Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

Donald Trump, he’s still out. He’s still flying around the world right now, collecting gifts wherever he goes. He’s like reverse Santa because you want to stay as far away from his lap as possible.

Trump’s day [Oct. 29] ended with a dinner featuring leaders from all over the world, including Canadian Prime Minister Mark Carney, which Trump responded to by posting, “We didn’t come to South Korea to see Canada.” ... Trump is mad at Carney over a Canadian anti-tariff commercial that had Ronald Reagan in it. Which is probably why according to attendees, Trump exchanged pleasantries with many of his counterparts but did not engage with the Canadian prime minister. Yeah, he gave Carney the cold shoulder, or as they call it in Canada, the shoulder.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Well, guys, today [Oct. 28] President Trump was in Tokyo, where he attended a meeting and ate lunch with the new prime minister of Japan. Yeah, the prime minister said it was her first time seeing someone dip their sushi in ketchup.

[President] Trump’s ballroom is still in the news. Yeah, and get this, Trump just raised the estimated cost of his new ballroom by $100 million to a total of $300 million. Americans are like, “Yeah, it’s nice to know that even the president can get ripped off on renovations.”

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

You know who apparently wasn’t on board with the plan to demolish the East Wing? Melania. Melania did not join the president for his trip to Asia and, according to the Wall Street Journal, is not a fan of his latest renovation. The first lady is said to have raised private concerns about building this ballroom, which I would have concerns about a room where I was expected to slow dance with Donald Trump, too.

The problem is Trump thinks this is his house, which it isn’t. When you stay at an Airbnb, you’re not allowed to blow out a wall. He’s not even a renter. He’s a guest, he thinks he’s O.J. [Simpson]. He’s actually Kato Kaelin.

By the way, according to Dictionary.com, the word of the year for 2025, they’ve already decided, is ‘67.’ They’re making numbers the Word of the Year. It’s like if People magazine named a roast beef sandwich Sexiest Man Alive.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

Tesla has issued a recall for more than 63,000 Cybertrucks because the front lights are too bright. Apparently, you can see people laughing at you from up to 300 yards away.

French police said they’ve been working around the clock to track down the suspects in last week’s Louvre jewelry heist. Working around the clock, or as it’s known in France, 10:30 to noon and then like 2 to 3:30.

The most wonderful time of the year: Get cozy with Hallmark holiday movies

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Warm up from the chill outside with cozy new holiday programs. 'Tis the season for Hallmark's latest set of seasonal love stories on Hallmark, including "An Alpine Holiday," airing Thursday, Dec. 4, and "Twelve Dates 'Til Christmas," premiering the next day, Friday, Dec. 5. Look for your seasonal favorites to stream on Hallmark+ post-broadcast.

The Hallmark festivities began all the way back in the middle of October, with new and favorite movies and series kicking off the holiday season early. Whether you haul out the decorations at the first sign of wintery weather or wait until Dec. 1, Hallmark has been ready to help set the holiday mood with near-daily premieres of seasonal programming.

The charm of the holiday season is turned up to the max with a destination celebration in a quaint village at the base of a mountain. In "An Alpine Holiday," once-estranged sisters are brought together by their grandmother's last wish. Faith (Ashley Williams, "The Jim Gaffigan Show") and Kelly (Laci J Mailey, "Chesapeake Shores") reunite in the frosty French Alps, sent there to recreate the trip of their grandmother's life: her first vacation with the sisters' grandfather.

Faith and Kelly repair their relationship while enjoying everything their alpine adventure has to offer. Helping the two experience their trip to the fullest is their handsome guide, Frederic (Julien Marlon Samani, "Tiny Beautiful Things"). Frederic and Kelly feel a spark on the mountain, making the voyage even more magical.

Next in the "Countdown to Christmas" lineup is a the first-ever holiday rom-com series from Hallmark, taking viewers across the pond. "Arrested Development" and "Parenthood" actress Mae Whitman stars as Kate in "Twelve Dates 'Til Christmas." Kate is successful in her career and surrounded by family and friends, living in the small town of Blexford, England.

