The weather is disrupting travel everywhere. More than 3,000 flights have been canceled or delayed and Amtrak announced over 40 trains were canceled. And Amtrak only cancels trains for very good reasons, like, when they feel like it.

News from Canada. Today [Jan. 6] Justin Trudeau announced he will resign as prime minister. This is going to have massive repercussions; do you realize with the loss of Trudeau, the hottest G7 leader is now Olaf Scholz?

Another [Presidential Medal of Freedom] getter was Bill Nye the Science Guy. Bill got the medal for his humanitarian work of science teachers who were too hung over to teach. That's why they also gave a medal to his partner — the AV cart.

New York City just became the first U.S. city to introduce congestion pricing, which is a $9 toll for anyone who drives into Midtown. And if that doesn't earn enough money, they're going to introduce a swear jar in Brooklyn.

Today [Jan. 7], Mark Zuckerberg announced that Meta will no longer fact-check posts on Facebook and Instagram, and users will now have to correct any false posts themselves. Unfortunately, I have no idea if that's true because I read it on Facebook.

A lot of people this year texted me their holiday card and that is, I just want to say, that is unacceptable. I won't even look at those. I would rather have no card and, in fact, that is what you sent — no card. You did not send a holiday card. A card is a card. I want something I can take out of the envelope, look at, ask my wife, "Who are these kids?" Never figure it out between us and then throw it in the garbage.

Cher is here with us tonight [Jan. 7]. You probably know she has a book, an autobiography. Cher has had such a fascinating life, she's had to split her memoir into multiple parts like the Dune movies.

The house in Albuquerque, New Mexico, that was used as Walter White's home in the TV series "Breaking Bad" is on sale for nearly $4 million. For that house?! Is all the meth still there?

According to a new report, some New Yorkers are scratching off or painting over digits on their license plates to avoid the city's new congestion toll. Luckily, the standard New Jersey license plate comes pre-blurred.

Ben Affleck and Jennifer Lopez have reportedly settled their divorce, but as they were signing it, the pen rolled onto the floor. They both knelt down to pick it up and their hands touched, and now they're back together.

On the outside: Investigators chase dangerous inmates in 'The Hunting Party'

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

What you don't know can't hurt you, right? While that may be true sometimes, a new procedural drama supposes what could happen if the most dangerous secret facility imaginable was breached. In the brand-new series "The Hunting Party," premiering Monday, Feb. 3, on NBC, FBI agent Rebecca "Bex" Henderson (Melissa Roxburgh, "Manifest") is tasked with tracking down the country's most unpredictable inmates, who have escaped from an underground, off-the-books prison.

Most people are familiar with the FBI's most wanted list of suspects alleged to have committed serious crimes. But what happens when those suspects are brought to justice and disappear into the system, never to be heard of again? "The Hunting Party" suggests that a high-level operation of deep solitary confinement keeps America's most vicious criminals hidden far underground, away from society.

The inciting incident in the series is an explosion revealing the classified prison hidden beneath innocuous-looking farmland. The blast sets many inmates — who have been disappeared in one way or another on paper — free to roam and possibly commit more crimes in a world that has no idea they are still alive. Skilled profiler Bex Henderson is brought in to lead a small team of highly specialized agents, only learning about the existence of the bunker facility once she's brought on board to round up those inmates who have survived the blast and are now in the wind.

Bex's team searches for the fugitives on the loose, but as they get deeper down the rabbit hole of the investigation, it becomes clear that there was a sinister reason behind the jailbreak — the explosion was planned.

"The blast was no accident," Oliver Odell (Nick Wechsler, "Revenge") tells Bex in the series' official trailer, "Someone wanted those killers back out in the world."

Oliver, who joins Bex's investigative team, has a romantic past with the profiler, but both agents have bigger fish to fry and try to put their past behind them to work together.

The rest of the team is made up of Ryan Hassani (Patrick Sabongui, "The Flash"), Shane Florence (Josh McKenzie, "La Brea") and Jennifer Morales (Sara Garcia, "Ride").

