Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

First, I want to start off tonight [May 5] by saying, Happy Cinco de Mayo everybody. For those who don't know, Cinco de Mayo is the day a co-worker in a problematic hat is going to invite you out for margaritas.

According to the latest reports, the Strait [of Hormuz] is closed. We think [that] because only two ships were known to have passed through the waterway on Monday [May 4] and some 1,600 ships and roughly 20,000 seafarers remain stranded. Stranded seafarers. You know what that leads to? Scurvy, cannibalism and lonely sailors fashioning Dutch wives out of rags and soap.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Today is May 4, also known as "Star Wars Day," as in "May the Fourth be with you." Yeah, everyone loves Star Wars. In fact, earlier today, President Trump made Marco Rubio dress up as Baby Yoda.

President Trump has promised to review Iran's new 14-point peace plan but has already said he can't imagine that it would be acceptable. Yes, nothing says diplomacy like, "I haven't read it, and the answer is no."

This morning [May 5], President Trump signed a proclamation to officially bring the Presidential Fitness Test back to schools. Trump is very into fitness. In fact, whenever somebody asked about the Epstein files, he sprints out of the room.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

This guy [President Trump] is so mad. You would think I posted a picture of seashells or something. Isn't there a war dragging on? Imagine if FDR had taken to the airwaves during the Battle of the Bulge to complain about a "Little Orphan Annie" comic strip he didn't like.

Today [May 5], [President] Trump signed an executive order to bring back the Presidential Fitness Test. Do you remember that? They would do it at school in the old days to make you feel bad about how many pull-ups you couldn't do. It went away during the Hussein Obama administration, so Trump had to bring it back. He wants kids to get in shape. He says, "If kids don't get in shape, they'll never be able to marry a wealthy businessman."

Late Night With Seth Meyers

Spirit Airlines on Saturday [May 2] ceased operations. Oh, my God. This is the worst news for my writers since they fixed LaGuardia. If the Mets start winning, we might have to put them on a psychiatric hold.

Free agent quarterback Russell Wilson is reportedly considering retiring and becoming an in-studio analyst or joining the New York Jets. Well, I'll say this — if you become an analyst, you'll have a chance to go to the playoffs.

Amazon has reportedly discussed the possibility of rebooting "The Apprentice" with Donald Trump Jr. as host. Airing right after the new "Bar Rescue."

Immortal glam rock: Lestat takes center stage in Anne Rice series

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Time is arguably one of the biggest constraints in human life. Given that the average human lifespan is estimated at 73.8 years worldwide in 2026 (per Worldometers.info), there's little denying that the amount one could conceivably conquer in a lifetime is finite. But if one could, say, live forever, imagine all the many skills that could be reasonably acquired; all that could be crossed off a never-ending bucket list.

The persistence of time — and supernatural abilities that allow a precious few to live beyond its boundaries — is at the center of Anne Rice's steamy literary universe, which includes "The Vampire Chronicles," "Lives of the Mayfair Witches" and "Servant of the Bones," to name a few. Thankfully for her fans (and those who just love a great TV show), "Interview with the Vampire" was picked up by AMC and developed into a series of the same name in 2020.

"Interview with the Vampire," the first series in Rice's Immortal Universe on AMC, released in late October 2022 and saw a second season a little more than 18 months later, in May 2024. The series returns this spring for a third season, this time under the title "The Vampire Lestat," a direct reference to the second book in Rice's Vampire Chronicles series.

"The Vampire Lestat" premieres Sunday, June 7, on AMC and AMC+.

Despite being the third season in the "Interview with the Vampire" series, "The Vampire Lestat," as is evidenced by its name change, is an entirely new story. While there exists an evolution of the series' characters and plot elements, viewers should not expect a direct continuation of "Interview with the Vampire" in the traditional sense. Instead, the series primarily follows Lestat, played by "The Astronaut Wives Club" actor Sam Reid, as he branches out to explore a vocation in the arts. Now an influential rock star, Lestat brings the ghosts of his past on tour with him.

"The Vampire Lestat goes on tour while being haunted by 'muses' from his past," reads the official AMC logline for the series' newest season. "As the band's popularity grows, so does

Jennifer Ehle in "The Vampire Lestat"

Lestat's influence over vampires and humans alike, leaving others to contend with Lestat's power in the face of the Great Conversion."

