Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

This morning [Jan. 7], the U.S. military seized two Venezuela-linked oil tankers. ... The second ship had been called the Bella 1 and the U.S. considers it stateless. But while being chased by the U.S. Navy, the crew of the tanker painted a Russian flag on its hull. A brilliant idea that could only have come from Captain Wile E. Coyotovich.

RFK Jr.'s health department has been making a lot of announcements lately, and today [Jan. 7] they debuted new dietary guidelines to emphasize red meat and dairy. This change is even dumber than it sounds. As you can see from this graphic, actually tweeted out by the White House, they literally flipped the food pyramid on its head. "Oh, you got to turn it upside down. It's the only way to get the ketchup out."

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

I read that Target just added thousands of new products in a push to become a wellness destination. Meanwhile, TJ Maxx just added buckets of glue and broken glass so shoppers can prepare their fists for battle.

Taco Bell just released their new spicy Volcano Quesarito. It's called the Volcano Quesarito because whoever eats it could erupt at any time. If you eat a Volcano Quesarito, then drink a Baja Blast, you're legally considered a weapon of mass destruction.

According to a study of 182 cities, residents of Seattle, Seattleites, are the most likely to keep their New Year's resolution. Seattle is the healthiest city and people tend to go along with what they decided to do. [Los Angeles] clocked in at 43rd place, and in last place, Butterfried Twinkies, Arkansas.

In second place was Scottsdale, Arizona. If you live in Scottsdale, you are very likely to keep your resolution, especially if your resolution is to wear more turquoise.

Thank you for joining us in Hollywood on the last Monday [Jan. 12] night of football. There were a lot of great games this weekend. If you could find them. One game was on Amazon. One game was on Fox. Another game was on CBS. There was a game on NBC and tonight the game was on ABC. I feel like I'm going through concussion protocol. It's too much. What I do now is I just put the TV on one channel. I sit down and hope for the best.

Pope Leo yesterday [Jan. 11] baptized 20 babies in the Sistine Chapel. He wasn't planning on it. He was just really pumped about the Bears.

The fast-food chain Burger King has begun offering the Bacon Cheddar Hash Whopper, which features a beef patty, bacon, an egg patty, cheddar cheese sauce, hash browns and hollandaise aioli. But be warned, it's so greasy that if you dab it with a paper towel, it disappears.

Brains, brawn and billionaires: Killer targets big business in 'Cross' Season 2

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Billionaires are hardly a new concept — American oil tycoon John D. Rockefeller was the world's first billionaire 110 years ago — but as business has continued to grow and capitalism perpetuates wealth among the wealthy, the world has more billionaires now than ever before.

According to an article published Jan. 19, on Oxfam.org, "billionaire wealth has increased by 81% since 2020," with a 16% jump attributed to 2025 alone. A sizable socioeconomic disparity of this kind is enough to enrage and rouse the everyman into action, and that is exactly what D.C.-based Det. Alex Cross (Aldis Hodge, "City on a Hill") must face when the series premieres its second season Wednesday, Feb. 11, on Prime Video.

Beginning with a whopping three-episode release, Season 2 of "Cross" focuses on a hunt to apprehend a female vigilante who has begun targeting America's uber-rich. With a supposedly philanthropic CEO atop her sizeable hit list, Cross and the FBI have been called in to protect the country's wealthy elite from the wrath of the mysterious woman picking them off one by one.

"Cross" is a complex, twisted, pulse-pounding ... Washington, D.C., crime drama [that] follows Alex Cross, a brilliant homicide detective and forensic psychologist, uniquely capable of digging into the minds of murderers in order to identify and catch them," says Prime Video. "In Season 2, Cross is in pursuit of a ruthless vigilante who is hunting down corrupt billionaire magnates."

One such billionaire is new central character Lance Durand, played by "Good Girls" star and horror scream king Matthew Lillard. Described by Deadline as "a ruthless, self-made business tycoon," Lance's morals — or, more accurately, a lack thereof — have placed him squarely within the crosshairs of this season's mysterious leading villain. Although very little has been shared to date about Lance's personality traits, the Season 2 trailer positions him as something of a billionaire savior, showing the CEO at a large-scale event as he proclaims to the crowd that his company, Crestbrook Industries, "will end world hunger forever."

