Late Laughs

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

JD Vance headlined a fundraiser in Vegas last night [May 27]. Tickets were a million dollars a pop. Imagine, you have one night out in Vegas and that's what you go see. If I'm paying a million dollars to see JD Vance in Vegas, he better be on that stage, pants down, humping a sofa while Celine Dion sings the "Titanic" song to cheer him on.

I will tell you things are not looking pretty for Diddy right now. The court heard testimony today [May 27] from one of his former assistants, a woman named Capricorn Clark, who said on her first day on the job he told her, "If anything happens, I will have to kill you." Which is a heck of a way to say, "Welcome to the team." It's not a great orientation.

Kid Cudi testified. He said Diddy snuck into his house and unwrapped his family's Christmas presents, which I would very much like to see depicted in a Hallmark Channel holiday movie at some point.

Cudi also claimed Diddy blew up his Porsche with a Molotov cocktail, which is rude. Then they asked Capricorn Clark about this today and she said she had no idea how Diddy and his security guy broke into Kid Cudi's house, though considering everything we know about how much baby oil he used, he probably slid in through the mail slot.

This afternoon [May 28], Donald Trump granted a full and unconditional pardon to Todd and Julie Chrisley. They are reality TV stars just like him. He doesn't forget his roots.

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert (R)

Friends, we live in truly paradigm-shattering times, which is why I was not surprised to be shocked by how startled I was that, this week, California introduced a bill to recognize Bigfoot as the state's official cryptid. Well, that's strange and completely unnecessary; California already has a mystical furry creature — Randy Quaid.

If this bill passes, it will open the door for other states to officially celebrate their own local cryptids, like New Mexico's Jackalope, the New Jersey Devil and, of course, the most hideous beast of all — the New York Giuliani.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon (R)

Amazon just launched a new site dedicated to selling merchandise from hundreds of their shows. Amazon was like, "We have merch from all of our hit shows, like 'Reacher,' and, uh ... we got stuff from 'Reacher.'"

I saw that Levi's is selling the Dockers brand for nearly $400 million. Yes, they're looking for a buyer who loves Dockers but also has $400 million. I mean, that pretty much leaves Mitt Romney, doesn't it?

Trump just shocked Hollywood by announcing a 100% tariff on all movies and TV shows made in foreign lands. Going to be fun seeing the next "Lord of the Rings" filmed in Bayonne, New Jersey. ... If you don't like that, you could also watch "Emily in Des Moines."v

Under Pressure: L.A. task force prevents further terror in 'Countdown'

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

The countdown is on for the next action-packed, adrenaline-pumping thrill ride on Prime Video. Premiering Wednesday, June 25, on the streamer, "Countdown" stars "Supernatural's" Jensen Ackles and "All Rise's" Jessica Camacho as high-operating police officers assigned a deadly task that could save millions of innocent lives.

Helmed by Derek Haas, the creator behind hit shows such as "Chicago P.D" and "FBI: International," as well as the action films "Wanted" (2008) and "The Double" (2011), the flagship season of "Countdown" is a 13-episode thrill ride that brings viewers into the heart of the danger while smoothing the tension with a healthy dose of comedy — something fans of the 15-season CW series "Supernatural" are well acquainted with.

Likewise, those who have dabbled in Haas's other work will already know that he is no stranger to comedy-punctuated action himself, as he often leans toward gritty heroes who love their jobs — danger and all.

"I grew up loving action movies like 'Die Hard,' 'Lethal Weapon,' 'Rush Hour' and 'Beverly Hills Cop,'" Haas told Men's Health magazine during a first-look exclusive interview, adding, "so those wild character-based, set piece-based action thrillers are always in the back of my mind. I like it when the heroes have a bounce in their step and love their jobs, versus the depressed, I'm-haunted-by-what-I've-seen type of characters."

Jensen Ackles and Eric Dane in "Countdown"

And Ackles' character, Mark Meachum, certainly falls into that character category.

Described by Ackles himself as a "rogue L.A. detective, wrong-side-of-the-tracks kind of guy [who] takes risks that most people wouldn't take," the trailer shows that Meachum is recruited alongside other edgy and top-performing law enforcement officers to end an imminent terrorist plot that could wipe out a large portion of the city of Los Angeles. Referred to in the trailer as a "Chernobyl-level event" and "another 9-11," the endgame plan sees many false starts throughout its 13 episodes. The question remains, however: will the team of superstar agents be enough to stop a well-designed attack on one of the U.S.'s largest cities?

