Late Laughs

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

An American Airlines plane had to be diverted after six toilets stopped working mid-flight. It was weird when passengers said, "Six toilets aren't working," and the crew was like, "The plane only has three."

Apparently, [Vladimir] Putin has suggested a joint summit with Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping to end the war in Ukraine. Yeah, those three love each other. For Halloween this year, they're going dressed as "Hocus Pocus."

I heard about a 99-year-old woman in the U.K. who just became the world's oldest wing walker. She's fine, but everyone else had a heart attack. "Grandma! Grandma! Grandma!"

We are experiencing something called rain, which we don't get a lot, but it is nothing compared to what's happening in the south right now with the first hurricane of the season. [Hurricane Isaias] has left hundreds of thousands without power. There was an evacuation order issued in Destin, Florida, over the weekend and this is from a channel I didn't even know was a channel, Fox Weather. Did you know there's a Fox Weather? Finally, a common sense alternative to that woke weather channel with their small craft advisories and dew point and whatnot.

We got a new White House press secretary. ... His name is Dan Fitzsimmons. He's a Harvard graduate. He's got a master's from the Columbia Journalism School. He's known for his fair and thoughtful, oh, wait. I'm just kidding. This is the new press secretary: former Newsmax commentator Katie Zachariah. Katie has a number of qualifications for the job. She has blonde hair. She can do a thumbs up. End of list.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

The New York Knicks kicked off their season today [Oct. 20], and held a ceremony to raise the championship banner at Madison Square Garden. Meanwhile, over at the [Barclays Center], [the Brooklyn Nets] raised a Help Wanted sign.

The Justice Department last week [Oct. 11-17] raided Democratic Congresswoman Ilhan Omar's Washington, D.C., home as part of an investigation into whether she fraudulently obtained U.S. citizenship decades ago. This has to be the furthest a president has ever gone to scare the crap out of his own wife.

A Texas woman has filed a lawsuit against the chain Torchy's Tacos that claims she found a cow's tooth in her food. "Yes," said an employee, "a cow's tooth."

A new world order: Blade Runner franchise visits '2099'

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Lewis Gribben, Hunter Schafer and Dimitri Abold in "Blade Runner 2099"

In 1953, IBM announced the IBM 650 Magnetic Drum Data Processing Machine. Weighing in at approximately 2.6 metric tons and roughly the size of two phone booths standing side by side, IBM's early digital computer was the first mass-produced technology of its kind, paving the way for the expansion of future technologies.

Some 73 years later, seemingly everyone and their eight-year-old has access to a smartphone, which (using the iPhone 14 for reference) accounts for more than 3.5 million times the storage space of the IBM 650 computer while fitting squarely on the palm of the average adult hand.

With this comparison top of mind, it becomes difficult — if not a bit terrifying — to consider where our inventions will take us throughout the course of another 73 years. Nevertheless, time rolls on, and a Prime Original miniseries demonstrates one such possibility.

"Blade Runner 2099," an eight-episode cyberpunk series starring Michelle Yeoh ("Everything Everywhere All at Once," 2022) and Hunter Schafer ("Euphoria"), comes to Prime Video in its entirety Wednesday, Nov. 25.

Based on the 1968 novel "Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep?" by American science fiction author Philip K. Dick, "Blade Runner 2099" is a spiritual sequel to the 1982 Harrison Ford ("The Fugitive," 1993) movie "Blade Runner," which takes place in a then-future imagining of 2019, and the film's 2017 sequel, "Blade Runner 2049," starring Ford and Canadian heartthrob Ryan Gosling ("The Notebook," 2004), which takes place 50 years later, as suggested by its title.

Although "2099" continues the habit of telling stories within the wider Blade Runner universe, showrunner Silka Luisa ("Shining Girls") made sure to clarify that the series will not be a direct sequel to the franchise's existing films.

"An important early mandate was that audiences could come to the show not having seen the films, and this could stand alone," Luisa told SFX magazine, as reported by GamesRadar.com writer Jordan Farley. "This could be an introduction to the world of Blade Runner, and it wouldn't be dependent on you having watched '2049,' [or] you having watched the first 'Blade Runner.' In that sense, we had to divorce ourselves from the narrative."

But the Blade Runner lore remains intact.