Unfortunately, this kind of big thinking on the part of a corrupt businessman often comes with a hefty price tag for those of the less-privileged classes, which is no doubt part of our skilled killer's driving force throughout the season.

Lance, however, easily brushes off the threats as a hazard of his job: "In my position, you're gonna make enemies along the way," he casually tells law enforcement in the trailer.

Given the large, America-wide scale of the killer's operation, Cross and D.C.'s Metropolitan Police Department are collaborating with the FBI this season. Leading the charge from the bureau's side of the case is Special Agent Kayla Craig, played by returning cast member Alona Tal ("Veronica Mars"). "Cross" fans will remember Craig from the show's first season, when she tried to recruit Cross for the FBI despite his clear allegiance to the MPD and dedication to finding the Fanboy Killer (Ryan Eggold, "New Amsterdam").

Other cast members returning for the show's sophomore season include Samantha Walkes ("The Kings of Napa") as Elle Monteiro, Cross' love interest who survived a harrowing abduction alongside Cross' children, Damon (Caleb Elijah, "True Story") and Janelle (Melody Hurd, "Them"), last season; Juanita Jennings ("Runaway Jury," 2003) as Regina Cross, aka Nana Mama, Cross' grandmother and the glue that keeps the Cross family together in hard times; Johnny Ray Gill ("Underground") as disgraced former D.C. cop Bobby Trey Abellard, who worked with the Fanboy Killer in Season 1; and Isaiah Mustafa ("It: Chapter Two," 2019) as Det. John Sampson, Cross' MPD partner and best friend, who, according to creator and showrunner Ben Watkins ("Burn Notice"), will be getting more attention in Season 2.

"We get to peel back a layer to John, where you get to see a little bit of his backstory and watch him deal with emotion," said Watkins in an interview with Entertainment Weekly after the Season 1 finale in November 2024. "You've seen how good he is at holding his friend accountable and at helping his friend navigate deep emotions. You haven't seen how he would do it if it was him having to confront it."

But, Season 2 isn't just about diving into the show's existing characters (as much as we do love that we will get more of John across the next eight episodes). Joining Lillard among the Season 2 recruits are Wes Chatham ("The Expanse") and actor/dancer Jeanine Mason ("So You Think You Can Dance"), who recently shared her involvement in the show with an Instagram post (@itsjeaninemason) of her in a sweater that reads "in my villain era," which is no doubt a clue as to who portrays Season 2's so-called big bad.

"Cross" is based on the characters created by author James Patterson in his Alex Cross novel series, the first book of which was released in 1993. The beloved literary series is now home to 36 books, each of which serve as inspiration for the Prime series despite the television adaptation staying fairly original.

Don't miss your shot to view the first three episodes of "Cross" Season 2 when they release Wednesday, Feb. 11, on Prime Video. The remaining five episodes of the season will release weekly until the March 18 finale.

Surgery with a twist: 'The Artful Dodger' returns with Dawkins in turmoil

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Wherever you go, your past will find you. This is very literally true for Jack Dawkins, a well-respected young surgeon in 1850s Australia whose dodgy early years in London can't help but catch up to him. "The Artful Dodger," a sequel story to Charles Dickens' 1837 novel "Oliver Twist," returns Tuesday, Feb. 10, for its second season on Disney+. All eight new episodes will be available to stream on premiere day.

Thomas Brodie-Sangster ("The Queen's Gambit") stars as Jack Dawkins, the eponymous Dodger, whose childhood as a pickpocket led him, predictably, to become a surgeon with the Royal Navy. Now an adult living in the Australian penal colony of Port Victory, halfway around the world from his humble beginnings in Britain, someone from Jack's past life reappears and pops the bubble of respectability the surgeon had managed to build down under.

Dragging Jack back into a life of crime and convenient paydays is Norbert Fagin, portrayed by "Sherlock & Daughter" actor David Thewlis. Fagin, the ringleader of Jack's childhood gang, entices his former prodigy to join him in a final heist in exchange for some much-needed funds. Of course, it all goes wrong, complicating Jack's head surgeon aspirations.