Though Kate is busy with her Saville Row textile design business and caring for her father Mac (Nathaniel Parker, "The Vineyard"), who is on the mend from a motorbike accident, in her spare time, she feels like she is in a rut. This is where Kate's best friend, Laura (Lucy Eaton, "Staged"), steps in.

Seeing that her friend could use something to shake up her life, Laura signs Kate up for a holiday-themed matchmaking program, The 12 Dates of Christmas. With the help of Laura and their longtime friend Callum (Julian Morris, "Little Women"), Kate sets out on dates full of yuletide cheer, only to meet a match — a dashing dater portrayed by Toby Sandeman ("The Game").

Complicating this new development is a visit from Kate's mother. Delilah (Mary McDonnell, "The Fall of the House of Usher"), who divorced Mac long ago in favor of a life spent globe-trotting, pays a surprise holiday visit to her estranged family. Meanwhile, homebody Mac may have just met someone who gives him a reason to get out of the house in a local widow named Evelyn (Jane Seymour, "Harry Wild").

New episodes of the six-part miniseries air two at a time on Fridays, with the finale of "Twelve Dates 'Til Christmas" airing Friday, Dec. 19.

That's not all that Hallmark has to offer this holiday season. Other festive series continue their runs with new weekly episodes through mid-December.

Julien Marlon Samani stars in "An Alpine Holiday"

ber. The docuseries "Christmas at Sea" airs on Tuesdays and details the experience of Hallmark superfans as they set sail on a Christmas cruise to a tropical destination alongside Hallmark stars such as Jonathan Bennett ("Season's Greetings From Cherry Lane," 2024) and Sarah Drew ("Mistletoe Murders").

Mondays are for the competitors on Hallmark. In the reality competition series "Finding Mr. Christmas," Hallmark leading man hopefuls compete for a chance to star in their own romance movie. Hosted by Bennett with lead judge Melissa Peterman ("Happy's Place"), holiday hunks are put through their paces, testing their abilities to help load Santa's sleigh or banter with their leading lady on horseback and whittling down the pool of dreamboats in weekly eliminations, all in the name of crowning a new TV movie love interest. Season 1 winner Ezra Moreland starred in the 2024 movie "Happy Howlidays."

Following the star-making competition show is something a little sweeter. "Baked With Love: Holiday" sees 10 teams of two compete in a bake-off, putting their finest family recipes up on the judges table. Tamera Mowry-Houselley (whose 2025 Hallmark holiday movie offering, "Tidings for the Season," is available to stream on Hallmark+) hosts the series alongside the judges — chef Anna Haugh ("Anna Haugh's Big Irish Food Tour") and NYT Cooking producer Vaughn Vreeland, who's done the morning show food segment rounds with appearances on "Good Morning America" and "Today" — who provide their expert tasting notes.

There is even more to stream, including a new installment of the beloved Hallmark film series "Three Wisest Men." The third in the set after the 2022 film "Three Wise Men and a Baby" and last year's "Three Wiser Men and a Boy," the new film follows the three Brenner brothers — Luke (Andrew Walker, "Adventures in Love & Birding," 2025), Taylor (Tyler Hynes, "Letterkenny") and Stephan (Paul Campbell, "Turner & Hooch") — on another holiday adventure. This time, they're holding one last family Christmas in their childhood home before it goes up for sale.

Get into the holiday spirit with two Hallmark originals — "An Alpine Holiday," airing Thursday, Dec. 4, and the "Twelve Dates 'Til Christmas" series premiere, airing Friday, Dec. 5 — on Hallmark.

Reflections on stardom: Clooney, Sandler share screen time in Baumbach epic 'Jay Kelly'

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

There is a saying in the film industry that "every movie is a miracle." While most recently used as the title of a 2025 book co-authored by veteran Boston Herald journalist Nat Segaloff and film critic Leonard Maltin, the sentiment behind the phrase rings true for many involved in a film's production. As such, it comes as no surprise that Hollywood loves films about films and filmmaking. And indeed, who doesn't love to see themselves represented on screen?

In "Jay Kelly," the newest film from four-time Oscar nominee Noah Baumbach ("Marriage Story," 2019), esteemed actor and eternal heart-throb George Clooney ("Michael Clayton," 2007) gets a chance to relive some of his own finest moments while wearing the shoes of the titular leading man. With his manager, Ron, played by funnyman Adam Sandler ("Spanglish," 2004), at his side, fictional Hollywood favorite Jay Kelly "embarks on a journey of self-discovery, confronting both his past and present" (per Netflix).

