Late Laughs

Late Show With Stephen Colbert

I'm not saying America's becoming misogynist, but I will point out this morning [April 14], six women tried to flee the planet. ... The big names on the special mission: Katy Perry; Jeff Bezos's fiancé, Lauren Sanchez; and CBS's own Gayle King, who said that Oprah encouraged her to join the trip in part because she didn't want to be subjected to any talk of FOMO. Translation: Oprah forced Gayle to go to space.

Last month, visits to the U.S. from overseas fell 11.6% and in Las Vegas alone the international tourism decline is expected to mean an $18-million drop in room revenue. Eighteen million [dollars], which I believe is two mini-fridge Toblerones.

Happy Tax Day [April 15] everybody! If you're watching this live at home, you have 20ish minutes to get your taxes in before the deadline, and if you're an IRS worker, you have recently been fired.

Today [April 15] Major League Baseball is celebrating Jackie Robinson Day. ... As part of the celebration today, every player and coach was wearing Robinson's No. 42. Reminds me of the classic Abbott and Costello bit, "Who's on first?" "42's on first, 42's on second, 42's on third." "Got it!"

Today [April 17] [President] Trump met in the Oval Office with Italian Prime Minister — and tough as nails attorney in the new Paramount+ legal drama "Forest Lawyer" — Giorgia Meloni.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

For the first time since 2014, Easter and 4/20 will land on the same day. This year is going to lead to some very long and confusing egg hunts. "Where did I? Did I hide those? I don't know." The next time Easter will fall on 4/20 is 2087, so enjoy this one. Get into those peeps.

[President] Trump got a visit from the prime minister of Italy [Giorgia Meloni]. Today [April 17] he had them bring in lunch from the Olive Garden to make her feel at home.

We did get some pretty remarkable news from astronomers at the University of Cambridge, who have located a planet which they believe may be showing signs of life. The planet, they're calling it "K2-18b," they named it after one of Elon Musk's kids.

They've done repeated analysis of the atmosphere and they suggest than an abundance of a molecule that on Earth has only one known source, which is living organisms, such as marine algae. Also known as sea scum. So we may have found a new home for Ted Cruz.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon (R)

Some entertainment news: CBS just canceled "FBI: Most Wanted" and "FBI: International." Yeah, even the fake FBI is being let go. It's too bad because America was this close to figuring out the difference between "FBI: Most Wanted" and "FBI: International."

Dead-end job: 'Murderbot' reluctantly joins Apple TV+'s workforce

By Joshua Amy
TV Media

Alexander Skarsgard stars in "Murderbot"

At one point or another, pretty much everyone has wished they could be doing anything other than the job at hand, like tuning out a co-worker's chatter to binge the latest series, for instance. Escapism is a hallmark of being stuck in a mundane workplace, an experience that should resonate with viewers of Apple TV+'s newest series, "Murderbot," premiering Friday, May 16, on the streamer.

With a title like "Murderbot," you'd be inclined to think this is an action-packed sci-fi thriller about a robot specifically designed for violence — and you'd be right, at least in part. While the titular character may be a purpose-built killing machine, it's not just a robot: it's a part-android, part-cloned human security construct. The SecUnit, played by Alexander Skarsgard ("True Blood"), is a walking insurance policy created by the megacorporations that control much of humanity's spacefaring domain. SecUnits are required on any planetary expedition to protect the human team members and, more importantly, the company's investment. Therefore, "Murderbot" is not just an action-packed sci-fi thriller, it's also a twisted workplace comedy.

"Murderbot's" SecUnit is unique, as it's managed to hack its governor module, giving itself free will. Upon breaking its shackles, it does as any indentured killing machine would, names itself Murderbot and downloads thousands of hours of soap operas from the company media feeds. Although Murderbot is confused and annoyed by the messy "human-ness" of those in its charge, it's good at its job — and needs to keep up appearances for survival. Behind the faceplate, however, it just wants to be left alone with its stories, though it inevitably must do its job.

