Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

Despite the shocking attack on Saturday [July 13], yesterday [July 14] RNC organizers insisted that the convention wouldn't just go ahead — it would continue "with a vengeance." No! No! We're toning down the rhetoric! Remember? I don't want to continue anything with a vengeance. I want to continue everything with a bong hit, a pint of Ben & Jerry's and reruns of the "Gilmore Girls."

This isn't Babydog's first brush with politics, because during the pandemic, she was the face of the vaccination initiative championed by [her owner, Gov. Jim Justice]. Really says something about this election when a dog believes in science more than the candidates. Is there anything in the rule book that says Babydog can't run for president? She's better than RFK Jr.; she takes her worm medication.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Today [July 15], the Republican National Convention kicked off in Milwaukee. It's four days of intense Republican speeches, like when your uncle comes to stay with you for Thanksgiving.

Big news today [July 17], guys. I saw that Skechers is suing L.L.Bean for allegedly copying its patented shoe designs. Yeah, Skechers versus L.L.Bean. It's being described as the whitest lawsuit of all time.

Jimmy Kimmel Live! With Kumail Nanjiani

This is my first time ever hosting a late-night talk show. ... I am so excited to be here. What a super chill time to be doing a topical monologue on national television, just sharing your personal opinions with millions of people. I feel like right now I could come out in favor of ranch dressing and it would still end my career.

As the host of a late-night talk show, it is my duty to weigh in on the politics of the day, so I'm just going to get this out of the way real quick. Here is my official statement on the situation regarding Joe Biden. Joe Biden is old, older than most people but not everyone. Is he too old to be president? Who's to say? Certainly not me. The people who want Biden to step aside may be right and the people who want him to stay in the race may also be right. Nobody is wrong and please don't be mad at me. ... But if you do want to be mad at me, please post about it on Twitter using my personal handle, @JimmyKimmel.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

While speaking last night [July 16] at the Republican National Convention, Nikki Haley said, "There are some Americans who don't agree with Donald Trump 100% of the time." For example, all the speakers at the RNC just a few months ago.

President [Joe] Biden tested positive yesterday [July 17] for COVID-19. On the plus side, everyone around him was already distancing.

A new era of warfare: 'SEAL Team' returns for explosive final season

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

A world at war needs saving once again, and the only ones for the job are the brave members of the most elite unit of the Navy SEALs. The long-running military drama series "SEAL Team" concludes its run in a 10-episode final season, premiering exclusively on the Paramount+ streaming service Sunday, Aug. 11. The first two episodes drop on premiere day, with new episodes following weekly on Sundays.

The upcoming seventh season of "SEAL Team" sees Master Chief Special Warfare Operator Jason Hayes (David Boreanaz, "Bones") lead Bravo team on a final mission to defend the United States against enemies abroad. These SEALs take on the most high-stakes missions at the drop of a hat.

In an official trailer for the new season, with blood literally on his hands, Jason ruminates on the violence he's both endured and inflicted as a member of the highly trained unit and toasts "a new era of warfare." He stands strong for his unit but must admit the voices questioning how he can keep going back into the fire aren't wrong, especially as a widower with two children.

Also returning is Neil Brown Jr. ("Insecure") as Chief Warrant Officer Ray Perry, whose looming retirement has him questioning whether leaving service behind could really be an option for him. Special Warfare Operator Sonny Quinn (A.J. Buckley, "Justified") faces changing tactics and grief this season, while Lt. Lisa Davis (Toni Trucks, "Corporate") directs the team in a new direction that they may not all be ready to embrace.

Neil Brown Jr. as seen in "SEAL Team"

"Operations like this are the next era of warfare ... invisible tactics with global consequences," Davis explains in the official trailer before emphasizing: "evolve or fall behind."

There's also talk of brotherhood throughout the trailer, with action shots of firefights, explosions and covert operations next to heartfelt moments with the families Bravo team leaves behind when duty calls.

