("The Lowdown"). Supporting cast includes K Callan ("Knives Out," 2019) and Emmy winner Jeff Hiller ("Somebody Somewhere"). The series was created by "Parks and Recreation" writer Katie Dippold, who serves as showrunner and executive producer. "The Bear" and "Atlanta" producer Hiro Murai executive produced the series and directed five of the show's 10 episodes. Episode directors include Ti West ("MaXXXine," 2024), Sam Donovan ("Severance") and Andrew DeYoung ("The Chair Company").

If you were hoping for some levity while watching the Netflix supernatural horror series "Midnight Mass" or maybe wanted to spend more time in a world like the one in Sam Raimi's 2026 deserted island horror feature film "Send Help," then "Widow's Bay" might just be for you.

Settle in for some scares and deadpan comedy when "Widow's Bay" premieres Wednesday, April 29. The first three episodes of the 10-episode season will be available to watch on Apple TV on premiere day, with new installments dropping on the streamer every following Wednesday, with a special two-episode release on Wednesday, May 27.

Cooking in real time: New chefs compete in Season 3 of '24 in 24'

Michael Symon and Esther Choi host "24 in 24: Last Chef Standing"

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Time, when it comes to television, can be a tricky thing to convey. A full season of television — whether scripted or unscripted — could be filmed in as little as a few days despite appearing to span months or, in some cases, years. Tyler Perry ("Diary of a Mad Black Woman," 2005) famously filmed "Beauty in Black's" six-episode third season in six days, while his BET+ sitcom "Bruh" reportedly shot 19 episodes in just four days in 2020. Other shows, like Fox's 2001-10 anti-terrorism action series "24" — led by Kiefer Sutherland ("The Lost Boys," 1987) — took eight to 10 days per episode to film, which is especially interesting considering the show's real-time, hour-per-hour storytelling format.

But "24" is no longer the only television series to portray one hour of story during a one-hour episode. Apple TV's "Hijack," Netflix's "Adolescence" and HBO's "The Pitt" have all adopted the fast-paced, realistic model, but what happens when an unscripted competition series decides to adopt the same high-intensity model?

"24 in 24: Last Chef Standing" is a Food Network series that follows "24 talented and fearless chefs taking on 24 challenges over the course of 24 straight hours" (per Food Network). Shot in real time like the handful of trendsetting series mentioned above, "24 in 24: Last Chef Standing" premieres its third season Sunday, April 26, on its home network. New episodes will also stream the next day on HBO Max and Discovery+.

"24 in 24" first premiered, rather fittingly, in 2024, and has been captivating fans of food competition television ever since. The series is hosted by celebrity chefs Michael Symon ("Iron Chef America") and Esther Choi ("Heat Eaters"), who also welcome a new guest judge each season as 24 high-performing chefs battle for the championship title and a hefty cash prize.

"From strategy and speed to precision and elevation, the challenges are divided into eight shifts that reflect the intensity of a chef's daily life," the Food Network description reads. "The chef who survives all of the unexpected twists and turns while battling fatigue wins $100,000 — the biggest prize in the show's history."

In Season 3, Symon and Choi welcome California-based chef Jet Tila as guest judge. Given his experience on "Guy's Grocery Games," "Cutthroat Kitchen" and "Iron Chef America," as well as countless hours of kitchen time in his daily off-screen routine, Tila is the perfect choice to judge the outcome of this season's new set of practical challenges.

"In the season premiere, Michael [Symon] and Esther [Choi] welcome 24 of the country's best chefs, who quickly learn this season is completely different from previous ones," the new season's description on FoodNetwork.com reads. "Competitors will pick challenges in a different way and experience a fresh judging format. If competitors can impress guest judge Jet Tila in the strategy skills round during the first episode, they'll have a chance to continue.

"Over the next 24 hours, the competition tackles different shifts that reflect a real day in the life of an elite chef," the write-up continues. "Upcoming episode themes include speed, resourcefulness, adaptability, teamwork, risk-taking, precision and elevation. The season culminates with a Sunday, May 31, finale, when Michael and Esther are joined by guest judges Alex Guarnaschelli ["Chopped"], Jet [Tila] and Jean-Georges Vongerichten ["Reservations Required"] to determine which chef is victorious and wins $100,000."