The humans that Murderbot is assigned to protect are a planetary survey team led by Dr. Mensah (Noma Dumezweni, "Black Earth Rising"). Hailing from a system outside of the Corporation Rim, Mensah and her team struggle with the cutthroat profit motives of their employer, reluctantly agreeing to the terms of their contract — including the need for a SecUnit. The survey team — played by David Dastmalchian ("Late Night with the Devil," 2023), Sabrina Wu ("Joy Ride," 2023), Tattiawna Jones ("Orphan Black: Echoes"), Akshay Khanna ("The Doll Factory") and Tamara Podemski ("Coroner") — would rather forgo all corporate meddling but opt to simply ignore the SecUnit instead.

The indifference to its presence suits Murderbot just fine, since the humans' interpersonal relationship drama is irrational, emotional and unpredictable. Hiding behind its mask, Murderbot would much rather engage emotionally through the safety of its obsessive binge of "The Rise and Fall of Sanctuary Moon." The pulpy, over-the-top sci-fi soap opera exists as a show-within-a-show that stars John Cho ("Star Trek," 2009), Jack McBrayer ("30 Rock"), DeWanda Wise ("Three Women") and Clark Gregg ("Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D."). "Sanctuary Moon" serves as both escapism between saving the team from hostile threats and a sort of road map for Murderbot as it navigates how to interact with the humans post-rescue.

Based on the Hugo and Nebula award-winning series "The Murderbot Diaries" by author Martha Wells, "Murderbot" adapts the events of the first novella, "All Systems Red." Fans of the books initially expressed skepticism about how the story would translate to the screen, citing Murderbot's anxious internal monologue and frustrated lack of patience for human antics as central to the series' charm. Murderbot's push-pull relationship between its analytical cybernetic and emotional organic components earned it a reputation as an autistic-coded main character — something Wells has discussed, noting that writing the series helped her recognize her own neurodivergence — and raised concerns that the adaptation may omit this characterization.

The series' initial trailer — narrated by Skarsgard as Murderbot's innermost thoughts, including its soap opera hyperfixation, disdain for irrational behavior and struggles with human contact — reassured fans that their favorite killing machine is being handled with care. "Murderbot's" showrunners, Chris and Paul Weitz, who co-directed the thematically similar misanthropic rom-com "About a Boy" (2002), appear to have done their homework.

Despite Murderbot's desire to be left alone, its evolving relationship with Mensah's team is central to the story. In an interview with Vanity Fair, Chris Weitz describes this reluctant dynamic: "They're not really cut out for this. Murderbot feels it has to keep them from dying. It's not really because it necessarily cares about them at first. It has this thing of being good at its job in spite of everything."

Describing the character's struggle connecting with people, Skarsgard tells Vanity Fair: "There's something about being an outsider, and observing humanity from a slight distance, and being a bit confused and perplexed by it." He goes on to explain that while Murderbot may be a soap opera superfan, it doesn't want any part of the drama that comes with being the main character. "Murderbot definitely doesn't want to step into the center of things. Murderbot wants to blend into the background and just be left alone to watch its TV shows."

Apple TV+ has consistently lived up to its reputation as a must-have streaming service for fans of science fiction. Heavy hitters such as "For All Mankind," "Foundation," "Silo" and the Emmy-winning "Severance" certainly put the pressure on any new additions to the streamer if they want to stand out. However, the darkly funny tone and reluctant emotional heart of "Murderbot" are sure to set it apart when it premieres Friday, May 16, on Apple TV+.

From standup to standout: Comedian Segura gets dark in 'Bad Thoughts'

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Despite our many differences as humans around the globe, one thing we can all count on at least once in our lives is that we are all susceptible to some bad thoughts from time to time. These thoughts come in as many forms as there are people, but from the smallest curse to the largest crime, each of us faces our own darkness at one point or another.

As luck and a healthy dose of Hollywood magic would have it, comedian Tom Segura ("Countdown," 2019) has decided to let the world in on some of his own most twisted reveries. Compiled into a six-episode season, the aptly named series "Bad Thoughts" premieres Tuesday, May 13, on Netflix.

Best known for his Netflix specials, including the most recent 2023 addition "Sledgehammer," Segura became an instant hit with comedy lovers across America following the success of his first Netflix special, "Completely Normal," in 2014. Immediately praised for his unassuming joke delivery, natural comedic timing, penchant for sarcasm and natural talent for storytelling, Segura collected fans based primarily on his relatability and nonchalance.

In 2022, however, Segura fans began to notice that the comedian's special brand of humor began to change, darkening significantly following the death of his father, Vietnam vet and former Merrill Lynch vice president Tom "Top Dog" Nadeau Segura, at the age of 74.