Bravo team is called upon to step in and complete a complicated mission on behalf of its country. Uprooted from their family lives back home, SEAL team members drop everything to fight for peace in a foreign land. This time, part of the season was filmed on location in Colombia.

Season 6 cast addition Raffi Barsoumian ("DC's Legends of Tomorrow") is back as Senior Chief Special Warfare Operator Omar Hamza, whose new responsibilities in the unit help him immerse himself in the work to escape the trauma of his past.

Two new members join the unit for the series' final season. Beau Knapp ("Road House," 2024) is Drew Franklin, a chief special warfare officer; and "Blue Bloods" actor Dylan Walsh puts aside his NYC mayoral duties to slip into character as Capt. Walch.

Returning in recurring roles are Tyler Grey ("Northbound") as Trent Sawyer; Justin Melnick ("Justified: City Primeval") as Brock Reynolds; Alona Tal ("Truth Be Told") as Stella Baxter; and Parisa Fakhri ("What We Do In the Shadows") as Naima Perry.

The cast and crew of "SEAL Team" started saying their goodbyes to Bravo team when it was officially announced by Paramount+ that the series would end with its seventh season back in November of last year.

Boreanaz, also an executive producer of the series, reflected on his time making the show in a statement: "For six seasons I have been fortunate and blessed to be a part of an outstanding cast and crew. Every day spent was a note of thanks to our men and women in the military and Special Ops."

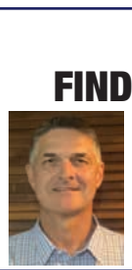

He went on to thank the fans and ended his thoughts on a hopeful note, saying, "I look forward to [Season 7] and the opportunity to end this series with love and gratitude."

The sentiment was echoed by Paramount Streaming's executive vice-president of content and business operations, Jeff Grossman, who said, "From its four seasons on the CBS Network to its three-season run here at Paramount+, 'SEAL Team' has built an incredible legacy that celebrates and honors the brave men and women who serve in the armed forces."

The series has embraced an unorthodox broadcast history throughout its run, airing its first five seasons on CBS. Season 5 premiered on broadcast TV before splitting to streaming — propping up the rebrand from CBS All Access to Paramount+ in 2021. "SEAL Team" was one of two series, alongside supernatural drama "Evil," that made the move from broadcast to streaming that year, sending viewers hooked on network shows to the app.

"SEAL Team" briefly returned to CBS in the fall of 2023 — after last year's strikes altered broadcast schedules — re-airing the fifth season of the show. The Writers Guild and SAG-AFTRA strikes also impacted the filming of the final season of "SEAL Team," which explains the nearly two-year wait fans have endured since the last season premiere.

Don't miss the premiere of the final season of "SEAL Team" when it drops on Sunday, Aug. 11, on Paramount+. Catch the first two episodes on premiere day, with new episodes streaming weekly on Sundays.

Apple TV+ heads to Florida Keys for tropical mystery series

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Flush with unique natural wonders, expansive beaches and endless activities to indulge in, Florida has always been a grand attraction for characters of all kinds. Now, the Sunshine State makes up the setting of Apple TV+'s newest series, "Bad Monkey."

Releasing its first two episodes Wednesday, Aug. 14, on the Apple-owned streamer, "Bad Monkey" stars Vince Vaughn ("Wedding Crashers," 2005) as Andrew Yancy, a former Miami Police detective who has been ousted from the force due to a domestic assault. Now forced to gain employment as a health inspector for the Department of Hotels and Restaurants in the Florida Keys, Yancy's life takes a turn when a tourist in the area pulls part of a human body from the water while fishing.

Faced with the gruesome discovery, Yancy struggles to leave his detective days behind him and let the police handle the matter. Instead, he finds himself getting "pulled into a world of greed and corruption" (per Apple TV+).

"And yes," adds the Apple TV+ description, "there's a monkey."