Joining Meachum in a string of metropolitan heroics are Amber Oliveras, a female agent toughened by years of having to prove herself on the force, played by "All Rise" and "Taken" star Jessica Camacho; Keyonte Bell, played by "The Boys'" and "Animal Kingdom's" Elliot Knight; Evan Shepherd, portrayed by Violett Beane of "The Flash" and Christopher Landon's 2025 horror thriller "Drop"; Lucas Finau, played by "Young Rock's" Uli Latukefu; and Nathan Blythe, the leading officer who recruited the other agents based on their track record, portrayed by "Grey's Anatomy's" so-called "McSteamy," Eric Dane.

According to Men's Health magazine, whose online writing team got first access to details about the series, "Countdown" tells the story of the six "undercover agents from across various branches of United States law enforcement" who have "been assembled to investigate the mysterious case of an officer with the Department of Homeland Security who was murdered in broad daylight without any suspects or leads. As they hunt for the killer, they begin to unravel a larger plot that could end with not only one dead victim — but millions of them."

The idea for a task force-based series reportedly came to Haas while he was working on another hit series, "Chicago P.D." Per Entertainment Weekly, it was the arc of "Chicago P.D." character Erin Lindsay (Sophia Bush, "One Tree Hill") that kickstarted Haas' fascination with task forces — namely their creation and structure.

"I found out it's kind of like an all-star team and it's got people from a bunch of different agencies," Haas said of the task force concept in an interview shared by Entertainment Weekly. "So you got DEA or NSA — or you could have somebody from the coast guard, secret service, detectives from local police departments, feds — and they're on a particular mission."

In the same interview, Haas shares that the dynamic between the agents is really what drives "Countdown" and sets it apart from other procedural action series.

"Putting this disparate group together and then emphasizing different strengths is what makes the show," says Haas. "And watching as they come together as a team, I think that's what the viewers are going to find really interesting."

Of course, with Ackles as series star, there is a healthy dose of comedy and sarcasm peppered into the action. Word has it there is likely to be a romantic component or two as well, although the details on that particular aspect of the plot have yet to be shared in any meaningful way. That said, based on Haas's cheeky declaration that "the triangle" is his "favorite shape" (reported by Entertainment Weekly), it seems likely that viewers are in for some will-they-or-won't-they tension and a bit of romantic complication within the task force.

Written and showrun by Haas, series direction for "Countdown" is provided by Jonathan Brown ("FBI: International"), Lisa Robinson ("New Amsterdam"), Avi Youabian ("All American"), Rashidi Natara Harper ("Hip Hop Uncovered"), Nina Lopez-Corrado ("Perry Mason"), Tess Malone ("Law & Order: Organized Crime") and Eric Stoltz ("Madam Secretary").

Don't miss the mark — "Countdown" premieres Wednesday, June 25, on Prime Video.

New money talks: The Russells make moves in new season of 'The Gilded Age'

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

In the culture of excess that defined 1880s New York high society, marriages among the wealthy were business decisions of as much importance as those made in any industrialist's office.

"The Gilded Age" returns for its third season, premiering Sunday, June 22, on HBO and streaming on HBO Max. In the upcoming season, love is in the air, or at least the Russells' matchmaking schemes are floating around 61st Street, and families are finding fault with suitors all over the city.

"Happiness is a byproduct of a well-ordered life," Bertha Russell (Carrie Coon, "The White Lotus") opines over the official trailer for the new season. "Marriage is a real opportunity. You can influence politics, shape events. You can have powerful, interesting lives," the new money queen of the Upper East Side says from experience.

Last season, after her relationship with publisher T. Thomas Fortune (Sullivan Jones, "Elsbeth") became devastatingly complicated and her controversial article helped halt the educational board's quiet closure of Black schools, Peggy Scott (Denée Benton, "UnREAL") made the emotional decision to part ways with The Globe.

With those challenges behind her, Peggy is about to jump into a new dilemma. This season, Dr. William Kirkland (Jordan Donica, "Charmed"), a handsome Newport doctor, comes into Peggy's life and sweeps her off her feet. It's not as simple as just falling in love, however, as the doctor comes with his own set of disapproving family members ready to take aim at Peggy's ambition.

Following a devastating loss in the battle of the operas and a long-running feud with the new money across the street, Agnes van Rhijn (Christine Baranski, "Nine Perfect Strangers") faces conflict even closer to home this season — from inside the house, to be exact. Threatened with financial ruin from a woeful decision her son, Oscar (Blake Ritson, "The Crown"), made, Agnes prepared for the worst last season until a hidden letter changed everything.

