Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

When I have the chance, it's always nice to start the show with some good news. Well, just a few hours before we taped this broadcast, we got word that our long national nightmare is over because Disney announced that "Jimmy Kimmel Live!" will return to air on ABC tomorrow [Sept. 23], Tuesday night. This is wonderful news for my dear friend Jimmy and his amazing staff. Plus, now that Jimmy's not being canceled, I get to enjoy this again. I am the only martyr in late night. Wait, unless CBS you want to announce anything. Still no, right?

Here's why Disney folded. After Kimmel was suspended, Google searches for "cancel Disney Plus" and "cancel Hulu" spiked. Which explains why the other trending search was "how to entertain a feral child without Bluey?"

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Some local news today [Sept. 17]. New York City voted down a plan to build a massive casino in Times Square. Times Square Elmo was like, "Good. We got to keep this neighborhood classy."

Toyota and Hyundai just recalled more than a million cars over issues with seatbelts and panel displays. Kia heard and was like, "See, this is why we don't have seatbelts and panel displays."

The CEO of T-Mobile is stepping down after five years in the role. Yeah, he actually stepped down five years ago, but the message is just now coming through.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

We are broadcasting to about 75% of the country from Los Angeles, California, tonight [Sept. 25]. On Monday [Sept. 29], we will be in Brooklyn for a week of big shows from the Brooklyn Academy of Music. What we have to do now is stay on the move so the FCC can't get us.

Today [Sept. 25], [President] Trump signed an executive order that will allow a group of investors to buy TikTok from the Chinese. You know, Congress banned TikTok under Joe Biden because of fears the Chinese government was using it to spy on Americans. But with this deal in place, now our government can spy on Americans ourselves, which is better. TikTok is very important to Donald Trump, even though he's never used it and has no idea what it is, right? He thinks it's a little breath mint.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

According to a new report from the Wall Street Journal, toxic fumes are leaking into airplanes and making passengers and crews sick. Though, if you're flying Spirit, they're happy to crack a window.

Musician Harry Styles ran the Berlin marathon yesterday [Sept. 21] and entered the race under a fake name. That's crazy. Harry Styles is his real name.

Three nuns in Austria recently ran away from their retirement home to return to their former convent. Well, it's hard to break old habits.

Fall in love: Autumn brings new 'Nobody Wants This'

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Yet again, it's that time of the year. Leaves are crisp and colorful, wardrobes are stuffed with chunky knits and hearty meals for two are set at the dining table. It's cuffing season, and what better way to spend cozy nights in with a special someone than to press play on a returning rom-com for our times. "Nobody Wants This" is back for its second season, premiering 10 brand-new episodes Thursday, Oct. 23, on Netflix.

Kristen Bell ("The Good Place") and Adam Brody ("The Kid Detective," 2020) return as the unlikely couple in love: relationship podcaster Joanne Williams and rabbi Noah Roklov. The first season saw them stumble through getting to know each other, weighing their very different backgrounds against their palpable chemistry, hitting several road blocks on the way to commitment.

Joanne, an agnostic podcast co-host on the rise, unexpectedly fell for Noah, a faithful rabbi whose dedication to the synagogue and its congregants was unfamiliar to her. With the culture clash between Noah's Jewish family and community and Joanne's circle of majority unbelievers being the main hurdle in the lovebirds' fledgling relationship, another was Joanne's career.

The podcast that Joanne co-hosts with her sister, Morgan (Justine Lupe, "Succession"), centered around the two oversharing about their love lives and giving out advice, became a controversial subject at the meeting-his-parents stage for the way the siblings candidly discuss the realities of dating.

Jackie Tohn and Timothy Simons in "Nobody Wants This"

Together with her borderline embarrassing lack of knowledge of Jewish culture and customs, Joanne fails to make a positive first impression with Noah's family. A few knee-jerk overcorrections don't land her much closer to the Roklovs' good side, either.

At the same time, Morgan had grown frustrated with Joanne over her lack of commitment to their show and single-minded focus on Noah as the podcast started to gain traction. A sort of balance was struck in the first season's finale when the sisters buried the hatchet and Joanne admitted she was not ready to convert to Judaism, returning to herself again.