"The Hunting Party" was created by JJ Bailey ("Echo"), who serves as the series' co-showrunner with writer Jake Coburn ("The Endgame"). Thor Freudenthal ("Carnival Row") directs the series, while Keto Shimizu ("DC's Legends of Tomorrow") writes alongside Bailey and Coburn. All four also executive produce the show.

Also starring in the series is Tobias Jelinek ("This Is Us") as serial killer Richard Harris, who is used to introduce Bex to the secret prison. Brought in by Elizabeth Mallory (Zabryna Guevara, "New Amsterdam") to provide an assessment of the murderer, Bex questions why she has been asked to give a profile of a dead killer. Little does she know that Harris is alive and unwell and, now on the run, is ready for a cat-and-mouse chase with the investigator.

"The longer they're out there, the more dangerous they're going to become," Bex tells her team in the trailer, underlining how important it is that they find the escapees. The trailer also features shots of elaborately staged crime scenes with unnervingly posed corpses — reminiscent of the work of serial killer Hannibal Lecter, portrayed by Mads Mikkelsen ("Casino Royale," 2006), in NBC's beloved horror series "Hannibal." "Highly intelligent malignant narcissists," Bex calls the inmates they're searching for. They are the most sophisticated and hard to pin down of all the criminals, unless of course the searching is being done by a team made up exclusively of elites like Bex.

If all of this sounds rather familiar to you, you are not being deceived. You may have just caught the early series premiere of "The Hunting Party," which aired after the NBC broadcast of the NFL divisional playoff game between the Philadelphia Eagles and Los Angeles Rams on Sunday, Jan. 19. Hoping to keep eyeballs on the peacock network after the game, NBC chose to give viewers a sneak peak of one of winter's hottest shows, just in time to get some good water cooler talk going before the series' regular time-slot premiere.

"The Hunting Party" is among three new scripted series joining the NBC lineup this February, with two more new dramas premiering Sunday, Feb. 23, on NBC.

"Grosse Pointe Garden Society" follows four members of a suburban gardening club who must keep a shared secret buried. The series stars Melissa Fumero ("Brooklyn Nine-Nine"), AnnaSophia Robb ("Rebel Ridge," 2024), Ben Rappaport ("For the People") and Aja Naomi King ("Lessons In Chemistry").

Then, work and personal lives intertwine in the sun-soaked sister series of USA Network's "Suits." Fresh off a burst of new viewers of the original series comes the law firm drama spinoff and new Sunday night staple, "Suits: LA." Stephen Amell ("Heels") is Ted Black, a lawyer to the biggest clients in Los Angeles who must do something he never thought he could have to keep his firm above water.

Don't miss the thrilling series premiere of the new investigative drama "The Hunting Party," airing Monday, Feb. 3, on NBC.

Good, 'Clean' fun: Cox, Wallace star in new comedy series

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

For many years, it was a widely accepted "fact" that the cells in the human body die off and are replaced with new cells every seven to 10 years, thus essentially creating an effectively new human with the turn of each decade. While this has since been debunked as a gross exaggeration of actuality (see the 2019 Discovery.com article titled "Does your body really replace itself every seven years?" for more details), the truth of the matter is that humans do change. Many of our cells are replaced within this time frame, while others are with us throughout our entire lives — but not all change is incurred strictly on a cellular level.

"Clean Slate," a new Amazon Original series, follows an aging father who must accept a greater change than he ever imagined possible when his child returns home after nearly 23 years away. Once known to her dad as Desmond, the now middle-aged Desiree (Laverne Cox, "Orange Is the New Black") arrives on Harry Slate's (George Wallace, "The Ladykillers," 2004) Alabama porch with some news: the child he once knew as his son is a trans woman, and she has come home to heal their long-decaying relationship. What follows is a comedic eight-episode journey steeped in themes pertaining to human rights, personal expression, preconceived notions, family bonds and generational trauma.

"Clean Slate" premieres Thursday, Feb. 6, on Prime Video.

