The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

The next story is close to my heart because that's where my stomach is and I want you to brace yourself, friends. Pizza Hut is closing hundreds of locations. I know it's rough news, but it does explain their new slogan, "Damn, the Hut got out pizza'd."

According to the company, the downturn in Pizza Hut's business is due to declining sales. Another issue might be that when you go to Pizza Hut's website and click "salads," you get popular pizzas. We can't lose the Hut. They're the only ones who understand that America's favorite salad is "Ultimate Hut Bundle."

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Disney is letting couples get married on the steps of the Haunted Mansion. It sounds like fun until your wedding night when you hear your wife singing "It's a Small World."

The CEOs of Netflix and Warner Bros. just testified before the Senate to defend their possible merger. Sen. Cory Booker led the proceedings, and this was crazy. At the end, it turned out that he was cake.

Spain just became the first European country to ban social media for teens. Yeah, your annoying friend is like, "I just got back from 'Barthelona.' I was going to 'potht' about it, but they banned 'Fathebook' and 'Inthagram.'" Yes, Spain is hoping teens pick up more appropriate hobbies, like drinking red wine and bullfighting.

In New York last night [Feb. 3], they had the 150th Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show. This has been going on since 1876. It is a quirky but wholesome American tradition. ... The top dog this year was an underdog dog, a female named Penny, who beat out more than 2,000 other canines and three ugly human beings.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

In honor of Valentine's Day, more than 200 Waffle House locations are set to reopen as a reservation-only restaurant with candles and white tablecloths. Great if you're looking to get into a huge fight with someone besides the staff.

A 90-year-old English teacher in Michigan set the Guinness World Record this week for longest career in the classroom after teaching for 67 years. And this is exciting — she earned three vacation days.

A hospital in France was evacuated recently after a male patient allegedly arrived with a World War I artillery shell in his rectum. Wow, I mean, I know men tend to put off doctor's visits, but that's just crazy.

Hollywood stars and 'Sinners': O'Brien returns to host 98th Academy Awards

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

At last year's Academy Awards ceremony, host Conan O'Brien ("Late Night with Conan O'Brien") used his platform to call out the seemingly "self-indulgent and superfluous" nature of awards shows in the face of "wildfires and divisive politics." While highlighting the absurd choice to honor wealthy figures amid global trauma, suffering and pain, O'Brien also drew attention to the reason the Oscars are important, noting that "for almost a century, we have paused every spring to elevate and celebrate an art form that has the power, at its very best, to unite us."

This spring we unite on Sunday, March 15, for the 98th Academy Awards, airing on ABC. Whether you gather with friends for a fancy Oscars party or choose to partake quietly at home, the decision to celebrate cinema and those who create it can be a radical act of love in a world otherwise divided.

Despite O'Brien joking that he would not attend the 98th awards due to plans to "[leave] Hollywood to run a bed and breakfast in Orlando," the comedian and former late-night pundit returns as host, once again bridging the gap between the film industry elite and their audience — some grateful for art that provides levity, others grateful for art that confronts atrocity. (Bonus points to the rare few films that successfully do both.)

Of course, the talk of Tinsel Town this awards season is 2025's "Sinners," the horror film written and directed by Ryan Coogler ("Black Panther," 2018) that set a new academy record with a whopping 16 nominations.

Michael B. Jordan in "Sinners"

For reference, "All About Eve" (1950), "Titanic" (1997) and "La La Land" (2016) were all previously tied for the honor of "most-nominated film," each boasting 14 nods at their respective ceremonies. "Sinners" also set the record for the most Black individuals ever nominated for a single film with 10 nominations.

"Sinners" tells the story of Sammie "Preacher Boy" Moore (played by newcomer Miles Caton), a young sharecropper and blues guitarist in the Mississippi Delta during the 1930s. When Sammie's smooth-talking twin cousins Smoke and Stack (both played by Creed franchise star Michael B. Jordan) return home from a job under Al Capone in Chicago, they open a juke joint where locals can blow off steam after a long day of work in the crushing heat. But when a trio of mysterious strangers shows up outside the venue, Smoke, Stack, Sammie and friends are engaged in a fight against sinister forces.

Set against the backdrop of the Jim Crow south and featuring elements of folk horror, religion, superstition and preternatural evil, "Sinners" places music at the heart of a Black community facing immense oppression and horror in their daily lives.