The upcoming season sees Joanne's rivalry with Noah's mother, Bina (Tovah Feldshuh, "Harlan Coben's Shelter"), deepen, the pair staring daggers at each other from opposite ends of the stands of Noah's Matzah Ballers basketball game in the official trailer. While Joanne keeps one eye on Bina, more relationship challenges start forming in every other direction. Now that Joanne and Noah have established themselves as an official couple, it is time for everyone in their lives to start asking them what's next.

Marriage, babies and faith compromises are all on the table for dinner party conversation as the new couple merge their individual lives over dinner parties and family events. Never one to mince words, Morgan warns Joanne in the trailer while the podcast mics are hot, "the relationship isn't solid until you're out of the honeymoon phase." It's all fun and games until you're wondering what your partner is really thinking at a friend's baby shower.

Also returning this season are Timothy Simons ("Veep") as Noah's brother Sasha; Jackie Tohn ("GLOW") as Sasha's wife, Esther; Michael Hitchcock ("Barb and Star Go to Vista Del Mar," 2021) and Stephanie Faracy ("Sneaky Pete") as Joanne and Morgan's parents, Henry and Lynn; Paul Ben-Victor ("The Wire") as Noah's father, Ilan; and Sherry Cola ("Good Trouble") and D'Arcy Carden ("A League of Their Own") as Joanne's friends Ashley and Ryann.

Joining the cast this season is "Gossip Girl" star Leighton Meester. Brody's real-life spouse, Meester portrays Abby, a childhood nemesis of Joanne's who has made a name for herself as a Los Angeles mommy influencer. Miles Fowler ("Bottoms," 2023) guest stars as a new member of Noah's basketball team and Arian Moayed ("Inventing Anna") is psychotherapist Dr. Andy.

A few "Girls" alums have signed on for Season 2 of "Nobody Wants This" as well. Alex Karpovsky, who played curmudgeon Ray in all six seasons of the HBO show, guest stars as a new rabbi at Noah's temple. "Girls" showrunners Jenni Konner and Bruce Eric Kaplan, meanwhile, have taken the reins from Season 1 showrunner and series creator Erin Foster ("Barely Famous") to lead this upcoming season.

Seth Rogen, who recently took home four Emmy awards for his work in front of and behind the camera in the debut season of the Apple TV+ comedy series "The Studio," also guest stars this season alongside "Search Party" actress Kate Berlant.

"Nobody Wants This" is loosely based on Foster's own interfaith relationship, and the executive producer shared with Deadline in June some insights into what the writers room was ruminating on when creating the new season. After taking in some viewer reactions, Foster felt that people wanted to see "a show about healthy love and meeting someone later in life. That's something people really grabbed onto. And so those were the themes that I made sure we paid attention to and gave energy to."

Don't miss a fresh new season of "Nobody Wants This," premiering Thursday, Oct. 23, on Netflix.

Family first: Shaw brothers return amid changes in 'Tracker' Season 3

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

For better or for worse, a child's upbringing will have an impact on their outlook and decisions as an adult. The degree to which a parent's choices impact their child varies greatly depending on a multitude of factors both known and unknown — there have been countless "nature vs. nurture" studies in psychological and medical fields over the course of the past century, should anyone wish to investigate for themselves — but there is no denying that traits, perspectives and expectations are heavily shaped by our experience and surroundings, which includes parentage.

In CBS's "Tracker," these themes have previously taken a back seat to more action-packed procedural plots, but as the series heads into its third season, its leading man learns that his family is not as he has perceived it to be all these years. Find out how that impacts him, his career and his remaining family members when "Tracker" Season 3 premieres the first episode of a two-part arc Sunday, Oct. 19, on CBS. Episodes will air the same or next day on Paramount+, depending on the viewer's subscription package.

Over the past two seasons, "Tracker" has laid its foundation as the story of Colter Shaw (Justin Hartley, "This Is Us"), a man who, driven by his own family secrets, has made a career of finding missing persons and collecting reward money. Described by CBS as a "trusted lone-wolf survivalist," Colter enters Season 3 with a partner: his once maligned brother, Russell, played by "Supernatural" heartthrob Jensen Ackles. And although there is no telling where the reunited brotherly duo will take their story, CBS has revealed that viewers will be treated to a minimum of two episodes focused on the pair. "The Process," the first episode of the two-part season premiere, picks up in the aftermath of the Season 2 finale, "as Colter grapples with the shocking truth surrounding his father's death," the official logline reads.