Based on the 2013 novel of the same name by Carl Hiaasen, "Bad Monkey" has been in the works since August 2021, when Warner Bros. first announced the project. Written, executive produced and co-created by "Ted Lasso" and "Shrinking" producer Bill Lawrence and his Doozer Productions, the crime dramedy is set two contain 10 episodes, to be released weekly after the double-episode premiere on Aug. 14.

Following the series announcement and report that Vaughn would star in the leading role, news broke in December 2021 that supporting cast members were added in the form of Michelle Monaghan ("Kiss Kiss Bang Bang," 2005), Jodie Turner-Smith ("Queen & Slim," 2019) and Meredith Hagner ("Search Party").

Recurring "Saturday Night Live" cast member Alex Moffat was later added to the series in early 2022 as Evan Shook, "an obnoxious real estate developer from Maryland ... who has bought the land next door to Andrew Yancy on a secluded promontory in Big Pine Key and is in the process of developing a hideous spec house that's an affront to Yancy's environmentalist sensibilities" (per the Hollywood Reporter).

"Yancy makes it his mission to scuttle Shook's plans," writes Hollywood Reporter journalist Rick Porter, "creating one problem after another for Shook as he desperately tries to find a buyer for his McMansion."

Monaghan, for her part, is cast as Bonnie Witt, Yancy's love interest and the wife of a well-off Key West dermatologist. In the novel, Witt is portrayed as a woman of questionable morals who was forced to leave her job as an Oklahoma school teacher and change her name (from Plover Chase) following an illicit affair with one of her students.

Turner-Smith, meanwhile, stars as a voodoo practitioner known as the "Dragon Queen," while Hagner portrays Eve Stripling, the widow of the presumed deceased, Nicholas Stripling.

Native Floridian Tom Nowicki ("Remember the Titans," 2000) serves as the narrator of the series, while additional roles in "Bad Monkey" are held by L. Scott Caldwell ("Lost"), Rob Delaney ("Catastrophe"), Natalie Martinez ("Ordinary Joe"), Ronald Peet ("Dicktown"), John Ortiz ("Silver Linings Playbook," 2012), Scott Glenn ("The Silence of the Lambs," 1991), Zach Braff ("Scrubs") and, of course, Crystal the Monkey ("The Hangover Part II," 2011) as Driggs, a pet capuchin monkey who, in the books, is rumored to have worked in the Pirates of the Caribbean films.

Driggs' backstory is not an uncommon one for many real-life capuchin monkeys just like Crystal. While Crystal is not the same capuchin who played Jack in Disney's Pirates franchise (that role was filled by four other capuchins), Crystal is hardly a new furry face in the game. With a resume that boasts more than 30 productions from 1997 to today, including "Doctor Dolittle" (1998), "American Pie" (1999), "The Fabelmans" (2022) and the Night at the Museum franchise, Crystal has appeared in more blockbuster films than many human actors. As such, it comes as no surprise that PETA is highly involved in trying to keep the monkey safe.

The charitable organization, which stands for People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, has long stood by their argument that "dragging real monkeys onto a set hinders conservation efforts and fuels an industry that snatches them away from their mothers, in addition to condemning them to lives of deprivation, misery and pain." With this in mind, PETA has called for viewers to boycott the series and for Hollywood producers to seek alternatives to live animals on set.

"Bad Monkey" premieres its first two episodes Wednesday, Aug. 14, on Apple TV+ and releases new episodes weekly until Oct. 9.

Brand-new docuseries exposes the dark side of Greek life

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Fatal fraternities: Expanding the ever-popular Secrets Of franchise — and exposing the dark and dangerous underbelly of Greek Row — the bone-chilling "Houses of Horror: Secrets of College Greek Life" begins unraveling a treacherous tale Monday, Aug. 12, on A&E.