There is a new lady of the van Rhijn house. Ada Forte (Cynthia Nixon, "And Just Like That..."), Agnes' sister, discovered that her recently deceased husband had left her complete control of his untouched inherited fortune, allowing the widowed sisters to keep their home with their niece Marian Brook (Louisa Jacobson, "Materialists," 2025). Though everyone technically answers to Ada now, that doesn't mean that Agnes has to accept it.

Meanwhile, the Russell children, Larry (Harry Richardson, "Poldark") and Gladys (Taissa Farmiga, "American Horror Story"), are well aware of their mother's plans for them. However, they may have romantic ideas of their own.

Larry recently got into the clock business with a member of a rival house's staff, Jack Treacher (Ben Ahlers, "The Last of Us"), at the end of last season, taking a small step away from his railway tycoon father George Russell's (Morgan Spector, "The Plot Against America") overbearing influence on his career. It was just one small step away from the Russell residence and toward the van Rhijn's across the street that Larry made in last season's finale.

Marian has come a long way since she first arrived in New York from Doylestown, Pennsylvania. Sent to live with her aunts after her father's death, Marian's modern approach to life has ruffled feathers in their social circle, no one more so than Agnes.

Leaving an appropriate match and the promise of an easy life of luxury on the table, Marian chose instead to pursue her passion for teaching before settling down. Unattached, Marian sees her friend Larry in a different light on her front steps after the Met's inaugural opera, and the two share a kiss, either uniting the two warring households or fanning the flames.

Gladys, naive and not exactly poised to stand up against her mother's wishes, ended last season engaged to a Duke as part of Bertha's strategy to secure an audience for the Met's opening night. The teaser trailer features Gladys looking worried in several locales, perhaps feeling like her time is nearly up to object to her mother's wishes.

Also returning to the cast are Audra McDonald ("The Good Fight") as Dorothy Scott; John Douglas Thompson ("Mare of Easttown") as Arthur Scott; Nathan Lane ("Mid-Century Modern") as Ward McAllister; Jack Gilpin (Billions") as Church; Simon Jones ("Downton Abbey," 2019) as Bannister; Debra Monk ("New Amsterdam") as Armstrong; and Taylor Richardson ("The Time Traveler's Wife") as Bridget.

Joining the cast this season are Victoria Clark ("Almost Family") as Joan Carlton; Jessica Frances Dukes ("Earth Abides") as Athena Trumbo; LisaGay Hamilton ("Will Trent") as Frances Ellen Watkins Harper; Andrea Martin ("Evil") as Madame Dashkova; Brian Stokes Mitchell ("Up Here") as Frederick Kirkland; Hattie Morahan ("Outnumbered") as Lady Sarah Vere; Paul Alexander Nolan ("Hudson & Rex") as Alfred Merrick; Leslie Uggams ("Fallout") as Mrs. Ernestine Brown; Merritt Wever ("Nurse Jackie") as Monica O'Brien; Bill Camp ("Zero Day") as JP Morgan; and Phylicia Rashad ("Empire") as Mrs. Elizabeth Kirkland.

Get ready to tune in to another thrillingly gossipy season of everyone's favorite slow drama when "The Gilded Age" premieres Sunday, June 22, on HBO and HBO Max.

'The Ultimatum: Queer Love' returns for second season

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

AJ and Britney star in "The Ultimatum: Queer Love"

Marry or move on: For some, a walk down the aisle sounds like a dream come true. For others, it sounds like a death march. Season 2 of "The Ultimatum: Queer Love" premieres Wednesday, June 25, on Netflix, putting six queer relationships to the ultimate test.

With JoAnna Garcia Swisher ("Sweet Magnolias") returning as host, this second season follows in its predecessor's footsteps, joining a group of women and nonbinary individuals — all in prior relationships where one person wants to get married and one does not — as they face a be-all, end-all ultimatum: to get hitched, or break up for good.

"In just over eight weeks, each couple will either get married or get out after they each choose new potential partners in a life-changing opportunity to get a glimpse of two different futures," the series' synopsis reads. "First, the couples split up to date and get to know the other newly single women and nonbinary participants. Then, each must make a choice of whom — besides their original partner — they'd like to enter a trial marriage with. After living together as trial spouses for three weeks, all the participants meet back up at the changeover, where they get back together with their original partners. Following another three-week trial marriage, each person must decide if they're ready for the real thing. Will they get engaged to their original partner or pursue a relationship with their first trial spouse? Or will they choose to leave the experiment alone?"