"He [Segura Sr.] loved being the center of attention," Segura shared with his wife and fellow comedian Christina Pazsitzky ("Mother Inferior," 2017), aka Christina P., on a Jan. 30, 2022, episode of the "Your Mom's House" podcast. "He was a great guy, he really was. You guys who listened or watched got to see the parts of him that were really genuine. He really was a sweet dad and a sweet guy, and I'll miss him a lot."

Over the years, Segura's father had featured prominently in many of his jokes, and in that respect, matters have remained unchanged since the elder Segura's passing.

The trailer for "Bad Thoughts," for instance, shows a segment from the series in which Segura's character and his on-screen wife attend a theatrical event at their child's elementary school. When their son, a performer in the school's show, tastelessly chooses to reenact a battle from the Vietnam War, shouting, "There's no better feeling than killing the enemy," Segura's character leans over to his partner, casually remarking, "You know we have to transfer schools, right?"

While this exchange may seem absurd (or cringe-worthy) to some, Segura's longtime followers are likely to recognize the scene as a reworking of one of the elder Segura's jokes regarding his time serving as a lieutenant for the American military in Vietnam. While the Seguras' brand of humor may not be for everyone, the comedian's foray into dark comedy vignettes may suit this grimmer phase of his career.

As for "Bad Thoughts," Netflix says the series "centers on Segura, who also serves as the show's narrator, as he takes us through each episode in a series of vignettes. The twisted comedic sensibility of Tom's standup is the core DNA of this series, where every story will unfold in a hilariously disturbing way only he could imagine."

Online entertainment magazine Variety announced the May 13 premiere date in late March, mere hours after the comedian debuted the show's first trailer at his sold-out Madison Square Garden show in New York City. The Clayton Davis article credits both "Black Mirror" and "The Twilight Zone" among the leading stylistic inspirations for the series, noting that "Bad Thoughts" still "aim[s] to deliver chuckles and big laughs."

Segura takes on multiple roles within the series' formation, including creator, director, executive producer and star, while lead show-writing duties are attributed to film producer Jeremy Konner, whose largest claim to fame is as co-creator of the 17-time Emmy-nominated Comedy Central series "Drunk History," which ran from 2013-2019 and garnered somewhat of a cult following.

Additional direction is provided by Rami Hachache, who previously directed Segura's comedy specials "Ball Hog" and "Mostly Stories" before moving into the lucrative realm of reality television with the 2020 Kardashian-franchise series "Kirby Jenner," which followed the titular character — an Instagram parody account creation — as he "step[s] in front of the camera for the first time" (per IMDb).

Joining Segura in front of the camera in various roles across the series' six episodes are Dani Hurtado ("His Stretch of Texas Ground," 2021), Kira Spencer Cook ("Matilda," 1996), Alexis Abrams ("Desolate Soul & the Lingering Ghost," 2019), Norma Jean ("Killers of the Flower Moon," 2023), Bob Pack ("Twisters," 2024), Lucas McCutchen ("Love & Death"), Hannah Bittick ("Crime Scene: The Texas Killing Fields"), Sean Middleton ("Look Both Ways," 2022), Billie D. Merritt ("The Glorias," 2020), Liz Mikel ("Friday Night Lights") and rising talents Brett Baggerly and J. Julian Vega.

"Bad Thoughts" is executive produced by Segura, Konner, Molly Mandel ("Perfectly Stupid," 2022), "How I Met Your Mother" producers Craig Gerard and Matthew Zinman, and newcomer Ryan Hall under Segura's Your Mom's House banner.

Don't miss the delightfully twisted tales Segura has in store when "Bad Thoughts" premieres Tuesday, May 13, on Netflix.

Joan Rivers celebrated during hour-long comedy special

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Roasting Rivers: Celebrate the life of an Emmy-winning talk show host, Grammy-winning performer, Tony-nominated actress and bestselling author during the once-in-a-lifetime "Joan Rivers: A Dead Funny All-Star Tribute," airing Tuesday, May 13, on NBC — and on Peacock the following day, Wednesday, May 14, with an extended, uncensored version of the special feature.