"Russell joins forces with his brother to help track down the missing wife and daughter of one of Reenie's [Fiona Rene, "The Lincoln Lawyer"] clients," the CBS notice continues, adding that "their reunion finds them mixed up in a chain of events involving a sinister underground operation known as 'The Process.'"

While it remains unclear whether the brothers will continue to track together throughout the rest of the season, as Ackles' schedule reportedly conflicted with the show's filming plans, rumor has it that this initial double episode will set the tone for the rest of the season by giving viewers a new large mystery to solve alongside Colter, now that many (although not all) of the questions around his father's murder have been resolved. (Beware: Season 2 spoilers ahead.)

Of course, learning that Russell did not murder their father, Ashton (Lee Tergesen, "Oz"), was a huge relief to Colter, despite years of assuming that to be the case. But the news that their mother, Mary (Wendy Crewson, "Air Force One," 1997), was instead somehow involved in the planned assassination was a devastating blow. Now that Russell is back in Colter's life and the brothers are learning how best to mend their rift, there is also a huge possibility that Dory (Melissa Roxburgh, "Manifest"), the pair's sister, will also have more involvement in the series as the siblings collectively process the new details surrounding their shared trauma.

But while "Tracker" parses with themes of generational trauma, abuse within the family and the harmful effects of long-kept secrets, showrunner Elwood Reid ("Cold Case") shares that, behind the scenes, he only has one hard-and-fast rule while writing and filming.

"The only rule I really have of the show is each week Colter is going to come to a new place and there's going to be a new case," Reid said in an interview with Us Weekly in May. "How he gets those answers and what he uses on the team, that's all something that's up for grabs. Meeting these [local] weird characters is something we're going to try to do more of as the season goes on. ... It's fun to see Justin flex those muscles with really good guest cast members."

Created by "Legion" and "Manhunt" writer Ben H. Winters and based on the novel "The Never Game" by Jeffery Deaver, "Tracker" Season 3 will continue without much of the original cast, including Abby McEnany ("Work in Progress"), who played Colter's handler, Velma Bruin; Robin Weigert ("Deadwood"), who played Velma's wife, Teddi; and perhaps most devastatingly, without Eric Graise ("Step Up: High Water"), who played Bobby Exley and exited the show due to scheduling conflicts and other professional interests midway through the second season.

There is no reason to fear, though, as Bobby's computer scientist cousin, Randy (Chris Lee, "The Chi"), is permanently stepping into the role of Colter's tech support after covering for him during Bobby's poorly explained absence last season.

Don't miss the two-episode Season 3 premiere of "Tracker" when it airs Sunday, Oct. 19, on CBS and concludes the following week. Episodes are also available with a Paramount+ subscription.

Ben Stiller discusses his parents' storied careers

By Caroline Colacutt
TV Media

Generational talent: As one of the most notable actors, directors and producers of his generation (with his latest endeavor, the Emmy-winning "Severance," making waves internationally), Ben Stiller ("Zoolander," 2001) has plenty of people to thank for his success — but two names rise above the rest. A touching tribute to his parents, Stiller's one-of-a-kind documentary, "Stiller & Meara: Nothing is Lost," makes its debut Friday, Oct. 24, on Apple TV+.

According to the streamer, "Stiller & Meara" sees Stiller "[telling] the story of his parents, comedy icons Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara," while "exploring their impact both on popular culture and at home, where the lines between creativity, family, life and art often blurred."

"In the process," Apple TV+ continues, "Stiller turns the camera on himself and his family to examine Jerry and Anne's enormous influence on their lives, and the generational lessons we all can learn from those we love."

While younger readers may not be familiar with the elder Stiller and his wife, Anne, plenty remember the duo as comedic superstars from the 1960s and 1970s. With appearances on "The Ed Sullivan Show," "Rhoda," "Archie Bunker's Place" and, eventually, on their own sitcom — "The Stiller and Meara Show" — the couple made a strong impression on viewers, generating laughs well into the 2000s. While their comedy act eventually split up, Stiller and Meara had a marriage that spanned six decades, during which they gave birth to two children: Ben and Amy Stiller ("The King of Queens").

When Jerry and Anne eventually died — Anne in 2015 and Jerry in 2020 — Ben found himself "[digging] into the vast treasure trove of recordings, footage, letters and other ephemera with which they documented their personal and professional lives," explains a program from the New York Film Festival. And thus, "Stiller & Meara" was born.

