Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

Now watching an elderly man sway to Vatican elevator music for 40 minutes might make you wonder: "Is he OK?" And you wouldn't be the only one, because yesterday [Oct. 14] more than 230 doctors and health care providers called on [Donald] Trump to release his medical records. Do you know how hard it is to get 230 doctors to agree on anything? I've been trying to get one dentist to transfer my X-rays to another dentist for 45 years. I don't even have those teeth anymore!

Kamala Harris is getting a boost from her boss, Joe Biden. He stumped in Philly and he was fired up when he was talking about Trump's weird musical rally. [Shows clip of Biden asking what's wrong with Trump]. What's wrong with that guy? Well, uh, if you're asking seriously, I would say it's his narcissistic personality disorder exacerbated by the cruelty of a father who saw his son not as a person in need of love but as an extension of his own inadequacies and now as he reaches his twilight years, the personality disorder is amplifying symptoms of dementia, which makes sense, given that some studies have shown narcissists may be more prone to Alzheimer's because their brains are wired to be inward focused and less stimulated by social connection. ... Plus, he's got a big old butt and it makes him walk funny.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

As of tomorrow [Oct. 15], we are three weeks from election day. We are in the "Somebody please put Trump in a home stretch of this thing." ... It was a messy weekend for Donald Trumpster human dumpster. ... He made many statements. He said Democrats want to ban windows. He said Democrats want to ban cows. He called America an "occupied country." He threatened to withhold federal aid for California wildfires in the future if Gov. Newsom doesn't do what he says. He again bragged about not using a teleprompter while reading from a teleprompter.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon (R)

Aaron Taylor-Johnson has been formally offered the role of James Bond. Everyone's excited. James Bond is the world's most popular spy, not counting TikTok. Compared to Daniel Craig, he'll be a much younger James Bond. He orders his kombucha shaken, not stirred.

Late Night With Seth Meyers (R)

Disgraced former congressman George Santos announced last week [March 17-23] that he plans to run for a Long Island House seat as an independent. Also, a Republican, a Democrat and a Libertarian.

Boeing today [March 25] announced that three of its senior executives are stepping down. Or to put it in Boeing terms, they were sucked out.

McDonald's announced a new partnership with Krispy Kreme to offer doughnuts at the fast food chain. Because if you love McDonald's and you love Krispy Kreme, you don't have the energy to make two stops.

Checking in: NBC introduces new hospital comedy 'St. Denis Medical'

By Jay Bobbin
TV Media

Allison Tolman stars in "St. Denis Medical"

A new hospital is about to open for patients — and for viewers.

Once the home of the hit series "Scrubs," NBC gets back into the business of hospital comedies with "St. Denis Medical," premiering on the nework and streaming on Peacock Tuesday, Nov. 12. Using a cinema verite style, the show takes the form of a mockumentary about an Oregon facility struggling with many of the problems so many hospitals are facing — particularly when it comes to shortages of staff and funding.

If the show's approach seems similar to former NBC projects "Superstore" and "American Auto," there's a good reason: it was created by two of the same producers from those series, Justin Spitzer and Eric Ledgin.

The ensemble cast of "St. Denis Medical" includes Wendi McLendon-Covey ("The Goldbergs") as the site's ex-surgeon executive director, Tony Award winner David Alan Grier ("In Living Color") as an emergency department doctor and Allison Tolman ("Fargo") as a supervising nurse. Also featured are Josh Lawson ("House of Lies"), Mekki Leeper ("Jury Duty"), Kahyun Kim ("Cocaine Bear," 2023) and "Superstore" alum Kaliko Kauahi.

"There's this sort of middle area that we're finding," Ledgin explains of the "St. Denis Medical" style, "where someone is saying something half to the camera, half to a patient or a co-worker, and it just gives you so many different layers to play with … different layers of the characters, and we're lucky enough to have seven series regulars that are all just killer actors and can do every one of those levels in a different, interesting way. I would say that even though there are some limitations to the format at times, you get a lot more benefit and a lot more to play with comedically. And from a storytelling perspective, too."

For McLendon-Covey, who also went the mockumentary route in Comedy Central's "Reno 911!," that strategy fits what she desired in and from a series after playing family matriarch Beverly Goldberg for a decade in ABC's "The Goldbergs."