Jack is not alone in dreaming of the head surgeon title — Lady Belle Fox (Maia Mitchell, "The Fosters"), the ambitious, self-taught daughter of the governor, sees herself in the role. The only things holding her back are societal norms, which she starts to bypass with Jack's help teaching her the practical skills needed for surgery. The star-crossed lovers fall for each other but are separated by the end of the show's first season.

Divided by their wildly different backgrounds, the upcoming season kicks off with Jack and Belle having both tried to solve the problem of Jack's imminent hanging with very different tools. "I was so close to freeing you honorably," Belle tells

Maia Mitchell in "The Artful Dodger"

Jack in the official trailer for the new season. Clueless as to why Jack would resort to Fagin's help in springing him from custody, Belle insists that they could earn a life together if only Jack could truly leave his past behind him.

Jack, however, sees the situation differently. "My lot don't get futures," he assures Belle, defending his choices, saying, "Fagin saved me from the rope. You left me in the dark." While Fagin and Jack work to obtain Jack's freedom, Belle's mother makes the most of their differences and focuses on finding her daughter a respectable husband by any means necessary.

Lady Jane Fox (Susie Porter, "Apple Cider Vinegar") has set some strict rules for her headstrong daughter. Belle is not to see Jack for two years and, in exchange, Jane will make her the colony's first female doctor. Meanwhile, Insp. Henry Boxer (Luke Bracey, "Point Break," 2015) has his eyes on both Belle and Jack, for different reasons. A suitable high society match, Henry is interested in fulfilling Jane's wishes and making Belle his wife. At the same time, Henry is after Jack, looking for any opportunity to eliminate his romantic competition by trying to catch him in the act of one of Fagin's schemes.

While Jane insists that her orders are only to protect Belle, the restrictions are no match for true love. The pair manage to sneak time together at what else than a masquerade ball, as well as some other stolen moments. "I don't have two years. I have now and I love you now," Jack tries to reason with Belle in the trailer when the two have a moment alone to imagine what could be their future.

Brought together by a zest for life and shared passion for the rapidly developing world of surgery, Belle and Jack must weigh the risks that will come with being together and getting what they want against what is remarkably more easy.

As if that isn't enough drama for one show, there is also a killer on the loose in Port Victory. With the new lawman, Insp. Boxer, already looking for reasons to rid the colony of the Dodger, one can only question how safe Jack is from being framed for murders he did not commit. In a time when surgeons were often associated with criminal activity like body snatching, it wouldn't take much convincing to pin a violent crime on a practitioner.

Also returning to the cast are Tim Minchin ("Upright") as Darius

Cracksworth; Lucy-Rose Leonard ("Sleeping Dogs," 2024) as Lady Fanny Fox; Nicholas Burton ("Pieces of Her") as Dr. Rainsford Sneed; Kim Gynell ("Love Me") as Prof. Alistair McGregor and Luke Carroll ("Mystery Road: Origin") as Tim Billiberry. Joining the cast alongside Bracey are Jeremy Sims ("Mr. Inbetween") as Uncle Dickie and Zac Burgess ("Cruel Intentions") as Phineas Golden.

Don't miss the premiere of the new season of "The Artful Dodger" when all eight episodes drop Tuesday, Feb. 10, on Disney+.

'Love Is Blind' prepares for landmark 10th season

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Romance or regret: This year, Cupid's taking a vacation. Singles look to find love another way — on reality television — during the 10th season of "Love Is Blind," making its debut Wednesday, Feb. 11, on Netflix — just in time for Valentine's Day.

Eager men and women enter this life-changing social experiment in hopes of finding their forever partners, but when all the conveniences of modern-day dating are stripped away, leaving the singles with nothing but conversation, will they be able to forget looks and embrace a blind connection? Co-hosts Nick and Vanessa Lachey ("The Ultimatum: Marry or Move On") believe it's possible. And after six years, nine seasons and plenty of happy "LIB" couples created, they might just have the evidence to back it up.