"Jay Kelly" is now playing in select theaters and begins streaming Friday, Dec. 5, on Netflix.

When it comes to visual storytelling, writer/director Baumbach — who has previously been lauded for his work penning "The Squid and the Whale" (2005) and "Barbie" (2023), among others — holds stock in the fact that actors serve as blank slates to reflect the viewers' lives and dreams back at them in a meaningful way.

"Movie stars are our avatars," Baumbach told Vanity Fair in an August interview. "They are people that we invest in and project onto and live through. ... That was in the DNA of what this thing should be: What if a movie star was essentially playing one, and reflecting back our own vulnerabilities and our own questions about life?"

Casting Clooney as the movie star in question is a key decision for the film, as several adults and children will have grown up with the A-lister releasing a plethora of films. From the "E.R." in the 1990s to "O Brother, Where Art Thou" (2000) and the

George Clooney and Adam Sandler in "Jay Kelly"

Ocean's franchise at the turn of the millennium and, more recently, everything from "Wolfs" (2024) to Nespresso commercials, there is no denying that Clooney is one of the most recognizable Western actors working today.

Baumbach, alongside co-writer and actress Emily Mortimer ("Match Point," 2005), uses Clooney's fame to the film's advantage by attempting to craft a piece that simultaneously reflects the nuance and cultish nature of a glorified Hollywood lifestyle while also revealing the humanity of the title actor himself, who is plagued by the same loneliness, uncertainty and eternal questioning that so many people face throughout their lives.

But despite Kelly's on-screen struggle to parse his personal failures amid global career success, Clooney told CBS reporter Seth Doane that he does not personally relate to his character's inability to move beyond his setbacks and disappointments.

"What I know in life is you can live with failure: 'I tried this, it didn't work out,'" Clooney shared during an interview with Doane in Venice, Italy, where the film premiered. "What you can't live with is regret. Jay Kelly is filled with regret. I mean, if I get hit by a bus tomorrow, I have no regrets. I've certainly made mistakes. I've certainly done some dumb things. But I took a big bite at the apple, and I really took big swings."

Thankfully, Kelly has his caring manager, Ron, at his side to hype him up and guide him through some of his darkest reflections and regrets, which begin to consume him shortly after his daughter (Grace Edwards, "Asteroid City," 2023) leaves home for Paris. Played by Sandler in a manner both comedic and grounded, Ron is, in many ways, an extension of Kelly and the fame the two of them created over their years together in Tinseltown. Likewise, Ron's relative invisibility next to his star offers its own comment on the more rapid side of the industry, something Oscar winner Laura Dern's ("Jurassic Park," 1993) character, Liz, highlights in the film.

"It only goes one way," says Liz, Kelly's publicist and Ron's one-time romantic interest, adding, "No one wants to say it, but it does. We aren't to him what he is to us."

"Jay Kelly" is a two-hour showbiz epic featuring a sweeping score by Nicholas Britell, who composed the scores for HBO's "Succession" and the three-time Academy Award-winning film "Moonlight" (2016), with cinematography by Oscar winner Linus Sandgren ("La La Land," 2016).

Reba McEntire hosts 2025's Rockefeller tree lighting ceremony

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Country-fied Christmas: "With no less than 20 different specials, parades, films and musical events lined up, NBC is once again your destination for holiday programming," promises the network. With live, back-to-back airings of "Christmas in Rockefeller Center" and "Christmas in Nashville," NBC proves just that on Wednesday, Dec. 3.

To kick off a night of Christmas cheer, the live, two-hour special, "Christmas in Rockefeller Center," will be simulcast on Peacock, welcoming guests near and far to enjoy the celebration alongside this year's host — country music icon Reba McEntire ("Happy's Place"), who will also perform throughout the night.

While it's her first time hosting, it's also McEntire's first time visiting New York City in December, according to a recent interview the singer had with People. "I'm going to triple, quadruple layer," McEntire said, sharing how she'll cope with the probable cold weather. "I'll probably have my heated vest on, and all the clothes I can, insulated underwear."