Starring American actress and LG-BTQIA+ activist Cox, the half-hour sitcom created by Norman Lear ("All in the Family") was first developed for Peacock in 2020. However, following the pandemic, Lear's death in 2023 and various other industry-related changes, the series landed with Amazon, where Lear's production company, Act III Productions, is working with Sony Pictures Television on both "Clean Slate" and a new Mexican American-driven story titled "Loteria."

One thing that makes "Clean Slate" particularly unique to the television world is that it was co-written by leading figures Cox and Wallace alongside writer, producer and actor Dan Ewen

Laverne Cox stars in "Clean Slate"

("Dear Santa," 2024), who serves as series showrunner.

For Lear's part, prior to his December 2023 death from heart failure at 101 years old, the TV icon acted as coproducer on "Clean Slate," working closely with executive producer Cox, who told Entertainment Weekly that the series is classic Lear fare in that it does not shy away from tough topics or real, palpable emotion.

"[It's] very much a tribute to the legacy of Norman Lear and tackling intense issues," said Cox, "but doing it in a way that's accessible and in a way that doesn't point a finger at you or preach to you."

In the same interview with EW, Cox also touched on the elements of the show that make it most compassionate, placing family and human experience at the heart of the conversation. "Ultimately, this show is about love," Cox stipulated. "This show is about family, and trying to figure out how to connect after being away from each other and figuring out how to connect across generations and experiences."

About her character, Cox shared that, "Desiree has gone and lived. She's grown up in New York and become a very different person beyond her gender identity. ... It's really about that and this father who loves his daughter unconditionally."

Some may wonder, though, that if Desiree has become the woman she always knew she was without her father, then why return home to her Southern-born-and-bred, car wash-owning dad at all? The answer: profound love and the resolution of past trauma.

Desiree mentions in the pilot that she has spent time in therapy reflecting upon all the emotionally unavailable men she has dated and finally came to terms with the fact that she needs to repair her relationship with the first and most impactful "emotionally unavailable" man in her life: her dad.

"We discover throughout the series that there are other reasons why she's come back home, as well," Cox added coyly in her interview with EW.

And while the bulk of the series does focus on that tumultuous relationship between parent and child,

Cox and Wallace are supported by a top-tier cast that includes Jay Wilkison ("Nashville") as Harry's wise (and wise-cracking) car wash attendee, Mack, who is a former inmate and single father to 10-year-old Opal (Norah Murphy, "A Friend of the Family"), who also helps out at Clean Slate car wash. There's also D.K. Uzoukwu

("The Choir") as the neighborhood church's closeted choir director, Louis, a childhood friend of Desiree who provides a safe space for her.

They are subsequently joined on screen by Phillip Garcia ("Sprung"), Zoe Vatekeh ("The Sacrament," 2013), Shena Verrett ("Origin," 2023), Pat Yeary ("The Righteous Gemstones"), Keith Arthur Bolden ("Cobra Kai"), Jojo Brown ("Single Drunk Female"), Telma Hopkins ("Family Matters") and Amari K. Jones ("The Quad").

Don't miss the long-awaited premiere of "Clean Slate," streaming Thursday, Feb. 6, on Prime Video.

'The Voice' returns with new coaches and new singers for Season 27

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Red chair rivalries: "Set to be a spectacle" (per NBC), Season 27 of the Emmy-winning singing competition "The Voice" returns Monday, Feb. 3, on NBC — before streaming the next day on Peacock — offering a revamped coaching lineup, stellar blind auditions and a new pack of singers ready to make an impression.

This season, the coaching panel will feature "The Voice" veterans and newcomers alike, each bringing their own expertise as a powerhouse in the music industry. Returning to their chairs are coaches John Legend ("All of Me") and Michael Bublé ("Everything") — the latter of whom earned his first win in Season 26, alongside singer Sofronio Vasquez — who welcome back Maroon 5 frontman Adam Levine ("Memories") after his six-year hiatus from the show.