In 1960, Joan Rivers ("Fashion Police") rose to fame following her television debut on "The Ed Sullivan Show." Her unique sense of humor propelled her forward, landing her nearly 200 appearances on NBC's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," and later earning her a role as E! Network's feisty fashion consultant, where she coined the still-used phrase "Who are you wearing?" that is now uttered at every red carpet event Hollywood has to offer.

In a letter to her daughter, Rivers wrote: "Given that I'm dead, I assume someone will finally decide to honor me. Well, it's about time."

That time is now. Over the course of an hour, this special will see today's biggest comedians paying homage to Rivers' impressive career and razor-sharp humor, as it has been a decade since her 2015 death. Together, a group of stellar comedians revisit Rivers' long-laughed-at jokes, adding their own personal spin as they reflect on the current cultural landscape.

Guests for the night include Rachel Brosnahan ("The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel"), Margaret Cho ("All-American Girl"), Nikki Glaser ("Trainwreck," 2015), Tiffany Haddish ("Girls Trip," 2017), Chelsea Handler ("Chelsea Lately"), Neil Patrick Harris ("How I Met Your Mother"), Bill Maher ("Politically Incorrect"), Howie Mandel ("Deal or No Deal"), Joel McHale ("Community"), Tracy Morgan ("30 Rock"), Patton Oswalt ("A.P. Bio"), Aubrey Plaza ("Parks and Recreation"), Sarah Silverman ("The Sarah Silverman Program"), Jean Smart ("Hacks"), Rita Wilson ("Sleepless in Seattle," 1993) and Rivers' own daughter, Melissa Rivers ("Joan & Melissa: Joan Knows Best?").

Joan Rivers is honored in "Joan Rivers: A Dead Funny All-Star Tribute"

"This tribute is everything my mother would have wanted," promises Melissa. "[Hilarious], unfiltered and filled with people she respected (and roasted). And as usual, she was still the funniest person in the room. It's incredibly moving to see so many iconic comedians come together to celebrate her legacy, especially the women whose careers she helped make possible by breaking down so many doors. I know she'd be thrilled to see how far things have come, and she'd still have notes."

"Joan Rivers: A Dead Funny All-Star Tribute," airs Tuesday, May 13, on NBC, with more to come on Peacock the following day.

For the win: The Emmy-winning series "Welcome to Wrexham" returns with a new, eight-episode season, starting Thursday, May 15, on FX and Hulu.

Now four seasons in, "Wrexham" continues to follow Rob McElhenney ("It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia") and Ryan Reynolds ("Deadpool & Wolverine," 2024) — both notable Hollywood actors — as they navigate the never-ending challenges of running the third-oldest oldest professional football club in the world: the Wrexham Red Dragons, located in Wrexham, Wales. Now in their fifth year owning the club, McElhenney and Reynolds are facing new and increasingly high hurdles as the Dragons — for the first time in two decades — take on the EFL League One following back-to-back promotions.

As Deadline explains, "[In] 2020, McElhenney and Reynolds teamed up to purchase the fifth tier Red Dragons, hoping to turn the club into an underdog story. The club achieved back-to-back promotions to bring the Reds into the English Football League's League One for the first time in 20 years. As they continue to rise in the pyramid, the stakes get higher with a new level of intensity, competition and costs, all while the club continues to be plagued with injury and fans demand the signing of new talent."

Now, as teammates, staff and supporters bolster the team's climb towards Premiership, the Wrexham AFC — alongside McElhenney and Reynolds, of course — must rise to the challenge, achieving something no team has ever done before.

Recently, Reynolds took to Instagram to share his excitement, posting a story that stated: "Ryan and Rob Mac are back … and boy howdy. This season … [exploding head emoji]."

Ryan, Rob and the Dragons, however, aren't the only ones excited by their team's recent success. Wales' First Minister Eluned Morgan recently discussed the football team's success during a discussion with Leader Live.

"Ryan and Rob have done amazing things for Wrexham," Morgan said. "They have a great vision and it's brilliant that they've committed to the area as a whole."

The series is produced by McElhenney, Reynolds, Josh Drisko ("It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia"), Bryan Rowland ("Match Made in Hell," 2020), Jeff Luini ("Family Matters"), Humphrey Ker ("American Auto"), Nick Frenkel ("Mythic Quest") and George Dewey ("Free Guy," 2021), alongside Boardwalk Pictures' Andrew Fried ("America's Sweethearts: Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders"), Dane Lillegard ("Last Chance U"), Sarina Roma ("Paul American") and Andy Thomas ("Tough As Nails").