The film is nominated for all the "major" awards — Best Picture, Best Actor in a Leading Role (Jordan), Best Actress (Wunmi Mosaku, "His House," 2020) and Best Director (Coogler) — but is also being recognized for Best Supporting Actor (Dellroy Lindo, "The Good Fight"), Best Screenplay (Coogler), Best Casting (Francine Maisler, "Succession"), Best Cinematography (Autumn Durald Arkapaw, "The Last Showgirl," 2024), Best Film Editing (Michael P. Shawver, "Fruitvale Station," 2013), Best Costume Design (Ruth E. Carter, "Malcolm X," 1992), Best Original Score (Ludwig Goransson, "Oppenheimer," 2023) and Best Original Song ("I Lied to You"). The film also has team nominations for Best Make-up and Hair-styling, Best Production Design, Best Sound and Best Visual Effects.

Hoping to give "Sinners" a run for its money this year is Paul Thomas Anderson's revolution-forward action thriller "One Battle After Another," with 13 nominations. Holding nine nominations apiece are Guillermo del Toro's "Frankenstein," the table tennis dramedy "Marty Supreme" and the multi-language family drama "Sentimental Value." Chloe Zhao's Shakespeare biopic "Hamnet" is also highly lauded, boasting eight nominations.

Additional multiple-award nominees include "Bugonia," "Train Dreams," "F1," "The Secret Agent," "KPop Demon Hunters," "Blue Moon," "It Was Just an Accident," "Avatar: Fire and Ash" and "Sirat."

As is tradition, Oscar winners from the previous year are tapped to present this year's awards. As of writing, the list of presenters includes Adrien Brody (who won for "The Brutalist"), Mikey Madison (who won for "Anora"), Zoe Saldana (who won for "Emilia Perez") and Kieran Culkin

(who won for "A Real Pain").

But, for all the performers and filmmakers who will be in LA's Dolby Theatre on March 15, viewers and attendees alike will feel the marked absence of the industry icons no longer with us.

The Academy's 2025 In Memoriam feature will include more than a few Hollywood heavy hitters: Robert Redford ("The Sting," 1973), Gene Hackman ("Unforgiven," 1992), Diane Keaton ("Annie Hall," 1977), David Lynch ("Eraserhead," 1977) and Rob Reiner ("Stand By Me," 1986), to name a few.

"These people are so larger than life, especially if you've grown up watching them or appreciating their work," O'Brien told New Yorker editor David Remnick in February. "I think it's seven movies that Rob Reiner made, in quick succession, that are classics. Now, if you can make one great movie, that's impressive. ... To make two means that you're one of the greats. To make seven — in, like, a nine-year, 10-year, 11-year period — is insanity."

Don't miss Conan O'Brien returning to host the 98th Academy Awards Sunday, March 15, on ABC.

Back in black: 'The Immortal Man' returns to Birmingham in long awaited bookend

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

A legendary Brummie is being called back to a life he literally and figuratively blew up years ago in a much anticipated film continuation of a fan-favorite period drama. Tommy Shelby (Cillian Murphy, "Oppenheimer," 2023) makes his way back home in the new film "Peaky Blinders: The Immortal Man," premiering Friday, March 20, on Netflix.

Lucky fans may be able to catch the film on the big screen early — select cinemas will screen the film starting Friday, March 6.

Set in 1940, two years after the events of the series finale, the film catches up with Tommy living in exile, far from the life of crime that he meticulously burned all evidence of before setting off toward the horizon on horseback.

In the official teaser trailer, Tommy appears to traipse through the now-abandoned Arrow House, contemplating what's to come now that he's landed back at home before donning his signature armored cap and cutting a familiar, intimidating silhouette as he makes his way toward the business at hand. Whether he wanted to fight or not, the war has come for Tommy.

Reprising their roles from the series are Sophie Rundle ("Happy Valley") as Ada Thorne; Ned Dennehy ("A Thousand Blows") as Charlie Strong; Ian Peck ("His Dark Materials") as Charlie's assistant Curly; Packy Lee ("Blue Lights") as Johnny Dogs; and Stephen Graham ("Adolescence") as union convener Hayden Stagg.

Joining the cast of the film in an as-yet-unnamed role is Jay Lyrurgo, who appeared alongside Murphy in the 2025 drama film "Steve." Whether a patron or an employee of the pub, Lyrurgo's character helps Tommy make an entrance when he steps into the Garrison in the film's trailer, announcing his arrival for anyone in the establishment with a short memory.