"All I wanted was to not play another mom right away," she says. "I think it's well documented that I can play moms, and with respect to all moms everywhere, what I loved about this character is that she is not nurturing at all. Don't come near her wanting a hug.

"She does not want your germs, and she cannot keep a plant alive, but she is devoted to this hospital. That's her baby, and this is her whole personality. The fact that this came along right at the tail end of 'The Goldbergs,' I'm the luckiest person in the world. I was not being strategic necessarily. I just knew I didn't want to be [playing someone] in the '80s again, and this was just such a gift."

Fellow "St. Denis Medical" star Grier maintains that he was also reasonably flexible in returning to series work. "My goal is always to say 'Yes' to a good script," he reasons. "It just happened that I was [going to play] a doctor. There are some characters that you read and you think, 'I can reach that or get to that.' This guy, he's an old curmudgeon. That's me. It wasn't the medical stuff; that was incidental. I just responded to the script, and — and I say this begrudgingly — it was good. It was well written. It was intelligent."

A Primetime Emmy nominee for the first season of FX's "Fargo," Tolman has earned acclaim for offbeat projects that also have included ABC's "Downward Dog" and the Paramount+ (then-CBS All Access) series "Why Women Kill." She believes "St. Denis Medical" extends that tradition for her.

"I find something really charming about the mundane in the most extreme circumstances," she reflects. "Everyone who is visiting the hospital is in extreme circumstances, but as extreme as they are, they're not extreme for [the staff]. It's just another day, and someone has a day off [or it's] somebody's birthday, and I find that really charming. Every episode has a moment where that sort of sincerity and that heartfelt core shine through. I think we're really lucky in that way."

Also a producing veteran of NBC's "The Office," Spitzer wrote for "Scrubs." While he expresses affection for that medical comedy, he reflects that "it had more wacky elements … marching bands coming through, or a musical episode. It was great in so many ways, but the fact that ['St. Denis Medical'] is a mockumentary sort of limits us and says we are always going to be the much more grounded version."

Though he and Spitzer were working on another series concept, Ledgin claims that once "St. Denis Medical" entered their thought process, they were all in on it. "It was very exciting to start talking about it," recalls Ledgin, "and to see how all these characters and even story ideas just were kind of spilling out of us early on, which is just the best test — [something] coming easy. That's a good thing."

Scrub up and tune in for NBC's newest medical comedy, "St. Denis Medical," when it premieres Tuesday, Nov. 12, on the network and streaming on Peacock.

Second season of sci-fi: Rebecca Ferguson explores life beyond the bunker in 'Silo'

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Rebecca Ferguson stars in "Silo"

As a powerful Bene Gesserit sorceress and mother of Emperor Paul-Muad'Dib Atreides (Timothée Chalamet, "Wonka," 2023) in Denis Villeneuve's recent Dune film franchise, actress Rebecca Ferguson had already made a name for herself in the world of pastoral sci-fi drama by the time "Silo" hit the small screen in 2023.

An Apple TV+ original, the series is set in a post-apocalyptic landscape, wherein the planet's last 10,000 people are confined to the presumed safety of a deep underground bunker called the Silo. Now that the harrowing first season has come to an end with Ferguson's character, Juliette, venturing out of the Silo and discovering some hard truths, it is time to reveal how these details affect the rest of the Silo's population (and possibly those beyond).

Season 2 of "Silo" premieres Friday, Nov. 15, on Apple TV+.

Based on the literary Wool trilogy (also known as the Silo trilogy) by American author Hugh Howey, the show's official press description explains that of the 10,000 survivors in the Silo, "no one knows when or why the Silo was built," adding that "any who try to find out face fatal consequences." This was shown in the first season as (spoilers) several Silo dwellers appear to have perished while outside the bunker cleaning off cameras in protective suits sealed with defective thermal tape.

Regarding Juliette, Apple TV+ Press writes that she is "an engineer who seeks answers about a loved one's murder and tumbles onto a mystery that goes far deeper than she could have ever imagined, leading her to discover that if the lies don't kill you, the truth will."

While some questions have already been answered in the debut season, plenty of mysteries still remain, such as what will come of Juliette after she found a way to (safely?) leave the Silo? Will she use this opportunity to seek out other Silos? Will she get help from a seemingly benevolent force? Only time will tell. Either way, according to ScreenRant.com, "It seems as if 'Silo' Season 2 will be told in both the past and present."