Don't miss the excitement as Season 4 of "Welcome to Wrexham" kicks off Thursday, May 15, on FX and Hulu.

"Love, Death + Robots" - Volume 4

Returning with more wildly creative adventures, Volume 4 of "Love, Death + Robots" premieres Thursday, May 15, on Netflix. Spanning the fantasy, sci-fi, comedy and horror genres, each of this Emmy-winning, animated anthology series' episodes brings a unique and captivating story to life through world-class animation and wit, told by a different team of artists. While the series keeps the topics of upcoming installments a closely guarded secret, Netflix teases that Volume 4 includes "dinosaur gladiators, messianic cats [and] string-puppet rock stars," alongside a whole host of other otherworldly tales, across its 10-episode run. Presented once again by creator Tim Miller ("Deadpool," 2016) and executive producer David Fincher ("Se7en," 1995), "Love, Death and Robots" Volume 4 is directed by Jennifer Yuh Nelson ("Kung Fu Panda 2," 2011).

"Untold: The Liver King"

Through its newest installment, the "Untold" docuseries explores the story of "The Liver King" when it debuts Tuesday, May 13, on Netflix. Building a dedicated online following, Brian Johnson, whom Netflix refers to as a "raw meat influencer," rose to viral fame among both fans and critics alike thanks to his chiselled muscles, bushy beard and strong opinions. Known to many as the "Liver King," Johnson partakes in something called ancestral living, in which one consumes whole foods, prioritizes spending time outside and rejecting many of the world's modern comforts. At its surface, these tenets don't seem particularly outlandish — until the extreme measures that the Liver King claims to abide by come into play, while he touts the supposed "all natural" benefits of following his teachings. Unraveling Johnson's story and exploring what makes a brand, as well as what happens when the lines blur between being a person and embodying a persona, "Untold: The Liver King" features interviews with Johnson himself, alongside his family and business partners. From Johnson's rise to fame to his controversy, backlash and steroid scandal, "Untold" works to get to the bottom of it all. Executive produced by Gabe Turner ("Elton John Live: Farewell from Dodger Stadium," 2022), Sheldon Lazarus ("Billy the Exterminator"), James Goldston ("ABC News Nightline"), Ben Silverman ("The Office"), Howard Owens ("The GOAT"), Chapman Way ("Wild Wild Country") and Maclain Way ("The Kings of Tupelo: A Southern Crime Saga"), "The Liver King" comes from Bitachon 365 and Candle True Stories.

"Fred and Rose West: A British Horror Story"

Through recently discovered audio recordings and previously unseen police footage, Netflix introduces "Fred and Rose West: A British Horror Story," a bone-chilling true crime docuseries premiering on the streamer Wednesday, May 14. The three-part docuseries follows the infamous crimes of serial killers Fred and Rose West — one of Britain's most notorious serial killer couples between 1967 and 1987 — and how their crimes went undetected for two decades. Featuring archival footage, dramatic reenactments and never-before-seen evidence, "Fred and Rose West: A British Horror Story" delves into how the Gloucestershire police built a case against the murderous couple that would bring them down and offer closure to the families of their victims. The docuseries also includes first-hand accounts from surviving family members — some of whom are speaking out for the first time. Directed by Dan Dewsbury ("Louis Theroux: Forbidden America"), the series is executive produced by Dan Chambers ("Fred & Rose West: The Real Story with Trevor McDonald," 2019), David Herman ("Fred & Rose: The West Murders," 2008) and Fiona Stourton ("The Diana Interview: Revenge of a Princess," 2020).