Rebecca Ferguson ("Dune: Part Two," 2024) joins the film's cast as a mysterious new character. Whoever she is, she's fearless if the way she talks to Tommy is any indication. She tells him how it is in the trailer, saying, "You live in a house haunted with ghosts of people who died because of you. You abandoned your kingdom and you abandoned your son."

Recast as Tommy's once long-lost son, Erasmus "Duke" Shelby, is Barry Keoghan ("Saltburn," 2023). Conrad Khan ("The Burning Girls") previously portrayed Duke in the sixth season of the series. Duke first connected with his father in the final few episodes of the series, having been born while Tommy was away at war. As Tommy tried to leave his life in the family business behind, Duke stepped in to fill his father's shoes.

Keoghan's Duke is now running the Blinders, taking advantage of the chaos of wartime Birmingham however he can. Like father, like son, the wealthy, influential ruler of the Blinders is yet again being courted by British fascists. Tim Roth ("Last King of the Cross") portrays historical figure John Beckett, a Labour Party politician who became a fascist sympathizer during the lead up to World War II.

Beckett attempts to bring Duke in on a scheme that would be an act of treason and tip the war in Germany's favor. Without his father's sense of duty underlying his desire for ruthless enterprise, the offer sitting in front of Duke seems dangerous for the Blinders and for the country.

The film was written by series creator Steven Knight, who has been knocking out historic drama series left and right lately, from Netflix's "House of Guinness" to "A Thousand Blows" on Hulu and Disney+. Tom Harper ("Wild Rose," 2018) directed the movie, having also been behind the camera for three episodes of the first season of "Peaky Blinders" back in 2013.

Everyone involved in the project is remaining tight-lipped when it comes to specific details about what to expect from "Peaky Blinders: The Immortal Man," but what we know of history, together with a little tease from the writer, gives fans something to go on.

Birmingham was one of the most heavily bombed cities in the United Kingdom during World War II, targeted because of its vital manufacturing industry. Given that there were also real historical events woven into the events of the original series, combined with the return of Hayden Stagg, it seems likely that the Shelbys will be at the center of the action yet again.

About the broad strokes of the upcoming film, Knight told Tudum, "The country is at war, and so, of course, are our Peaky Blinders." He added, "It will be an explosive chapter in the 'Peaky Blinders' story. No holds barred. Full-on 'Peaky Blinders' at war."

There is no telling how exile has changed Tommy. The series began with him reeling from his experience digging tunnels and engaging in tense, underground hand-to-hand combat in France during the First World War, resorting to opium to quell PTSD symptoms despite being named a war hero. Always unpredictable, often violent and perpetually a step ahead of his foes, Tommy faces another world war as the so-called immortal man.

Don't miss the premiere of "Peaky Blinders: The Immortal Man" when it drops Friday, March 20, on Netflix.

'Property Brothers' return with brand-new house hunting series

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Property buying pros: In "Property Brothers," Drew and Jonathan Scott set out to help couples find "fixer-upper" homes to be renovated into something spectacular. Now, the brothers hope to help potential homeowners far and wide, as they detail the gritty and rewarding process of homebuying — from beginning to end — in their new series "Property Brothers: Under Pressure," making its debut Sunday, March 15, on HGTV, and streaming on HBO Max.

"Whether they're weary of the commitment, in need of a pro to help them make the most informed decisions or grappling with the big-ticket purchase, these homebuyers are searching for expert advice — and that's why Drew and Jonathan are there to help," explains a press release shared on drewandjonathan.com.

In this 14-episode first season, the brothers plan to guide prospective buyers through the ups and downs of finding, purchasing and renovating homes, offering sage advice as they navigate competitive markets, sticker shock, wish lists, financial strains and the never-ending emotional roller coaster of buying a home. Once a deal is made and the right home is purchased, the brothers stick around to help new homeowners through any renovations they might need, offering smart design solutions and creative fixes that won't break the bank.

In the upcoming series premiere, for example, Drew and Jonathan help AJ and Carin, who lost everything in the devastating Los Angeles fires of 2025. The couple asks for the brothers' help in finding their fresh start, and once they find a winning piece of property,

Drew and Jonathan Scott of "Property Brothers: Under Pressure"

Drew and Jonathan assist AJ and Carin with some much-needed updates — even overhauling the property's detached rental unit so it can be used as a source of income in the future. While the process isn't easy, the brothers get the job done.