As always, the special concludes with the lighting of the world-famous Rockefeller Center Christmas Tree, as part of a tradition that began in 1931. Last year, the tree in question was a 74-foot Norway spruce, sent to the Rockefeller Center from West Stockbridge, Massachusetts. This year's tree proves itself to be even more grand. Chosen by Rockefeller Center's head gardener, Erik Pauze, 2025's showstopper tops the charts at 75 feet tall. Hailing from a suburb of Albany, New York, the 75-year-old Norway spruce sat on a property owned by the Russ family for more than 60 years.

When the Christmas season ends, this massive tree's legacy will live on, as lumber from the conifer will be donated to Habitat for Humanity to be used in the construction of homes across the country.

"As soon as I saw it, I knew it was perfect," Pauze told The Center Magazine, Rockefeller Center's online publication.

While many traditionalists already have reminders set to tune in for the annual tree lighting, NBC has upped the ante for this yearly festive celebration, pairing it with the country music loving special "Christmas in Nashville," airing directly after the big celebration. Offering "dazzling performances and a night of music, magic and merrymaking straight from Music City" (per NBC), this country-loving special will end the night with good tunes and ample holiday cheer.

Light up the night with "Christmas in Rockefeller Center" and "Christmas in Nashville," airing back-to-back Wednesday, Dec. 3, on NBC.

A Past in Print: Explore the inner workings of one of the most culturally significant publications of all time with the debut of "The New Yorker at 100," a documentary making its debut Friday, Dec. 5, on Netflix.

Directed and produced by Academy Award-winning filmmaker Marshall Curry ("The Neighbors' Window," 2019) and narrated by Academy Award-winning actress Julianne Moore ("Boogie Nights," 1997), this special feature offers longtime readers and curious watchers a glimpse into the inner workings of this monumental magazine, which released its first issue in February 1925.

"The documentary follows editor David Remnick and his staff at The New Yorker as they work toward one of their most important deadlines yet: the magazine's 100th anniversary issue. 'The New Yorker at 100' takes viewers inside the magazine's downtown headquarters as well as the homes and haunts of its writers who live and work in its namesake city," explains a synopsis given by Netflix. "'The New Yorker at 100' brings viewers inside the workings of the magazine's peerless fact-checking department, lively story meetings and delightfully idiosyncratic cartoon selection process, documenting the journalistic integrity and intrepid creative spirit that fuel this celebrated institution."

While capturing the ongoing daily process of the magazine's writers, editors, fact-checkers, photographers and artists, the documentary also reflects on past editions of The New Yorker, utilizing archival footage, hard-hitting interviews with past contributors — such as theater critic Hilton Als, cartoonist Roz Chast and journalist Ronan Farrow — and discussions with a-list fans of the publication — including Jesse Eisenberg ("A Real Pain," 2024), Ronny Chieng ("Interior Chinatown") and Molly Ringwald ("The Breakfast Club," 1985) — as it explores a legacy that spans a century.

"I've been a reader of the magazine for most of my life," Curry said. "It's been thrilling to get to peek behind the curtain and witness the precision, thought and almost fanatical obsession that goes into crafting their stories, cartoons and covers."

From executive producers Judd Apatow ("This Is 40," 2012), Josh Church ("Land of the Lost," 2009), Helen Estabrook ("Whiplash," 2014), Sarah Amos ("World News Tonight with David Muir") and Michael Bonfiglio ("George Carlin's American Dream"), "The New Yorker at 100" premieres Friday, Dec. 5, on Netflix.

"The Abandons" - Season 1

Matriarchs rise and empires fall when Season 1 of "The Abandons" premieres Thursday, Dec. 4, on Netflix. Set in 1850s Washington, the series follows two families led by fierce matriarchs — one ruling through privilege, the other bound by loyalty — as they clash for control of a lawless land. When a corrupt alliance of wealth and power threatens to seize their territory, the families unite with outcasts and drifters to fight for survival and sovereignty. In a brutal world where the line between justice and vengeance blurs, every decision can mean life or death. Directed by Otto Bathurst ("Black Mirror") and Stephen Surjik ("The Witcher"), "The Abandons" is written by Kurt Sutter ("The Shield") and stars Gillian Anderson ("The X-Files"), Lena Headey ("Game of Thrones") and Ryan Hurst ("Remember the Titans," 2000).