The official Season 2 trailer, however — which Apple released in mid-October — shows a Silo population that is very focused on how present circumstances will affect their future. As it turns out, when Juliette left the container on a spacewalk-type mission at the end of the first season, she never returned. As such, Silo officials have conveniently presumed Juliette dead, painting her "demise" as the result of heroic actions while also using her story as a cautionary tale to keep other Silo dwellers in line.

Meanwhile, those who know Juliette best (and those who have the knowledge that she was properly protected by the good thermal tape) are wise to the rhetoric being pushed by the Silo's higher-ups. Juliette's friend Shirley (Remmie Milner, "Save Me"), is particularly skeptical of her supposed death, which is just one of the factors leading to a possible uprising within the Silo system. In fact, as more people begin to see Shirley's side and question what may have actually happened to Juliette, the more probable a rebellion becomes.

And while much of the series' events are being kept secret for the purposes of plot development and suspense, some news is certain, such as the addition of "The White Lotus" actor Steve Zahn in the series' sophomore season. First announced July 27 at San Diego Comic-Con, Zahn's role in "Silo" is still largely unknown, but in the final moments of the trailer, viewers see a familiar set of piercing blue eyes glaring through the sliding panel in a cell door.

"You try to open this door again," Zahn calls to Juliette down a dark hallway, "and I'm going to kill you." A rather unsettling line from a voice best known for delivering quippy, sarcastic comedy.

Zahn joins returning cast members Common ("John Wick: Chapter 2," 2017) as head of Judicial security Robert Sims, Tim Robbins ("The Shawshank Redemption," 1994) as the sinister Bernard Holland and Harriet Walter ("Succession") as Juliette's fellow engineer and surrogate parental figure, Martha Walker.

Chinaza Uche ("Dickinson"), Avi Nash ("The Walking Dead"), Shane McRae ("Sneaky Pete"), Iain Glen ("Game of Thrones"), Billy Postlethwaite ("Tomb Raider," 2018), Rick Gomez ("Justified"), Caitlin Zoz ("Come Home," 2023), Alexandria Riley ("In My Skin"), Tanya Moodie ("A Discovery of Witches") and Clare Perkins ("EastEnders") also star.

Created by "Justified" producer and showrunner Graham Yost, the show's executive producers include Yost, Ferguson and Howey, as well as Fred Golan ("Roswell"), Ingrid Escajeda ("Empire"), Nina Jack ("Better Call Saul"), Remi Aubuchon ("Powers") and Academy Award-nominated series director Morten Tyldum ("The Imitation Game," 2014).

Season 2 of "Silo" premieres Friday, Nov. 15, on Apple TV+.

Experience the thrill of the race in Part 2 of 'Sprint'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Runner's high: On your mark, get set, go! Prepare for a jaw-dropping show of strength and agility as Part 2 of the popular Netflix docuseries "Sprint" drops Wednesday, Nov. 13, on the streamer.

Following individuals from around the world, this fascinating series offers an inside look at the lives of top athletes practicing track and field, each doing their best to become the fastest person in the world. After an exciting, six-episode first installment, audiences are now welcomed back to watch as these talented runners prepare to compete in the 2024 Paris Olympics, which took place this past summer.

As Netflix describes: "The latest edition of the docuseries shows what it takes to dig deep, pull out your personal best on a global stage and then get back into training to continue dominating on the track."

With four 45-minute episodes all releasing at once, "Sprint" follows the competitors "as they compete at the pinnacle of their sport" (per Netflix), seeing some rise to the occasion while others are faced with the difficult realization that they must wait another four years for their next shot.

Sprinters Marcell Jacobs (Italy), Fred Kerley (U.S.), Shericka Jackson (Jamaica) and Olympic 100-meter champion Noah Lyles (U.S.) are all set to return for this second installment after making appearances in the series' first run of episodes, and are now joined by the likes of Kishane Thompson (Jamaica), Melissa Jefferson (U.S.), Twanisha Terry (U.S.), Kenny Bednarek (U.S.) and Oblique Seville (Jamaica). Other sprinters joining the ranks are Olympic

Julien Alfred as seen in "Sprint"

100-meter champion Julien Alfred (Saint Lucia), 200-meter gold medalists Gabby Thomas (U.S.) and Letsile Tebogo (Botswana), all of whom shined during this year's Olympic Games.