Previous viewers of the franchise will recall that Replicants are bioengineered humanoids created by the Tyrell Corporation to complete "difficult, hazardous work," including slave labor and off-world colonization. What followed was a series of blackouts, revolts and threats to public safety that resulted in the Replicants being banished to the colonies and banned from Earth. In Ridley Scott's ("The Martian," 2015) 1982 film, Ford's character, Rick Deckard, is forced out of retirement by the police force and tasked with eliminating "four genetically engineered humans" who found their way back to Los Angeles (per WarnerBros.com).

Now 80 years after the events of the original "Blade Runner" film, "Blade Runner 2099" dedicates roughly seven hours of content (eight episodes ranging from 45 to 60 minutes each) toward expanding the beloved human/replicant storyline into something fresh and newly relevant. Luisa helps this endeavor from behind the camera, serving as series creator, showrunner and executive producer alongside Jonathan van Tulleken ("The Changeling").

In front of the camera, however, "Blade Runner 2099" follows false-Replicant Blade Runner Cora (Schafer), who partners with Olwen (Yeoh), a dying Replicant, to save Los Angeles — and possibly the wider world — from a looming threat.

"Fifty years after the events of 'Blade Runner 2049,' Los Angeles has been reborn, just not by humanity," reads the Prime Video press description. "Cora, a fugitive in a final bid to stop running, takes on one last identity: a Blade Runner. Forced to partner with Olwen, a Replicant days from dying, she hunts down a runaway hiding a truth that could collapse their fragile city."

One big change from the movies to the series, according to IGN.com, is that Blade Runners "now hunt down rogue humans rather than Replicants." But in the same way that viewers in 1982 debated Deckard's humanity, IGN writer Scott Collura notes "it seems to be getting harder than ever to tell the difference between human and Replicant."

"The benefit of having this shift in status quo is that it's a new entry point for everyone, and that makes it accessible to new audiences and to fans because everyone is learning about this new world and the new dynamic and all the new characters," Luisa shared with IGN ahead of the series panel at New York Comic Con in October.

Luisa also touched on "2099's" connection to the Blade Runner franchise's ongoing narrative around death and dying, saying, "This is the last week of [Olwen's] life. ... Part of the human experience is dying and it's inevitable, and Replicants know exactly when they're going to die, which in some ways makes it even harder because it's sooner than it should be."

"Can you ever stop fighting the desire to want to be here and to see how the story continues?" Luisa wondered aloud, adding, "That felt very fundamental."

Make sure to seize your opportunity to see how the story continues when "Blade Runner 2099" releases its entire eight-episode series Wednesday, Nov. 25, on Prime Video.

Dust it off: An unexpected archaeological discovery kicks off 'Dig'

Fina Strazza, Antonia Thomas, Amy Poehler and Geraldine Viswanathan in "Dig"

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

There is no area of academia more thrilling than archaeology. To get to travel the world, connect with other cultures and help discover hidden, unwritten history is a dream come true. However, nothing on Earth is untouched by bureaucracy. After unearthing an artifact with the potential to change recorded history, an archaeological dig team must keep their find a secret from their boss to retain credit for the discovery in a new sitcom from TV legend Mike Schur ("The Good Place").

Premiering Monday, Nov. 23, on Peacock, "Dig" stars Amy Poehler ("Inside Out 2," 2024), who co-created the series and co-wrote the pilot episode with Schur. Poehler's Elise is dedicated to her work but is held back by her boss, Neville (Hugh Laurie, "The Night Manager"), whose promises to retire are broken each time the opportunity to inspire a new dig's team comes knocking.

Even though it is Elise who is the one who gives the all-important warnings about the stray dogs to the new dig team members, who is down in the dig getting dirty and who is responsible for handling precious items surrounded by newbies with care, Neville's choice to lead the dig for one more year means that anything exciting that it produces will be credited to him.

The new 10-episode comedy is set at a summer archaeological dig in Greece, where a new troupe of college students have been welcomed to the site monitored by Neville and Elise. Geraldine Viswanathan ("Miracle Workers") stars as Dylan, a returning member of the team who, after years away, has come back to settle some unfinished business.