"Overcompensating" - Season 1

Exploring the lengths that two college freshman will go to in order to fit in, the new comedy series "Overcompensating" premieres Thursday, May 15, on Prime Video. A former homecoming king and hot-shot football player, Benny (series creator Benito Skinner, "Queer as Folk") just wants to stay the course and fit in at his new school — even if that means staying in the closet for a while longer. Carmen (Wally Baram, "What We Do in the Shadows"), on the other hand, has always been an outsider and is determined to turn her social life around in college. When Benny and Carmen become fast friends and agree to help each other climb to chaotic social ladder of the school, they juggle everything from parties and hookups to classes and frats — with some help from Benny's older sister Grace (Mary Beth Barone, "Black Mirror") and her campus-legend boyfriend Peter (Adam DiMarco, "The White Lotus") — as they fake it till they make it on the journey to finding out who they really are. Also starring Nell Verlaque ("Big Shot") as Emily, Rish Shah ("Joy," 2024) as Miles, Holmes ("Welcome to Flatch") as Hailee, Corteon Moore ("From") as Gabe and Owen Thiele ("Dollface") as George, the debut season's recurring guest stars include Connie Britton ("Zero Day"), Kyle MacLachlan ("Fallout"), Kaia Gerber ("Palm Royale"), Julia Shiplett ("Happiness for Beginners," 2023), Tommy Do ("Hacks"), Alexandra Beaton ("Ride"), Claire Qute ("Workin' Moms"), Maddie Phillips ("Gen V") and newcomer Elias Azimi.

"Her" (2013)

Set in a once-imagined future, "Her" is a sci-fi romance where love takes an unexpected form. Now streaming on Prime Video, the movie follows Theodore (Joaquin Phoenix, "Joker," 2019), a lonely letter-writer still reeling from the painful separation from his childhood sweetheart, Caroline (Rooney Mara, "The Social Network," 2010). As his divorce becomes finalized and loneliness sets in, Theodore installs an artificial intelligence system — an AI bot named Samantha (voiced by Scarlett Johansson, "Lost in Translation," 2003). What begins as a helpful digital assistant soon evolves into an unconventional but deeply emotional relationship. As their connection grows, Theodore confronts his past relationship failures and rediscovers the beauty of human emotion. Amy Adams ("Enchanted," 2007), Olivia Wilde ("Don't Worry Darling," 2022), Chris Pratt ("Jurassic World," 2015) and Matt Letscher ("The Flash") co-star. From writer-director-producer Spike Jonze ("Being John Malkovich," 1999), alongside executive producers Chelsea Barnard ("Booksmart," 2019), Natalie Farrey ("Where the Wild Things Are," 2009) and Daniel Lupi ("Licorice Pizza," 2021).

The Hobbit Trilogy

Leaving the Shire to make its way to Prime Video, "The Hobbit" trilogy is now available on the streamer. Based on the acclaimed novel by J.R.R. Tolkien, "The Hobbit" trilogy serves as a prelude to "The Lord of the Rings" films and follows Bilbo Baggins (Martin Freeman, "Black Panther," 2018), a quiet hobbit who is swept into an adventure far beyond his peaceful life in the Shire. Recruited by Gandalf (Ian McKellen, "The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring," 2001), Bilbo joins his friend Thorin (Richard Armitage, "Stay Close") and thirteen dwarves on a quest to reclaim the lost Dwarven kingdom of Erebor from the fearsome dragon Smaug (Benedict Cumberbatch, "Sherlock"). Along the way, they face trolls, giant spiders and orcs — and Bilbo encounters a strange creature named Gollum (Andy Serkis, "The Batman," 2022), whose "precious" ring will change the fate of the world. Also starring is Cate Blanchett ("The Curious Case of Benjamin Button," 2008), Orlando Bloom ("Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl," 2003) and Aidan Turner ("Rivals"). Told across three films — "An Unexpected Journey" (2012), "The Desolation of Smaug" (2013) and "The Battle of the Five Armies" (2014) — the trilogy is directed by "The Lord of the Rings" filmmaker Peter Jackson, with co-writers Fran Walsh and Philippa Boyens. Producers include Carolyn Blackwood ("The Lord of the Rings: The War of the Rohirrim," 2024) and Ken Kamins ("District 9," 2009).

Malarkey reigns in 'Cutthroat Kitchen: Knives Out'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Brian Malarkey hosts "Cutthroat Kitchen: Knives Out"

The ever-fastidious Brian Malarkey ("Guy's Grocery Games") dishes out "unpredictable and diabolical culinary challenges" (per Food Network), testing all-star chefs on their culinary capabilities, strategic thinking and ability to face the heat during the all-new series "Cutthroat Kitchen: Knives Out," making its television debut on Food Network Tuesday, May 13, before streaming on Max the following day, Wednesday, May 14.

In this nine-episode series, four talented chefs begin each installment with an impressive $25,000 in their pockets. This money — to be spent on advantages for themselves or sabotages against their competition — can be used across both rounds of gameplay, leaving the "Cutthroat" champion with whatever change remains once all is said and done.