First announcing his return for Season 27 on Instagram, Levine told his fans: "Season 27, yes, I'm coming back; I'm so excited. I cannot wait. I'm well rested. I'm ready to go. I'm a little nervous — I'm not nervous — but I'm so excited. It's going to be great, and I can't wait. It's going to be awesome, let's go! Team Adam is back!" Cheekily, he added: "I feel bad for other teams."

One coach, however, won't be returning for this next round of competition. The ever-popular actress and singer Reba McEntire ("Reba") has made her exit from "The Voice" after appearing on seasons 24 to 26, earning herself a win in Season 24 when contestant Asher HaVon stole the show. Now, Reba's cowboy boots will be filled by another country sensation, singer Kelsea Ballerini ("Cowboys Cry Too"), who makes her debut as a coach after serving as a substitute for Kelly Clarkson ("Because Of You") during the show's 20th season.

Ahead of last season, host Carson Daly ("Last Call with Carson Daly") spoke with Awards Radar, sharing a sentiment that still rings true. "People thought [The Voice] was never gonna work, and not only did it work, but it's lasted for 25 seasons," he said. "So I think that's really the crazy part ... we've been able to keep an audience interested, and tweak the show and let the format evolve by adding steals and those little features that kind of make it exciting again. Every time it's on, it feels fresh."

Will it be Legend, Bublé, Levine or Ballerini who takes the crown? Tune in for Season 27 of "The Voice," starting Monday, Feb. 3, on NBC.

Stars gone wild: On your marks, get set ... survive. See celebrities bend, break and baffle during the all-new competition series "Celebrity Bear Hunt," coming to Netflix this Wednesday, Feb. 5.

Known for series like "Man vs. Wild," "The World's Toughest Race" and "Running Wild With Bear Grylls," British adventurer and survivalist Bear Grylls has now been sharing his expertise on screen for over a decade. Now 50 years old — and turning 51 this June — the former SAS trooper still has plenty to offer and countless challenges he'd still like to tackle. This time around, Bear is taking on his biggest challenge yet, tracking a beast of a different kind: celebrities.

Hosted by Holly Willoughby ("Dancing on Ice"), this brand-new, action-packed competition sees a group of celebrities dropped into the heart of the Central American jungle, where they will be trained by Bear in basic survival skills before being sent out on their own to be hunted down by the expert himself.

As Netflix describes: "Bear believes there's an action hero inside us all — even the celebs — but how strong is their will to survive? As Bear puts them through their paces, those who fail to impress will face the dreaded 'Bear Hunt' — a brutal game of cat and mouse where they'll be hunted down by Bear himself and, if captured, eliminated from the show."

This first season features 12 brave contestants from across the entertainment industry, as they live together, compete together and — for some — lose together, making their mark as Bear's first A-list prey.

A trailer for the series announced these 12 contestants to be Shirley Ballas ("Strictly Come Dancing"), Kola Bokinni ("Ted Lasso"), Big Zuu ("Big Zuu's Big Eats"), Steph McGovern ("Steph's Packed Lunch"), Joe Thomas ("The Inbetweeners"), interior designer Laurence Llewelyn-Bowen ("Changing Rooms"), former tennis player Boris Becker, former rugby player Danny Cipriani, models Leomie Anderson and Lottie Moss, and finally, singers Una Healy ("Swear It All Again") and Mel B ("Wannabe"), formerly Scary Spice from the Spice Girls.

In this same trailer, Bear shared his excitement over what's to come next, saying "I've done many wild things in my life, but I've never hunted celebrities.

"These celebrities won't come out of this experience the same," he added ominously.

An adventure unlike any other, "Celebrity Bear Hunt" premieres Wednesday, Feb. 5, on Netflix.