And the hype for the Vampire Lestat, as a character and as a musical act, seems to be gaining traction in our world as well. AMC's Immortal Universe page on Instagram has been completely transformed into an edgy, 1990s-coded promo site, complete with concert posters, virtual magazine covers and documentary-style footage of the band and crew, presumably all filmed by Daniel Molloy, who is portrayed by returning cast member Eric Bogosian ("Uncut Gems," 2019).

Bogosian appeared in both seasons of "Interview with the Vampire," not as a creature of the night but as the initiator of the titular interview. A journalist by trade, Molloy's familiarity with various forms of media communication makes him the perfect person to capture every delicious moment of Lestat's enthralling presence, both on and off the stage. And given that he now has experience chronicling the undead lives of vampires in America, why not turn his attention from Louis (Jacob Anderson, "Game of Thrones") to his sire and take the show on the road?

Louis de Pointe du Lac also returns for the series' third season. Still portrayed by Anderson, Louis is taking on the role of supporting character as Lestat gets his time to shine (idiomatically speaking, of course — Rice's vampires don't glitter the way they do in the Twilight series).

Also supporting Lestat's story are Delainey Hayles ("Holby City") as Louis and Lestat's forever-young offspring Claudia; Assad Zaman ("Hotel Portofino") as the vampire Armand, who may get his own series at some point, provided the series continues to follow the path of the novels; Joseph Potter ("My Policeman," 2022) as Nicolas de Lenfant, a French vampire and ill-fated lover of Lestat's; Jennifer Ehle ("Pride and Prejudice") as Lestat's mother, Gabriella, who was turned by Lestat himself; Ben Daniels ("The Exorcist") as Santiago, lead actor for Paris's Theatre des Vampires; and Roxane Duran ("Marie Antoinette") as dollmaker-turned-vampire Madeleine, sired expressly to serve as a companion for Claudia.

Promotional materials for the series are extravagant and rather unique. In addition to the usual trailers, posters and interviews, AMC shared the entire opening sequence to the show via Instagram on March 13. Featuring the glam-rock song "Long Face" by the Vampire Lestat (performed by Reid), one of several songs written for the series, the intro shows several gritty and distorted close-ups of Lestat's face, placing particular focus on his mesmerizing light blue eyes. Interrupted by interstitials of highway driving, guitar riffs, grimy tour bus interiors and elaborate gothic dining tables dressed with bones and candelabras, it is immediately clear that Lestat's onstage persona leans very heavily into his identity as a real-life vampire.

In early April, AMC even announced a "Backstage Pass," which "invit[ed] partners to hit the road with rock star Lestat for a Season 3 promotional tour including a variety of stops" with Reid "headlining as the most immortal rock star the world has ever seen."

Needless to say, it looks like everyone is hungry for more Lestat.

Don't miss the premiere of "The Vampire Lestat," also known as "Interview with the Vampire" Season 3, when it arrives on AMC and AMC+ Sunday, June 7.

Extinction event television: Prehistory comes to life in 'Surviving Earth'

Pliosaurus, as depicted in "Surviving Earth"

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Every April 22, we celebrate our wonderful planet by recognizing Earth Day, but unlike calendar holidays such as Mother's Day, Father's Day and Labor Day, Earth's hard work is not all accomplished in one singular 24-hour period.

Regardless of one's personal and religious beliefs about the creation of our world, science has shown that since life has been on Earth, several tectonic shifts and extinction-level events have shaped and reshaped our planet's landscape, flora and fauna. The creatures that survive often evolve into a new iteration of their old selves, learning to adapt to changes in their environment and keep on trucking (so to speak).

This sentiment is at the very heart of NBC's newest docuseries, "Surviving Earth." Premiering Thursday, June 11, on NBC and its affiliated streaming service Peacock, new episodes release weekly over a period of eight weeks and tell Earth's story as it has never before been seen.

"Surviving Earth" comes from Universal Television Alternative Studios and Loud Minds, the latter of which is overseen by creative director Tim Haines, who rose to acclaim following the six-part BBC documentary series "Walking with Dinosaurs" in 1999. Haines and Loud Minds are also behind the multi-city immersive attraction Dinosaurs in the Wild, which allowed exhibitiongoers to travel some 67 million years back in time to explore Earth in the Cretaceous Period.

Despite the attraction going above and beyond to show everything from "prehistoric animals in cages" to "an autopsy on a giant dinosaur" (per NatGeoKids.com), its doors were shuttered in 2018, per its planned tour schedule, which ended in London, England.