Despite Season 9's one-of-a-kind ending, which saw no couples tying the knot come wedding day, "Love Is Blind" has managed to make matches in Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Seattle, Houston, Denver, Minneapolis and Charlotte, North Carolina, with plenty more romances still to come.

While many details regarding the series' landmark 10th season have been kept tightly under wraps — including the series' next location and contestant identities — series creator Chris Coelen ("Perfect Match") promises that the beating heart of "Love Is Blind" will remain intact — no matter who says "I do" at the altar.

"Whether they succeed or fail, the trying is the most enjoyable and important part for me," Coelen explained, speaking with Tudum.

Nick and Vanessa Lachey host "Love Is Blind"

"The experiment is one of the most incredible things I've been lucky enough to be a part of, personally or professionally, and it's amazing. Remember that the experiment is an experiment, and it's meant to test two main questions: First, is it possible to fall in love with someone based solely on who they are? And second, if you do fall in love and get engaged, is that love strong enough to overcome the obstacles of the real, material world? In Season 9, at least one member of each couple felt their love was not strong enough to overcome the challenges of the real world, and they chose not to get married. That's exactly how the experiment is supposed to work, so I would say not only is the experiment working, I think it's working better than ever," Coelen concluded.

Will true love conquer all or will vanity, jealousy and reality leave this year's hopefuls waiting for Cupid's return? Season 10 of "Love Is Blind" begins Wednesday, Feb. 11, on Netflix.

Bow-wow blitz: Once the Vince Lombardi Trophy is handed to this year's victors, the real games can begin. Tune in for another edition of the longest-running televised pet adoption event when the Puppy Bowl XXII kicks off Monday, Feb. 9, on Animal Planet, Discovery and HBO Max.

Featuring a record-breaking 150 dogs — hailing from 72 shelters across the United States, Puerto Rico and the British Virgin Islands, per Discovery — this year's Puppy Bowl will see adorable fuzzy friends, new and beloved fan-favorite segments and a special cameo from Buffalo Bills player Khalil Shakir, all working in tandem to celebrate another year of tail-wagging fun, as the puppy players in question look for their "forever" homes.

Dan Schachner ("Entertainment Tonight") returns for his 15th year as the Puppy Bowl's steadfast referee, watching on as the reigning champion, Team Fluff, prepares to defend its title against Team Ruff.

This year, spectators will also have the chance to meet 15 special-needs dogs — including Wynonna, a determined pup with only three legs, and Eleanor, who is both deaf and vision impaired — who will compete alongside their football-loving friends. For the first time in Puppy Bowl history, the event will also shine a spotlight on senior dogs, as they introduce a special exhibition game played between Team Oldies and Team Goldies, held during the all-new Pro-Dog Halftime Show-down.

While the players break for treats and back scratches, segments will introduce viewers to the adoptable pets, through "Pup Close and Personal" conversations with those who know the dogs best and a meet-and-greet with Shakir, who trains alongside Button, a Boston Terrier mix from Nickel City Canine Rescue, at Highmark Stadium.

"Puppy Bowl XXII celebrates the spirit of the underdog with a game-day celebration that combines the excitement of a sports matchup with uplifting adoption stories," says Joseph Boyle, the head of content at Discovery Channel. "By introducing new segments like our senior spotlight and enhancing fan-favorite elements, we are creating a deeper connection to our audience and delivering the most entertaining sports spectacular on television."

Fun for sports fans, parents, kids and pets alike, Puppy Bowl XXII airs Monday, Feb. 9, on Animal Planet and Discovery and streams live on HBO Max.

"How to Get to Heaven from Belfast" - Season 1

Under the glare of old memories, a wake becomes a mystery when Season 1 of "How to Get to Heaven from Belfast" arrives on Netflix Thursday, Feb. 12, with eight episodes. Three childhood friends — Saoirse (Roisin Gallagher, "Lazarus"), Robyn (Sinead Keenan, "Doctor Who") and Dara (Caoilfhionn Dunne, "Wrath of the Titans," 2012) — reunite when they receive "an email telling them about the death of the estranged fourth member" of their group (per Tudum). When they show up at their friend's wake for a final farewell, a series of eerie events sends the trio to Ireland, where her past holds answers none of them saw coming. From "Derry Girls" creator Lisa McGee, Season 1 of "How to Get to Heaven from Belfast" also stars Darragh Hand ("Grace"), Jenn Murray ("Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them," 2016) and Chris Robinson ("Faith of Our Fathers," 2023), with episodes directed by George Kane ("Crashing," "Flack").