Chefs competing this season include "Chopped" champion and "Hell's Kitchen" finalist Robyn Almodovar; "Top Chef" Season 18 contestant and 2025 James Beard Award semifinalist

Avishar Barua; "Cutthroat Kitchen," "Alex vs America" and "Chopped" winner Cris Brown; "Top Chef" Season 18 finalist and 2020 James Beard Award semifinalist Dawn Burrell; Monique Cadavona, aka Mama Guava; Tuk Tuk Snack Shop owner Sam Fore ("Christopher Kimball's Milk Street"); Dallas Mavericks executive chef Lex Grant ("Chopped"); Trust restaurant chef Trimell Hawkins; "Below Deck" luxury private chef Anthony Ircane; "Next Level Chef" Season 4 contestant Maryam Ishtiaq; Arthur & Sons chef Joe Isidori ("Barefoot Contessa"); "Cutthroat Kitchen" host Brian Malarkey; Gedney Kitchen chef Michele Ragussis ("Beat Bobby Flay"); "Iron Chef America" winner and three-time Beard Foundation nominee Viet Pham; "Top Chef" Season 18 finalist and three-time James Beard nominee Shota Nakajima; Maison Ostrow chef and CEO Olivia Ostrow ("Guy's Grocery Games"); "Top Chef" Season 18 contestant and two-time James Beard nominee Maria Mazon; "Next Level Chef" Season 3 finalist Christina Miroso; Empellon chef Alex Stupak ("Chopped"); Koko Head Cafe owner Lee Anne Wong ("Top Chef"); "Chopped: Battle Italiano" winner Antonello Zito; "Girl Meets Farm's" Molly Yeh; "Gastronauts" Season 2 winner Ara Zada; and Zac Young ("Beat Bobby Flay"), who was named one of the top 10 pastry chefs in America by Dessert Professional.

Don't miss your chance to experience — as Warner Bros. Discovery head of food content Betsy Ayala calls it — the "intensity and unpredictability" of "life as a chef" when Season 3 of "24 in 24: Last Chef Standing" premieres Sunday, April 26, on Food Network. Episodes stream next day on Discovery+ and HBO Max.

Can humans live peacefully among carnivorous creatures?

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Nature vs. human nature: Experience breathtaking landscapes and immerse yourself in inspiring stories of people and wildlife living in harmony with “Shared Planet” — a docuseries from Canadian network CBC’s “The Nature of Things,” premiering Wednesday, April 29, on PBS.

“In an age of serious environmental challenges, this four-part global series offers a look at an alternative and more hopeful future,” a synopsis given by PBS reads. “The series spans dozens of countries and features individuals from all walks of life interacting with nature in innovative ways. Each story explores how people and wildlife can thrive together in every ecosystem — from oceans to forests, from megacities to grasslands.”

The series — which aims to celebrate the benefits of coexisting with nature — features “spectacular visuals and unforgettable characters” (per PBS) as it discusses everything from natural touches in urban spaces to the unique strategies used by those who live alongside unexpected creatures. “Shared Planet” asks: how do we protect our natural world? And how can we more peacefully cohabitate with our animal neighbors?

First, during its premiere episode, “Shared Planet” delves into city living. These human-made spaces often butt up against nature, creating ecotones — overlapping areas between two habitats — that overflow with bustling life, often seeing species spread from one habitat into another.

As the network’s description explains, “‘Cities’ highlights inspiring stories of people reshaping urban life and sharing space with wildlife. In Los Angeles, a mountain lion unites a community and becomes the unofficial mascot of the city, while in Kolkata [India], locals clean the urban wetlands, creating an incredible wildlife habitat and supporting thousands of jobs. In New York City, the Billion Oyster Project is restoring reefs to New York Harbor, helping protect the city from dangerous hurricanes. And in futuristic Singapore, urban reforestation efforts have transformed the city, enhancing citizens’ lives and attracting wildlife such as hornbills.”

Later, hear how locals live alongside lions in the open savannahs of Kenya, how Mezcal makers in Mexico utilize bats to improve their agave crops, how coral reefs improve the lives of fish below and humans above and how scientists, nature enthusiasts and lumberjacks alike are currently reshaping the way we live and work in forests.

From an Emmy-winning team including director Jeff Turner (“Island of the Sea Wolves”) and director of photography Justin Maguire (“Our Planet”), “Shared Planet” makes its PBS debut Wednesday, April 29.

Confessions between couples:

In 2017, Scottish cyclist Tony Parsons began a solo charity cycle ride after being treated for prostate cancer. After a heroic start, however, the 63-year-old former navy officer never made it home, seemingly disappearing into thin air. For three years, the case of the Vanishing Cyclist remained a mystery — until one woman’s bold decision finally revealed Parsons’ fate.