Also not-so-new to the dig is Clare, portrayed by "Lovesick" star Antonia Thomas. Clare typically oversees the site's lab, far from the dust and dirt of the dig, but after she calls off her wedding, Clare finds herself in unfamiliar territory stepping into the archaeological action. A fresh face on the Greek dig is undergraduate assistant Patty (Fina Strazza, "Paper Girls"), who is overwhelmed and enthusiastic in equal measure.

In the official teaser trailer for the upcoming series, Elise and Dylan unearth a crowned statue that seems out of place with artifacts from the rest of the dig. "Nothing like this has been found for hundreds of years," Elise says, but before she can share her find with Neville, Dylan proposes a different course of action. If they dig up the artifact themselves, they can keep the credit for their own hard work that Neville has stolen out from under them so many times before.

That decision is the first domino to fall in a wild, international adventure that ties Elise, Dylan, Clare and Patty together during one memorable summer. Each of the women have something to prove, and once they unite in the name of fair credit, they unknowingly jump headfirst into a global conspiracy stemming from the artifact.

"Dig" is based on the best-selling 2023 novel "Excavations" from author Kate Myers. The mystery novel made summer reading lists the year of its publication, making "Dig" and its sunny Grecian setting the perfect antidote for the long winter ahead.

The series also stars Jason Mantzoukas ("The Good Place") as local store owner Lambros; Noma Dumezweni ("Murderbot") as Clare's mother, Evelyn; Brennan Lee Mulligan ("Critical Role") as Marcus "M.R." Robertson Jr., a potential patron of the dig; Kayvan Novak ("What We Do in the Shadows") as the village mayor, Stavros; Max Greenfield ("The Neighborhood") as art dealer Andrew; Dan Bucatinsky ("The Comeback") as museum director Fritz; Jon Pointing ("Small Prophets") as Gary; and Bonita Friedericy ("The Pitt") as Dorothy.

Co-showrunning "Dig" alongside Schur is J.J. Philbin, executive producer and writer for "Only Murders In the Building" and Schur's spouse. The two met when they last worked together as writers for "Saturday Night Live," before their respective prime-time TV success. Schur, Philbin and Poehler executive produce the series alongside Morgan Sackett ("Hacks"), Dean Holland ("Loot"), Kate Arend ("Making It") and Jordan Grief ("Duncanville") for Paper Kite; Dave Becky ("Russian Doll") and David Miner ("The Fall and Rise of Reggie Dinkins") for 3 Arts; and Sharon Jackson ("Life & Beth") for Ocean Avenue.

In the world of contemporary sitcoms, few have had as much impact as Schur. The oft-replicated mockumentary sitcom was popularized by "The Office," where Schur got his start in prime-time sitcoms as a writer and producer on the series. He also starred in several episodes as Dwight's (Rainn Wilson, "Super," 2010) cousin, Mose.

Schur then reinvented that format with Poehler in "Parks and Recreation," which itself seems to have inspired other wildly popular sitcoms featuring a cast of work families, such as "Ted Lasso" on Apple TV. Having two celebrated sitcoms under your belt is enough to cement anyone's status as a sitcom great, but in addition to the upcoming "Dig," Schur has created or co-created popular series "The Good Place" for NBC, "Rutherford Falls" for Peacock and "A Man on the Inside" for Netflix.

Catch the premiere of "Dig" Monday, Nov. 23, on Peacock.

Jennifer Lopez is featured in "The JLO Show: Live in Las Vegas"

Let's get loud: Get a front-row seat experience of superstar Jennifer Lopez's ("Kiss of the Spiderwoman," 2025) sold-out 2025-2026 residency with the documentary special "The JLO Show: Live in Las Vegas," premiering Thursday, Nov. 26, on CBS.

With a showbiz career spanning decades of highlights in music, television, film and pop culture, Lopez, who adopted the enduring moniker J.Lo for her 2001 sophomore album, is a natural fit for the spectacle of a Las Vegas stage. A consummate entertainer, Lopez is no stranger to Sin City. The "Jenny From the Block" singer's "Jennifer Lopez: All I Have" debut residency was critically acclaimed during its 2016-2018, 120-show run at Planet Hollywood Resort & Casino.