"Joe's College Road Trip" (2026)

Family lessons hit the highway when "Joe's College Road Trip" premieres Friday, Feb. 13, on Netflix. When college-bound B.J. (Jermaine Harris, "Saturdays") thinks he's ready for life outside the nest, his grandfather Joe (Tyler Perry, "Gone Girl," 2014) decides to prove otherwise the old-fashioned way: a loud, chaotic, cross-country road trip. Joe's foul mouth and zero-filter worldview collide with B.J.'s sheltered manners as they hop from campus tours to roadside diners, meeting foes, old flames and family friends who all have something to say about growing up. Also starring Amber Reign Smith ("Beauty in Black"), Bethany Anne Lind ("Ozark") and Millie Jackson ("Project X," 2012), "Joe's College Road Trip" is written, directed and produced by Perry, alongside Angelique Bones ("Blade," 1998) and Yolanda T. Cochran ("The Book of Eli," 2010).

"State of Fear" (2026)

A city teeters on the edge as organized crime and corrupt power collide in "State of Fear," premiering Wednesday, Feb. 11, on Netflix. Directed by Pedro Morelli ("Irmandade"), this "Brotherhood" spin-off finds a city at its breaking point as top leaders are transferred to maximum-security prisons — leaving a powerful criminal organization dangerously destabilized. The crisis only gets worse when Elisa (Camilla Damiao, "Mars One," 2021), the 18-year-old daughter of Brotherhood founder Edson (Seu Jorge, "Marighella," 2019), is abducted by corrupt police officers who believe they can exploit her family's legacy. Raised on the margins of crime, Elisa becomes the spark needed for an explosive retaliation. But as her aunt Cristina (Naruna Costa, "The Way He Looks," 2014) fights to save her, the Brotherhood declares a "state of fear," unleashing a coordinated wave of attacks on police stations and security forces that throws Sao Paulo into turmoil. With the city gripped by violence and mistrust, Elisa and Cristina are forced to confront the cost of power, loyalty and revenge — and decide whether justice is possible when every choice is shaped by bloodshed and survival. Written by Morelli and Julia Furrer ("Rua Augusta"), the film also stars David Santos ("Guerra da Tapioca," 2017), Hermila Guedes ("Suely in the Sky," 2006) and Lee Taylor (Seu Jorge, "Irmandade").

Amber Reign, Jermaine Harris and Tyler Perry in "Joe's College Road Trip"

"Soul Power: The Legend of the American Basketball Association"

The untold story of basketball's most revolutionary league comes to light in director Kenan Kamwana Holley's ("30 for 30") docuseries "Soul Power: The Legend of the American Basketball Association," premiering Thursday, Feb. 12, on Prime Video. "Soul Power" tells the story of the American Basketball Association (ABA), tracing the league's daring launch in 1967 and following its nine turbulent and groundbreaking seasons, during which a shifting collection of teams challenged the National Basketball Association (NBA). "Soul Power" explores the ABA's lasting influence on the sport, from introducing the three-point shot and the slam dunk contest to paving the way for franchises such as the Brooklyn Nets, Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers and San Antonio Spurs to join the NBA. Along the way, the docuseries will celebrate legendary players — including Julius Erving ("Philadelphia," 1993), Spencer Haywood ("Full Court: The Spencer Haywood Story," 2016), George Gervin ("Marty Supreme," 2025), Rick Barry ("Uncle Drew," 2018) and George Karl ("He Got Game," 1998) — while highlighting how the league empowered women to take on larger roles in the business of basketball.