"We're very honest and up front with clients about how challenging the house hunt can be," Jonathan shares in the aforementioned statement. "We encourage them to see past a home's current state and envision its untapped potential, which can be tough. But when the ideal property pops up, they've got to be ready to make an offer and then trust us to create a design that fits their family's needs."

Drew adds: "It can be hard to find something move-in ready, which is why we look for the diamond in the rough that we can turn into an amazing home with the right renovation."

With both Drew and Jonathan acting as series producers, "Property Brothers: Under Pressure" premieres Sunday, March 15, on HGTV and HBO Max.

RHCP remembers: Before the Red Hot Chili Peppers, there was Tony Flow and the Miraculously Majestic Masters of Mayhem, a band featuring Anthony Kiedis, Flea, Hillel Slovak and Jack Irons, forged in the hot and electric world of 1980s Los Angeles. But soon, the iconic band found its name and footing, becoming the Chili Peppers we know today.

Relive the early days of the eponymous band through the legacy of late guitarist Slovak, in director Ben Feldman's ("Rich & Shameless") new documentary — "The Rise Of The Red Hot Chili Peppers: Our Brother, Hillel," premiering Friday, March 20, on Netflix.

While Slovak didn't appear on the band's 1984 debut album — aptly called "The Red Hot Chili Peppers," and featuring guitarist Jack Sherman — he returned as a full-fledged member of the band shortly after the album's release, and went on to play on some of the Chili Peppers' most beloved early LPs, including 1985's "Freaky Styley" and 1987's "The Uplift Mofo Party Plan," which featured iconic tracks such as "Fight Like a Brave," "Funky Crime" and "Me and My Friends."

Shortly after the Uplift tour came to an end, however, Slovak lost his battle with addiction and died of an overdose in June 1988. Slovak was first replaced by P-Funk guitarist DeWayne "Blackbyrd" McKnight and then, finally, by John Frusciante — but die-hard fans of the Chili Peppers will never forget the singular sound of Slovak.

According to Variety, Feldman's upcoming documentary will expand further on Slovak's time with the band, featuring interviews with two of the Red Hot Chili Peppers' co-founders, bassist Flea and singer Kiedis, who reflect on their career, their music and "the deep bond they formed playing in high school bands."

"It's a true honor to partner with Netflix to bring 'The Rise of the Red Hot Chili Peppers' to a global audience," says Feldman. "At its heart, this is a deeply relatable story — about the friendships that shape our identities and the lasting power of the bonds forged in adolescence. What's less relatable, of course, is that here those friends went on to create one of the greatest rock bands in history. I'm profoundly grateful to the band and to Hillel's family for their trust and generosity, and to Netflix for helping bring this story to the world stage."

Produced in association with Slovak's brother, James, "The Rise Of The Red Hot Chili Peppers: Our Brother, Hillel," premieres Friday, March 20, on Netflix.

"BTS: The Comeback Live | Arirang"

The world's biggest band reunites when "BTS: The Comeback Live | Arirang" premieres Saturday, March 21, on Netflix. After nearly four years apart during their mandatory military service, BTS members RM, Jin, Suga, J-Hope, Jimin, V and Jung Kook reunite to begin working on their fifth studio album, "Arirang." Directed by Bao Nguyen ("Nikki Glaser: Someday You'll Die"), the special captures the group as they return to a shared creative space shaped by time, distance and personal change. Cameras follow intimate studio sessions, quiet moments of reflection and the live performance that marks their long-awaited comeback. As they revisit their past and confront an uncertain future, the members rediscover what brought them together — and what it will take to move forward as BTS. The special is executive produced by Kevin Hermanson ("Beauty and the Beast: A 30th Celebration") and Garrett English ("Global Citizen Festival").

"Beauty in Black" - Season 2, Part 2

Power isn't given, it's taken. Season 2 of Tyler Perry's ("Gone Girl," 2014) hit drama "Beauty in Black" returns to Netflix Thursday, March 19, with Part 2 following Kimmie (Taylor Polidore Williams, "Snowfall") as she makes more enemies within the Bellarie family — and beyond. After clashing with her most intimidating foe, Mallory (Crystle Stewart, "For Better or Worse"), in Part 1, Kimmie steps further into her new role, while her relationship with Mallory becomes more challenging. But as new enemies threaten the Bellarie empire, "survival starts to matter more than rivalry" (per Tudum). As such, Kimmie and Mallory must put aside their differences and confront a looming threat that could destroy everything they've ever worked for. Debbi Morgan ("All My Children"), Ricco Ross ("Aliens," 1986) and Richard Lawson ("Streets of Fire," 1984) also star.