Less than a decade later, Haines brings his dino-sized world back to the small screen for ongoing learners to experience the majesty and wonder of our world at work. Spanning eight hourlong episodes, "Surviving Earth" offers an inside look at the final days of some of the planet's more bizarre and beautiful prehistoric creatures.

Beginning with the Permian-Triassic Mass Extinction event, also known as PTME or the Great Dying, Haines and the creative team behind "Surviving Earth" illustrate the circumstances behind Earth's greatest known biotic crisis. According to the Pictures Impossible/Loud Minds Instagram page (@picturesimpossible), the premiere episode portrays the "struggles of a gorgon (Inostrancevia) pack to survive in an overheating world" — something which sadly sounds all too familiar amid our current climate crisis.

"This episode also features Scutosaurus, Suminia and Elph," the description continues. "After the event, we jump 10 million years forward to discover a reptile rebirth featuring Cymodusa, Dongosuchus, Cymbospondylus and Protopterosaurus."

In the second episode of the series, airing the following week on NBC and streaming, we travel forward approximately 25 million years to the Carnian Pluvial Episode (or CPE), wherein "we experience the beginnings of climate instability which leads to the rise of dinosaurs."

"It stars a hatchling Ischigualastia growing up in a drought," reads the @picturesimpossible description for Episode 2. "She meets Panphagia, Saurosuchus and Rhynchosaurs. We then jump forward eight million years to when the climate is drier and more stable and dinosaurs dominate. These include Lessemsaurus, Zupaysaurus and the early mammal Chalminia."

Each of the series' eight episodes is designed to be a stand-alone experience, meaning that the events portrayed are not necessarily presented in chronological order. As the series progresses, viewers will also witness "a mated pair of Nanuqsaurus," "a mother Pliosaurus and a mother Spinosaurus struggle to raise their young as the oceans stagnate," a female Diplodocus who is trapped in a "struggle to survive as the climate dries" and a "stunning reef full of Crinoids and Carolinites," wherein "a male Sababambaspis tries to build a nest to attract a mate."

Digital effects for "Surviving Earth" are provided by Loud Minds and Milk VFX, a British visual effects studio based in London. In addition to the company's feature film VFX history, which includes work on "47 Ronin" (2013), "The Martian" (2015), "Annihilation" (2018) and "Meg 2: The Trench" (2023), Milk VFX has a history of paleo-documentary excellence on television.

Beginning in 2013 with the BBC Studios and Discovery Channel coproduction "Ice Age Giants," Milk VFX has accomplished work on more than 30 TV projects over the past 13 years, including "Doctor Who," "Sherlock," "The Alienist," "Good Omens," "Dracula," "Citadel" and Sir David Attenborough's 3D television adventure titled "David Attenborough's Natural History Museum Alive," which, like "Ice Age Giants," aired in the company's founding year.

And should "Surviving Earth" have you craving more information about natural history and the creation of our modern world, never fear: NBC has you covered. Following the new series' premiere, NBC is rereleasing "The Americas," a recent geological documentary favorite narrated by two-time Oscar winner Tom Hanks ("Forrest Gump," 1994) and chronicling the division of land mass into what is now known as North America and South America.

Don't miss your chance to witness history as it evolves: "Surviving Earth" premieres Thursday, June 11, on NBC and Peacock.

'American Ninja Warrior' returns with new, epic challenges

Matt Iseman, Zuri Hall, Akbar Gbajabiamila of "American Ninja Warrior"

By Caroline Collcutt
TV Media

Mission Midoriyama: Hosts Matt Iseman ("Clean House"), Akbar Gbaja-Biamila ("The Talk") and Zuri Hall ("Access Hollywood") welcome a new season, new competitors and a new racecourse in the Season 18 premiere of "American Ninja Warrior," coming to NBC Sunday, June 8, and streaming the next day on Peacock.

"From mind-boggling obstacles to heartwarming Ninja stories, Season 18 is set to deliver the goods," promises NBC. While offering some fan-favorite events — including, of course, the ultimate challenge of conquering Mount Midoriyama — this upcoming season also introduces some new and unexpected twists, including a supersized three-lane racecourse — that will see three Ninjas going head-to-head — and some intense moments at the National Finals, which feature an all-racing format.