"It takes a special talent, both physically and mentally, to succeed in a world where your fate is decided in just 10 seconds," World Athletics president Sebastian Coe told Netflix during a 2023 interview. According to USA Today, however, Team USA managed to dominate in Paris, as "the U.S. won by far the most medals in track and field with 34 overall, the most for the U.S. since winning 40 at the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics."

Experience the epic highs and lows of sport, with four brand-new episodes of "Sprint" premiering Wednesday, Nov. 13, on Netflix.

Movie maestro: From a galaxy far, far away to the shores of Cape Cod, explore the life, compositions and impact of world-renowned, legendary composer John Williams in "Music By John Williams," now available to stream on Disney+.

With 54 Oscar nominations to his name — and five wins for work in "Fiddler on the Roof" (1971), "Jaws" (1975), "Star Wars: Episode IV - A New Hope" (1977), "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial" (1982) and "Schindler's List" (1993) — Williams shines as one of the most decorated musicians in the film industry, inspiring generations with his musical cues, from the subtle (to not so subtle) "duh nuh … duh nuh" of a shark's approach to the instantly recognizable tune of "Hedwig's Theme," used throughout the Harry Potter franchise.

From director Laurent Bouzereau ("The Fabelmans: A Family in Film," 2023), this feature-length documentary is the first-ever to explore Williams' unforgettable career and celebrate the artist's impressive contributions to film, the stage and pop culture at large.

According to Variety, "the film chronicles Williams' rise from high school jazz bandleader to studio pianist to TV and film composer, rocketing to prominence with his scores for Steven Spielberg and George Lucas films in the 1970s; and his eventual embrace by the classical community via a 13-year stint with the Boston Pops, subsequently conducting symphony orchestras around the world."

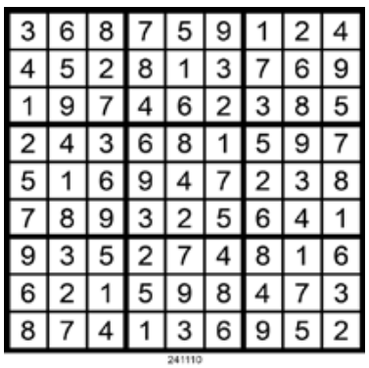

Featuring interviews with the aforementioned Steven Spielberg ("Jurassic Park," 1993) and George Lucas ("Raiders of the Lost Ark," 1981), alongside J.J. Abrams ("Star Wars: The Force Awakens," 2015), Ron Howard ("A Beautiful Mind," 2001), Chris Columbus ("Home Alone," 1990), Ke Huy Quan ("Everything Everywhere All At Once," 2022), Seth MacFarlane ("Family Guy") and many others — with nearly 30 directors, producers, composers and musicians sharing their insights — the documentary paints a comprehensive picture of Williams' impact, while also sharing never-before-seen footage of Williams at work on some of his most unforgettable scores, including music for "Jaws," "E.T." and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" (1977).

Having previously turned down every opportunity to star as the subject of a film, Bouzereau worked hard to gain Williams' trust throughout the years-long process of filming, claiming the key to getting the man to open up was to focus on his work. "When you talk to him about music," Bouzereau says, "he will talk to you about anything."

Produced by Spielberg, Howard and Brian Grazer ("Jim Henson: Idea Man," 2024), "Music By John Williams" is now available to stream on Disney+.

"Emilia Pérez" (2024)