While the documentary offers a comprehensive look at the couple's career, it also inevitably turns to the Stiller children, both with impressive careers of their own.

"I think the deeper that you go into learning about your parents, and not about them as parents but just as people, always gives you a different perspective on your own life. I really do feel like the experience of delving in gave me more empathy for them," says Stiller.

Featuring fascinating interviews, never-before-seen footage and celebrity guests, "Stiller & Meara" premieres Friday, Oct. 24, on Apple TV+.

The Answer: Directed by One9 ("Iceman," 2023), this new, three-part docuseries offers unprecedented access to one of the NBA's most authentic voices. "Allen Iverson" arrives on Prime Video Thursday, Oct. 23.

From his humble beginnings in Hampton, Virginia, to his time playing at Georgetown University, to his eventual induction into the Basketball Hall of Fame, this series follows the multitalented Allen Iverson on a journey through his own history.

In 1996, Iverson was drafted to play for the Philadelphia 76ers — the very same team he'd end his career with, 14 seasons later. Throughout his career, Iverson played as both a shooting guard and a point guard, earned himself the title of NBA rookie of the year, became an 11-time NBA all-star, represented the United States at the 2004 Summer Olympics and, eventually, earned himself a reputation as one of the most prolific scorers in NBA history, with an average of 26.7 points per game.

"Iverson fearlessly embraced his individuality both on and off the court," the series description reads. "This unflinching docu-series uses never-before-seen footage and exclusive interviews to reveal his remarkable rise from a poverty-stricken upbringing to cultural icon. It chronicles his sacrifice, resilience and unwavering loyalty to family and community, showing how he redefined the game and empowered future generations. ... Through unprecedented access and personal stories, along with intimate interviews with family, friends and fellow NBA players and coaches, Iverson shares a more reflective side of his present-day self."

"After competing against Allen for many years, I've witnessed his greatness firsthand," says Shaquille O'Neal ("Inside the NBA"), one of the documentary's all-star producers. "I know the man Allen is, and I'm honored to tell his definitive story and show his impact off the court. Allen's willingness to give One9 complete access to his life story will allow audiences to see the true Iverson for the first time."

Producers Erick Peyton ("Holey Moley") and Stephen Curry ("Good Times") of Unanimous Media shared: "We're proud to partner with Prime Video, Shaquille O'Neal and Jersey Legends to tell the powerful story of Allen Iverson, a true original whose fearless authenticity reshaped the game and the culture around it. 'Allen Iverson' goes beyond the highlights to explore the man behind the legend, from his upbringing to his lasting global impact. This film is a celebration of Iverson's legacy and the path he paved for future generations."

A legend in his own right, "the Answer" shares all in "Allen Iverson," coming Thursday, Oct. 23, to Prime Video.

"A House of Dynamite" (2025)

A missile sets off a chain reaction the world can't escape in director Kathryn Bigelow's ("The Hurt Locker," 2008) thriller "A House of Dynamite" (2025), premiering Friday, Oct. 24, on Netflix. When a single, unattributed missile is launched at the United States, an investigation begins to determine who is responsible and how to respond before disaster strikes. As military leaders, intelligence operatives and political figures grapple with the crisis, tensions escalate and every decision carries immense consequences. Written by Noah Oppenheim ("Jackie," 2016), the film stars Idris Elba ("The Losers," 2010), Rebecca Ferguson ("The Greatest Showman," 2017), Gabriel Basso ("The Kings of Summer," 2013), Jared Harris ("Mad Men," "The Crown"), Tracy Letts ("The Woman in the Window," 2021), Anthony Ramos ("A Star Is Born," 2018) and Jonah Hauer-King ("I Know What You Did Last Summer," 2025).

"Who Killed the Montreal Expos?" (2025)

It's a loss that still echoes in Expos blue. "Who Killed the Montreal Expos?" (2025) arrives on Netflix this

Rebecca Ferguson in "A House of Dynamite"

Tuesday, Oct. 21, exploring the story of how the Montreal Expos suddenly relocated to Washington, D.C., and became the Washington Nationals, leaving fans with more questions than answers. For 35 years, the Expos were more than a baseball team — they were Canada's first Major League Baseball franchise, woven into the heart of Montreal and a symbol of pride for fans. But on Sept. 29, 2004, Olympic Stadium hosted the team's final home game, marking the end of an era and leaving generations of fans devastated. Directed by Jean-Francois Poisson ("Who Killed Marie-Josée?") and produced by Stephanie Thibault ("The Order of the Solar Temple"), this documentary examines the controversial decisions, setbacks and missteps that sealed the team's fate. Featuring candid interviews with Hall of Famers such as Pedro Martinez ("Stronger," 2017), Vladimir Guerrero ("Sunday Night Baseball"), Felipe Alou ("1962 World Series") and Larry Walker ("WCW Monday Nitro"), alongside executives, journalists and devoted fans, the film unpacks how a cherished franchise vanished and asks the question that still haunts a city in Expos blue: who's to blame?