“Should I Marry A Murderer?” premieres Wednesday, April 29, on Netflix, following the extraordinary story of Dr. Caroline Muirhead, who found herself unexpectedly involved with Parsons’ case.

Only months away from their wedding, Muirhead was approached by her then-fiance, Alexander McKellar, who — overcome by guilt — admitted to accidentally killing Parsons during a hit-and-run. McKellar claimed that he and his brother, Robert, failed to find medical attention in time for Parsons after the collision, and that Parsons quickly died from his injuries. After confessing to his future wife, McKellar then led Muirhead to the spot where Parsons was buried, proving his story to be true.

“Imagine you fall in love with someone who made you feel accepted, wanted, seen, who made you feel whole and loved and special, and you are just so happy,” Muirhead says in the series’ trailer.

Sankale and Michael Sumare feature in “Shared Planet”

“And then they say to you I’ve done a horrible, horrible thing. Something so vile it flips your entire world upside down.

“To remain in love, you have to keep this secret that you know is going to destroy you,” she continues. “But if you reveal it, then you destroy everything. I mean, what would you do?”

For Muirhead, the answer was simple: no matter what, she would make sure Parsons saw the justice he deserved. Thinking fast, Muirhead left a Red Bull can behind at the location, marking the burial spot that she later described in a tip to police.

As it delves into the previously unknown details of Parsons’ curious disappearance, “Should I Marry a Murderer?” recounts Muirhead’s transition from planning a wedding to solving a cold case — one she never expected to be involved with. One family receives closure while another falls apart in “Should I Marry a Murderer?,” a two-part documentary premiering Wednesday, April 29, on Netflix.

"Man on Fire" - Season 1

Even when you try to start over, the past has a way of catching up to you. A soldier seeking a fresh start is forced to reckon with the life he left behind in Season 1 of "Man on Fire," premiering Thursday, April 30, on Netflix. From writer, executive producer and showrunner Kyle Killen ("Halo"), this gripping new thriller reimagines A.J. Quinnell's ("Captain Maruf," 2007) novel with Yahya Abdul-Mateen II ("Aquaman," 2018) starring as John Creasy, a battle-scarred former Special Forces mercenary struggling with relentless PTSD. Desperate for a fresh start, Creasy is pulled back into a life he's long tried to outrun and must balance his need for redemption against a growing storm of threats that refuses to let him walk away. With a compelling ensemble including Alice Braga ("I Am Legend," 2007) as Valeria, Billie Boulet ("A Small Light") as Poe, Scoot McNairy ("Killing Them Softly," 2012) as Henry and Bobby Cannavale ("Ant-Man," 2015) as Paul, this seven-episode series is an intense descent into trauma, survival and redemption.

"Swapped" (2026)

Michael B. Jordan ("Black Panther," 2018) and Juno Temple ("Mr. Nobody," 2009) ruffle some feathers in director Nathan Greno's ("Tangled," 2010) animated comedy "Swapped," coming to Netflix on Friday, May 1. Described by Tudum as a "Freaky Friday-like adventure set in the wild," Jordan voice stars as Ollie, the smallest creature in the valley, whose quiet life is turned upside down when a magical mix-up swaps him into the body of Ivy (Temple), a regal bird. Now, Ollie must flap through the sky while Ivy grapples with life on the ground. Together, these unlikely friends learn what it really means to "walk in each other's feathers" and see the world from a wildly new angle. Written by John Whittington ("Remarkably Bright Creatures," 2026) and Christian Magalhaes ("New Girl"), the film also features the voices of Greno, Tracy Morgan ("30 Rock"), Camden Brooks ("Abbott Elementary"), Cedric The Entertainer ("Johnson Family Vacation," 2004), Joan Ryan ("The Wright Turn") and Antwainette McCloud ("Diarra from Detroit").