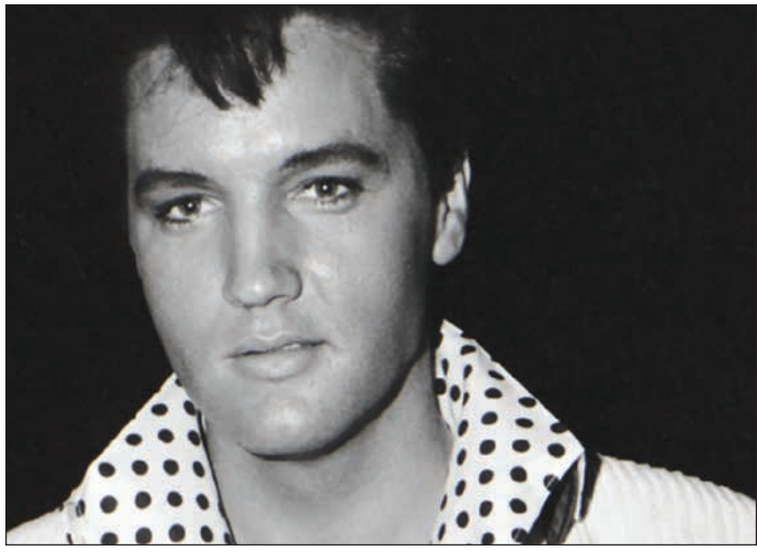

Touted by Netflix as "an audacious fever dream that defies genres and expectations," the musical crime comedy film "Emilia Pérez" premieres Wednesday, Nov. 13, on the streamer. Following the lives of four women in Mexico who are all searching for their own happiness, the film sees cartel leader Emilia (Karla Sofia Gascon, "Until the End of Time") seek out the help of underappreciated lawyer Rita (Zoe Saldana, "Lioness") in order to fake her own death so that she can finally live the life she truly wants. Intermingling the stories of Jessi (Selena Gomez, "Only Murders in the Building") and Epifania (Adriana Paz, "Charity," 2016) with those of Emilia and Rita, the film's story unfolds "through liberating song and dance and bold visuals" (per Netflix). Based on the novel "Écoute" by Boris Razon, "Emilia Pérez" features a screenplay and direction by Jacques Audiard ("Paris, 13th District," 2021). Edgar Ramirez ("Dr. Death") and Mark Ivanir ("Mayor of Kingstown") also star.

"Hot Frosty" (2024)

Holiday movie queen Lacy Chabert ("Mean Girls," 2004) returns to the screen once more with Netflix's newest holiday rom-com, "Hot Frosty," premiering Wednesday, Nov. 13. This holiday season, the classic story of Frosty the Snowman takes on new life once more. Starring Chabert as Cathy, a widow who lost her husband two years earlier, the movie sees her doing her best to get into the holiday spirit. When the snowman that she builds magically comes to life — and turns into a devastatingly handsome man, played by Dustin Milligan ("Schitt's Creek") — Cathy takes it upon herself to introduce him to the world. As they explore together, the snowman's naiveté helps Cathy to gain a new perspective on life and teaches her how to love and laugh again. From director Jerry Ciccoritti ("Schitt's Creek") and writer Russell Hainline ("The Santa Summit," 2023), "Hot Frosty's" star-studded cast includes Craig Robinson ("Killing It"), Joe Lo Truglio ("Brooklyn Nine-Nine"), Katy Mixon ("American Housewife"), Lauren Holly ("Picket Fences"), Chrishell Stause ("Selling Sunset") and Sherry Miller ("Queer as Folk").

"Return of the King: The Fall and Rise of Elvis Presley" (2024)

Indulge in a little more conversation when "Return of the King: The Fall and Rise of Elvis Presley" makes its debut on Netflix this Wednesday, Nov. 13. From producer Jason Hehir ("The Last Dance") — and made with permission from Graceland — this feature-length documentary delves into the life and career of the iconic rock 'n' roll star Elvis Presley, offering an in-depth look at the artist's pivotal 1968 comeback special. Having aired on NBC, this hour-long television special marked Presley's return to live performances after spending seven years in the film industry, bringing fans across America to their feet as he sang hits like "Jailhouse Rock," "Hound Dog" and "Can't Help Falling in Love." Now, creators like Baz Lurhmann — who directed "Elvis" (2022) — alongside Presely's daughter, Lisa Marie, various music historians, critics and colleges of the King, all join to share insights on the historic moment, together revisiting upscaled and remastered archival footage from the night in question. While speaking about "Return of the King" during a recent podcast appearance, Hehir further explained: "I've been fascinated with that guy my whole life because I know there's a human being underneath that two-dimensional facade we see culturally. It's always been an interest of mine."