"The 'Burbs" - Season 1

Beyond the picket fences and perfectly manicured lawns, "The 'Burbs" safest neighborhood is hiding deadly secrets. Inspired by 1989's "The 'Burbs," Season 1 of the all-new series arrives Sunday, Feb. 8, available on Prime Video via the Peacock channel. The series follows Rob (Jack Whitehall, "Bad Education") and Samira Fisher (Keke Palmer, "Nope," 2022) as they uproot their young family and settle into Rob's childhood home in Hinkley Hills. But when a mysterious man (Mark Proksch, "The Office") moves into the long-abandoned house across the street, Samira befriends a group of neighbors, who join her in investigatory misadventures that bring them closer to shattering Hinkley Hills' reputation as "the safest town in America." As fear takes root and danger creeps closer to her doorstep, Samira must consider how far she'll go to defend her home. From series creator Celeste Hughey ("Dead to Me"), Season 1 of "The 'Burbs" also stars Julia Duffy ("The Mommies"), Paula Pell ("30 Rock")

The cast of "Love Me Love Me" and Kapil Talwarkar ("Paper Flowers," 2024).

"Love Me Love Me" (2026)

The first novel in Stefania S.'s Love Me, Love Me tetralogy makes the leap from page to screen when it premieres on Prime Video Friday, Feb. 11. "Love Me Love Me" stars Mia Jenkins ("City Slacker," 2012) as June, a grieving teenager who leaves home for Milan in search of a fresh start after her brother's death. She enrolls at an elite international school, where order, routine and a relationship with Will (Luca Melucci, "Mascarpone: The Rainbow Cake," 2024) — the school's admired honor student — provide comfort and a sense of security. That balance is tested when June becomes entangled with Will's best friend James (Pepe Barroso Silva, "Those About to Die"), a charismatic and troubled teenager who's concealing a secret life in underground MMA fights. As her attraction to James deepens, June is forced to weigh the safety of a predictable relationship against a connection that challenges everything she thought she wanted. Directed by Roger Kumble ("Just Friends," 2005), the film also stars Andrea Guo ("The Swarm"), Michelangelo Vizzini ("Creatives: The Series") and Madior Fall ("Zero"), from a script by Veronica Galli ("Love Club") and Serena Tateo ("Supernova," 2023). Federico Polimanti ("The Lions of Sicily") executive produces.

Julius Erving features in "Soul Power: The Legend of the American Basketball Association"

Food Network promises a Valentine's Day full of mouthwatering recipes

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Who needs overpriced menus, crowded restaurants and pesky reservations? Enjoy a delicious Valentine's Day meal from the comfort of your own home, with inspiration found in seasonal episodes of "Girl Meets Farm," "The Pioneer Woman" and "The Kitchen," airing back-to-back-to-back on Food Network, Saturday, Feb. 14.

First, celebrity chef Molly Yeh ("Today") showcases innovative and festive recipes in a multi-episode "Girl Meets Farm" marathon celebrating the romance-filled holiday. Before sharing tips and tricks for making tasty treats like chocolate chunk cherry cobbler and glazed almond mini cakes, Yeh delves into some of her favorite savory recipes—all perfect to be served as the night's appetizers.

From steak buns with creamy peanut sauce and salty ranch kale chips to Brussels sprout risotto and ooey-goey diner-style patty melts, Yeh offers ideas that'll satisfy every palette. When it's time for dinner, Yeh's got it covered, sharing step-by-step instructions on how to make a succulent rosemary rib roast.

When Molly hangs up her apron for the day, cookbook author Ree Drummond ("Christmas Cookie Challenge") is next to shine in the kitchen as she continues Food Network's Valentine's Day spectacular with four episodes that'll delight any sweet tooth. To kick off the next course, Drummond shares her recipes for decadent chocolate treats, including white chocolate raspberry cheesecake, dipped and decorated waffle cones, milk chocolate mousse and a chocolate orange martini.

She also shares some top-notch shortcuts that yield quick-to-serve desserts like tiramisu, cherry chocolate mug cakes, fruity blackberry lemon ice cream and chocolate cake with seven-minute frosting, before ending the "Pioneer Woman" marathon with recipes for Ree's signature chocolate cereal treats, rice pudding and mini chocolate chip cookies.