"My Secret Santa" (2025)

From director Mike Rohl ("The Princess Switch," 2018), holiday magic comes disguised in red and white when "My Secret Santa" premieres Wednesday, Dec. 3, on Netflix.

lix. When single mom Taylor Jacobson (Alexandra Breckenridge, "This Is Us") learns her daughter (Madison MacIsaac, "Elevator Game," 2023) has been accepted to an elite snowboarding camp, she'll do anything to afford it — including posing as a jolly old man for a seasonal Santa gig at Sun Peaks resort. With the help of her loyal friends, Taylor's disguise works perfectly ... until she crosses paths with Matthew Layne (Ryan Eggold, "New Amsterdam"), the resort's charming manager. As sparks fly, Taylor must juggle her growing feelings with the secret behind her snowy alter ego. "My Secret Santa" is co-written by Carley Smale ("Falling in Love in Niagara," 2024) and Ron Oliver ("Christmas at the Plaza," 2019).

"Troll 2" (2025)

From deep within the mountains, a new terror awakens when "Troll 2" lands on Netflix Monday, Dec. 1. After surviving the first troll attack, paleontologist Nora Tidemann (Ine Marie Wilmann, "War Sailor," 2022), political strategist Andreas Isaksen (Kim S. Falck-Jorgensen, "Midsummer Night") and Maj. Kristoffer Holm (Mads Sjogard Pettersen, "Nord," 2009) face an even deadlier threat.

"Words + Music"

Some of music's biggest names share the stories behind their hits when "Words + Music" premieres Sunday, Nov. 30, on MGM+. "Words + Music" invites viewers into an intimate performance space where iconic musicians reveal the stories behind their most unforgettable songs. In front of small live audiences and nearly wraparound screens illustrating their tales, artists including Elvis Costello ("Veronica"), Sheryl Crow ("All I Wanna Do"), John Legend ("All of Me") and Alanis Morissette ("Hand in My Pocket") perform beloved hits while sharing personal insights, inspirations and memories that shaped their music. Filmed at Amazon MGM Studios' volume stage in Culver City, California, the series captures the emotion, artistry and storytelling that have made these performers legendary. Born from the acclaimed "Words + Music" podcast produced by Gunpowder & Sky and Audible, the show transforms semi-longform conversations into a visually engaging live experience, offering fans an intimate look at the people behind the songs.

"Oh. What. Fun." (2025)

Come for the presents. Stay for the baggage. "Oh. What. Fun." arrives on Prime Video this Wednesday, Dec. 3, where a last-minute holiday-mom contest takes one family's Christmas hilariously off-script. Claire Clauser (Michelle Pfeiffer, "The Theory of Everything," 2014) has always been the steady hand guiding her lively family through the whirlwind of the holidays — the cookies, the wrapped gifts, the color-coded schedules, all executed with cheerful precision. But after organizing a special outing for the whole family, she's stunned when her clan heads out without her — a mistake that leaves her feeling overlooked and exhausted after years of being the one who keeps everything running. Instead of waiting for their return, Claire heads out on her own and stumbles into the taping of The Zazzy Tims Show, where a spirited "Holiday Mom Contest" is underway. On a whim, she joins and quickly becomes an audience favorite ... and as her family scrambles across town to find her, Claire revels in a rare moment in the spotlight, rediscovering a sense of self beyond her holiday checklists and nagging children. From writer-director Michael Showalter ("The Idea of You," 2024), "Oh.

"The Merchants of Joy" (2025)

This holiday season, meet the families keeping New York's Christmas spirit alive when "The Merchants of Joy" arrives on Prime Video Monday, Dec. 1. In the heart of New York City, five families transform bustling streets into festive holiday hubs, working tirelessly to uphold a cherished tradition. "The Merchants of Joy" follows these passionate vendors as they source the perfect trees, manage seasonal sales and protect a family legacy that has been passed down for generations. The film captures the challenges of a fast-paced, ever-changing city, alongside the pride, grit and ingenuity required to make each season successful. Through the eyes of these Christmas diehards, experience the warmth and joy that one tree, one customer and one family can bring. Based on "Secrets of the Christmas Tree Trade," an article written by Owen Long for Epic Magazine, "The Merchants of Joy" is directed by Celia Aniskovich ("How to Fix a Drug Scandal"), with Todd Lubin ("The Insider," 1999) executive producing.