"Cross" - Season 1

Get on the case with the brand-new crime thriller series "Cross," premiering on Prime Video Thursday, Nov. 14. Based on James Paterson's Alex Cross series of novels, the series stars Aldis Hodge ("City on a Hill") as Alex Cross, a decorated homicide detective and forensic psychologist living and working in Washington, D.C. Faced with a sadistic serial killer who has been leaving a trail of bodies as they terrorize the city, Cross and his partner, John Sampson (Isaiah Mustafa, "Shadowhunters"), work to hunt down the killer and put them away for good. But when a threat from Cross' past makes an unwelcome appearance, he faces an even greater challenge as he tries to keep his life, career and family together. From creator and showrunner Ben Watkins ("Burn Notice"), "Cross" is directed by Craig Siebels ("Bun Notice"), Stacey Muhammed ("Harlem") and Nzingha Stewart ("From Scratch"). The series also stars Ryan Eggold ("New Amsterdam"), Alona Tal ("SEAL Team"), Johnny Ray Gill ("BrainDead"), Jennifer Wigmore ("Malory Towers"), Stacie Greenwell ("Shameless"), Sharon Taylor ("Guiding Emily," 2023), Mercedes de la Zerda ("War for the Planet of the Apes"), Eloise Mumford ("The Right Stuff") and Tyler Barre ("No Time Like Christmas," 2019).

"In Cold Water: The Shelter Bay Mystery"

When an innocent woman drowns under suspicious circumstances and only one witness can be found, the story gets complicated. "In Cold Water: The Shelter Bay Mystery" premieres Monday, Nov. 11, on Prime Video, sharing the real-life story of one woman's devastating death. While on a trip to the Canadian Rocky Mountains with her husband, Peter, school teacher Laura Letts-Beckett fell into icy-cold water and drowned, leaving only her partner to explain what happened in her final moments. At first, the event seemed no more than a tragic accident, but only one year after Laura's death, police arrested Peter — a larger than life city counselor from New Zealand — on suspicion of murder. What unfolds is a captivating tale of love and loss, that raises questions about marriage, religion, suicide and a the power of guilt. From director Trish Neufeld ("Dancing with Mom," 2022), this chilling, three-part docuseries was produced by Pablo Salzman ("The Wall"), Michael Kronish ("Dark Side of the Ring"), Suze Hannagan ("Testify"), Thomas Robins ("Freaky"), Kim Roberts ("Murder in a Small Town") and Benjamin Duffield ("Blood & Treasure").

"My Old Ass" (2024)

If you could give your younger self any one piece of advice, what would it be? For Elliot, that's a difficult question. From writer-director Megan Park ("The Fallout," 2021), the time-bending sci-fi comedy "My Old Ass" is now available to stream on Prime Video. Starring Maisy Stella ("Nashville") as Elliot — an 18-year-old on the precipice of leaving for college — the movie follows along as she experiences a hallucinogenic mushroom trip in which she comes face-to-face with her 39-year-old self (played by Aubrey Plaza, "Agatha All Along"). During their conversation, older-Elliot asks her younger self to do one thing, and one thing only: to stay away from a local boy, Chad (Percy Hynes White, "Wednesday"), if she wants to avoid certain heartbreak. When Elliot finally meets the boy in question, she must decide whether she'll listen to her older, more knowledgeable self, or if she'll take the risk regardless of consequence. "My Old Ass" also stars Aubrey Plaza ("Agatha All Along"), Maddie Ziegler ("West Side Story," 2021), Kerrice Brooks ("The Prom," 2020), Maria Dizzia ("Martha Marcy May Marlene," 2011), Alain Goulem ("18 to Life"), Seth Isaac Johnson ("Firefly Lane"), Carter Trozzolo ("The Fabulous Show with Fay and Fluffy") and newcomer Alexandria Rivera.

Cookie artisans gather for annual competition

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

An annual favorite for foodies, Christmas lovers and those with a definitive sweet tooth, "Christmas Cookie Challenge" returns Thursday, Nov. 14, with a new episode from its eighth season on Food Network.

With Eddie Jackson ("Outchef'd") and Ree Drummond ("The Pioneer Woman") returning as hosts, this holiday baking extravaganza welcomes the country's best cookie artists to the most festive showdown around. This year, "'Christmas Cookie Challenge' is back with a season-long celebration of the magic of the North Pole," says Food Network, as "[each] episode features two exciting challenges that explore different aspects of the North Pole, including one inspired by the beloved classic movie 'The Polar Express.'"