Throughout its six-episode season, "Houses of Horror" promises to examine some of the horrific truths behind the world of campus Greek life, offering real-life, first-person accounts of the extreme conditions — including hazing, sexual assault, drug use and systemic racism — that persist throughout many of these longstanding groups, known across America as a traditional part of the college experience.

In their description for the upcoming series, A&E shared: "From a pledge at the University of Missouri hazed into drinking excessive quantities of alcohol that left him close to death, and a junior at the University of Minnesota who fought back against the Greek system after she was brutally raped by a fraternity brother, to a shocking set of overdose deaths at San Diego State University, and the infamous Machine, steeped in racist traditions of the Old South, at the University of Alabama, the series offers a far-reaching examination of how the seemingly fun and frivolous world of Greek life could hide a much darker underbelly."

The stories shared are shocking and their implications are harrowing. In a sneak peek for "Houses of Horror" later shared by the network, viewers are even introduced to 19-year-old Daniel Santulli, who was brutally hazed by his classmates at the University of Missouri when attempting to pledge for the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity as a freshman. Made to consume a lethal amount of alcohol, Santulli was then left unsupervised and unconscious, soon experiencing a cardiac arrest that led to lifelong brain damage. Daniel's story, as explored through sitdown interviews with his parents, Tom and Mary Pat Santulli, heartbreaking as it is, is only one of many.

Tom and Mary Pat Santulli are featured in "Houses of Horror: Secrets of College Greek Life"

Through exclusive, sit-down interviews with those involved in past offenses, including former fraternity and sorority members, family, law enforcement and experts, episodes unravel how these organizations — ones created to offer a space of community and acceptance for young adults — can, according to A&E, "have far-reaching consequences that can turn dangerous, and even deadly."

Produced by Eli Holzman ("Quiet on Set: The Dark Side of Kids TV"), Aaron Saidman ("Leah Remini: Scientology and the Aftermath") and Matt Shanfield ("Shark Tank") for The Intellectual Property Corporation (IPC), "Houses of Horror: Secrets of College Greek Life" premieres Monday, Aug. 12, on A&E.

Bonding behind bars: Natalie Rae ("Leon Bridges: Bad Bad News," 2018) embarks on an emotional journey during her first feature-length foray into filmmaking, following an annual father-daughter dance that takes place behind the walls of a Washington, D.C., jail. "Daughters" premieres Wednesday, Aug. 14, on Netflix.

This annual event, dubbed "Date with Dad," acts as an opportunity for incarcerated men to trade in their state-issued scrubs for suits and ties as they're offered the opportunity to reunite with their daughters for a night of dancing and levity. Created by Angela Patton — co-director of the film, who is an advocate for social reform and CEO of the non-profit Girls For A Change — the semi-formal dance is meant to be a bonding experience that families would otherwise miss out on, with some young girls only able to see their fathers this one night a year.

After learning about Patton's program in a 2012 TEDWomen talk, the documentary's co-director, Rae, first approached the idea of sharing stories from the event on camera. When Patton agreed, the two began an eight-year-long odyssey that soon captured the stories of many young girls involved in the program — including those of Aubrey, Santana, Raziah and Ja'Ana, who are all featured in the documentary.

"Speaking openly about their aspirations, dreams and the emotional toll of their fathers' absence, compounded by the constraints of virtual visits, these girls reveal a profound wisdom and resilience beyond their years," Netflix describes. "As they navigate heartbreak, anger and uncertainty, they seize a precious opportunity to forge connections."

The film, which is already expected to be a strong Oscar contender, features Kerry Washington ("Scandal") as one of its many executive producers, with the actress-slash-activist going on to praise the project at Sundance earlier this year.

"This film does such a beautiful job of bridging the idea that fathers need their daughters and daughters need their fathers," Washington said, "and this unjust system that we call the criminal justice system, that it really separates families and tears them apart and treats these folks as if they're not human, that they don't get to touch each other, they don't get to be in community. And the film is about the need for us to pause these systems and treat each other like humans."