After introducing the weekly challenge in Round 1, Malarkey kicks off an auction that can make or break a player's game, as the competitors must balance the stress of cooking under a time crunch while deciding what advantages to buy. Once bidding closes, the cooks have one minute to gather any necessary ingredients from a shared pantry, one that closes as soon as the clock runs out. With whatever they've secured — in ingredients and in advantages — they must present worthwhile dishes to save themselves from being eliminated from the game. While one contestant is eliminated, another (the round's "MVP") is given an additional $1,000.

Round 2 begins with another auction for the three remaining chefs, this one specifically full of sabotages to unleash on the competition. "From foraging ingredients from a plane's bar and snack carts, to cooking a posh meal using only a hot dog roller and popcorn maker, the chefs must be strategic and crafty to navigate obstacles and outdo the competition," explains Food Network.

At the end of each episode, a special guest judge will evaluate the dishes one by one, without knowing what advantages or challenges their chefs faced. This season, fans can expect to see the likes of Maneet Chauhan ("Tournament of Champions"), Scott Conant ("Beat Bobby Flay"), Alex Guarnaschelli ("Ciao House"), Aarti Sequeira ("Halloween Wars") and Jet Tila ("Cutthroat Kitchen"), extraordinary chefs who will ultimately determine who wins the game — and their remaining cash.

"Cutthroat Kitchen: Knives Out" premieres on Food Network Tuesday, May 13, streaming on Max the following day.

After a mission goes awry, Mickey 17 is presumed dead, leading to the creation of Mickey 18. The two Mickeys must navigate their coexistence while dealing with the colony's authoritarian leader, Kenneth Marshall (Ruffalo), and the native life forms known as Creepers. *Director: Bong Joon Ho. "The Secret Lives of Mormon Wives" - Season 2

The scandalous lives of the #MomTok-ers continue when Season 2 of "The Secret Lives of Mormon Wives" streams Thursday, May 15, on Hulu. Following Taylor Frankie Paul, Demi Engemann, Jennifer Affleck, Jessi Ngatikaura, Layla Taylor, Mayci Neeley, Mikayla Matthews and Whitney Leavitt, the eight members of #MomTok, whose lives changed forever when it was revealed that the religious content creators were partaking in what they called "soft swinging" within the group. While Season 1 saw the women battle community expectations, family life, friendship drama, balancing life as their family breadwinners and much more, the bonds between the women are tested like never before in Season 2. "When an original swinger from their infamous sex scandal makes a surprise return," says Hulu, "friendships threaten to unravel as secrets, lies and allegations explode." As they battle to keep their social media profiles rising and profitable, they'll need to grapple with even more of their secrets — and what having them revealed might cost. From Jeff Jenkins Productions, in association with 3BMG and Walt Disney Television Alternative, "The Secret Lives of Mormon Wives" is executive produced by Jeff Jenkins ("The Simple Life"), Russell Jay-Staglik ("Kourtney & Khloé Take the Hamptons"), Andrea Metz ("Keeping Up with the Kardashians"), Elise Chun ("Bling Empire"), Ross Weintraub ("Adventure Capitalists"), Reinout Oerlemans ("Nova Zembla," 2011), Lisa Filipelli ("I Hate People, People Hate Me"), Danielle Pistotnik and Georgia Berger.

"Matteo Lane: The Al Dente Special"

Known as an oil painter, an opera singer, a gay man and a polyglot, the incomparable Matteo Lane ("Upgraded," 2024) releases his first-ever stand up special for Hulu, "Matteo Lane: The Al Dente Special," this Friday, May 16. Following the likes of Lane's self-released specials – "Hair Plugs & Heartache" (2023) and "The Advice Special" (2022) – this latest hour continues Lane's tradition of blending stand-up comedy with multiple art forms, creating a unique and playful environment in which Lane casually discusses his personal life, travels and his family, like he would chatting with a friend over brunch. With millions of followers across social media platforms, fans might recognize Lane from his online presence, or from past on screen credits, including a 2025 episode of "Abbott Elementary," "Molli & Max in the Future" (2023) and in Netflix's all-queer stand-up special, "Outstanding: A Comedy Revolution." "Matteo Lane: The Al Dente Special" comes from executive producers Ally Engelberg ("Pete Davidson: Turbo Fonzarelli," 2024), Tiffany Schloesser ("The Comedy Lineup") and Jared Lapidus ("Commentary On"), who also directed the special.