"The Plastic Detox" (2026)

How worried should we all be about microplastics? Premiering on Monday, March 16, Netflix's new documentary "The Plastic Detox" reveals how "everyday items can affect health and fertility — and how small changes can help" (per Tudum). Directed by Louie Psihoyos ("You Are What You Eat: A Twin Experiment"), cameras follow six couples confronting unexplained fertility struggles, each wondering whether something unseen is standing in their way. Guided by environmental and reproductive epidemiologist Shanna H. Swan — whose research has examined declining sperm counts and chemical exposure — the couples commit to a rigorous three-month experiment to dramatically reduce everyday contact with plastic-related chemicals. They swap out household staples, rethink food storage and scrutinize beauty products, tracking changes in health markers along the way. But their personal journeys widen into a global investigation. The film connects microplastics and petrochemical production to broader public health questions, spotlighting communities resisting new industrial plants and designers attempting to purge synthetic fibers and toxic dyes from fashion. From executive producers Tiffany Boyle ("Oh, Canada," 2024) and David Fialkow ("Retrograde," 2022), "The Plastic Detox" asks a pressing question: In a world saturated with plastic, how much control do we really have over what enters our bodies?

Debbi Morgan and Richard Lawson in "Beauty in Black"

"Deadloch" - Season 2

A haunting case in Australia's sweltering Top End pulls two mismatched detectives back into danger when "Deadloch" returns Friday, March 20, for Season 2 on Prime Video. Detectives Dulcie Collins (Kate Box, "Wentworth") and Eddie Redcliffe (Madeleine Sami, "Super City") reunite in this new season to investigate the death of Eddie's former policing partner, but their focus shifts when human remains surface in the remote outpost of Barra Creek, leaving Dulcie and Eddie to solve the case. As they work to identify John Doe, their investigation begins to uncover what someone in this tight-knit community is desperate to keep hidden. Nina Oyama ("You're Skitting Me"), Alicia Gardiner ("Offspring") and Luke Hemsworth ("Westworld") co-star, with series creators Kate McCartney ("The Katering Show") and Kate McLennan ("Bleak: The Web Series") returning as executive producers.

"Invincible" - Season 4

The cost of being a hero can come at a deadly price. Based on the comic book series by Robert Kirkman

Saturday, March 14, 2026

("The Walking Dead"), Prime Video's "Invincible" returns Wednesday, March 18, for Season 4. As the world recovers from catastrophe, this new season follows Mark Grayson (voiced by Steven Yeun, "Nope," 2022) as he struggles with the responsibility of being Invincible. Still haunted by his father Omni-Man's (J.K. Simmons, "Juno," 2007) legacy and the growing threat of the Viltrum Empire, Mark is forced to confront enemies more powerful and more ruthless than ever before. Now, Mark must decide how far he's willing to go to protect the people he loves. With humanity's future hanging in the balance, Mark's choices will define not only the hero he becomes but the fate of the entire planet. The voice cast also includes Sandra Oh ("Grey's Anatomy"), Seth Rogen ("Pineapple Express," 2008), Jeffrey Dean Morgan ("The Walking Dead") and Matthew Rhys ("The Beast in Me"), with David Alpert ("Powers") attached as an executive producer.

"Jury Duty Presents: Company Retreat"

From the executive producers of "The Office" and "Bad Teacher," Season 2 of Lee Eisenberg and Gene Stupnitsky's "Jury Duty" — subtitled "Company Retreat" — premieres Friday, March 20, on Prime Video with its first three episodes. This new season of the documentary-style comedy follows Anthony, a recently hired temp attending a company retreat for a family-owned hot sauce business. Unbeknownst to him, the entire experience is staged, and every colleague around him is playing a role. As the founder prepares to step down, the retreat becomes a turning point, with competing visions for the company's future beginning to surface. From meetings to off-hours bonding, Anthony's genuine reactions shape the story as he's drawn into a carefully orchestrated workplace experiment where nothing is quite what it seems. Nicholas Hatton ("Who Is America?") returns as an executive producer.

Duff Goldman looks for the Ultimate Baker in all-new competition

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

The battle of the bakers continues with the latest addition to the Baking Championship franchise. Turning up the competitive heat to a 10, the new series "The Ultimate Baking Championship" airs a new episode Monday, March 16, on Food Network.