This season, fans are introduced to couples like AJ and Britney, who have been together for five years but can't seem to agree on their priorities; Haley and Pilar, who have been inseparable for nearly a decade; and Dayna and Magan, a couple navigating different timelines nearly two years into their relationship. With six couples participating, some feel certain in their choice of partner and are ready to say "I do," while others staunchly believe that a lifetime commitment isn't necessary for their relationship to thrive.

"We all deserve our happy ending — whatever that looks like," Swisher told Tudum.

With the executive team including producers Chris Coelen ("Love Is Blind"), Sunny Franklin ("Extreme Weight Loss"), Stephanie Boyriven ("The Real Housewives of Orange County"), Eric Detwiler ("Perfect Match"), Sarah Dillistone ("The Ultimatum: Marry or Move On") and Christine Loera ("MasterChef USA"), "The Ultimatum: Queer Love" debuts its second season Wednesday, June 25, on Netflix.

Ms. Walters' wisdom: Always the interviewer, never the interviewee. Following the 2022 death of renowned journalist Barbara Walters ("The View"), co-workers, celebrities, documentarians and fans alike celebrate her life, career and impact during "Barbara Walters: Tell Me Everything," a feature-length documentary premiering Monday, June 23, on Hulu.

Since her first on-screen special in October 1976 — which included an impressive joint appearance by president-elect Jimmy Carter and Rosalynn Carter, and a conversation with superstar Barbra Streisand ("Funny Girl," 1968) — Barbara Walters has made history as one of the most beloved, recognizable and steadfast interviewers on television, with appearances in "Today," "ABC Evening News," "20/20," "The View," "Entertainment Tonight" and "Good Morning America," to name just a few.

From director Jackie Jesko ("Between Life & Death: Terri Schiavo's Story," 2023), "Tell Me Everything" aims to celebrate and dissect Walters' storied career as a trailblazer in a historically male-dominated industry. Walters has long reflected on the legacy she hoped to inspire, and through her film — and the use of priceless archival footage — Jesko manages to capture just that, sharing key moments from Walter's' poignant interviews with the likes of Andy Cohen ("Watch What Happens Live with Andy Cohen"), Katie Couric ("Katie"), Cynthia McFadden ("Today"), Bette Midler ("Beaches," 1988), Victor Neufeld ("20/20"), Katie Nelson Thomson ("Last Week Tonight with John Oliver"), Chris Vlasto ("Good Morning America"), Oprah Winfrey ("The Oprah Winfrey Show") and countless others.

"My hope for the film is that audiences feel they get to know the real Barbara, in all her complexities — her private struggles and her public triumphs," said Jesko. "Barbara stayed a television fixture for five decades, battling rampant sexism, fierce competition and a constantly evolving media landscape. In today's world, where celebrities and politicians can choose to speak out on their own social media platforms instead of subjecting themselves to a news interviewer, Barbara's story gives us the opportunity to explore the changing relationship between journalism, fame and truth."

From Brian Grazer ("A Beautiful Mind," 2001) and Ron Howard's ("Apollo 13," 1995) Imagine Documentaries, "Barbara Walters: Tell Me Everything" makes its debut Monday, June 23, on Hulu.

"Squid Game" - Season 3

Every game must come to an end, but Season 3 of "Squid Game" is just getting started. Coming Friday, June 27, to Netflix, the final season plunges Seong Gi-hun (Lee Jung-jae, "Hunt," 2022) back into the nightmare he once tried to escape. But this time, he's on a mission to tear down the system from within. Season 2 ended in tragedy, as Gi-hun's failed rebellion against the game's organizers led to the death of his friend Jung-bae (Aaron Yamawaki, "Avengers: Age the Ultron," 2015), leaving him with guilt and a need for justice. Now, as he reunites with other survivors, the games become even more twisted, with brutal new challenges introduced by the enigmatic dolls. Meanwhile, The Front Man (Lee Byung-hun, "The Magnificent Seven," 2016) continues to oversee the games and detective Hwang Jun-ho's (Wi Ha-joon, "Bad and Crazy") investigation brings him closer to uncovering the truth. Showrunner and executive producer Hwang Dong-hyuk ("Silenced," 2011) returns as director for the final season.