Gordon Ramsay embraces Christmas cheer in all-new, holiday-themed competition

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

While we're all counting down to Christmas, chef Gordon Ramsay ("Hell's Kitchen") has his latest competitors looking up. "Next Level Chef" gets a holiday makeover in the three-week special event "Next Level Baker," making its debut Thursday, Dec. 4, on Fox.

In this festive "Next Level" spinoff, Ramsay — who is joined by Food Network star Carla Hall ("Top Chef") and Sprinkles Cupcakes founder Candace Nelson ("Cupcake Wars") — welcomes bakers of all levels, from home bakers, to professionals, to social media stars, to explore the three-tier set built for "Next Level Chef," all decked out for this new baking competition.

With a $25,000 prize on the line, the bakers in question will be "challenged to create eye-popping festive holiday delights," says Fox. Split into three teams, the contestants will have Ramsay, Hall or Nelson as a coach, seeing the culinary superstars aiding their fledglings with the tasks at hand.

According to Yahoo, the "Next Level Chef" kitchen "has been transformed into a winter wonderland to capture the holiday spirit for the bakeoff, so there will be bakers in the basement level where the equipment leaves a lot to be desired; the middle level, which is an average kitchen; and then, the top level, which is state of the art."

As the competition progresses, the teams will experience all three kitchens, utilizing different tools and pieces of equipment as they whip up Christmas-themed cookies, cakes and more. After the weekly challenges are announced, the bakers must grab ingredients from a moving platform, transforming their choices into a five-star culinary masterpiece that proves the team's worthiness for the top-level kitchen.

"To me, there is nothing better than the smell of freshly baked bread," Ramsay said in an interview with Country and Townhouse. "I'm hoping on these holiday specials we get to discover incredible family recipes handed down through generations of bakers, inventive bakers cleverly working with dietary sensitivities and those with a talent for stunning creativity and elevated design work. This holiday season, I cannot wait to discover the baking heart of America."

Offering "Sugar, spice and even Gordon being nice" — according to the series' trailer — "Next Level Baker" premieres Thursday, Dec. 4, on Fox.

The Conjuring: Last Rites

In the late 1980s, Ed (Wilson) and Lorraine Warren (Farmiga) live a quieter life following the toll of their past encounters, having retired due to a decline in Ed's health. Their peaceful existence is shattered when the Church reaches out regarding an old case that was never fully closed — a haunting tied to a sacred relic with a history of unexplained deaths and associated possessions. Reluctantly, the Warrens agree to assist a young priest investigating strange phenomena at a rural parish in Pennsylvania. The consultation escalates into their most personal and perilous case yet, forcing the couple to confront forces that appear to know them intimately.

93rd Annual Christmas in Rockefeller Center

⑤ 8:00 PM

Nothing kicks off the Christmas season like the lighting of the Rockefeller Center Christmas Tree. Country music legend Reba McEntire hosts the 93rd annual edition of the two-hour event and plans to perform with a yet-to-be-announced all-star lineup.

Disney's A Christmas Carol

FREEFORM 9:00 PM

In this CG-animated adaptation of Charles Dickens' classic tale, the miserly Ebenezer Scrooge, voiced by Jim Carrey, must face uncomfortable truths about his life when three Christmas spirits take him on a journey through his past, present and future.

The Amazing Race

③ ⑫ 9:30 PM

The teams have been whittled down through poor planning, bad directions and questionable infighting. But as time winds down for the traveling teams, host Phil Keoghan is thinking it might be time for another roadblock before they give out $1 million.

NHL Hockey

TNT TRUTV 10:00 PM

The Utah Mammoth head to Honda Center in Anaheim, Calif., to take on the Anaheim Ducks in NHL action. The Mammoth have looked balanced in early season action, while the Ducks still have some kinks to work out if they want to get to the playoffs.