Fostering familial connections, celebration and community, "Daughters" makes its debut Wednesday, Aug. 14, on Netflix.

"Emily in Paris"
- Season 4, Part 1

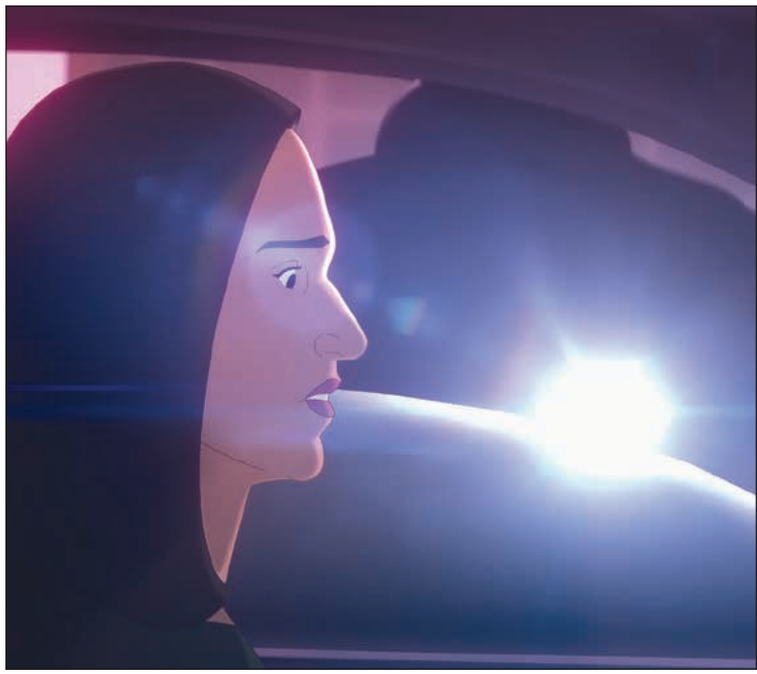

It's a "Seine" in the city when "Emily in Paris" debuts the first five episodes from its fourth season Thursday, Aug. 15, on Netflix. Season 4, Part 2, is slated to stream in September. This season, Chicago native Emily (Lily Collins, "Tolkien," 2019), now firmly settled in Paris, is still reeling from the events of Camille (Camille Razat, "Disparue") and Gabriel's (Lucas Bravo, "Mrs. Harris Goes to Paris") wedding. As if being caught up with strong feelings for two men wasn't enough, "Gabriel's expecting a baby with his ex, and Alfie's [Lucien Laviscount, "Snatch"] worst fears about her and Gabriel have been confirmed" (per Netflix). As Emily and Gabriel work towards a Michelin star, some big secrets threaten to unravel all their hard work. Meanwhile, Sylvie (Philippine Leroy-Beaulieu, "Call My Agent!") faces a difficult choice at work for the sake of her marriage, while Mindy (Ashley Park, "Tales of the City") and her band get creative and thrifty as they prepare for Eurovision. From creator Darren Star ("Sex and the City"), "Emily in Paris" also stars Samuel Arnold ("Platane"), Bruno Gouery ("Doc Martin") and William Abadie ("Homeland"). Season 4 guest stars include Eugenio Franceschini ("Medici"), Thalia Besson ("Dangerous Waters," 2023), Rupert Everett ("Funny Woman"), Anna Galiena ("The Hairdresser's Husband," 1990) and Raoul Bova ("Under the Tuscan Sun," 2003).