Chronicling the fantastical life of real-life fortune-teller Kazuko Hosoki, Season 1 of "Straight to Hell" premieres on Netflix this Monday, April 27. Spanning six decades of the fortune-teller's life, this fictionalized adaptation stars Erika Toda ("Death Note," 2006) as Hosoki, who became a cultural phenomenon in Japan, once known for her "Six-Star Divination" practice and her taunting catchphrase: "You'll go to hell." From humble beginnings to a future spent as the so-called "Queen of Ginza," the series documents Hosoki's rise to fame — a story captured by the ghostwriter of Hosoki's biography, Minori Uozumi (Sairi Ito, "We Couldn't Become Adults," 2021). As Uozumi digs further into the fortune teller's past — uncovering accusations of fraud and rumored connections to a criminal underworld — a tense battle of wills unfolds between the two women, leaving Uozumi to ask: is Kazuko Hosoki the devil in disguise? From directors Tomoyuki Takimoto ("Death Notice: Ikigami," 2008) and Norichika Ohba ("Bullet Train Explosion," 2025), and with a screenplay written by newcomer Manaka Monaka, the first season of "Straight to Hell" also stars Toko Miura ("Drive My Car," 2021), Ayumu Nakajima ("April, Come She Will," 2024), Gaku Hosokawa ("He's Expecting"), Kentaro Tamura ("As the Gods Will," 2014), Toma Ikuta ("The Fallen Angel," 2010) and Eita Okuno ("The Outsider," 2018), among many others.

"The House of the Spirits" - Season 1

A sweeping tale of love, conflict and political upheaval unfolds when Season 1 of "The House of the Spirits" premieres Wednesday, April 29, on Prime Video. The eight-episode saga inspired by Isabel Allende's ("Of Love and Shadows," 1994) best-selling novel follows the women of the Trueba family — grandmother Clara (Dolores Fonzi, "Belen," 2025), her daughter, Blanca (Fernanda Urrejola, "Cry Macho," 2021), and young Alba (Rochi Hernandez, "Night Sky"), the granddaughter — in conservative South America, telling their stories of hidden romances, deep passions and the toll of a violent revolution. "As the years pass," according to Variety, "the family's secrets and struggles build to a breaking point, setting the proud, controlling patriarch [Alfonso Herrera, "Ozark"] and his strong-willed granddaughter on opposite sides of a growing divide." With a cast that also includes Nicole Wallace ("My Fault," 2023), Juan Pablo Raba ("Six"), Chiara Parravicini ("The Head of Joaquin Murrieta"), Aline Kuppenheim ("A Fantastic Woman," 2017), Maribel Verdu ("The Flash," 2023) and Pedro Fontaine ("Spider," 2019), Season 1 of "The House of the Spirits" is directed by Francisca Alegria ("The Humming of the Beast," 2021) and Andres Wood ("Mary & Mike").

"Zillow Gone Wild" - Season 3

From bizarre builds to unbelievable backstories, the search for the wildest home on the market continues when Season 3 of "Zillow Gone Wild" returns Saturday, May 2 — available on Prime Video with the HBO Max channel — to crown the most outrageous home in America. Host Jack McBrayer, the actor and comedian best known for his Emmy-nominated role in "30 Rock," invites viewers to join him on tours of exceptionally weird, wacky and wild properties that sellers put on the market every day. Throughout the season, Jack explores eccentric homes across the United States, diving into their peculiar histories and meeting the homeowners behind these offbeat properties. However, only one will be crowned the "wildest" of them all during the season finale. "Zillow Gone Wild" is produced by showrunner Brian Gonzalez ("Lil Jon Wants to Do What?"), Cam Frierson ("Treehouse Masters"), Andi Walker Ochoa ("Unknown Serial Killers of America") and Mary Beth Anderson ("Brothers Take on New Orleans") for Pantheon Media Group.

"The Running Man" (2025)

A deadly reality show turns survival into spectacle in "The Running Man" (2025), available now on Prime Video. Set in a near-future dystopian society, The Running Man stands as the world's most watched and most lethal televised spectacle. The rules are simple yet sadistic: contestants must survive for 30 days as they're hunted by professional killers while the entire nation watches their desperate fight for survival in high definition. For Ben Richards (Glen Powell, "Anyone but You," 2023), the game isn't about fame; it's a final, heart-wrenching gamble to fund life-saving treatment for his terminally ill daughter, Molly (in a role shared by Alyssa and Sienna Benn, from 2024's "Magpie"). Lured into the arena by the program's producer, Dan Killian (Josh Brolin, "Avengers: Infinity War," 2018), Ben appears to be the perfect contestant ... until the plan backfires when his refusal to play victim make him a fan favorite. As ratings soar, so does the danger, with killers closing in and viewers watching his every move from the comfort of their homes. "The Running Man" is directed by Edgar Wright ("Baby Driver," 2017) and is based on the novel by best-selling author Stephen King ("Sleepwalkers," 1992).