Last season, "American Ninja Warrior" offered its viewers some cheer-worthy buzzer slams and heartbreaking wipeouts, proving that this nearly 20-year-old format still has plenty of gas in the tank. The season ended with the crowning of 19-year-old Kai Beckstrand, who previously competed on "ANW Junior" and returned once again to prevail over runner-up Noah Meunier and other fierce competitors, including Jessie Graff, Isabella Folsom, Isaiah Thomas, David Bergstrom-Wright and 15-year-old Luke Beckstrand — Kai's younger brother and training partner.

"These athletes push each other to be more aggressive, to be more athletic, to take bigger risks," host Matt Iseman told NBC Insider. "We saw some upsets [in Season 17] that you never would've predicted in a million years. And then we saw redemptions that just made your heart swell."

He continued on to say: "I am so grateful for the fans and for the athletes whose passion makes it possible for us to get to do this. Because Akbar and I, we always feel like we've got the best seats in the house for one of the best sporting events in the world."

From executive producers such as Arthur Smith ("Hell's Kitchen"), Kent Weed ("Spartan: Ultimate Team Challenge"), Anthony Storm ("The Titan Games"), Brian Richardson ("Celebrity Bull Riding Challenge") and Kristen Stabile ("American Ninja Warrior: Ninja vs Ninja"), "American Ninja Warrior" returns to NBC Sunday, June 8, with all episodes available to stream the next day on Peacock.

Chaos in Croatia: Capt. Sandy Yawn's crew prepares to board the M/Y Akira One in the Season 11 premiere of "Below Deck Mediterranean," airing on Bravo Monday, June 8, and streaming on Peacock the next day.

In this upcoming season, Capt. Sandy will be reunited with chief stew Aesha Scott, bosun Nathan Gallagher and deckhand Joe Bradley, as they begin their third season working together. Deckhands Cooper Dawson and Luke Brumer also rejoin the crew, alongside stews Gen Lillie, Kayley Smith and Kat Johnston, and a new face to the series, chef Joy Lefaucheur.

According to Bravo, the yachties will be navigating more than changing tides as they work through friendship rifts, complicated boatmanes, unexpected departures and surprise returns — all while sailing through the Adriatic Sea, framed by the dazzling landscapes of Dubrovnik, Croatia.

While guests enjoy spectacular service and one-of-a-kind experiences — including dragon slaying dinner shows and lots of "Game of Thrones"-inspired moments, as "a ton of" the series was filmed around Dubrovnik, noted by Capt. Sandy in the season's trailer — the crew will be facing some dragon-sized dilemmas of their own, as the growing rift between Nathan and Joe reaches fiery new heights.

Following previous Season 10 drama, a "growing rift with Joe comes to a shocking conclusion as Nathan struggles to maintain his composure under pressure, and the two deckies' competition threatens to tear apart the entire Med team," the network explains.

A trailer for Season 11 offers more insight into the drama as Aesha cryptically refers to a "landmine blowing up" between the bosun and the deckhand, and Capt. Sandy observes "something weird" going on between Nathan and Joe.

Later in the trailer, Aesha even appears to be caught in chaos as she stands between Nathan and Joe while Capt. Sandy asks the trio to act like leaders and be "what drives our team."

For Aesha, it'll be a season full of ups, downs and "I do's," as she plans a wedding while training her "youngest and most competitive stew team yet" (per Bravo).

"I used to be this young, wild stallion," she quips in the trailer. "Now, I'm like a wise old horse — like Seabiscuit."

Will the pressure prove too much for busy Aesha? Will Nathan or Joe be one of the season's upcoming departures? All will be revealed in Season 11 of "Below Deck Mediterranean," premiering on Bravo Monday, June 8.

"Sweet Magnolias" - Season 5

The Magnolias have survived just about everything, and Season 5 of "Sweet Magnolias" proves that New York City is no match for margarita night when the new season premieres Thursday, June 11, on Netflix. Marriage, infidelity, divorce and unexpected loss — lifelong best friends Maddie (JoAnna Garcia Swisher, "Reba"), Dana Sue (Brooke Elliott, "Drop Dead Diva") and Helen (Heather Headley, "Respect," 2021) have weathered all storms together. Now, with Maddie trading small-town charm for a big publishing career in New York City, Dana Sue and Helen are also headed to the big apple in support of Maddie's sudden career change. Based on the novels by Sherryl Woods ("Chesapeake Shores") — who also serves as showrunner and executive producer — this new season stars Frank Oakley III ("The Wonder Years"), Artemis ("Heels"), Dion Johnstone ("Star Falls"), Justin Bruening ("Grey's Anatomy"), Brandon Quinn ("Big Wolf on Campus"), Jamie Lynn Spears ("Zoey 101"), Anneliese Judge ("Where's Rose," 2021), Carson Rowland ("Pretty Little Liars: Original Sin"), Logan Allen ("Talia in the Kitchen") and Chris Medlin ("The Vampire Diaries").