"Kinda Pregnant" (2025)

Get caught up in the baby fever when Amy Schumer's ("Life & Beth") new comedy flick, "Kinda Pregnant," premieres Wednesday, Feb. 5, on Netflix. When Lainy Newton (Schumer) finds out her best friend (Jillian Bell, "22 Jump Street," 2014) is pregnant, she is unable to cope with her jealousy and her own desire for a family. Starting to wear a fake baby bump to get some attention of her own, Lainy's chaotic journey has her meeting the man of her dreams (Will Forte, "The Last Man on Earth") along the way. Directed by Tyler Spindel ("The Out-Laws," 2023), "Kinda Pregnant" is written by Schumer and Julie Paiva ("The Secret," 2009), with a story by Paiva. Damon Wayans Jr. ("Poppa's House"), Brianne Howey ("Ginny & Georgia"), Alex Moffat ("Bad Monkey"), Joel David Moore ("Avatar," 2009), Chris Geere ("You're the

"Sweet Magnolias" - Season 4

The ladies of Serenity, South Carolina, are making their return to the small screen when Season 4 of "Sweet Magnolias" premieres Thursday, Feb. 6, on Netflix. Following lifelong best friends Maddie (JoAnna Garcia Swisher, "Once Upon a Time"), Helen (Heather Headley, "Respect," 2021) and Dana Sue (Brooke Elliott,

"Drop Dead Diva"), this feel-good drama series chronicles their lives as they lift each other up through relationship, career and family struggles. This season, the trio faces down big storms — "both emotional and meteorological," according to Netflix — that send all their lives into chaos but ultimately bring them even closer together. Plus, as the series digs into everything from everyday highs and lows to the joys and troubles of the holidays, the friends are faced with a number of unexpected trials, as they "navigate the return of old foes, the loss of great loves and the painful transition from old dreams to new ones. As the men in their lives pursue their own goals and their teenagers take uneasy steps toward adulthood, the Magnolias support each other with creative problem-solving, deep-hearted commitment and — as always — weekly margaritas" (per Netflix). Created and written by "Charmed" producer Sheryl J. Anderson and based on the books by Sherryl Woods, the series cast is rounded out by Chris Klein ("The Flash"), Jamie Lynn Spears ("Zoey 101"), Justin Bruening ("Good Behavior"), Carson Rowland ("American Housewife"), Logan Allen ("Bernie the Dolphin," 2018), Anneliese Judge ("Where's Rose," 2021), Chris Medlin ("Diana," 2021), Brandon Quinn ("The Fosters") and Dion Johnstone ("Departure").

"Apple Cider Vinegar" - Season 1

Inspired by The Woman Who Fooled the World, written by Beau Donnelly and Nick Toscano, and by the very true story of wellness guru Belle Gibson, the limited series, "Apple Cider Vinegar," makes its debut on Netflix this Thursday, Feb. 6. From director Jeffrey Walker ("The Clearing"), the series stars Kaitlyn Dever ("Unbelievable") as Belle, a woman promoting holistic and self-care based therapies to her massive social media following, claiming the practices help to manage her own cancer diagnosis — and just might do the same for them, too. Alongside close friend Mila (Alycia Debnam Carey, "Fear the Walking Dead"), Belle motivates her online community and gains epic levels of popularity, only for everything to come crashing down when it's soon revealed that Belle's story is entirely fabricated. Ashley Zukerman ("Manhattan"), Tilda Cobham-Hervey ("Hotel Mumbai," 2018), Aisha Dee ("The Bold Type") and Catherine McClements ("Water Rats") also star.

"Invincible" - Season 3

Take your future into your own hands with the adult animated series "Invincible" when its third season debuts Thursday, Feb. 6, on Prime Video. Based on the groundbreaking comic book by Robert Kirkman, Cory Walker and Ryan Ottley, the series follows the story of Mark Grayson (voiced by Steven Yeun, "The Walking Dead"), an 18-year-old who is just like every other guy his age — except for his famous superhero father, Omni-Man (voiced by J.K. Simmons, "Whiplash," 2014), and his own budding powers of flight, super strength and invincibility. As he steps out of his father's once-great shadow and settles into his own skin, Mark begins to realize his father's legacy may not be quite so "super" after all. This season, "everything changes as Mark is forced to face his past and his future, while discovering how much further he'll need to go to protect the people he loves." (per Prime Video). The series' all-star voice cast includes Sandra Oh ("Killing Eve"), Zazie Beetz ("Atlanta"), Grey Delisle ("The Loud House"), Chris Diamantopoulos ("The Wonderful World of Mickey Mouse"), Walton Goggins ("Justified"), Gillian Jacobs ("Community"), Jason Mantzoukas ("Big Mouth"), Ross Marquand