Steve Harvey hosts “Celebrity Family Feud”

Georgie & Mandy’s First Marriage

③ 8:00 PM

In-laws clash during this latest episode as Audrey (Rachel Bay Jones) and Mary’s (Zoe Perry) feud reignites when Georgie (Montana Jordan) needs help with the tire store. Meanwhile, a visit to the DMV causes Jim (Will Sasso) to confront his age.

Celebrity Family Feud

②② 8:00 PM

Steve Harvey hosts a special holiday episode of this celebrity-themed edition of the classic game show. This time, director Paul Feig and select cast members of “The Handmaid” battle it out with the stars of Bravo’s Real Housewives franchise.

Next Level Baker

④④ 9:00 PM

Gordon Ramsay is back with another new series, this time based on his latest hit, “Next Level Chef.” Passionate home bakers come together with social media creators and top professional pastry chefs to make seasonal treats that’ll make mouths water.

Law & Order: Organized Crime

⑤ 10:00 PM

Det. Elliot Stabler (Christopher Meloni), formerly of the Special Victims Unit, is taking on New York’s most powerful crime syndicates. He is joined on his crusade by Sgt. Ayanna Bell (Danielle Moné Truitt) and Det. Bobby Reyes (Rick Gonzalez).

In this next episode, Sheriff Fox (Morena Baccarin) begins investigating a brutal assault at Edgewater High, only to discover a disturbing web of secrets, lies and abuse of power all upheld by the institution. Matt Lauria and Amanda Arcuri also star.

Twelve Dates 'Til Christmas

HALL 8:00 PM

Designer Kate (Mae Whitman) lives next to her dad, Mac (Nathaniel Parker), who's divorced from her mother Delilah (Mary McDonnell). When a friend signs Kate up for a holiday-themed matchmaking event, her mother suddenly reappears, creating a merry mess.

Stumble

⑤ 9:45 PM

When top cheerleading coach Courtney Potter (Jenn Lyon) is fired by her school just one championship away from being the winningest coach ever, she stages her comeback at a school in a small southern town. But her team of misfits needs to stretch. A lot.

New York, New York

TCM 10:00 PM

From acclaimed director Martin Scorsese, this film follows the ups and downs of the relationship between aspiring saxophone player Jimmy Doyle (Robert De Niro) and small-time USO singer Francine Evans (Liza Minnelli) in post-war New York.

"The Great Christmas Light Fight" - Season 13

Make your festive season merry and bright, with the debut of "The Great Christmas Light Fight's" 13th season, coming to Hulu this Wednesday, Dec. 3, with two back-to-back premiere episodes. Led by lifestyle expert Carter Oosterhouse and interior designer Taniya Nayak, this annual competition showcases some of the most spectacular Christmas displays found across America. Each episode features four fantastic families who have decorated their homes to the extreme, featuring lights, larger-than-life animatronics and handcrafted displays. Each location is visited and judged by the series' hosts, and the episode concludes as Oosterhouse and Nayak return to present one lucky family with the highly coveted Light Fight trophy and a life-changing $50,000 grand prize. This season begins with the introduction of the Palusso, Greason, Jimenez, Irvin, Lunar and Kopatz families, who promise some fantastical decorations. While exact details on the displays have yet to be announced, fans can expect to be wowed, as previous seasons have seen a "Miracle on 34th Lane" display featuring over 80,000 lights, 20-ft Christmas trees, thousands of hand-painted flowers, family-run projects boasting 200,000 pixels, drive-in Santa meet-n-greets and more. "The Great Christmas Light Fight" is produced by Fremantle Entertainment.