Seeing four new bakers each week, this latest season is also said to raise the stakes higher than ever before, as every "first round" winner will also receive an incredible prize — that is, in addition to the $10,000 offered to each week's final winner, alongside the ever-so-coveted Golden Ornament.

During this week's episode, the cookie masters prepare to lace up their ice skates and don their warmest snowsuits, as Jackson and Drummond ask for their competitors to create two different cookies inspired by winter sports, like skiing, snowboarding or hockey. In the episode's description, Food Network teases that "one cookie maker will suffer the agony of defeat, while another will advance with an advantage for the next round."

Ree Drummond and Eddie Jackson host "Christmas Cookie Challenge"

The description continues, claiming that afterwards, "the merry residents of the North Pole gather in the town's gazebo to socialize, so the cookie makers craft their own towering 10-foot tall Christmas gazebos complete with classic pitched roofs. Their cookies will have to incorporate comforting drinks perfect for sipping at social occasions, like peppermint mocha, pumpkin spice, chai or apple cider."

More holiday fun can be expected throughout the season, as challenges ask bakers to imagine how farm animals "hoedown for the holidays" at the North Pole; create 3D Christmas tractors; engineer massive North Pole Christmas Market displays only out of gingerbread; build edible ice-skating rinks, snowball slices, hot cocoa stalls, sugar angels and so much more.

Find a taste of holiday cheer — and some ideas for what cookies to leave Santa, perhaps — in each new episode of "Christmas Cookie Challenge," airing Thursdays on Food Network.

"Say Nothing"

From FX, the limited series "Say Nothing," based on the book of the same name by Patrick Radden Keefe, premieres Thursday, Nov. 14, on Hulu. Set in Northern Ireland during The Troubles, the series, "explores the extremes some people will go to in the name of their beliefs, the way a deeply divided society can suddenly tip over into armed conflict, the long shadow of radical violence for all affected and the emotional and psychological costs of a code of silence" (per FX). This exploration starts with the disappearance of Jean McConville (Judith Roddy, "Rig 45"), "a single mother of 10 who was abducted from her home in 1972 and never seen alive again" (FX). Spanning decades as it tells the stories of members of the Irish Republican Army (IRA), "Say Nothing" looks into the lives of Marian (Hazel Doupe, "Sanctuary: A Witch's Tale") and Dolours Price — played by Lola Petticrew, ("She Said," 2022) in youth and Maxine Peake ("The Theory of Everything," 2014) in older adulthood — two young women who became symbols of radical politics; military strategist Brendan Hughes (Anthony Boyle, "Masters of the Air"); and Gerry Adams (Josh Finan, "The Responder"), a leading political operator who has always denied any involvement with the IRA. Created for television by Joshua Zetumer ("Patriots Day," 2016), "Say Nothing" features episodes directed by Michael Lennox ("Derry Girls"), Anthony Byrne ("Peaky Blinders"), Mary Nighy ("Traces") and Alice Seabright ("Chloe"). Jack Myers ("Masters of the Air"), Amy Molloy ("Cyprus Avenue," 2019), Megan Cusack ("Call the Midwife") and Paul Mallon ("Derry Girls") also star.

"It's All Country" - Season 1

Whether it's a country road taking you home or a boogie that gets you boot scootin', country music brings a deep well of stories to audiences along with its twanging, catchy beats. In the brand-new series "It's All Country," premiering Friday, Nov. 15, on Hulu, country music legend Luke Bryan ("Country Girl") gets to the bottom of the hidden stories behind some of the genre's most popular songs. Taking on all the musical magic that Nashville, Tennessee, has to offer, Bryan "uncovers the secrets, the hidden inspirations and the personal moments that shaped the music you love" (per Hulu) as he gets personal with the artists behind the songs. Featuring never-before-seen performances, "It's All Country" stars musical guests including Mickey Guyton ("Nothing Compares To You"), Kane Brown ("Miles On It"), Wynonna Judd ("No One Else On Earth"), Sheryl Crow ("Soak Up the Sun"), Lady A ("Need You Now"), Luke Combs ("Ain't No Love In Oklahoma") and Shaboozey ("A Bar Song"). Directed by co-executive producer Michelle Peerali ("Paris in Love"), the series is executive produced by Bryan, Chris Weaver ("Hard Knocks") and Peyton Manning ("History's Greatest of All-Time with Peyton Manning").