The series follows Lee Jae-yoon (Park Jeong-min, "Decision to Leave," 2022), a young man fulfilling his mandatory military service. As the demands of the military and the forced distance put a strain on Jae-yoon and his girlfriend, Kang Young-joo (Blackpink's Jisoo, "Snowdrop"), they break up after a sudden and explosive fight. But soon the unimaginable happens, and a zombie outbreak begins to spread through the city. As Jae-yoon leads his squad through the supernatural apocalypse, Young-joo adapts in order to make it through the city unscathed. Through the mayhem, the pair do everything they can to make it back to each other once more. Written by Ji Ho Jin ("A Shop for Killers") and Han Jin-won ("Parasite," 2019), "Newtopia" is directed by Yoon Sunghyun ("Bleak Night," 2010). Im Sung-jae ("Gang-

Kardea Brown packs flavor into 'Delicious Miss Brown'

By Caroline Colacutt
TV Media

Prepare to feast as a brand-new episode of "Delicious Miss Brown" comes to Food Network this Sunday, Feb. 2, offering some fresh and fabulous new recipes to try at home.

Born and raised on the sea islands of Charleston, South Carolina — the self-proclaimed heart of all Southern cooking — host Kardea Brown ("Spring Baking Championship") picked up plenty of delicious, hearty family recipes while learning to cook in her grandmother's kitchen. Now grown and with a Sea Island home of her own, Kardea not only has decades of experience up her sleeve, but countless family recipes ready to be shared with family, friends and us hungry viewers at home, each paying homage to Southern cuisine.

This week, Kardea plans to throw a garden party for her closest girlfriends and invites us to join in on the fun. In an episode showcasing locally grown ingredients, she prepares mouth-watering dishes like creamy leek and steak pasta and low country style shrimp toasts with house pickled okra, then serves mixed berry crumble and white sangria for a little taste of something sweet afterwards.

The deliciousness doesn't end

Kardea Brown hosts "Delicious Miss Brown"

there. So far, Season 10 has boasted delicious recipes suitable for any season, from summer veggie pasta salad to Korean-inspired fried chicken wings, served with kimchi fried rice and spicy cucumber salad. In next week's episode — airing Sunday, Feb. 9 — Kardea even leans into laziness, utilizing ingredients from her freezer and pantry on a night she lacks the energy to cook. As Food Network describes, "she uses some prepared items to make a full, fresh, delicious and hearty meal with a salad bar salad, chicken pot pie stuffed biscuit cups, corn soufflé with jalapenos, and semi-homemade chocolate and caramel shortbread bars." When she's not cooking on "Delicious Miss Brown," Kardea can be found sharing her love for food on a variety of shows, including "Cooks vs. Cons," "Family Food Showdown" and "Farmhouse Rules." Kardea has also created the popular pop-up New Gullah Supper Club and has authored her first cookbook, "The Way Home: A Celebration of Sea Islands Food and Family with over 100 Recipes," both paying tribute to the dishes that her grandmother and mother passed down to her.

Offering an abundance of sweet treats, sides and main dishes that delight, "Delicious Miss Brown" continues with a brand-new episode, airing Sunday, Feb. 2, on Food Network.