A new show, "Jennifer Lopez: Up All Night Live in Las Vegas," inspired by Lopez's lifelong love of musicals, was developed for her 2025 return to Las Vegas, using her unmatched vocal, dance and acting skills to put on a show worthy of the historic Vegas venue. Lopez wowed audiences at The Colosseum at Caesars Palace for 12 sold-out performances of her show that until now was just a treat for fans who travelled from around the world to America's playground to see the legend in action. Now, a CBS documentary makes viewers' couch the best seat in the house.

"Tracing her journey from the Bronx to global icon, Lopez delivers a production that is as intimate as it is spectacular, backed by a full orchestra, vocal ensemble and 16 dancers. The show blends her most iconic hits with personal storytelling, featuring the artists and songs the influenced her. The result is a show that feels modern, nostalgic and timeless," per CBS.

After turkey time this year, settle in for a spectacle. From CBS, "premiering on Thanksgiving night, the show continues a cherished Lopez family tradition of gathering to watch movie musicals together over the holiday."

Lopez's final residency performance, filmed live for the special on March 28, 2025, features reinterpretations of some of her greatest hits, structured into four acts that define her career. Chart-toppers such as "Waiting for Tonight," Love Don't Cost a Thing" and "Get Right" are given interpolations fit for the Strip, alongside J.Lo's versions of standards from Broadway and Vegas performers of yore.

Catch "The JLO Show" Live in Las Vegas" when it premieres Thursday, Nov. 26, on CBS. If the tryptophan lulls you into a prime-time snooze, stream an extended version of the special on Paramount+.

Behind the Brat Pack: From 1980s heartthrob to Emmy-nominated TV star, actor Rob Lowe ("9-1-1: Lone Star") gets a career retrospective in "Rob Lowe: The Outsider," premiering Tuesday, Nov. 24, on Netflix.

After getting his acting start in local theatre and in the short-lived 1979 ABC sitcom "A New Kind of Family," Lowe burst onto the scene in the Francis Ford Coppola ("The Godfather," 1972) directed 1983 film adaptation of "The Outsiders." Part of an ensemble cast packed with young actors on the cusp of becoming household names, Lowe took the role of Sodapop Curtis in that film and ran with it, booking roles in movies that defined the decade.

Starring as Billy Hicks in 1985's "St. Elmo's Fire" solidified Lowe's place in the Brat Pack, a troupe of actors who frequently co-starred in popular coming-of-age films of the 1980s together. In the following decades, Lowe reinvented his career.

After knocking out performances in big screen hits such as "Wayne's World" (1992), "Tommy Boy" (1995) and "Contact" (1997), picking up an Emmy nomination at the 2001 ceremony for his work in the political drama "The West Wing" and even currently holding down a game show hosting gig with "The Floor" on Fox, Lowe's become the rare kind of actor who is known just as much for their film roles as their TV appearances.

No rundown of Lowe's career would be complete without what is literally one of his most unforgettable characters. Lowe's eternal optimist Chris Traeger in the NBC sitcom "Parks and Recreation" lives on in the hyperbole we all can't seem to stop using. A constant presence in entertainment since his early days, an insight into what led to Lowe's career choices is long overdue.

From Tudum, "'Rob Lowe: The Outsider' goes beyond the highlight reel to reveal what it really took for Lowe to survive Hollywood and become one of its most enduring stars." Directed by "Tiger King" director and executive producer Chris Smith, the documentary "traces that arc in full for the first time, pairing new interviews with Lowe and those who know him best with a career-spanning look back at the public and private moments that have shaped him."

The documentary is produced by Smith, Sydney Schwartz ("Bring Me the Beauties: A Model Cult") and Stacy Smith ("The Widower: 'Til Death Do Us Part," 2026) for Library Films, with Marc Gurvitz ("David Spade: Dandelion"), Jon Liebman ("Sorry for Your Loss") and Zoe Rogovin ("Norm: The Tale of Norm Macdonald") executive producing.

Don't miss "Rob Lowe: The Outsider" when it premieres Tuesday, Nov. 24, on Netflix.