"Thelma" (2024)

Grandma takes the ride of her life in 2024's "Thelma," making its streaming debut this Friday, Nov. 15, on Hulu. Written and directed by Josh Margolin ("My Boyfriend Is a Robot"), this dramedy stars June Squibb ("Nebraska") as 93-year-old Thelma Post, who finds herself on the adventure of a lifetime after a single phone call turns her life upside down. Believing her grandson Danny (Fred Hechinger, "News of the World," 2020) is on the other line, Thelma is fooled into thinking that the boy is in serious trouble by a pair of scammers. She sends the troublemakers $10,000 before realizing the plot is a scam, and when police are unable to help remedy the issue, Thelma then decides to take matters into her own hands, setting out to retrieve the stolen money herself with her friend Ben (Richard Roundtree, "Shaft," 1971) — and his electric scooter — helping her on the way. Parker Posey ("Lost in Space"), Clark Gregg (Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D.), Nicole Byer ("Grand Crew") and Malcolm McDowell ("Son of a Critch") also star.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I know "The Simpsons" and "Futurama" are made by the same creator, but do any of the voice actors do both shows?

A: For shows as long-running as "The Simpsons" (approaching its 800th episode) and "Futurama" (now in the mid-100s, which is still nothing to sneeze at), there's bound to be a lot of crossover in the guest-star category. But in terms of the main casts, there's been surprisingly little, and it's none of the people you'd think of.

Sure, Dan Castellaneta (Homer in "The Simpsons") and Billy West (Fry in "Futurama") have done an episode or two of each other's shows — again, a little bit of sharing is almost inevitable — but that's it.

Whereas Tress MacNeille ("Disenchantment"), Maurice LaMarche ("Pinky and the Brain") and Frank Welker ("Velma"), names you may not be familiar with, are absolutely crucial players on both shows.

All three are professional voice chameleons who mostly step in to do the one-off characters — sometimes one-line characters — that each show thrives on.

MacNeille has done dozens of roles in "Futurama" and literally hundreds of roles in "The Simpsons." Most are characters with names like "TV Mom" or "Hotel Staff #1," though she has also voiced Principal Skinner's mother, Agnes, throughout "The Simpsons'" run.

LaMarche's case is a similar one, having done dozens of characters for both shows. However, he's made a niche for himself as the go-to guy for impressions, including doing legendary director Orson Welles in both shows.

Welker, too, has done numerous roles in both shows, but most notably the pet Nibbler in "Futurama" and Santa's Little Helper, the Simpsons' family dog. Voicing speech-capable pets is kind of Welker's thing, though, since he's best known as the longtime voice of Scooby-Doo in a range of different cartoons.

Of course, as you say, the key shared employee of "The Simpsons" and "Futurama" is Matt Groening, the man who created both shows.

Q: What's Lisa Kudrow doing now? And is it true she was turned down by "Saturday Night Live"?

A: Only this year — the 50th anniversary year of the legendary sketch show "Saturday Night Live" — could a star as bright as Lisa Kudrow ("Friends") be mostly talked about for a role she didn't get.

It helps that her most recent show didn't do so well — she had a role in Apple TV+'s ambitious "Time Bandits," a sci-fi comedy series that was canceled after one season earlier this year.

But, that was just one of a huge number of TV and film gigs Kudrow has starred in after — yes, indeed — being rejected by "Saturday Night Live" in 1990.

Kudrow didn't get the job, but her former comedy partner Julia Sweeney (the two were in the Groundlings improv troupe together) did. And Sweeney admits to having felt a little guilty about it.

"I remember thinking, 'Oh, I hope that Lisa gets something. She deserves to work,'" Sweeney said in a People magazine interview earlier this year.

She shared this as a funny anecdote because, of course, Kudrow did find a nice little gig four years later when she was cast in "Friends," one of the biggest sitcoms in history.

She's starred in numerous other major projects since, including her long-running sitcom, "Web Therapy."

"Time Bandits" wasn't quite as successful, but its cancelation has cleared the way for her next big role, in the new sitcom "No Good Deed," slated to debut on Netflix next month.