"The Kardashians" - Season 6

Keep up with one of television's most recognizable families when Season 6 of "The Kardashians" premieres Thursday, Feb. 6, on Hulu. Following the Kardashian-Jenner clan — including mom Kris and daughters Kourtney, Kim, Khloé, Kendall and Kylie, as well as their significant others and kids — through the latest chapters of their lives, cameras capture it all as they navigate motherhood, co-parenting, building their own business empires and their high-profile careers. This season, "the Kardashian-Jenners return with a year full of challenges, milestones and new adventures. With uncertain futures and their past returning to haunt them, Kourtney, Kim, Khloé, Kendall, Kylie and Kris will have to rely on each other as they navigate their roles as moms and businesswomen, to overcome the obstacles that come with their increasingly complicated lives" (per Disney). The series is executive produced by Ryan Seacrest, who, in addition to his tenure hosting "American Idol," was a longtime executive producer of "Keeping Up With the Kardashians," the series that first launched the family into the spotlight and ran for 20 seasons. Kris Jenner, Kourtney Kardashian Barker, Kim Kardashian, Khloé Kardashian, Kendall Jenner and Kylie Jenner also act as executive producers for the series, alongside Emma Conway ("Betty White's Off Their Rockers"), Danielle King ("Million Dollar Listing New York") and Ben Winston ("The Late Late Show with James Corden"), and co-executive producers Sean Alvarez ("American Chopper: The Series") and William Newman ("Saving Paradise," 2021).

"Sistas" - Seasons 1-5

Single life isn't always what it's cracked up to be. Sometimes, it's far better than the alternative. Re-live the endless ups and downs of romance, when seasons 1 through 5 of "Sistas" comes to Hulu this Tuesday, Feb. 4. Created by Tyler Perry ("The Oval"), this dramedy follows a group of single Black women — Andi (KJ Smith, "Power Book III: Raising Kanan"), Karen (Ebony Obsidian, "The Six Triple Eight," 2024), Sabrina (Novi Brown, "The First Noelle," 2022) and Danni (Mignon, "Never Alone for Christmas," 2023) — who bond over their lack of partnership, despite their drastically different lives. The series begins as the ladies dive headfirst into the dating game, some seeing sparks fly while others wrestle with suspicion, disappointment and unexpected complications. Still on air — and now in its eighth season — "Sistas" also stars Devale Ellis ("Zatima"), Chido Nwo-kocha ("FBI: International"), Crystal Renee Hayslett ("Praise This," 2023), Brian Jordan Jr. ("Christmas Belles," 2019) and Kevin A. Walton ("Step Up Revolution," 2012).

Kim Kardashian in "The Kardashians"

"Fresh Kills" (2023)

Written, directed by and starring Jennifer Esposito ("Blue Bloods") — marking Esposito's filmmaking debut — "Fresh Kills" is available to stream on Hulu as of Friday, Feb. 7. Set in New York City during the 1980s, the film follows mob wife Francine Larusso (Esposito) and her daughters, Rose (Emily Bader, "My Lady Jane") and Connie (Odessa A'zion, "Hellraiser," 2022), as they make the move from Brooklyn to Staten Island in search of safety and spacious surroundings, hoping to evade the ever-present pressures of mafia life. No matter their location, however, the women soon learn that their ties to organized crime are bonds that can never be broken. Domenico Lombardo ("The Family," 2013), Annabella Sciorra ("The Hand That Rocks the Cradle," 1992), Callie Thorne ("Necessary Roughness"), Nicholas Cirillo ("Outer Banks"), Anthony DeSando ("A Guide to Recognizing Your Saints," 2006), David Iacono ("The Summer I Turned Pretty"), Ava DeMary ("Pretty Little Liars: Original Sin"), Stelio Savante ("Nefarious," 2023), Bettina Skye ("Approaching the Unknown," 2016), Luciana VanDette ("Terrifier 3," 2024), Nicole Ehinger ("The Sorcerer's Apprentice," 2010) and Jimmy Palumbo ("The Family," 2013) also star.

Q: What kind of car does Wayne Campbell drive in "Wayne's World"?

A: "Wayne's World" (1992) is by far one of the most successful films to be made out of a "Saturday Night Live" sketch. And though it does have a storyline running through the film (more or less), it often felt more like a series of bits.

By far the most memorable bit featured Wayne (Mike Myers, "Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery," 1997), Garth (Dana Carvey, "The Master of Disguise," 2002) and their friends driving around at night, headbanging to Queen's "Bohemian Rhapsody," in a 1976 AMC Pacer, nicknamed the Mirthmobile.