"Parish" - Season 1

No one escapes their past. Season 1 of "Parish" premieres Friday, Oct. 24, on Netflix, following Gray Parish (Giancarlo Esposito, "Breaking Bad"), a father still haunted by the violent murder of his son. When Gray is pulled back into the criminal underworld he thought he'd left behind, he quickly realizes that the line between friend and foe is anything but clear. But with law enforcement on his tail, ruthless gangs wanting to even the score, and old secrets threatening to catch up with him, Gray realizes that the wrong path to take may just be his only way out. In a world where no one can be trusted, every choice he makes comes at a deadly cost. Season 1 of "Parish" stars Zackary Momoh ("Seven Seconds"), Paula Malcomson ("The Hunger Games," 2012), Skeet Ulrich ("Scream," 1996), Ivan Mbakop ("Red Notice," 2021) and Bonnie Mbuli ("Catch a Fire," 2006), with episodes directed by Laura Belsey ("The Walking Dead"), Sunu Gonera ("Pride," 2007) and Ernest R. Dickerson ("The Walking Dead"). Based on the series "The Driver," "Parish" is written by Daniel Brocklehurst ("The Stranger"), with Eduardo Javier Canto ("Chicago P.D.") executive producing.

Bill Nighy and Sam Claflin in Harlan Coben's Lazarus

By Kimberly Tremblay
TV Media

"Harlan Coben's Lazarus"
- Season 1

Some truths are better left buried. Season 1 of "Harlan Coben's Lazarus" premieres Wednesday, Oct. 22, on Prime Video as Joel "Laz" Lazarus (Sam Claflin, "The Hunger Games: Catching Fire," 2013) returns home after his father's (Bill Nighy, "Love Actually," 2003) suicide and begins experiencing disturbing, unexplainable events. As he investigates, Laz becomes entangled in a series of cold cases connected to his sister's unsolved murder 25 years earlier. As Laz grapples with his father's death, he uncovers secrets about his family and the sinister forces tied to their deaths, with each revelation forcing him to question what really happened ... and whom he can trust. Written by bestselling author Harlan Coben, "Lazarus" stars Alexandra Roach ("The Iron Lady," 2011) as Jenna Lazarus, David Fynn ("The Pembroke Murders") as Seth McGovern, Karla Crome ("Under the Dome") as Bella Catton and Kate Ashfield ("Sanditon") as Det. Alison Brown. Nicola Shindler ("It's a Sin") and

"Host" (2025)

Beneath the school's strict order, something ancient is stirring when "Host" (2025) premieres Thursday, Oct. 23, on Prime Video. From director Pokpong-Pairach Khumwan ("Girl from Nowhere"), "Host" follows Ing, a young woman sent to a reform school on a remote island where obedience is the only rule. The school operates under a harsh hierarchy led by the principal's favored student — a model of discipline who ensures Ing remains firmly at the bottom. From the moment she arrives, the atmosphere is strikingly cold: students speak in hushed tones, the staff monitor every move and whispers of students disappearing ripple through the dormitories. As these unsettling events accumulate, Ing begins to wonder if she's merely a victim of the school's supernatural forces ... or if she's the source of them. Starring Baipor-Thitiya Jirapornsilp ("Love Stuck," 2024), Perth-Veerinsara Tangkitsuwanich ("Attack 13," 2025) and Jump-Pisitpol Ekaphongpisit ("Love By Chance"), with supporting performances from Wee-Weeraya Zhang ("One Year") and Ae-Narinthorn Na Bangchang ("Laplae: The Hidden Town").