Led by host Jesse Palmer ("The Bachelor") and lead judge Duff Goldman ("Ace of Cakes"), this fledgling series sees 16 of America's most talented pastry chefs entering a grueling competition that pushes its participants to their limit.

"The chefs must innovate and execute at the highest level to determine who has the skill, vision and endurance to rise above the rest in a celebration of pastry and baking artistry," promises Food Network, as they tackle "laminated doughs and pate a choux, chocolate work, sugar artistry, intricate cakes and precision-plated desserts," in weekly challenges featuring larger-than-life edible displays. In the end, the competition's most skilled baker will earn $50,000 and the title of Ultimate Baking Champion.

Throughout the season, Goldman is also joined by impressive guest judges such as chefs Bryan Ford ("Blue Ribbon Baking Championship"), Amaury Guichon ("Desert Masters"), Shinmin Li ("Halloween Wars"), Jacques Torres ("Nailed It!"), Sherry Yard ("Super Mega Cakes"), Molly Yeh ("Girl Meets Farm") and Zac Young ("Unique Sweets"), who share their expertise following each and every challenge.

"The pastry chefs competing are the best of the best — they are true artists whose desserts are mind-blowingly beautiful and delicious," said Betsy Ayala, Warner Bros. Discovery head of food content, in a statement. "'The Ultimate Baking Championship' chefs elevate pastry technique and artistry to the highest level we've ever seen."

In last week's series premiere, Palmer welcomed the first season's impressive competitors. After the teams were split into two groups, the bakers were asked to create a dessert centered around one of four tastes: sweet, sour, salty or bitter.

Food Network's description of the episode shared: "Each baker must craft an elevated plated dessert in their signature style inspired by their assigned profile to present to judges Duff Goldman and Sherry Yard. After several eliminations, the remaining bakers advance to the Master Challenge, where the chefs must create a dessert inspired by the roots of their baking journey."

Now, the bakers continue their fight, battling it out to see who's best of the best in the next episode of "The Ultimate Baking Championship," which airs Monday, March 16, on Food Network.

Tuesday Best Bets

Bella Abzug is the subject of "American Masters"

Best Medicine

(12) 7:00 PM
Dr. Martin Best (Josh Charles) enjoys being alone. Unfortunately, he lives in Port Wenn, Maine, where the local residents seem determined to involve him with all their personal chaos, feuds and ailments. Practicing medicine can only get him so far.

NCIS

(3) 8:00 PM
There ain't no rest for the wicked — and there won't be any for Agent Alden Parker (Gary Cole), either, as he leads his talented team of Naval Criminal Investigative agents in solving crimes of espionage, terrorism and more. Sean Murray also stars.

2026 World Baseball Classic

(44) 8:00 PM
After over a week of competition the two remaining teams will meet at Miami's LoanDepot Park to determine which nation is the best in the world at baseball. Back in 2023, Japan beat the United States to claim the World Baseball Classic crown.

High Potential

(12) (22) 9:00 PM
Single mom and cleaner Morgan (Kaitlin Olson) is tapped by Det. Adam Karadec (Daniel Sunjata) to help solve difficult crimes once it's discovered that she has a remarkable ability to sort and order clues in such a way that she finds the guilty party.

Wednesday Best Bets

Sarah Chalke, Zach Braff and Donald Faison star in "Scrubs"

Scrubs

(12) 7:30 PM

From the medicine to the interns, many things have changed since old friends J.D. (Zach Braff) and Turk (Donald Faison) last scrubbed together. However, their bromance stands the test of time in this revival of the beloved 2000s medical sitcom.

Survivor

(3) 8:00 PM

Despite its beauty, being stranded on an island in Fiji isn't all fun and games, especially when there's $1 million on the line. As Season 50 continues, the remaining castaways use their wits and physical prowess to outlast each other. Jeff Probst hosts.

All Elite Wrestling: Dynamite

TBS 8:00 PM

As the dust settles on last Sunday's AEW Revolution pay-per-view, the wrestlers of AEW, including MJF, Willow Nightingale and Jon Moxley, prepare for another night of fierce competition, broadcasting live from the Save Mart Center in Fresno, Calif.

Chicago P.D.

(5) 10:00 PM

Sgt. Hank Voight (Jason Beghe) and his team from the Chicago P.D.'s Intelligence Unit take on the city's worst crimes — drug trafficking, organized crime, high-profile murders and other large-scale felonies — in an effort to keep residents safe.