"Trainwreck" - Poop Cruise"

Prepare to cringe, gasp and maybe laugh a little during the latest installment of the Trainwreck anthology series, "Trainwreck: Poop Cruise," which sets sail Tuesday, June 24, on Netflix — and you'll be glad you weren't on board. What was supposed to be a luxury four-day cruise from Galveston, Texas, to Cozumel, Mexico, turned into a nightmare for the 4,000 passengers and crew on board. After an engine room fire destroyed the electrical cables supplying the entire ship, the boat is left drifting without power — including propulsion, lighting, air conditioning or ... flushing toilets. The disaster was soon nicknamed "The Poop Cruise" by the media. Told through archival footage, first-person accounts and news footage, this episode dives into the infamous voyage, including the misery, the mishandling and, of course, the memes that followed. Directed by James Ross ("The Unwanted — The Secret Windrush Files," 2019) and executive produced by Ben Rumney ("Murder Blues"), Casey Feldman ("Trainwreck: Woodstock '99") and Alexander Marengo ("The Hatchet Wielding Hitchhiker," 2023).

"Steph Tolev: Filth Queen" (2025)

Steph Tolev ("Drugstore June," 2024) rules the stage in her new stand-up comedy special, "Steph Tolev: Filth Queen," coming Tuesday, June 24, to Netflix. In her debut Netflix special, the Canadian comedian delivers a hilariously raw hour of stand-up that dives headfirst into the absurdities of bodily functions, dating disasters and personal insecurities, proving nothing is too awkward or too gross to laugh at. Filmed live at Boston's Paradise Rock Club and produced by comedy heavyweight Bill Burr ("F Is for Family"), "Filth Queen" showcases Tolev's fearless approach to stand-up. Whether she's lamenting the horrors of one-night stands or painting a disturbingly vivid picture of bathroom blunders, Tolev turns cringe into comedy gold. As Burr puts it, she's "one of the most uninhibited original voices out there today." With "Filth Queen," Tolev takes her rightful place among comedy royalty, offering up a gloriously unfiltered hour of cackling laughter.

"The Good Ship Murder" - Season 2

Returning for another thrilling voyage, Season 2 of "The Good Ship Murder" premieres Thursday, June 26, available via BritBox on Prime Video. Set aboard a luxury Mediterranean cruise ship, Season 2 sees former detective-turned-cabaret singer Jack Grayling (Shayne Ward, "Coronation Street") drawn into a new wave of baffling whodunits. As the ship sets sail for new ports, Jack once again teams up with officer Kate Woods (Catherine Tyldesley, "Viewpoint") to investigate a series of crimes, ranging from a suspicious disappearance during a masquerade ball to a high-profile poisoning at sea. While Kate prepares for her upcoming staff captain interview, she is pleasantly surprised when Jack invites her to the opera in Rome — an evening that could finally mark the start of their relationship. But when Jack's 18-year-old daughter, Mia (Millie Kent, "The Split"), makes an unexpected appearance, he finds himself caught between his responsibility as a father and the possibility of a new relationship with Kate. While tensions rise among the crew, so does the body count. Director Steve Hughes ("Doctor Who") returns for Season 2, along with cast members Zak Douglas ("Ridley"), Geoffrey Breton ("Blue Murder") and Claire Sweeney ("Brookside"). Mike Benson ("The Teacher") also returns as an executive producer.

"Butchers of L.A."

A chilling look into the twisted minds of three serial killers who turned the dreamy city of Los Angeles into a landscape of night terrors, "Butchers of L.A" premieres Thursday, June 26, available via the Sundance Now Prime Video Channel. Directed by David Harvey ("Britain's Countryside Killers"), this docuseries explores the brutal legacies of three sadistic killers — Patrick Kearney, William Bonin and Randy Kraft — who haunted Southern California for over two decades with their eerily similar methods and victim profiles, leaving a trail of more than 130 victims and a maze of confusion that left investigators puzzled for years. "Butchers of L.A" traces the investigation through gripping archival footage, firsthand accounts from survivors and interviews with the detectives and journalists who chased the truth. Produced by Mariana Rios Sanchez ("Murder at the Motel") for Peninsula Television.