"Migration" (2023)

Adventure takes flight when "Migration" (2023) lands on Prime Video this Friday, Oct. 24, following the Mallard family, a group of ducks whose cozy pond life is upended when adventurous mom Pam (Elizabeth Banks, "The Hunger Games," 2012) convinces cautious dad Mack (Kumail Nanjiani, "Life as We Know It," 2010) to embark on the family's first-ever migration. Along with their curious kids, Dax ("Sing," 2016) and Gwen ("Migration: I Love You Always Forever," 2023), the Mallards set off on a journey from their peaceful New England pond to the sun-drenched beaches of Jamaica. But their trip takes a series of unexpected detours, landing them in bustling New York City and forcing them to rely on the kindness of other animals they meet along the way. The Mallards learn that there's a big world beyond their comfort zone, and sometimes, the most rewarding adventures come from taking the leap together. Featuring the voices of Awkwafina ("Ocean's 8," 2018), Keegan-Michael Key ("The Super Mario Bros. Movie," 2023) and Danny DeVito ("It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia," "The Simpsons"), "Migration" is directed by Benjamin Renner ("The Big Bad Fox and Other Tales," 2017) and is based on the screenplay by Mike White ("The White Lotus").

Wrestler Braun Strowman tackles massive menus in all-new series

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

From inside the ring to a heaping side of onion rings, this powerhouse sure knows how to take down his opponents, whether they be fellow pro wrestlers or all-encompassing menus.
Following the super-sized wrestler as he tastes his way across America, "Everything on the Menu with Braun Strowman," a mouth-watering new series, makes its debut on USA Network Friday, Oct. 24.

"[Strowman] brings his superhuman appetite to America's most delicious destinations, from the ultimate greasy-spoon favorites to the Michelin-starred temples of gastronomy and everything in between," USA Network explains.

"In short," the network continues, "the big man of the mat is going from dropkicks to chowdowns — and, heck yes, we're hungry to see what Strowman is serving up.
WWE Superstars work hard and it takes a lot to keep these all-star bodies fueled. It's lucky that they travel all over the country and therefore have access to some of the best bites the nation has to offer, and Strowman is going to down every last one."

Throughout this first season, Strowman plans to tackle restaurants in eight major cities — Fort

Braun Strowman hosts "Everything on the Menu with Braun Strowman"

Worth, Texas; Washington, D.C.; Orlando, Florida; Las Vegas; Chicago; Milwaukee; New Orleans; and Tampa, Florida. No matter the size of the menu, Strowman promises to try every last option. But that's not all: Strowman plans to finish every last bite of food he's offered, fueling himself with countless calories ahead of his fights. After his dishes are licked clean, he'll also share the winning dish from each spot.

As Strowman puts it, "There's one thing that's even bigger than my appetite for destruction, and that is my appetite for food ... I didn't get to 350 pounds by accident."

From WWE Studios and Bright
North Studios — with Paul Levesque ("WWE Raw"), Lee Fitting ("WWE LFG: Legends & Future Greats"), Marc Pomarico ("Biography: WWE Legends"), Ben Houser ("E:60") Matthew Braley ("Pawn
Stars"), Morgan Hertzan ("1st
Look"), Patrick Dimon ("Rebound:
A Year of Triumph and Tragedy at Yeshiva University Basketball," 2025), Shawn Efran ("ASPIREist") and Azadeh de Leon ("Never Seen Again") acting as executive producers — "Everything on the Menu with Braun Strowman" premieres Friday, Oct. 24, on USA Network.

Kristin Kreuk and Rossif Sutherland star in “Murder in a Small Town”

Dancing With the Stars

⑫ 8:00 PM

From Jen Affleck, to Hilaria Baldwin, to Robert Irwin, celebrities from all corners of the globe are shining their dancing shoes for a chance at the famed Mirrorball Trophy. Who will emerge the victors? Alfonso Ribeiro and Julianne Hough host.

Murder in a Small Town

⑫ 8:00 PM

Although Karl Alberg (Rossif Sutherland) originally moved to the small coastal town of Gibsons, B.C., to escape the stress of big-city police work, he now finds himself as the police chief of not just Gibsons but also the surrounding four towns.

WWE NXT

WPIX 8:00 PM

The next generation of WWE make their last-minute preparations for Halloween Havoc, airing this coming Saturday from Prescott, Ariz. Who will walk away with treats of championship gold? And who will be left with the tricks of defeat?