"The Garfield Movie" (2024)

A lazy housecat leaps into an unexpectedly wild adventure when "The Garfield Movie" (2024) arrives on Hulu Saturday, March 21. Garfield (voiced by Chris Pratt, "Jurassic World," 2015), the lasagna-loving indoor cat famous for his sarcastic wit and love of naps, enjoys a comfortable life with his loyal canine friend Odie (Harvey Guillen, "Wish," 2023) and their well-meaning owner, Jon Arbuckle (Nicholas Hoult, "Warm Bodies," 2013). But when Garfield and Odie are kidnapped, the orange tabby comes face to face with someone he never expected to see again: his long-lost father, Vic (Samuel L. Jackson, "Pulp Fiction," 1994), a scruffy alley cat with a reputation for trouble. Before the awkward reunion can settle, the trio are dragged into a dangerous scheme orchestrated by Jinx (Hannah Waddingham, "Ted Lasso"), a vengeful Persian cat determined to settle an old score with Vic. To make things right, Garfield, Odie and Vic must pull off a risky heist at the heavily guarded Lactose Farms dairy facility. Along the way, they team up with Otto (Ving Rhames, "Pulp Fiction," 1994), a disgraced farm mascot who longs to rescue his beloved Ethel (Alicia Grace Turrell, "Blitz," 2024) from captivity. As the mission unfolds, Garfield begins to uncover the truth behind his father's disappearance — and discovers that family, however messy, might be worth fighting for. Directed by Mark Dindal ("Chicken Little," 2005), "The Garfield Movie" is written by David Reynolds ("Finding Nemo," 2003).

"Hot Milk" (2025)

A trip to Almeria puts a complicated mother-daughter relationship to the test when "Hot Milk" (2025) lands on Hulu this Tuesday, March 17. From writer-director Rebecca Lenkiewicz ("Colette," 2018) and based on the 2016 novel by Deborah Levy ("Swimming Home," 2024), the drama follows Sofia (Emma Mackey, "Barbie," 2023), a young woman whose life has long revolved around caring for her chronically ill mother, Rose (Fiona Shaw, "Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone," 2001). Hoping for answers, the pair travel to the sun-drenched seaside town of Almeria, Spain, where they seek treatment from the unconventional Dr. Gomez (Vincent Perez, "Queen Margot," 1994), a physician rumored to help patients with mysterious illnesses that defy traditional medicine. While Rose remains confined to a wheelchair and increasingly dependent on her daughter, Sofia meets Ingrid (Vicky Krieps, "Corsage," 2022), an alluring and enigmatic traveler who awakens in Sofia a thrilling sense of freedom she has never known. As Sofia pulls away from her mother and spends more time with Ingrid, the fragile balance of their relationship begins to unravel, and the arrival of people like Julieta (Patsy Ferran, "Mickey 17," 2025) and Matthew (Yann Gael, "1899") only complicates matters ... pushing mother and daughter toward a volatile emotional reckoning.

"Lords of Dogtown" (2005)