"The Mosquito Bowl" (2026)

Before the Marines faced Okinawa, Japan, they shared one last game of football. Based on true events, "The Mosquito Bowl" streams Wednesday, Nov. 25, on Netflix. After the attack on Pearl Harbor, four college football stars put their athletic careers on hold to enlist in the Marines and head for the Pacific. John McLaughry (Nicholas Galitzine, "The Idea of You," 2024), Bob Bauman (Bill Skarsgard, "Nosferatu," 2024), Tony Butkovich (Ray Nicholson, "Smile 2," 2024) and David Schreiner (Tom Francis, "You") are among the players drawn together for a game on Guadalcanal, where two Marine regiments face off in a contest featuring a lineup of former college stars. For a brief afternoon, the men reconnect with the sport and lives they left behind. But with the invasion of Okinawa ahead, the respite is fleeting. Directed by Peter Berg ("Lone Survivor," 2013), the film is adapted from Buzz Bissinger's book "The Mosquito Bowl: A Game of Life and Death in World War II."

"Fool Night" – Season 1

With the sun gone and oxygen running low, humanity's survival depends on an unsettling transformation. The dystopian anime "Fool Night" premieres Thursday, Nov. 26, on Netflix. For a century, thick clouds have covered the sky, leaving Earth trapped in endless winter and darkness. As most vegetation withers, what's left of humanity turns to Transfloration, a technology that implants seeds into the bodies of those nearing death, transforming them into oxygen-producing plants called spiriflor. Struggling to support himself and pay for his mother's medication, Toshiro Kamiya (Koki Uchiyama, "My Hero Academia") volunteers for the procedure. But he soon discovers he can hear plants speak, a rare ability that earns him a job at the national institute overseeing Transfloration. There, he helps families communicate with loved ones who have become plants and works alongside his childhood friend Yomiko Horai (Minako Kotobuki, "K-On!"). With episodes directed by Atsushi Yukawa ("Suzume," 2022), the series adapts Kasumi Yasuda's manga of the same name.

"The Child" (2026)

A single tragedy leaves an entire community searching for a way forward as "The Child" arrives Friday, Nov. 27, on Netflix. In October 1980, a gas explosion in a Basque Country town kills several children, leaving their families and neighbors struggling to comprehend the loss. The effects linger long after the explosion, reaching beyond the families directly affected. Among them are Mariaje (Belen Cuesta, "Money Heist"), the mother of one of the children who died, and Nicasio (Karra Elejalde, "Spanish Affair," 2014), his grandfather. As they struggle to imagine a future without the child they loved, the two experience grief in different ways. Memories and unexpected emotions shape their journey as Mariaje and Nicasio search for their own paths toward healing. Directed by Mariano Barroso ("All the Women," 2013) and adapted from Fernando Aramburu's ("Patria," 2016) novel, the drama builds a fictional story around a real event that occurred in Spain, tracing the lasting effects of loss on a family and its community.

"The Chosen" – Season 6

"The Chosen" continues with a new episode Sunday, Nov. 22, on Prime Video. Set during the final day of Jesus' (Jonathan Roumie, "Chicago Med") life, this latest season follows the hours leading to his crucifixion as accusations and competing ideas of justice divide Jerusalem. The Pharisees see Jesus as a threat to be stopped, while Roman authorities hope to preserve order. Meanwhile, Jesus' followers struggle to understand how the man they love can be condemned to die. As betrayal, political pressure and grief close in, Jesus remains committed to the path he has chosen, even as his friends face the prospect of losing him. In addition to Roumie, Shahar Isaac ("The Good Fight") and Elizabeth Tabish ("The Lying Game") return as Simon Peter and Mary Magdalene, respectively. Created and directed by Dallas Jenkins ("The Best Christmas Pageant Ever," 2024), the season traces the events that lead to the cross.

"Nine to Six" – Season 1

Love doesn't always stick to a schedule, but in Season 1 of "Nine to Six" — premiering Wednesday, Nov. 25, on Prime Video — a love triangle has everyone working overtime. Kang Yi-ji (Park Min-young, "Marry My Husband") is a workaholic and a senior manager at an automobile company who has long pushed romance and marriage aside, convinced her career leaves little room for either. Then, Han Sun-woo (Yook Sung-jae, "The Haunted Palace") arrives as an intern. Warmhearted and sincere, Han has a true passion for jewelry design, and his presence begins to shift Kang's idea of what she wants, even as she tries to keep things professional. Meanwhile, her strong work ethic has caught the attention of her boss, Park Hyun-tae (Go Soo, "Parole Examiner Lee"), who holds her in high regard. With both men now part of her workday, Kang finds her life spinning out of control. The series is directed by Lee Hyung-min ("Strong Woman Do Bong-soon") and Oh Song-hee ("The Escape of the Seven").