"CMA Country Christmas"

Celebrate the holidays country style, with the return of "CMA Country Christmas," making its debut on Hulu and Disney+ this Wednesday, Dec. 3, after airing on ABC the night before. Hosted by Lauren Daigle ("You Say") and Jordan Davis ("Next Thing You Know"), this annual celebration is now in its 16th year on air, welcoming music fans across the country — and a live audience in Nashville, Tenn. — to indulge in a fun-filled evening of heartfelt music and seasonal entertainment. This year, artists expected to perform include Daigle and Davis, alongside Riley Green ("you look like you love me"), Lady A ("Need You Now"), Little Big Town ("Little White Church"), Parker McCollum ("Handle On You"), Megan Moroney ("Man on the Moon"), Preservation Hall Jazz Band ("Bourbon Street Parade"), Susan Tedeschi ("It Hurt So Bad"), Derek Trucks ("Ramblin' Man") and Bebe Winans ("It All Comes Down to Love"). A production of the Country Music Association, "CMA Country Christmas"

"The First Omen" (2024)

Acting as a long-awaited prequel to 1976's "The Omen," 2024's "The First Omen" makes its debut on Hulu this Sunday, Nov. 30. From director Arkasha Stevenson ("Channel Zero"), this continuation of David Seltzer's ("Damien") original screenplay sees a young, devout American novitiate, Margaret (Nell Tiger Free, "Servant"), moving to Rome in the early days of 1971. There, Margaret plans to take her vows, but instead finds herself surrounded by disturbing tragedies and confounding conspiracies. Father Brennan (Ralph Ineson, "The Witch," 2015) warns the woman that her life may be in danger, but his concern comes too late — Margaret is already tangled into a grand scheme, one involving shadowy figures who plan to initiate the era of the Antichrist. Sonia Braga ("Kiss of the Spider Woman," 1985), Tawfeek Barhom ("Mary Magdalene," 2018), Maria Caballero ("The Lady's Companion"), Charles Dance ("The Imitation Game," 2014), Bill Nighy ("Love Actually," 2003), Nicole Sorace ("Summer Limited Edition"), Ishtar Currie Wilson ("Lockwood & Co."), Andrea Arcangeli ("Martin Scorsese Presents: The Saints"), Dora Romano ("The Hand of God," 2021), Michelangelo Dalisi ("The Invisible Boy," 2014), Anton Alexander ("Exodus: Gods and Kings," 2014) and Mia McGovern Zaini ("House of Gucci," 2021) also star.

Hollywood Q&A

Q: Why are some of the songs used on "Dancing With the Stars" performed live, while others are recordings by the original artist? It's so inconsistent.

A: It depends who you ask, but the folks who make the show say it comes down to the specific needs of the performance.

According to "Dancing With the Stars" music director Ray Chew, it's often about really specific nuances that the pros want to bring out in the choreography.

"They're like, 'Well, I need to do a little movement on that,'" he told Us Weekly last year. "There's a lot of very, very specific things that they look for."

His job, then, is to emphasize those little moments in his live band's arrangement. And the pros are often providing "revisions and modifications" right up until showtime.

He's also often required to reinterpret a popular song to suit a totally different type of dance — a new skill he's had to develop for his "DWTS" role. "There was nothing previous to this show where I had to take the song 'Get Down On It' and make a rumba out of it."

On the other hand, executive producer Conrad Green ("Crime Scene Kitchen") said there are times when a live band simply can't reproduce what the performers like about the original recording.

"It took hundreds of hours in a studio to get some of those sounds," he told the Hollywood Reporter back in 2013. "So in some cases we're thinking, let's just use that song.

Q: What ever happened to Lorenzo Lamas? Is he still doing stuff?

A: "Doing stuff" is a great description of screen heartthrob Lorenzo Lamas's ("Baby Rock," 1984) late career. He has more credits on his resume for appearing as himself than he does for acting roles — so perhaps, when he finally retires, his greatest role will have been Lorenzo Lamas.

Fortunately, he's not done yet. He's had three roles this year alone.

He appeared in the Hallmark movie "Love in the Clouds" last May, and he did two action films, "Checkmate" and "President Down," both of which were released directly on the Tubi streaming platform.

He has a couple of other potential films on the go, though it's not clear which will come first, if any (they're all very much in the idea stage).

He first came to fame back in the '80s, for starring in the hit prime-time soap "Falcon Crest" and the schlocky-but-successful film series "Snake Eater," the first of which was released in 1989.

By that point, he had built up a recognized brand as a handsome tough guy that he's been trading on ever since.

That includes other films and shows, but also a lot of reality TV, such as the short-lived series "Leave it to Lamas," which aired in 2009 on the E! Entertainment channel, and the ABC competition series "Are You Hot? The Search for America's Sexiest People."