Ina Garten welcomes Michael Barbaro for Season 8 finale of 'Be My Guest'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

The Barefoot Contessa chats, charms and cooks alongside celebrity friends in "Be My Guest with Ina Garten," a fun-and-food-filled series concluding its eighth season Saturday, May 2, with one final episode airing on Food Network, before streaming on HBO Max and Discovery+ the following day.

This latest slate of episodes, which debuted following the release of chef Ina Garten's most recent book, a memoir titled "Be Ready When the Luck Happens," sees the iconic chef welcoming friends new and old into her East Hampton, N.Y., home, where they share recipes, ideas, stories and good, hearty meals.

In past seasons, Garten has welcomed famous guests such as Tina Fey ("30 Rock"), Christine Baranski ("Mamma Mia!", 2008), Wendell Pierce ("The Wire"), Jennifer Garner ("Alias"), Stanley Tucci ("Julie & Julia," 2009), Laura Linney ("The Big C"), Nathan Lane ("The Birdcage," 1996) and Stephen Colbert ("The Late Show with Stephen Colbert") — and Season 8 has proved to be just as star-studded.

To kick off this season, Garten welcomed "The Diplomat" star Allison Janney to visit her rustic kitchen, where they chatted about stage fright, figure skating and more while cooking up baked fontina, cacio e pepe and lemon vinaigrette. The following week, Jon Batiste ("Be Who You Are"), an award-winning composer, singer and songwriter, stopped by for a taste of Garten's delicious peanut butter and jelly bars before teaching his host how to make his Ma's famous Louisiana-style red beans and rice. Last week, Hoda Kotb ("Today") even made an appearance, digging into some crispy, crunchy fried chicken with the beloved chef.

Now, in this season's final episode, Garten prepares to share a meal with journalist Michael Barbaro, co-host of The New York Times award-winning podcast "The Daily." However, before the dishes are cleared, she plans to turn the tables and put Michael in the hot seat.

"After he talks about podcast success, storytelling tactics and his love of cooking, Ina makes him an updated chicken marbella recipe and he shows off his go-to cocktail, an old-fashioned," reads Food Network's description.

Produced by Pacific Productions, Season 8 of "Be My Guest with Ina Garten" concludes with good conversation, hard-hitting questions and a mouth-watering meal this Saturday, May 2, on Food Network. All four episodes of the season will be available to stream on HBO Max and Discovery+ as of Sunday, May 3.

Cold Storage

Naomi (Campbell) and Teacake (Keery) are two employees working the night shift at a self-storage facility built on top of a long-abandoned military base. Their routine shift turns into a nightmare when a highly contagious, parasitic fungus, that was sealed underground decades earlier, escapes and begins rapidly spreading through the facility. The organism infects humans and animals alike, mutating them into violent, grotesque hosts that spread spores to infect others. As the outbreak spirals out of control, the pair team up with a former bio-terror operative, Robert Quinn (Neeson), who understands just how dangerous the organism truly is. Trapped in the facility, they race against time to contain the infection before it escapes into the outside world. Their desper-

Dakota Johnson in "Daddio"

By Kimberly Tremblay
TV Media

"Daddio" (2023)

A rainy cab ride home becomes a late-night confessional as two strangers trade stories about their lives in director Christy Hall's ("I Am Not Okay With This") debut film,

2023's "Daddio." Produced by Hall and Dakota Johnson (who also starred in 2015's "Fifty Shades of Grey" and all its sequels), "Daddio" makes a pit stop on Hulu this Sunday, April 26, with Johnson playing a woman — affectionately called "Girlie" in the film — who steps into a New York cab at the airport, driven by Clark (played by Sean Penn, "Mystic River," 2003), an observant, talkative man seeking connection. After a long, exhausting flight, Girlie just wants to get home and passes the time scrolling through her cell phone, while Clark, unwilling to let the silence linger, engages her in conversation. As Girlie and Clark get to know each other, their conversation steers in an unexpected direction as the two share stories, from childhood wounds and fleeting relationships, to past trauma and their deepest regrets, making for an unexpected yet heartwarming connection.