Lastly, "The Kitchen" swoops in with a brand-new episode filled with tips and tricks to celebrate the holiday in style, followed by a past Valentine's Day special that features Food Network stars Jeff Mauro ("Sandwich King"), Sunny Anderson ("Beat Bobby Flay") and Geoffrey Zakarian ("Chopped"). Mauro continues the dessert theme while making chocolate cherry cupcakes, while Anderson whips up a no-bake chocolate cookie cheesecake and Zakarian creates a light-and-delicious raspberry and cream Concorde cake.

Whether you're celebrating with loved ones or cooking a feast for one, make the holiday tasty, with help from episodes of "Girl Meets Farm," "The Pioneer Woman" and "The Kitchen," airing Saturday, Feb. 14, on Food Network.

"The Scream Murder: A True Teen Horror Story"

Premiering Wednesday, Feb. 11, on Hulu, the three-part docuseries "The Scream Murder: A True Teen Horror Story" revisits a chilling teen homicide that transformed a small Idaho town into the center of a national true crime saga. When 16-year-old Cassie Stoddard is found stabbed to death in a house on the outskirts of Pocatello, Idaho, a community is gripped by fear as police hunt for a killer on the loose. "The Scream Murder" retraces Cassie's final hours as investigators question three classmates who were the last ones to see her alive, forcing parents and students to confront the idea that the danger might not have come from outside. As the investigation unfolds, a shocking videotape surfaces that reframes the entire case, raising the unthinkable question of whether 16-year-olds could have committed such a brutal crime.

"The Good Place" - Complete Series

It may have wrapped in 2020, but "The Good Place" lands on a new streaming home at Hulu this Monday, Feb. 9. Kristen Bell ("Veronica Mars") stars as Eleanor Shellstrop, a woman who finds herself sitting in a waiting room after her untimely death. When she's told that she has made it to the Good Place, and will spend her afterlife in an idyllic community populated by other extraordinarily good people, Eleanor knows something is amiss. Well aware that she lived her mortal life as a selfish, irresponsible, inconsiderate jerk, she realizes she's been mistaken for another, more saintly Eleanor Shellstrop, and does everything she can to keep up a facade of goodness in an effort to avoid being sent to the Bad Place. As Eleanor struggles to learn how to be good, she meets a lot of colorful characters: Tahani Al-Jamil (Jameela Jamil, "The Misery Index"), Chidi (William Jackson Harper, 2019's "Midsommar") and Jason (Manny Jacinto, "The Romeo Section") are other seemingly good souls sent to rest in the Good Place, while Janet (D'Arcy Carden, "Barry") is an AI-like celestial being who aides the Architect of the whole neighborhood, and Michael, played to perfection by the inimitable Ted Danson ("Cheers"). The cast of this series is phenomenal, and their chemistry is a big part of what makes the show so great. Another big part of the show's success is its creator, Michael Schur, who TV fans may know best as Mose Schrute from "The Office." Schur's incredible career has seen him go from writing for "Saturday Night Live" to creating some of network television's best comedies, such as "Parks and Recreation" and "Brooklyn Nine-Nine," and "The Good Place" is one of his greatest hits. You won't want to stop watching as the residents of the Good Place get up to all sorts of post-mortem shenanigans, and unlike so much of what we see on television these days, this series will leave you feeling genuinely good.

"Hazardous History with Henry Winkler" - Season 1

Step back in time and enjoy some of America's wildest "what were they thinking?" moments when Season 1 of "Hazardous History with Henry Winkler" lands on Hulu this Thursday, Feb. 12. Hosted by the legendary Henry Winkler ("Click," 2006), each episode of this nostalgia-packed series takes a look at the wild, risky and downright unbelievable things Americans once did — for fun, for profit or simply out of boredom. From doctors recommending cigarettes to families storing food in dangerous refrigerators, playing with radioactive toys, going down deadly slides, or hanging asbestos ornaments on their Christmas trees, these were practices that would be unthinkable today. With episodes written by Tommy Cody ("Who Wants to Be a Millionaire"), "Hazardous History with Henry Winkler" is executive produced by Winkler, alongside Adam Dolgins ("The Ed Bassmaster Show"), Matt Pearl ("The Wanda Sykes Show") and Sharon Scott ("The Unbelievable with Dan Aykroyd").