"Way of the Warrior Kid" (2026)

Class is now in session! Based on Jocko Willink's bestselling novel, "Way of the Warrior Kid" premieres Wednesday, Nov. 25, on Prime Video via the Apple TV channel, with McG ("Charlie's Angels," 2000) directing the film from a screenplay by Will Staples ("Without Remorse," 2021). Marc (Jude Hill, "Belfast," 2021) is struggling with bullies, schoolwork, P.E. and making friends. But when his uncle Jake (Chris Pratt, "Guardians of the Galaxy," 2014), a decorated Navy SEAL, moves in for the summer to recover from an injury, he comes up with "Operation Warrior Kid," a summer program to help Marc stand up to his school bullies. As Jake uses his military training to teach Marc about strength, confidence and courage, he begins confronting struggles of his own. Linda Cardellini ("Crystal Lake") also stars as Marc's mother, Sarah.

Barrymore hosts Pillsbury Bake-Off's TV return

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

If you grew up in North America anytime after 1965, chances are the name Pillsbury conjures an image of the eponymous company's Doughboy: a jolly, stark-white, humanoid dough ball capped with a chef's toque and kerchief. (If you're one of the lucky ones, this image may even be accompanied by a cheeky "hoo-hoo!" — or a reserved "tee-hee," per later versions.) This past March, the Pillsbury Doughboy celebrated his 61st birthday, and this month, his namesake company continues a tradition older than the animated icon himself.

The Pillsbury Bake-Off Classic, a semi-regular tradition since 1949, returns to television Monday, Nov. 23, for a 54th year of family-friendly fun! Don't miss the belly-jiggling, Doughboy-giggling antics when Drew Barrymore ("50 First Dates," 2004) hosts the competition live on CBS and Paramount+.

According to Pillsbury.com, the first Pillsbury Bake-Off occurred at New York City's Waldorf Astoria in 1949 and counted 100 bakers among its finalists, all competing for $25,000 and kitchen supremacy in front of former first lady and esteemed guest Eleanor Roosevelt. By 1970 (just one year after the invention of the now-famous Pillsbury Crescent Puff), the Bake-Off had made its way to television with "The Price Is Right" host Bob Barker helming the event. Barker remained emcee until 1984, when the show's format changed and a series of guest hosts took over.

Drew Barrymore hosts "Pillsbury Bake-Off Classic"

As technology shifted, the Bake-Off made its way to the internet for "online entries, public voting and new categories." In 2026, the contest is striking a balance between broadcast television and online streaming.

"This year, Christina Tosi ["MasterChef"] and Dook Chase ["Family Recipe Showdown"] will serve as the celebrity chef judges to evaluate the competitors' creations," reads Deadline's description. "The top baker from each round will earn a coveted spot in the ultimate 'Best in Bake' finale, where finalists will be tasked with crafting edible wreaths. Whoever is crowned the champ will take home a $25,000 cash prize and a KitchenAid equipment package."

"Beyond the competition," reads the logline, "the special will showcase the personal stories, traditions and inspiration behind the home bakers and the recipes they bring to the table, celebrating the creativity that has made the Pillsbury Bake-Off Classic a beloved American baking tradition."

Join Barrymore — who appeared in a Pillsbury commercial 47 years ago — Monday, Nov. 23, and take part in the televised two-hour return of the Pillsbury Bake-Off Classic, airing live on CBS and Paramount+.

Bedside manner? Never heard of it. Ex-Boston surgeon Dr. Martin Best (Josh Charles) is the only doctor in Port Wenn, Maine, home of his boyhood summers, where patients, teacher Louisa (Abigail Spencer) and Aunt Sarah (Annie Potts) test his patience.

Dancing With the Stars

22 8:00 PM

One Mirrorball, one last dance. After a season that matched a record 16 couples, the surviving pairs give judges Derek Hough, Carrie Ann Inaba and Bruno Tonioli everything they've got as Alfonso Ribeiro and Julianne Hough host the Season 35 finale.