"Marry My Husband" - Season 1

She's re-writing the ending, and it's a tale of revenge. Season 1 of "Marry My Husband" makes its way over to Prime Video this Friday, June 27. Kang Ji-won's (Park Min-young, "Hilleo") world is turned upside down when she's diagnosed with terminal cancer. With her husband Park Min-hwan (Lee Yi-kyeong, "Royal Secret Agent"), and best friend Jeong Su-min (Song Ha-yoon, "Nae Ddal, Geum Sa-wol"), by her side, she tries to make the most of the time she has left. But everything changes when Kang catches them having an affair — unaware that betrayal isn't the end of their plan. It's murder. After her death, Kang wakes up 10 years in the past, back at her office and very much alive. As she's granted a second chance at life, Kang serves up the ultimate revenge: to ensure her friend Jeong marries her husband Park, shifting the betrayal and heartbreak onto those who wronged her. Starring Na In-woo ("Mr. Queen"), Ha Do-kwon ("The Penthouse"), Gong Min-jung ("Nothing Serious," 2021) and Choi Gyu-ri ("Happy Battle"). Directed by Won-Kook Park ("Yokmangeui Bulkkot"), based on the web novel by Seong So Jak. Ryoon Hee Kim ("Boiseu") and Ja Young Son ("Start-Up") serve as executive producers.

Author Dennis McDougal, featured in "Butchers of L.A."

Chef Maneet Chauhan celebrates Indian cuisine in 'Maneet's Eats'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

With a wealth of knowledge and years of experience — both professional and homegrown — to share, chef Maneet Chauhan ("Chopped") brings traditional Indian flavors to the masses with each and every episode of "Maneet's Eats," available to stream on Prime Video.

Following Chauhan from the market to her kitchen, this mouthwatering series sees the chef recreating some of her all-time favorite Indian dishes in an approachable way, allowing newcomers and spice lovers alike to try their hand at making the recipes right at home.

"Seemingly born with a ladle in her hand" (per Food Network), Chauhan's culinary journey started early in her life, in her homeland of India. There, Chauhan graduated top of her class at the Welcomgroup Graduate School of Hotel Administration — one of India's top culinary schools — before interning at some of the finest hotels and kitchens the country had to offer. After moving to the U.S., Chauhan went on to attend the Culinary Institute of America, where she honed her skill enough to later appear on the likes of Food Network series such as "Chopped," "Guy's Grocery Games" and "The Next Iron Chef."

Maneet Chauhan stars in "Maneet's Eats"

Additionally, Chauhan also owns the Chauhan Ale and Masala House, a restaurant offering a bold fusion of cultures, cuisines and flavors, located in Nashville, Tennessee.

After years of training in kitchens across the globe, Chauhan now kicks off her brand new series with a mouthwatering menu, as this first season alone is set to feature recipes for pakoras, a street food that coats fresh veggies in a spiced, crispy chickpea batter; saag paneer, a blend of slow-cooked greens and cheese; chicken biryani, a dish featuring saffron, warming spices, golden raisins and roasted cashews; murukku, a savory lentil snack; pork vindaloo, with smoky Kashmiri red chiles and tangy tamarind paste; crispy samosas with potatoes and peas; chicken tikka masala, with masala and kasoori methi in a creamy butter sauce; parathas, a flaky and buttery flatbread filled with spiced veggies; and other tasty treats, like masala chai.

No matter the dish, chef Chauhan serves up something delicious during each and every installment of "Maneet's Eats," available to stream on Prime Video.

Laura Mennell, Elijah Wood and Theo James in "The Monkey"

The Monkey

As children, twin brothers Hal and Bill (Convery) are haunted by a cursed, cymbal-banging monkey toy. The twins discovered the strange toy in their attic. Every time the monkey banged its cymbals, someone nearby would die a mysterious death. Traumatized, the brothers tried to discard the toy, but it kept returning. Now adults, Hal and Bill (James) are forced to confront their past when the monkey resurfaces — triggering another string of violent and unexplained fatalities. Director: Osgood Perkins. Stars: Theo James, Tatiana Maslany, Christian Convery, Colin O'Brien, Rohan Campbell, Sarah Levy, Adam Scott, Elijah Wood, Laura Mennell. 2025. 98 min. Horror.

Jay Pharaoh in "The Quiz with Balls"

90 Day: Hunt for Love

TLC 8:00 PM

During this latest "90 Day Fiancé" spinoff, eight singles from shows across the 90 Day franchise come together for a singles-only retreat in search of finding true love. Will their hunt be successful? Or will they be left heartbroken again?

The Quiz With Balls

(44) 9:00 PM

Jay Pharoah hosts the show that leaves contestants dodging the biggest balls in television. Teams must work to answer multiple-choice questions. A right answer moves them forward, while a wrong answer releases said balls, knocking them into a pool.

Yes, Chef!

(5) (12) 10:00 PM

As the season finale quickly approaches, the final four chefs must face the consequences of their past behaviours. No matter the outcome, the chefs will need to take Martha Stewart and Jose Andres' advice to heart if they want a spot in the finale.