AMC (short for American Motors Corporation) isn't around any longer, but incredibly, the Mirthmobile lives on. It sold at an auction in 2022 and, fortunately, the listing included a lot of details.

For example, according to a MotorAuthority.com article about the sale, it has a 258-cubic-inch, inline six-cylinder engine and automatic transmission. As seen in the film, it has mismatched front and rear wheels. And "Wayne's World" nerds will be delighted to know the car actually came with the in-cabin licorice and cup dispensers seen in "Wayne's World 2" (1993).

It's introduced in the film as Garth's car, but you're right that Wayne also drives it in the movie. And there's a fun piece of trivia attached to that: Myers didn't actually know how to drive when they were making the movie, a fact that director Penelope Spheeris ("Suburbia," 1983) didn't learn until they were in production. She told Billboard magazine in 2017 that they had to send him for driving lessons while filming went on.

Q: I know Keanu Reeves has had quite the career since his "Bill and Ted" days, but whatever happened to the guy who played Bill?

A: More than you think, and it's still happening for him.

Their career paths have certainly diverged since co-starring in "Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure" (1989), but at the time, Keanu Reeves (who played Ted) and Alex Winter (who co-starred as Bill) were on similar teen-star trajectories.

Reeves came into the film after a supporting role in the prestige drama "Dangerous Liaisons" (1988) and a lead role in the comedy "The Night Before" (also 1988). But Winter had an arguably more impressive entry on his resume, a role in the smash-hit 1987 horror-comedy "The Lost Boys," which featured a who's-who of young heartthrobs at the time.

Reeves, of course, went on to even bigger roles (most notably the zeitgeist-capturing 1999 sci-fi hit "The Matrix"), while Winter's biggest roles were the various Bill & Ted revivals (starting with the big-screen sequel, "Bogus Journey," in 1991 and capping most recently with 2020's "Bill & Ted Face the Music").

But that's partly because he shifted immediately toward behind-the-scenes work, directing some pretty high-profile music videos at first and soon moving to TV and feature films. He most recently directed the 2022 documentary "The YouTube Effect."

He's still acting too, though you might not have recognized his most recent outing. He appeared under layers of makeup and prosthetics in the 2024 comedic horror film "Destroy All Neighbors," which was distributed on the Shudder streaming channel.

He also has two more films in post-production: the sci-fi pic "Absolute Dominion" and the crime-comedy "Adult-hood," which he also directed.

Q: I feel like I've seen the other stars of "Schitt's Creek" in other things since, but what's the actress who played Alexis been doing?

A: You could argue that Annie Murphy should have been the easiest "Schitt's Creek" alum to keep track of, since she went straight back into another network sitcom.

While "Schitt's Creek" co-star Dan Levy ("Good Grief," 2023) went on to feature films, and her on-screen parents, Eugene Levy and Catherine O'Hara (both of "SCTV" fame), went back to being guest star extraordinaires, Murphy took the lead role in the edgy AMC sitcom "Kevin Can Fk Himself."

The series was a very meta, self-referential show that presented two perspectives on the life of a neglected sitcom wife as she tried to put herself first for a change. It was simultaneously a traditional sitcom and a satire of that very type of show (the title was clearly a reference to the earlier sitcom "Kevin Can Wait"). Unfortunately, it only lasted two seasons on AMC and AMC+ before ending in 2022.

Since then, Murphy has diversified a little. She did a guest spot on the weird improv comedy show "Murderville," as well as a spot on the even weirder sci-fi drama "Black Mirror" in 2023.

But her biggest role has been audio-only. She voiced the titular character on the Freeform animated comedy "Praise Petey," which was canceled after just one season in 2023.

We'll be seeing her again soon, though. She's joining the cast of the hit Hulu series "Nine Perfect Strangers," slotting in alongside returning star Nicole Kidman ("Moulin Rouge!," 2001) as well as fellow newcomers Henry Golding ("Crazy Rich Asians," 2018) and Christine Baranski ("The Gilded Age").