NCIS: Origins

③ 9:00 PM

Mark Harmon narrates a new episode of this “NCIS” prequel. Each episode follows a young Leroy Jethro Gibbs (Austin Stowell) as he navigates working under NCIS legend Mike Franks (Kyle Schmid) at the fledgling NIS Camp Pendleton office.

Wednesday

Best Bets

Jeff Probst hosts "Survivor"

The Floor

(12) 7:00 PM

100 squares, 100 players. In this competition, contestants are asked to face off in randomly picked trivia battles while standing on a massive gameboard. As players are eliminated, the board shrinks in size, eventually leaving one winner standing.

Survivor

(3) 8:00 PM

The islands might be beautiful, but this game is no vacation. Host Jeff Probst tries to keep spirits up while his latest group of castaways manages shifting alliances, tribal tribulations, seemingly impossible games and unspeakable acts of manipulation.

Chicago Med

(5) 8:00 PM

The Windy City can count on the highly-trained team of medical professionals at Gaffney Chicago Medical Center to save lives and diagnosis conditions. Hospital administrator Sharon Goodwin (S. Epatha Merkersen) is the glue keeping things together.

Nature

(33) (57) 8:00 PM

A paleontologist journeys to the Arctic to see how walrus survive on thinning sea ice. As their habitat rapidly disappears, the expedition reveals the extraordinary challenges these massive marine mammals face in a warming climate.

"The Hand That Rocks the Cradle" (2025)

A mother's loss unleashes a terrifying vengeance when "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle" (2025) premieres Wednesday, Oct. 22, on Hulu. In this horror-packed remake of the original 1992 film, Polly (Maika Monroe, "It Follows," 2014) finds her life torn apart when her husband dies and she loses her child. Seeking revenge on the child and family who reported her husband's gross sexual misconduct, Polly's mind spirals as she embarks on a twisted and violent path to vengeance. Starring Mary Elizabeth Winstead ("10 Cloverfield Lane," 2016) as Claire, Martin Starr ("This Is the End," 2013) as Stewart, Raul Castillo ("Task") as Miguel, Mileia Vega ("The Secret Wife," 2024) as Emma and Elena Campbell-Martinez ("Unbelievable") as Marta. Directed by Michelle Garza Cervera ("Huesera: The Bone Woman," 2022), "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle" is written by Micah Bloomberg ("Homecoming") and Amanda Silver ("The Hand That Rocks the Cradle," 1992). Seth William Meier ("Happy Death Day," 2017) serves as executive producer.

"The Unholy Trinity" (2024)

Justice is sweet, but it doesn't come easily. From director Richard Gray ("Murder at Yellowstone City," 2022), this tale of revenge, tarnished legacies and buried secrets – "The Unholy Trinity" – makes its debut this Friday, Oct. 24, on Hulu. After the death of his father, young Henry Broadway (Brandon Lessard, "Classified," 2024) travels to a small town in 1870s Montana, hoping to clear his father's besmirched name. The task proves impossibly difficult when Henry finds himself stuck between an order-loving sheriff, Gabriel Dove (Pierce Brosnan, "The Thursday Murder Club," 2025) and a mysterious stranger, St. Christopher (Samuel L. Jackson, "Pulp Fiction," 1994), a man determined to cause chaos wherever he goes. According to Christopher, Henry's father, Isaac (Tim Daly, "The Fugitive"), once stole a significant amount of gold and cut Christopher out of his share, leaving the man to seek his own revenge through the deceased man's well-meaning son. With a screenplay written by Lee Zachariah ("Shaun Micallef's Mad as Hell"), "The Unholy Trinity" also stars Gianni Capaldi ("Damaged," 2024), Q'orianka Kilcher ("The New World," 2005), David Arquette ("The Good Half," 2023), Ethan Peck ("In Time," 2011), Katrina Bowden ("Tucker and Dale vs Evil," 2010), Beau Knapp ("Seven Seconds"), Sandra Patroske ("Vampire American," 2018) and

"Anyone But You" (2023)

A playful, modern-day reimagining of "Much Ado About Nothing" by William Shakespeare, "Anyone But You" will be available to stream on Hulu as of this Monday, Oct. 20. Starring Glen Powell ("Hit Man," 2023) and Sydney Sweeney ("Euphoria"), the film begins as two young professionals, Ben (Powell) and Bea (Sweeney), share a fun and flirtatious night together, only for things to turn sour the next morning. The two develop a strong distaste for each other and vow to never interact again, only to find themselves invited to the same destination wedding. When guests start prying, Ben and Bea make a fateful agreement: to pretend they're a couple until they're safely back in America. Surrounded by romance, however, the pair finds themselves enchanted by each other once again. From the director of "Friends with Benefits" (2011) and "Easy A" (2010),