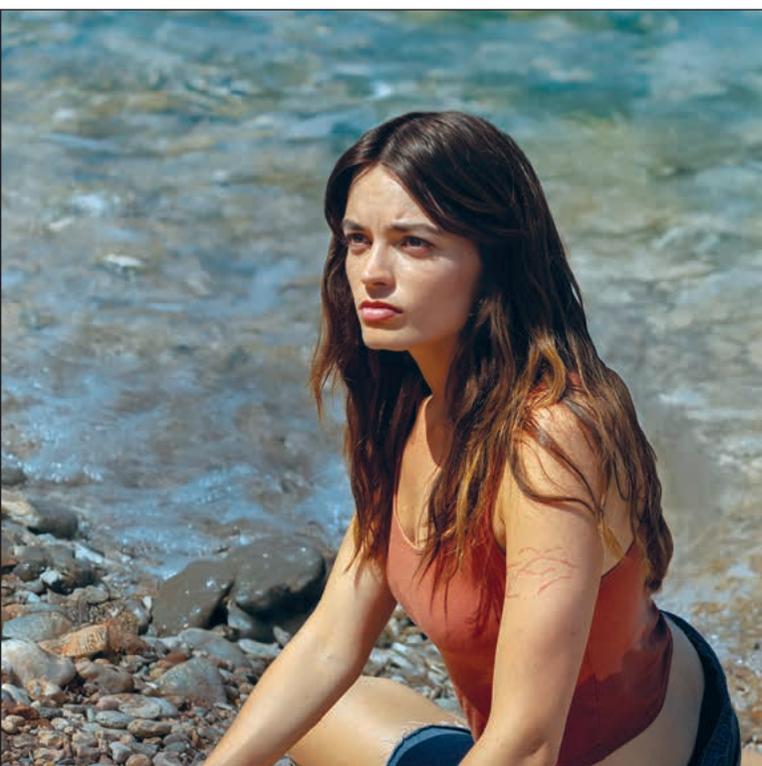

From "Twilight" (2008) director Catherine Hardwicke, 2005's "Lords of Dogtown" brings to life the true story of the legendary Z-Boys. Available now on Hulu, the film follows teenagers Stacy Peralta (John Robinson, "Elephant," 2003), Tony Alva (Victor Rasuk, "Godzilla," 2014) and Jay Adams (Emile Hirsch, "Once Upon a Time in... Hollywood," 2019), whose love of surfing and skating begins to shape a cultural revolution. Under the guidance of their mentor, Skip Engblom (Heath Ledger, "A Knight's Tale,"

Garfield in "The Garfield Movie"

2001), the boys form the Zephyr skate team and begin experimenting with a daring new style that mimics surfing waves — only on pavement. When a severe drought in Southern California has people emptying their swimming pools, the teens sneak into them to practice gravity-defying tricks ... and their fearless performances quickly capture attention at competitions, turning the rebellious Dogtown skaters into rising stars. But as fame and sponsorship deals arrive, success begins to pull the once-tight group in different directions, testing their friendship along the way. "Lords of Dogtown" is written by Stacy Peralta ("Dogtown and Z-Boys," 2001), with David Fincher ("Zodiac," 2007) serving as an executive producer.

Gordon Ramsay stars in "Love's Kitchen"

the sitcom "New Girl."

The most notable example is probably "Love's Kitchen," a 2011 rom-com about a London chef (Dougray Scott, "Mission: Impossible II," 2000) opening a restaurant in a quiet village to pursue a lovely food critic (Claire Forlani, "Mystery Men," 1999) there. Ramsay played himself again, but his role was big enough to land his name on the poster.

Your question specifically asks about screen time, which would seem to rule out cartoons. But it's worth mentioning that he's done a fair bit of those — and not just playing himself.

He's done one-off spots on hit series such as "Big Hero 6," "Mickey and the Roadster Racers" and "Phineas and Ferb" over the years.

And, with a bit of a nod to his real-world persona, he lent his voice to the 2017 big-screen feature "Smurfs: The Lost Village," playing Baker Smurf.

Q: I know "Weapons" was sort of a breakout role for Julia Garner. What's she doing next?

A: It might be better to say 2025 was a breakout year for Julia Garner (previously of the buzzy drama series "Ozark"), though you might not have recognized her in her other big role.

Yes, she starred as the teacher whose students all disappear in the 2025 sleeper-hit horror film "Weapons," but she also had a central role in one of the biggest films of that year — "The Fantastic Four: First Steps."

She played beloved comic book character the Silver Surfer, but that meant being covered in layers of makeup and animation, so she wasn't immediately recognizable.

As for what's next, it looks like the much more down-to-Earth miniseries "The Altruists," a true financial crime story about cryptocurrency fraud. Filming wrapped on that late last year, but no release date has been announced yet.

Beyond that it's not clear what Garner will do next — she's attached to a few projects that haven't started production.

One of those stands out from the rest, just for intrigue factor: she's reportedly signed on to play pop legend Madonna in the biopic "Who's That Girl," which will be directed by Madonna ("Vogue") herself from a script she wrote with superstar screenwriters Diablo Cody ("Juno," 2007) and Erin Cressida Wilson ("The Girl on the Train," 2016).

The latest update on this came quite a long time ago, so there's no way to know when it will actually happen. But with so many big names actively involved, it seems like a lock to happen at some point.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Has Gordon Ramsay done any acting or is all his screen time in his reality shows?

A: Celebrity chef and famous shouter Gordon Ramsay ("Hell's Kitchen") has certainly appeared on a few things besides reality shows, but it wasn't necessarily acting.

Not because he wasn't good, but because he was still playing himself.

He's been famous in his native U.K. for longer, but when he broke into North America with the U.S. adaptation of "Hell's Kitchen" in 2005, he became a true hot commodity.

That meant being asked to riff on his reality TV persona on sitcoms and in films. This included, of course, an obligatory appearance on "The Simpsons" (in a 2011 episode called "The Food Wife") and a 2017 episode of