POV

(33) (57) 10:00 PM

Unions were once the backbone of the American middle class. Filmmakers follow a group of workers at a Staten Island, N.Y., Amazon warehouse as they launch a grassroots effort to get the facility to become a union shop in this season premiere.

Ted Allen hosts "Chopped"

MLB Baseball

TBS 7:00 PM

Two mainstays of the National League East face-off as Spencer Strider and the Atlanta Braves head north to Flushing's Citi Field to take on power-hitter Juan Soto and the New York Mets. Last season the two teams finished with the exact same 89-73 record.

The 1% Club

(44) 8:00 PM

This unique game show uses logic and thought processes rather than knowledge to move ahead. Beginning with 100 contestants, host Joel McHale asks questions of increasing difficulty, ending at what only 1% of Americans can get right.

Chopped

FOOD 8:00 PM

Ted Allen hosts a new episode of this long-running cooking competition, which sees four social media influencers compete for glory in the kitchen. However, problems in both the appetizer and entrée rounds threaten to derail the competitors.

Caregiving

(33) (57) 9:00 PM

This two-hour documentary, produced by actor Bradley Cooper, centers on the challenges and heart-warming moments that caregivers experience on a daily basis. While the burden can be overwhelming, the need for caregivers is ever rising.

Shane Campbell-Staton hosts "Human Footprint"

2025 NBA Draft

(22) 8:00 PM

No matter which team you root for, tonight is the night they will need to choose the right player for the right position. The teams with the top four spots were already drawn. Duke's Cooper Flagg is expected to go first overall in this year's draft.

Raid the Cage

(3) 9:00 PM

You need to be quick and greedy if you hope to get ahead in this season finale. That's the plan for married couple Amy and Juan from Houston, Texas, who take on friends MariAnn and Vicki from Naples, Fla. Damon Wayans Jr. and Jeannie Mai host.

Human Footprint

(33) (57) 9:00 PM

This Season 2 premiere examines how supermarkets have changed not only how humans live, but also the planet itself. From major metropolitan centers such as New York to the quiet rural areas of Thailand, supermarkets have changed everything.

Gordon Ramsay's Secret Service

(12) (44) 9:00 PM

The right ingredients are crucial for any good restaurant to survive, but sometimes, it's a combination of issues that lead to a failing business. This series finds Gordon Ramsay using spy techniques to learn what is going wrong at failing restaurants.

"The Bear" - Season 4

The kitchen is heating up once again as "The Bear" returns to Hulu for its fourth season, with all 10 episodes hitting the streamer Wednesday, June 25. After opening their fine-dining restaurant, The Bear, Carmen "Carmy" Berzatto (Jeremy Allen White, "Shameless") and his crew are back in the kitchen and are under even more pressure. Season 4 picks up right after Season 3's cliffhanger when Carmy received The Bear's first review. Season 4 follows Carmy as he doubles down on his obsessive pursuit of culinary greatness, alienating his team as The Bear chases a Michelin star. Meanwhile, Sydney (Ayo Edebiri, "Inside Out 2," 2024) grapples with a tempting new opportunity that could take her away from the restaurant, and Richie (Ebon Moss-Bachrach, "Girls") is forced to choose between loyalty and ambition. Returning cast members include Lionel Boyce ("The Jellies!"), Liza Colon-Zayas ("Law & Order: Special Victims Unit") and Abby Elliott ("Saturday Night Live"). Created by Christopher Storer ("Ramy"), who also serves as writer and director. Executive produced by Joanna Calo ("BoJack Horseman"), Hiro Murai ("Atlanta") and Josh Senior ("Ramy Youssef: More Feelings," 2024).

"Survive" (2024)

A family's vacation turns into a fight for their lives, during "Survive," a film coming to Hulu this Tuesday, June 24. From French director Frederic Jardin ("Totems"), this science-fiction thriller follows parents Julia (Emilie Dequenne, "Brotherhood of the Wolf," 2001), a doctor, and Tom (Andreas Pietschmann, "Dark"), an oceanographer, as they celebrate their young son's birthday aboard a Caribbean cruise. When the ship finds itself caught in a storm, the usual precautions are taken — that is, until the storm becomes something never seen before, and the ocean around them suddenly disappears, leading the ship to run aground. Stuck in a desert-like, endless abyss, the family is left to fend for themselves, doing all they can to survive despite insurmountable terrors. With a screenplay written by Alexandre Coquelle ("Renegade," 2004) and Mathieu Oullion ("Two Is a Family," 2016), "Survive" also stars Arben Bajraktaraj ("Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 1," 2010), Olivier Ho Hio Hen ("Stillwater," 2021), Stephanie Guerin ("Black Widow," 2021), Simon Rerolle ("Greek Mothers Never Die," 2025) and Rida Ait Oufqir ("Godzilla x Kong: The New Empire," 2024), alongside newcomers Lisa Delamar, Lucas Ebel and Youssef El Hiaboui.