Will Gluck – and written by Ilana Wolpert ("High School Musical: The Musical: The Series") – "Anyone But You" features a hilarious ensemble cast, including GaTa ("Self Reliance," 2023), Alexandra Shipp ("Barbie," 2023), Hadley Robinson ("The History of Sound," 2025), Dermot Mulroney ("My Best Friend's Wedding," 1997), Rachel Griffiths ("Six Feet Under"), Nat Buchanan ("Furiosa: A Mad Max Saga," 2024), Josh Bonello ("Kingdom of the Planet of the Apes," 2024) and more.

Sydney Sweeney and Glen Powell star in "Anyone But You"

Hollywood Q&A

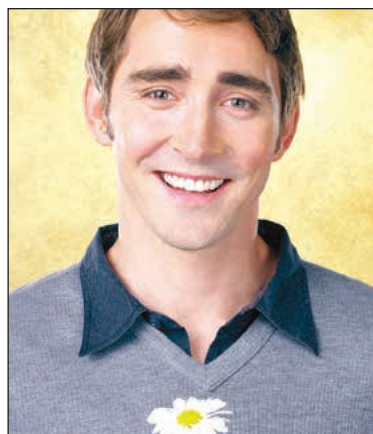

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I remember a show where Lee Pace, from "Foundation," played a guy who was able to bring people and other things back to life. And maybe he was a baker? Did I imagine that? I can't find it anywhere.

A: "Pushing Daisies" didn't seem any less bizarre when it debuted on ABC in 2007.

It was, as you say, about a pastry chef (Lee Pace, now of Apple TV+'s "The Foundation") who can magically resurrect the dead. He first revives his childhood sweetheart, then uses his powers to help a private investigator solve cases.

A review by Frances Grant of the New Zealand Herald perfectly sums up the fate of the show: "This is a show to love or hate, depending on your threshold for whimsy."

Lee Pace stars in "Pushing Daisies"

Unfortunately, it was too whimsical for most, and it was canceled after two seasons.

But it's the kind of show streaming is made for — beloved by a select group and highly rewatchable — so you can find it on a number of different services.

If you're a fan of Pace's new show, "The Foundation," "Pushing Daisies" is also available on Apple TV+, but only for purchase.

You can also hold out a little hope for seeing more of it in the future: Esquire magazine held a "TV reboot tournament" in 2015 to ask readers what show they'd most like to see remade, and "Pushing Daisies" took the prize. Perhaps the TV networks were listening.

Q: I really loved Prime Video's new show, "The Girlfriend." Is it going to get a second season? Where else can I see the actress who plays Cherry?

A: It's too early to know if "The Girlfriend," released just last month on Amazon's streaming service, Prime Video, will get a second season. The producers have said they're ready to dive back in, but Amazon hasn't said either way.

However, if you can be sustained just by seeing more of Olivia Cooke, the actress who plays titular girlfriend Cherry, I have good news.

Cooke is part of the sprawling ensemble of HBO's "House of the Dragon," one of the buzziest shows on TV (well, not currently on TV — more on that in a moment). She plays Alicent Hightower, one of two queens fighting a civil war in the series, which is a prequel to the smash hit "Game of Thrones."

Unfortunately, we're currently in the middle of a two-year wait for a new season — Season 3 of "House of the Dragon" isn't due out until the summer.

On the upside, that means you have two seasons to catch up on in the meantime.

But the homework doesn't stop there. Cooke actually has a pretty packed resume: She also appeared in the hit series "Bates Motel," the first season of another buzzy streaming drama, "Slow Horses," and the 2018 miniseries version of "Vanity Fair."

On the big screen, she's starred in the Oscar-winning "Sound of Metal" (2019) and the hit sci-fi film "Ready Player One" (2018), among many other roles.

But right now "The Girlfriend" is the role people are talking about — Slash Film.com called the show "the internet's new obsession."

Producer Jonathan Cavendish told TechCrunch that he and his fellow producers have ideas for how the second season would go and how it would resolve the cliffhanger finale (no spoilers). But given that it only aired a few weeks ago, it's not surprising that Amazon hasn't committed yet.