"Clown in a Cornfield" (2025)

A sinister clown emerges from the cornfields to cleanse the town of its burdens, one bloody victim at a time. From director Eli Craig ("Little Evil," 2017) and adapted from Adam Cesare's novel, 2025's "Clown in a Cornfield" arrives on Hulu Tuesday, Feb. 10, following Quinn (Katie Douglas, "Ginny & Georgia") and her father as they move to the quiet town of Kettle Springs seeking a fresh start, only to find a community struggling since the Baypen Corn Syrup Factory burned down. As the locals bicker amongst themselves and tensions boil over, Frendo the clown (Jeff Strome, "Nobody," 2021) comes out to play, leaving Quinn and her friends fighting for their lives. Carson MacCormac ("Shazam!," 2019), Vincent Muller ("Riverdale") and Kevin Durand ("Robin Hood," 2010) round out the cast, with Jean-Luc De Fanti ("Good Time," 2017) serving as the film's executive producer.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Where are the stairs that Joaquin Phoenix dances on in "Joker"? Is it a set or do they actually exist?

A: The famous scene of Arthur Fleck (Joaquin Phoenix, "Gladiator," 2000) dancing down an urban outdoor staircase in the 2019 smash hit "Joker" — which critics have said is meant to symbolize his descent into his criminal alter-ego, The Joker — was filmed on a real set of stairs in New York's Bronx neighborhood.

Once known, uncreatively, as the West 167th Street Stairs, they're now better known as just the Joker Stairs. They connect Shakespeare and Anderson avenues at — you guessed it — West 167th Street, but they have grown into much more than a pass-through: they have become a major tourist attraction in a city full of them. Attention reached the extent that local residents and officials started asking people to give it a rest.

The stairs now have their own page on Tripadvisor.com, though the locals seem to have gotten their wish: tourist discussion of the Joker Stairs seems to have waned in recent years.

That makes sense. The film was an absolute cultural phenomenon when it came out — a rare example of a comic-book movie (the Joker, of course, exists in DC Comics' Batman universe) that won artistic Oscars and also cleaned up at the box office — but that was seven years ago.

A disappointing sequel — 2024's "Joker: Folie à Deux" — also featured the same stairs, but it was a critical and commercial flop, so it did nothing to rekindle popular interest.

Q: Nicholas Hoult did the movie "Renfield," and then "Nosferatu" right afterward. Are they part of a series? They don't seem like it. Is he doing more?

A: Nicholas Hoult ("The Great") did indeed jump from one vampire movie, 2023's "Renfield," right into another with 2024's "Nosferatu," and his roles were at least similar. However, the two films have nothing else to do with each other, and he has no plans to dip back into vampire cinema.

In fact, he said the reason he took on "Nosferatu" so soon after "Renfield" is because, as you say, the two films are so very different. And because he really wanted to work with director Robert Eggers ("The Lighthouse," 2019).

"Honestly, I wasn't looking to go back into the vampire world again," Hoult told Total Film, "but [Eggers'] style and tone are just so completely the opposite of ["Renfield"], and I'm such a fan of his work that I'm excited to be in his world and watching him and learning from him."

To be specific, "Renfield" takes the Dracula story originally written by Bram Stoker in the 19th century and turns it into something like a modern workplace comedy, whereas "Nosferatu" is a deadly serious gothic fantasy. In both, Hoult plays a sort of audience surrogate — a relatively normal human who is thrust into conflict with the supernatural.

Having thus very efficiently covered both extremes of vampire storytelling, Hoult seems to have moved on from the genre, at least for now.

He's since been keeping busy with the comic book kind of fantasy, playing supervillain Lex Luthor in 2025's big-screen hit "Superman" and TV series "The Peacemaker." He has another one lined up: 2027's "Superman" sequel, "Man of Tomorrow."

In the meantime, he'll be starring in the much more ground-level action flick "How to Rob a Bank," about bank robbers posting their heists on social media. That one's due out this September.