"Norway: The Dark Horse"

From acclaimed filmmaker Emil Trier ("The Worst Person in the World," 2021) and produced by Vidar Lien Amundsen ("Henrik the Outsider") for Novemberfilm, "Norway: The Dark Horse," a two-part sports docuseries, premieres Tuesday, June 9, on Netflix. "It's been over a generation since Norway last reached the big stage," per Netflix, and hope had all but faded for fans that their favorite team would one day return. Now, with global stars like Martin Odegaard ("2025-2026 UEFA Champions League"), Erling Haaland ("Sevilla vs Borussia Dortmund," 2021), Alexander Sorloth ("2025-2026 UEFA Champions League") and Antonio Nusa ("Inside: Antonio Nusa") under head coach Stale Solbakken ("The Football League Show"), that's finally possible. Norway's men's football team returns with a major international tournament on the horizon, and it all unfolds across two episodes that offer exclusive, inside access to one of football's most emotionally charged comebacks.

"Song Sung Blue" (2025)

Based on a true story, two down-on-their-luck musicians prove it's never too late to find love and follow your dreams in 2025's "Song Sung Blue," available to stream on Netflix this Saturday, June 13. In 1987 Milwaukee, a part-time Don Ho impersonator named Mike (Hugh Jackman, "The Greatest Showman," 2017) crosses paths with Claire (Kate Hudson, "How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days," 2003), a hairdresser by day and Patsy Cline by night, at the Wisconsin State Fair and they fall in love. After they get married, the newly weds become a Neil Diamond tribute act called Lightning & Thunder and go from performing in dive bars to opening for Pearl Jam, with Eddie Vedder (John Beckwith, "Three Women") himself joining them onstage for "Forever in Blue Jeans." In 1999, a car strikes Claire and she loses part of her leg and Mike suffers a heart attack, and the music goes quiet. What follows is many years stumbling through addiction, depression and doubt, as Mike and Claire find their way back to the music and to each other. Written and directed by Craig Brewer ("Empire"), the film also stars Ella Anderson ("Suncoast," 2024), Hudson Hensley ("The Wildman of Shaggy Creek," 2025) and King Princess ("Nine Perfect Strangers").

Sadie Soverall and Matt Cornett in "Every Year After"

"Every Year After"

Based on "Every Summer After," the best-selling novel by Carley Fortune, the TV series "Every Year After" premieres Wednesday, June 10, on Prime Video with all eight episodes. Every year, Percy Fraser (Sadie Soverall, "Saltburn," 2023) spent her summers in Barry's Bay — a small lake town in Ontario where time moved slower and everything felt possible. There, she found her people: the Florek brothers, Charlie (Michael Bradway, "Chicago Fire") and Sam (Matt Cornett, "High School Musical: The Musical: The Series"). Somewhere along the way, Percy and Sam's easy friendship became complicated by their feelings for one another. Years later, a tragic death pulls Percy back to Barry's Bay, where she must face a devastating mistake that she made all those years ago. Told across six years and one defining week, "Every Year After" is executive produced by showrunners Amy Harris ("The Comeback") and Leila Gerstein ("The Handmaid's Tale"), making for a romantic, nostalgic story about first love, heartbreak and the choices that stay with us forever.

"Are You There God? It's Me, Margaret." (2023)

Based on Judy Blume's novel, a story about life, friendship and faith unfolds in 2023's "Are You There God? It's Me, Margaret.," arriving on Prime Video this Thursday, June 11. In 1970, 11-year-old Margaret Simon (Abby Ryder Fortson, "The Pitt") is uprooted from her home in New York City and dropped into a New Jersey suburb where she knows absolutely no one. Raised with no religion by a Jewish father (Benny Safdie, "Oppenheimer," 2023) and a mother (Rachel McAdams, "Send Help," 2026) estranged from her Christian family, Margaret is left to figure out her faith entirely on her own. She talks to God, privately and persistently, hoping he's listening to all the things she couldn't possibly say to anyone else. When the school year begins, Margaret's teacher, Mr. Benedict (Echo Kellum, "Arrow"), assigns a year-long project exploring religious identity, and alongside her new friends Nancy (Elle Graham, "The Hunger Games: Mockingjay - Part 2," 2015), Gretchen (Katherine Mallen Kupferer, "Fools," 2016) and Janie (Amari Alexis Price, "The Knife," 2024), they discover what it means to belong to a community, and maybe, to faith itself. Written and directed by Kelly Fremon Craig ("The Edge of Seventeen," 2016), the film is executive produced by Jonathan McCoy ("Blockers," 2018).