"Silent Night" (2023)

On a "Silent Night," revenge comes knocking in director John Woo's ("Face/Off," 1997) 2023 crime thriller, which arrives on Hulu Wednesday, April 29. "Silent Night" is a gritty revenge tale of a tormented father — played by Joel Kinnaman, from 2016's "Suicide Squad" — whose life shatters when he and his wife (Catalina Sandino Moreno, "Maria Full of Grace," 2004) lose their young son (Alex Briseno, "A Million Miles Away," 2023) after he's killed by a stray bullet during a gang shootout that tears through their neighborhood on Christmas Eve. As Brian (Kinnaman) recovers from injuries that cost him his voice, his grief plants a bitter seed of vengeance, and he vows to hunt down the gang members responsible for his son's death. As Brian transforms himself into a one-man army — training relentlessly, studying weapons and tracking the gang — he zeroes in on the leader, Playa (played by Harold Torres, "Memory," 2022), and embarks on a bloody, grueling quest to avenge his son's death. "Silent Night" is written by Robert Archer Lynn ("Deadbox," 2007), with Joe Gatta ("Horns," 2013) serving as an executive producer.

"A Haunting In Venice" (2023)

A Halloween seance stirs up murder and mystery in "A Haunting in Venice" (2023), streaming Thursday, April 30, on Hulu. Set in eerie, post-World War II, the supernatural-tinged who-dun-it finds famed detective Hercule Poirot (played by director Kenneth Branagh, "Hamlet," 1996) retired and living in quiet isolation. Persuaded by a friend to attend a seance inside a crumbling palazzo, Poirot arrives with a healthy dose of skepticism of all things supernatural. But when one of the guests mysteriously goes missing, the gathering shifts from a fun Halloween night to a grisly murder. Trapped inside as a storm rages outside, Poirot begins questioning the group, including a celebrated medium and grieving visitors, each hiding secrets of their own. As superstition and fear spread, he must face the whispers of the supernatural while racing to uncover a killer lurking among them. Also starring Dylan Corbett-Bader ("Grace"), Amir El-Masry ("Limbo," 2020) and Riccardo Scamarcio ("The Best of Youth," 2003), "A Haunting In Venice" is based on the novel by Agatha Christie, with a script written by Michael Green ("Logan," 2017).

Q: The "Moana" song "We Know the Way" features full verses in a language I don't recognize. What language is it?

A: "We Know the Way," the epic ballad that bookends beloved animated film "Moana" (2016), is actually written in three languages.

Moana in a scene from "Moana"

Parts of the song are in English, but most of it is divided between two distinct Polynesian languages: Samoan and Tokelauan.

Samoan is a well-known and widely spoken language, but Tokelauan is quite the opposite. Native to Tokelau, an island group north of Samoa, Tokelauan is only spoken by a few thousand people.

One of those people is Opetai'a Foa'i, the Polynesian folk musician who co-wrote "We Know the Way" and other songs on the "Moana" soundtrack with American film composers Mark Mancina ("Speed," 1994) and Lin-Manuel Miranda ("Hamilton," 2020).

Foa'i said that Tokelauan's obscurity is part of what makes it special, and that it was "preserved because of its isolation."

"It's the reason why I use it," he told Australian Broadcasting Corporation Pacific in a 2024 interview. "It's so rhythmic. There's something about it, and it's why I use it in all my songs or most of my songs."

But he's representing more than just Tokelau. His inclusion of more than one Polynesian language in "We Know the Way" represents his own heritage and history — he was born in a Tokelau settlement on the island of Samoa to parents from Tokelau and another island, Tuvalu. In another interview, with the website 200WorldAlbums.com, he said, "I am not a Tokelauan artist, I am not a Samoan artist, I am a Pacific artist, I am the whole region."

Q: I was sorry to see that "Stuff the British Stole" ended. What's the host, Marc Fennell, doing now?

A: "Stuff the British Stole," the playfully serious documentary series about historical looting by the British Empire, was an Australian-Canadian co-production that found broader fame afterwards.

That's partly because it was based on an also-popular podcast of the same name. Both were hosted by Australian journalist Marc Fennell ("The Feed").

The bad news is that none of Fennell's subsequent projects have gotten nearly the same exposure over here — or any exposure, quite frankly.

Since "Stuff the British Stole" ended in 2024, he's already hosted two different shows — "The Secret DNA of Us," a docuseries that uses DNA testing to learn about the history of Australian communities and people, and "Tell Me What You Really Think," a much lower-concept show where he just sits down with everyday people to have raw and occasionally uncomfortable conversations.

Both shows are very much about Australia and its culture, meaning they're less exportable than "Stuff the British Stole," which held more international interest for uncomfortably obvious reasons.

There's a small glimmer of hope for fans of "Stuff," though. After the series ended, there was talk of turning "Stuff the British Stole" into a big-budget heist drama. But, unfortunately, that was in 2024 and nothing has been heard about the idea since. And since it would be a dramatization, it likely wouldn't have a part for Fennell anyway.