Airport

TCM 8:00 PM

A blizzard buries the runways, a stowaway (Helen Hayes) slips aboard and a desperate man, D.O. Guerrero (Van Heflin), brings a bomb onto a jet piloted by Vernon Demerest (Dean Martin), leaving airport manager Mel Bakersfeld (Burt Lancaster) stressed out.

NCIS: New York

Nature

(33) (57) 8:00 PM

Snow piles high on spruce forests as Europe's great peaks settle into a long winter. Ibex herds gather, wolf packs roam, chamois sprint along the loftiest ridges and marmots tuck themselves away in snug burrows beneath the drifts until spring returns.

The Lowdown

Every thread finally pulls tight. Oklahoma truth-seeker Lee Raybon (Ethan Hawke) presses the case for public defender Ginger (Betty Gilpin), defies crooked Sheriff Vela Thorne (Martha Plimpton) and faces dad Frog (Tommy Lee Jones) in this season finale.

The Amazing Race

"This Is Not a Test" (2026)

Adapting Courtney Summers' eponymous horror novel, the all-new film, "This Is Not a Test," premieres Sunday, Nov. 22, on Hulu. When a sudden and violent zombie outbreak overtakes her town, teenager Sloane (Olivia Holt, "Cloak & Dagger") must flee from her infected father and her home. Her only sanctuary comes from the local high school, where she's forced to take shelter alongside her terrified classmates. But as apocalyptic terrors roam outside the school's doors, tensions inside the building rise higher and higher, leaving Sloane to fend for herself against the dead and the living. Written, directed and produced by Adam MacDonald ("Out Come the Wolves," 2024), "This Is Not a Test" also stars the likes of Froy Gutierrez ("The Strangers: Chapter 1," 2024), Corteon Moore ("Overcompensating"), Carson MacCormac ("Clown in a Cornfield," 2025), Chloe Avakian ("Devil in Disguise: John Wayne Gacy"), Luke Macfarlane ("Pining for Douglas," 2026), Joelle Farrow ("Under the Banner of Heaven"), Jeff Roop ("Out of My Mind," 2024), Krista Bridges ("Left Behind: The Movie," 2000), Missy Peregrym ("FBI") and Perez Tieku ("A Man Walks into a Bar," 2023).

"Mickey 17" (2025)

When your job requires you to die over and over again, even a fresh start comes with its own complications. Written and directed by Bong Joon Ho ("Parasite," 2019), "Mickey 17" is streaming on Hulu, beginning Monday, Nov. 23. In 2050, Mickey Barnes (Robert Pattinson, "The Batman," 2022) joins a space expedition to colonize the icy planet Niflheim, taking a job as an "Expendable," a worker sent on missions too dangerous for anyone else. The catch? When Mickey dies, he is reprinted in a new body with his memories intact, ready to report for duty again. His friend Timo (Steven Yeun, "Minari," 2020) joins as a pilot, while Mickey grows close to Nasha (Naomi Ackie, "I Wanna Dance with Somebody," 2022), a security agent aboard the ship. But after Mickey 17 is presumed dead during an assignment, he returns to find another version of himself has already been printed. Now, two Mickeys must find a way to survive a mission that only has room for one.

"Borderlands" (2024)

Lilith (Cate Blanchett, "Blue Jasmine," 2013), an infamous bounty hunter with a mysterious past, reluctantly returns to her home, Pandora, the most chaotic planet in the galaxy. The 2024 science fiction flick, "Borderlands," is coming to Hulu on Wednesday, Nov. 25. Lilith is tasked with a mission: to find the missing daughter of Atlas (Edgar Ramirez, "It Would Be Night in Caracas," 2025), the universe's most powerful S.O.B., but along the way, Lilith forms an unexpected alliance with a ragtag team of misfits — including Roland (Kevin Hart, "Ride Along," 2014), Tiny Tina (Ariana Greenblatt, "Now You See Me: Now You Don't," 2025), Krieg (Florian Munteanu, "Shang-Chi and the Legend of the Ten Rings," 2021), Tannis (Jamie Lee Curtis, "Everything Everywhere All at Once," 2022) and Claptrap (Jack Black, "School of Rock," 2003). Together, these unlikely heroes must battle an alien species and dangerous bandits to uncover one of Pandora's most explosive secrets. Written and directed by Eli Roth ("Ice Cream Man," 2026), "Borderlands" also stars Benjamin Byron Davis ("The Terminal List"), Olivier Richters ("The King's Man," 2021), Gina Gershon ("Breed of Greed," 2025), Ryann Redmond ("A Good Person," 2023), Bobby Lee ("A Very Harold & Kumar Christmas," 2011) and more.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Everyone loved "Celebrity Jeopardy" on "Saturday Night Live," but I'm curious: did they ever parody "Wheel of Fortune"?