The cast of "The Secret Lives of Mormon Wives"

"Mission: Impossible - Rogue Nation" (2015)

Acting as the fifth installment of the "Mission: Impossible" film series – and as a direct sequel to 2011's "Mission: Impossible – Ghost Protocol" – "Mission: Impossible – Rogue Nation" will be available to stream on Hulu as of Tuesday, May 13. This 2015 flick invites its viewers to a night at the opera, as Ethan Hunt (Tom Cruise, "Top Gun," 1986) and his (technically disbanded) team of agents evade pursuit be the CIA, all the while fighting an international group of rogue government agents called the "The Syndicate." Face-to-face with his most deadly mission to date, Hunt joins forces with British agent Isla Faust (Rebecca Ferguson, "The Greatest Showman," 2017) to stop The Syndicate before they destroy the remaining Impossible Missions Force and establish a new world order – one gained through whatever means possible. Written and directed by Chrisopher McQuarrie ("The Usual Suspects," 1995) – and based on the television series created by Bruce Geller ("Mission: Impossible") – "Rogue Nation" also stars Jeremy Renner ("The Hurt Locker," 2008), Simon Pegg ("Shaun of the Dead," 2004), Ving Rhames ("Pulp Fiction," 1994) Sean Harris ("Paris Has Fallen") and Alec Baldwin ("The Departed," 2006).

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Is it true that Leonardo DiCaprio was in one of the Gremlins movies? I've watched them both and can't see him anywhere.

A: You've made the mistake a lot of people have made — mixing up "Gremlins" (1984) and "Critters" (1986).

Both are '80s comedy-horror franchises about slightly gross little monsters that ravage small towns before taking their murderous rampages to major cities in their sequels. It's an easy mistake to make.

"Gremlins" is by far the better-remembered, more successful film series. But "Critters" has the edge in launching megastar careers.

While the original "Gremlins" provided child star Corey Feldman

Leonardo DiCaprio stars in "Critters 3"

("Stand By Me," 1986) an early screen role, "Critters 3" (1991) gave Hollywood icon Leonardo DiCaprio ("Titanic," 1997) his very first feature film role. He played the stepson of a villainous landlord (William Dennis Hunt, "Dragonfly," 2002) in the film, which took the action from rural Kansas to Los Angeles. He was just 16 at the time, and though it was his first big-screen role, it was far from his first acting gig.

He'd been doing TV for a couple of years at that point, already starring in the short-lived sitcom "Parenthood" and guesting in a couple of better-established shows, including "Roseanne" and the daytime soap "Santa Barbara." But, it should be noted that he was still a few months out from joining the cast of the hit sitcom "Growing Pains" when "Critters 3" came out, which is generally considered DiCaprio's first big role.

Q: I love Kristen Wiig's comedy, but I'm curious: has she done any other type of work? Horror or drama, maybe? Does she have any on the horizon?

A: Former "Saturday Night Live" star Kristen Wiig has in fact branched out — far out, in some cases — from comedy in the past. But her current pile of future projects is all laughs.

As with so many "SNL" standouts, Wiig soon transitioned to films. In fact, she started even before she officially left the cast in 2012 (I say "officially" because she's popped in on "SNL" numerous times since).

And though the majority of Wiig's films have been comedies — most notably she starred in, co-produced and wrote the 2011 surprise hit "Bridesmaids" — she actually started stretching her dramatic legs early on.

Wiig first tested that range in the 2010 crime drama "All Good Things," in a supporting role but most definitely a dramatic one. And she continued from there, sprinkling in weightier material amid the comedic stuff. For example, she appeared in the sci-fi drama "The Martian" (2015) and the deeply weird psychological thriller "Mother!" (2017). She's even done a superhero movie, playing the villain, Cheetah, in "Wonder Woman 1984" (2020).

But Wiig remains, first and foremost, an in-demand comedy star. You can see this in the six projects she has in development — all comedies. Two of those are already in post-production: the animated film "Gabby's Dollhouse: The Movie," slated for release in September, and the romantic comedy "Epiphany," although the release date has yet to be announced.