Jeremy Allen White and Ebon Moss-Bachrach star in "The Bear"

Mirrors (2008)

Inspired by the South Korean horror film, "Into the Mirror" (2003) from director Sung-ho Kim ("How to Steal a Dog," 2014), the Alexandre Aja ("The Hills Have Eyes," 2006) directed horror film, "Mirrors," is now available to stream on Hulu. Starring Kiefer Sutherland ("24") as security guard Ben Carson, "Mirrors" follows as the guard agrees to take on a job as the nighttime security for an abandoned department store, the Mayflower. Destroyed by a fire and shut down five years prior, the Mayflower stands full of rubble and ash, with only the store's mirrors left mysteriously unharmed. As nights pass, Ben begins to notice odd happenings around the mirrors, seeing strange and disturbing images when he looks within. Eventually, Ben discovers that the mirror reflections are making things — horrible things — happen to the people who dare look too long, and after a terrible tragedy, he decides he must destroy them once and for all. With a screenplay written by Aja and Gregory Levasseur ("Maniac," 2012), "Mirrors" also stars Amy Smart ("Starship Troopers," 1997), Paula Patton ("Precious," 2009), Cameron Boyce ("Descendants," 2015), Erica Gluck ("The Game"), Mary Beth Peil ("The Stepford Wives," 2004), John Shrapnel ("Troy," 2004), Jason Flemyng ("The Curious Case of Benjamin Button," 2008) and many others.

Lisa Delamar, Andreas Pietschmann, Émilie Dequenne and Lucas Ebel in "Survive"

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I was just rewatching an old episode of "Great British Bake Off," only they called it "The Great British Baking Show." Did they change the name or something? I swear it used to be "Bake Off."

A: You're not wrong. It just depends where you're watching it.

If you're watching in Great Britain, where it's made, it's still "Great British Bake Off." But if you're watching in North America, under the watchful blue eyes of the Pillsbury Doughboy, you're getting "The Great British Baking Show."

That's because Pillsbury, a beloved and well-established food company in North America, has a trademark on the term "bake off," thanks to its long-running Pillsbury Bake-Off competition, which challenges home bakers to send in their best recipes to compete for a prize (so, not miles away from the "Great British" show).

Noel Fielding hosts "The Great British Bake Off"

To avoid the clash, the show rebranded as "The Great British Baking Show" over here, but otherwise it's the same.

It's managed plenty of other, more significant changes over the years (a new judge, a U.K. network change and a revolving door of comedian-hosts, for example), so it knows what it's doing.

It remains popular in North America, even alongside regionally tailored versions — "The Great American Baking Show" airs on the Roku channel and "The Great Canadian Baking Show" has aired on CBC since 2017.

Q: I have gotten really into "The Lincoln Lawyer" and noticed David E. Kelley's name in the credits. Assuming it's the same David E. Kelley from "Ally McBeal" and "Boston Legal," I'm curious if he's done anything other than legal shows.

A: You could look to his even more recent streaming drama, "Nine Perfect Strangers," as an example of the non-legal output from super-producer David E. Kelley.

Yes, he's definitely known for his legal dramas (other examples include the beloved but short-lived "Harry's Law" and legal-TV landmark "L.A. Law"). But he's always kept a hand in other genres, with almost the same amount of success.

Today is a great example. At the same time he's producing Netflix's "The Lincoln Lawyer," a legal drama based on the film of the same name, he's also producing Hulu's buzzy hit "Nine Perfect Strangers," an anthology series about rich people visiting a mysterious wellness retreat. Its second season just debuted a few weeks ago.

This pattern goes all the way back to his early career. While he was writing and producing "L.A. Law," and maybe creating the modern courtroom drama as we know it, from 1986 to 1992, he was also writing and producing "Doogie Howser, M.D." (which ran from 1989 to 1993). While "Doogie" maybe didn't redefine the medical genre, it at least offered a surprising new take on it and launched the career of Neil Patrick Harris ("How I Met Your Mother").

Kelley has been even more adventurous on the big screen, dabbling in genres like horror ("Lake Placid," 1999) and sports comedy ("Mystery, Alaska," also released in 1999).