"The Union" (2024)

Halle Berry ("Catwoman," 2004) and Mark Wahlberg ("The Fighter," 2010) team up for unique action comedy-thriller "The Union," premiering Friday, Aug. 16, on Netflix. The film follows Mike (Wahlberg), a down-to-earth construction worker living a peaceful life in New Jersey. One night at the local bar, Mike runs into his old high school girlfriend, Roxanne (Berry), who whisks him off to Europe. As it turns out, Roxanne is a spy for a top-secret government agency known simply as The Union, and they need Mike's help with reclaiming a stolen list of Union agents. As the mission goes on, Mike and Roxanne begin to rekindle the relationship they once had in high school. In addition to Berry and Wahlberg, the film also stars Mike Colter ("Luke Cage"), Adewale Akinnuoye-Agbaje ("Lost"), Jessica De Gouw ("Underground"), Alice Lee ("Zoey's Extraordinary Playlist"), Jackie Earle Haley ("Watchmen," 2009), J.K. Simmons ("Whiplash," 2014), Lucy Cork ("Black Widow," 2021), Patch Darragh ("Succession"), James McMenamin ("Orange Is the New Black"), Juan Carlos Hernández ("Cop Out," 2010) and Stephen Campbell Moore (The Bank Job," 2008). Directed by Julian Farino ("Girl/Haji") with a screenplay by Joe Barton ("The Lazarus Project") and David Guggenheim, "The Union" is produced by producers Wahlberg, Stephen Levinson and Jeff G. Waxman ("Snake Eyes," 2021); executive producer Jennifer Madeloff ("Concrete Cowboy," 2020); associate producer Alex Oakley ("Charlie's Angels," 2019); and post production producer Michael Solinger ("The Brothers Grimm," 2005).

"Worst Ex Ever"

Netflix expands Blumhouse's "Worst Roommate Ever" into a franchise with the spinoff "Worst Ex Ever" when it premieres Wednesday, Aug. 14, on the streamer. This time, the team behind the popular docuseries explores another universal experience — that of the "bad ex." Through testimonials, bodycam footage and animated reenactments, viewers witness shocking and horrifying stories of betrayal, violence and deceit that are at the center of monstrous past relationships. From Blumhouse Television and ITV America, "Worst Ex Ever" is produced by executive producers Jason Blum ("Get Out," 2017), Chris McCumber ("Totally Killer," 2023), Gretchen Palek ("Chefs vs. Wild"), Jordana Hochman ("Queer Eye") and Cynthia Childs ("The Real L Word"). Moreover, Childs also serves as the director for the series.

"Jackpot!" (2024)

What would you do to be a billionaire? The fight for the prize kicks off Thursday, Aug. 15, on Prime Video, when the new action comedy film "Jackpot!" makes its debut. Set in the near future, the "Jackpot!" universe centers around a lottery that's recently been established in California. While the winner has the opportunity to walk away with a multibillion-dollar jackpot, there's one mammoth condition: anyone who can kill the person with the winning ticket before sundown can claim the prize for their own. Having recently moved to Los Angeles, Katie Kim (Awkwafina, "Awkwafina is Nora from Queens") mistakenly finds herself with the winning ticket. Desperate to survive the ruthless horde of would-be jackpot killers, Katie reluctantly teams up with Noel Cassidy (John Cena, "Ricky Stanicky," 2024), an amateur lottery protection agent, who will do everything in his power to keep her alive in exchange for a portion of her prize money. However, Louis Lewis (Simu Liu, "Shang-Chi and the Legend of the Ten Rings," 2021), Noel's rival, is hot on their tail and prepared to do whatever it takes to claim the prize for himself. Directed by Paul Feig ("Freaks and Geeks"), "Jackpot!" is written by Rob Yescombe ("Outside the Wire," 2021). The cast is rounded out by Ayden Mayeri ("I Love That for You"), Donald Elise Watkins ("Fly Me to the Moon," 2024), Sam Asghari ("Lioness"), Murray Hill ("Somebody Somewhere"), Seann William Scott ("Welcome to Flatch"), Dolly de Leon ("Triangle of Sadness," 2022) and Colson "Machine Gun Kelly" Baker ("Bupkis").