"Plane" (2023)

From director Jean-Francois Richet ("Mesrine: Killer Instinct," 2008), "Plane" (2023) makes a crash landing on Prime Video this Friday, June 12. On New Year's Eve, pilot Brodie Torrance (Gerard Butler, "The Bounty Hunter," 2010) flies a routine commercial flight from Singapore to Honolulu when a violent storm destroys the plane's avionics, forcing him and his co-pilot, Samuel (Yoson An, "The Luminaries"), to attempt an emergency landing on a remote airstrip. Unbeknownst to them, they've landed in enemy territory, and now, Brodie, Samuel and the passengers must survive until help can come and save them. Among the passengers is Louis Gaspare (Mike Colter, "Luke Cage"), a murder suspect being extradited to Canada and Brodie's only real shot at getting everyone out alive. But when armed men swarm the wreckage and haul off the passengers for ransom, Brodie and Louis venture into the jungle together on a daring mission to save them. Starring Daniela Pineda ("Jurassic World: Fallen Kingdom," 2018), Lilly Krug ("Salt and Fire," 2016), Kelly Gale ("Uglies," 2024) and Tony Goldwyn ("The Last Samurai," 2003), "Plane" hails from executive producers Tim Lee ("Adulthood," 2025) and Nik Bower ("Selma," 2014).

Host Terry Crews searches for America's best home cook in all-new series

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

// The biggest, boldest home cook competition in the network's history" (per Food Network) begins Sunday, June 7, on Food Network when the brand-new series "100 Cooks" makes its epic debut.

Hosted by "Brooklyn Nine-Nine" actor Terry Crews, this one-of-a-kind competition brings 100 of the country's best hobby and home cooks together for a seven-week culinary gauntlet that will see 99% of its competitors eliminated. When the numbers are narrowed from 100 to one, the single chef left standing will be named America's best home cook — earning themselves a life-changing $250,000 prize.

"In each episode, competitors are selected at random by a lottery ball 'Cook Mixer' to come to the floor after the 'Challenge Mixer' dictates what food-themed battle they will face," reads the series' description. "Each round is judged by top culinary content creator Nick DiGiovanni and Food Network all-star Alex Guarnaschelli ['Ciao House'], who will determine who stays in the competition each week and who is sent home."

According to Food Network, the series premiere will see Crews welcoming a wide array of unique competitors, "from firefighters and college students to corporate lawyers and stay-at-home moms and dads." More than half of the competing cooks get their chance to shine as they take part in five different challenges, including a "best noodle dish battle," a "roisserie chicken face-off," an "egg challenge" and the "best party bite competition." Twenty chefs will be sent home, seeing numbers dwindle quickly as the competition heats up.

"Future episodes will include food trivia contests, bake sale bake-offs, spicy weeknight dinner battles and one-pot cooking challenges, before the competition narrows down to the final eight cooks for the season finale," Parade shares. During this season finale, the last cooks standing must impress the judges with three courses: breakfast, lunch and dinner. Whoever serves the basics best makes history as "100 Cook's" first-ever winner.

"This is the kind of competition I live for — big energy, big stakes and 100 talented home cooks bringing everything they've got," says Crews. "Every challenge was unpredictable, every dish had a story and the passion in that kitchen blew me away. Seeing their creativity up close was an incredible experience — and an absolute blast!"

"100 Cooks" makes its debut Sunday, June 7, on Food Network.

She Dances

Jason (Steve Zahn), a worn-down father struggling with grief and regret, reluctantly accompanies his teenage daughter Claire (Audrey Zahn) to a major regional dance competition. What begins as a simple road trip becomes an emotional reckoning. Years of distance, unspoken resentment and the lingering pain of a family tragedy surface as the two navigate tense conversations, fleeting moments of warmth and the pressure surrounding Claire's performance. As Claire prepares for what may be her final competition before leaving home and pursuing future endeavors, the trip becomes about more than just a dance event. Through the chaos of competition and the vulnerability of being forced into close quarters together, father and daughter begin to rediscover the bond they once had.