A: "Saturday Night Live" and "Wheel of Fortune" have been TV landmarks together for decades, so the odds of "SNL" never taking aim at the game-show hit would be pretty small. But its "Wheel" parodies never became an established part of the show the way sketches based on "Celebrity Jeopardy" and "Family Feud" have done.

Will Ferrell and Alex Trebek in a "Celebrity Jeopardy!" sketch from "Saturday Night Live"

For example, in 2022, it did a sketch called "The Phrase That Pays," in which guests have to guess a very long phrase, letter by letter. "So this is 'Wheel of Fortune' with no wheel?" asks one contestant (played by cast member Heidi Gardner, "Life of the Party," 2018), greatly annoying the host (played by James Austin Johnson, "Hail Caesar," 2016).

A few years earlier they took a similar approach, doing a sketch based on a game show called "Million Dollar Wheel" that just happened to be remarkably similar to "Wheel of Fortune." Episode host Melissa McCarthy ("The Heat," 2013) played the beauty turning the letters, a la "Wheel of Fortune" fixture Vanna White, with the bit's central joke being that it's not a particularly hard job.

As I said, both shows have been on for a very long time, so the parodies reach way back. Martin Short ("Only Murders in the Building"), who was a cast member in the mid-'80s, had a recurring character named Ed Grimley, and part of that character's makeup was that he was obsessed with "Wheel of Fortune."

In one sketch, Grimley finally gets interviewed to be a contestant, and he works himself into a minor frenzy (as he generally did) imagining himself on the show and eventually becoming best friends with host Pat Sajak ("The Pat Sajak Show").

Q: Where's the guy who played Quinn in "Project Blue Book" now?

A: Michael Malarkey ("Mr. Sloane") is looking for his next "Project."

The Lebanon-born, Ohio-raised actor was on the rise when he joined History's "Project Blue Book," a dramatization of the real-life military UFO-research project. He had previous starred in the long-running teen hit "The Vampire Diaries" from 2013 to 2017 and then the gang-themed drama "The Oath" in 2018 and 2019.

He went straight from that to "Project Blue Book," which ended in 2020. He's been searching for his next full-time gig since.

He had one for a year — he was a series regular in the second season of the Netflix spy series "The Night Agent" in 2025, but that ended and now he's back to doing guest spots before the next thing comes along.

To that end, just a few weeks ago, he kicked off a recurring role in the CBS action series "Tracker." He plays Adam Shevlin, a private investigator for high-end law firms who also has a history with Reenie (Fiona Rene, "The Lincoln Lawyer").

Q: Is Stephen Fry still acting? I feel like I see Hugh Laurie all over the place.

A: English comedic icon Stephen Fry ("Wilde," 1997), best known as half of a comedy duo with Hugh Laurie ("House"), is indeed still acting, but he's a little more casual about it than his old partner.

Closing in on 70 years of age, Fry is now at the stage of his career when he takes roles that interest him. Though that's not to say that he's not taking a lot of them.

Contrasting with Laurie, who's still committing to full-time series gigs — such as "The Night Manager," which released its second season earlier this year — Fry has lately been taking on a random assortment of movie supports, TV guest arcs and voice work.

This year alone, he's taken on six different gigs, most notably (and recently) a voice in the brand-new Disney film "Hexed."

He also had a role in the light-as-air romantic comedy "Frank and Percy" and was the narrator of the niche indie comedy "Touche."

He hasn't totally shunned TV, which is the medium that made him (he first came to public attention via the sketch series "A Bit of Fry and Laurie" in the late '80s). For example, he had a recurring role in the fantasy-horror series "The Sandman," based on the beloved graphic novel series that wrapped in 2025.