Tuesday Best Bets

Bear Grylls hosts "Bear Grylls Is Running Wild"

Close Encounters of the Third Kind

TCM 8:00 PM
Steven Spielberg picked up his first Best Director Oscar nomination for this sci-fi film that stars Richard Dreyfuss as a UFO eyewitness. It is followed by "A.I. Artificial Intelligence," Spielberg's 2001 critical and commercial hit.

Bear Grylls Is Running Wild

(44) 9:00 PM
After going on wild journeys with the likes of Matthew McConaughey, Elizabeth Banks, Colman Domingo and Tiffany Haddish, who will join Bear Grylls for this season finale? No matter who it is, Bear will push their body and mind to the limit.

Neighborhood Wars

A&E 9:00 PM
In this latest episode, it's all about coastal feuds. In California, a routine house move gets tense when a neighbor turns territorial. Over in Florida, meanwhile, a homeowner tries to replace their rotting fence, only to be met with an unusual demand.

Password

(5) (12) 10:00 PM
Jimmy Fallon and Keke Palmer are back for a new season of this game show revival. Across three rounds, players take turns guessing a "password" based on their teammate's clues, with the winning team earning $25,000. This episode, Ariana Madix joins in.

Wednesday Best Bets

Luke Broderick of "The Valley" MasterChef

(12) 8:00 PM

Gordon Ramsay, Tiffany Derry and Joe Bastianich push home cooks through a grueling series of culinary tests, each challenge raising the stakes higher. However, only one will survive elimination, impress the panel and become the MasterChef.

The Floor

(44) 8:00 PM

While 100 contestants entered at the beginning of the season, only one can emerge victorious during this season finale. The question is: who's ruthless enough to take out the remaining competitors and conquer the titular floor? Rob Lowe hosts.

The Valley

BRavo 8:00 PM

During Tom's "Bond" themed party, the guests find themselves shaken and stirred. Relationships are tested when Lala confronts Nia, Janet faces Luke and Jesse brings Michelle to tears. Zack invites everyone to Mexico — but will a trip make things worse?

The Poseidon Adventure

TCM 8:00 PM

The S.S. Poseidon is set to be decommissioned after one final trip from New York to Athens. However, disaster strikes as the liner capsizes while out at sea. As such, a preacher (Gene Hackman) takes it upon himself to lead survivors to safety.

Most Extreme Humans

TLc 9:00 PM

From a Filipino man with hands so big he wears wristwatches as rings to an Indian teen living with "werewolf syndrome," this new series highlights people from around the world who're living with the world's rarest and most remarkable physical conditions.

“Alice and Steve” - Season 1
The friendship is officially over as the first season of “Alice and Steve” lands on Hulu this Monday, June 8, with all six episodes dropping at once. When Alice (Nicola Walker, “Four Weddings and a Funeral,” 1994) discovers her best friend of 25 years, Steve (Jemaine Clement, “What We Do in the Shadows,” 2014), is dating her 26-year-old daughter Izzy (Yali Topol Margalith, “A Good Girl’s Guide to Murder”), she’s determined to blow up the relationship before it goes any further. But Steve isn’t going down without a fight. From the producers of “Baby Reindeer,” the series stars Ken Blackburn (“Hercules: The Legendary Journeys”), Joel Fry (“Game of Thrones”), Tyrese Eaton-Dyce (“A Good Girl’s Guide to Murder”), Sam Chapman (“Vera”), Marcia Warren (“Leap Year,” 2010), Kasha Bajor (“Hinterland”), Eilidh Fisher (“Dope Girls”) and Ebony Aboagye (“The Conjuring: Last Rites,” 2025). Created by Sophie Goodhart (“Sex Education”), the first season is directed by Tom Kingsley (“Stath Lets Flats”).

“It Ends With Us” (2024)
Based on Colleen Hoover’s best-selling novel, “It Ends With Us” (2024) arrives on Hulu this Tuesday, Jemaine Clement and Yali Topol Margalith in “Alice and Steve”

June 9. Lily Bloom (Blake Lively, “Gossip Girl”) can’t find a single kind word to say at her father’s funeral. After walking away, she moves to Boston and opens the flower shop she’s always dreamed of. One evening, a chance meeting on a rooftop brings Ryle Kincaid (“Jane the Virgin” star Justin Baldoni, the film’s director), a charming neurosurgeon, into her life. Their romance moves quickly — they date, move in together and get married — but when her first love, Atlas Corrigan (Brandon Sklenar, “Westworld”), re-enters her life, her marriage begins to mirror the abusive home Lily grew up in and spent her whole life trying to escape. However, when Lily finds out she’s pregnant, she must find the strength to make the most difficult choice of her life and break the cycle of abuse for her daughter. Directed by Baldoni, “It Ends With Us” stars Jenny Slate (“The Secret Life of Pets,” 2016) as Allysa, Ryle’s older sister; Kevin McKidd (“Grey’s Anatomy”) as Lily’s late father; and Hasan Minhaj (“Patriot Act with Hasan Minhaj”) as Marshall, Allysa’s husband and Ryle’s best friend.

“Underworld: Blood Wars” (2016)

The war between vampires and Lycans continues when “Underworld: Blood Wars” (2016) lands Tuesday, June 9, on Hulu. Picking up after the events of “Underworld: Awakening” (2012), this fifth chapter finds death dealer Selene (Kate Beckinsale, “Vacancy,” 2007) at the center of a deadly war fought between the Lycan clan and the very same Vampire faction that once betrayed her. While the Vampires demand justice for the death of Viktor (Billy Nighy, “Love Actually,” 2003), the Lycans begin hunting Selene’s daughter, Eve (India Eisley, “I Am the Night”), while growing their army of vampire-werewolf hybrids. With David (Theo James, “The White Lotus”) and Thomas (Charles Dance, “Game of Thrones”) by her side, Selene tries to stop the eternal war between the Lycans and Vampires, even if it means making the ultimate sacrifice. Directed by Anna Foerster (“The Day After Tomorrow,” 2004), “Underworld: Blood Wars” also features Tobias Menzies (“Outlander”), Lara Pulver (“Sherlock”) and James Faulkner (“Game of Thrones”).

Denzel Washington directed an episode of "Grey's Anatomy" wood legend Denzel Washington ("Training Day," 2001) in that episode of "Grey's Anatomy" was because he was never on camera. After all, he's not the kind of guy you miss.

Washington actually directed the Season 12 episode "The Sound of Silence." And it was a rare moment in his career.

Throughout his near-50 years in the film biz, Washington has only directed five projects — and this was his only foray into television so far. Reportedly, he only took the job because his wife was a huge fan of the show.

That's according to "Grey's" star Ellen Pompeo ("Moonlight Mile," 2002) in an episode of her podcast "Tell Me With Ellen Pompeo."

But that's not to say he was slumming it. "Grey's" is one of the most successful and beloved shows in history, having been on ABC for an incredible 23 seasons and counting.

And he's not the only big-name actor to direct the show. Phylicia Rashad ("The Cosby Show"), Eric Stoltz ("Pulp Fiction," 1994) and David Paymer ("Mr. Saturday Night," 1992) have all helmed episodes over the years.

Q: Is Mike Colter going to come back as Luke Cage in the new "Daredevil" show?

A: Much as fans might want to see it, a full Luke Cage revival doesn't seem to be in the cards for Mike Colter ("The Good Wife") — partly because he just got very busy with a brand-new show.

For those not up to date with the sprawling Marvel cinematic and television universe, Colter played the title role in the Netflix series "Luke Cage" — a New York-based superhero with super strength and unbreakable skin. It was part of a series of Netflix shows centered around the better-known superhero Daredevil (played by Charlie Cox, of 2014's "The Theory of Everything").

Those shows were all canceled, but Disney+ revived Daredevil in a new series, "Born Again." Colter came back as Cage for a single episode of that show earlier this year.

That now seems to have been a one-off, or at least something that will only happen occasionally.

Colter would have to work hard to squeeze more into his schedule, which is now full of a new show: CBS's "Cu-pertino."

Colter will star in the legal drama about a crusading lawyer representing regular folks against the corporate giants of Silicon Valley. It will form part of CBS's new fall schedule this year.

This show, too, is a reprisal of sorts for Colter, who first came to fame in another CBS legal drama, "The Good Wife." He played drug lord/legitimate businessman Lemond Bishop on and off through the show's first six seasons, and again a few times in its spinoff, "The Good Fight."