"Paddington" (2014)

The film that first brought this beloved bear to the big screen, "Paddington" comes to Prime Video this Thursday, Aug. 15. When Paddington (voiced by Ben Whishaw, "Skyfall," 2012) — a polite, anthropomorphic bear — makes the decision to migrate from the jungles of Peru to the bustling streets of London, he finds himself almost immediately lost, stuck in a local train station. Lucky for Paddington, he is found by the kindly Brown family, who agrees to care for Paddington and help him escape the grasp of a taxidermist, Millicent (Nicole Kidman, Moulin Rouge!," 2001), who wants to add the special bear to her collection. Written and directed by Paul King ("Wonka," 2023), "Paddington" features a talented cast of actors that includes Hugh Bonneville ("Downton Abbey"), Sally Hawkins ("The Shape of Water," 2017), Julie Walters ("Mamma Mia!," 2008), Matt Lucas ("Bridesmaids," 2011), Tim Downie ("Outlander"), Jim Broadbent ("Hot Fuzz," 2007), Madeleine Harris ("The Legend of Tarzan," 2016), Samuel Joslin ("The Impossible," 2012) and Peter Capaldi ("Doctor Who"), among many others.

"Night Swim" (2024)

Acting as writer-director Bryce McGuire's ("Every House is Haunted," 2023) directorial debut, the demonic horror film, "Night Swim," will be available to stream on Prime Video as of Tuesday, Aug. 13. In this chilling tale, an unsuspecting family, the Wallers — including father Ray (Wyatt Russell, "Monarch: Legacy of Monsters"), mom Eve (Kerry Condon, "The Banshees of Inisherin," 2022), and children Izzy (Amélie Hoeferle, "The Hunger Games: The Ballad of Songbirds and Snakes," 2023) and Elliot (Gavin Warren, "The Man in the White Van," 2023) — moves into a house with a devilish, malevolent secret kept in the depths of their in-ground pool. After leaving his baseball career behind due to an injury, Ray begins to use the pool daily, hearing that it might help with his condition. While it does help Ray's injury, the family quickly begins to notice that their patriarch is less and less like himself, raising questions about the self-sustaining body of water in the backyard. "Night Swim" also stars Jodi Long ("The Hot Chick," 2002), Nancy Lenehan ("Catch Me If You Can," 2002) and Eddie Martinez ("The Sinner").

Season 4 of 'Alex vs America' has some epic brawls to come

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

It's hard not to feud in the kitchen. But for Alex, that's all part of the job. Season 4 of "Alex vs America" has been serving up some delicious dishes and dastardly duels, and now the brawls have Alex boiling over in an all-new episode airing Sunday, Aug. 11, on Food Network.

Hosted by Eric Adjepong ("Beachside Brawl") and starring lead chef Alex Guarnaschelli ("Ciao House") as the series' steadfast competitor, "Alex vs America" follows Guarnaschelli, known as one of the most accomplished competition chefs in America, as she faces chefs from across the country, preparing dishes for blind taste tests made for some of Food Network's favorite judges.

"Each chef hails from a different state," the network explains, "but they all share the same culinary specialty and drive to beat Alex for ultimate bragging rights and $15,000."

So far this season, Alex has faced fruit fanatics, frozen dessert connoisseurs and some top-notch chefs from her home state, New York. So far, her competition has been strong, and her guest judges — including Leah Cohen ("The Great American Recipe"), Duff Goldman ("Duff Takes The Cake") and Lee Anne Wong ("Rocco's Dinner Party") — have been opinionated, but Alex can't take off the white (chef) hat just yet.

Alex Guarnaschelli in "Alex vs. America"

This week, Alex's focus is pulled towards foreign flavors, as Adjepong invites coastal chefs from California, Texas and New York to take part in a battle of Mediterranean specialties.

According to a description shared by Food Network, "these experts take their shot at blowing Alex out of the water as they hope their ingredient choices will put them in favor with judges Gabriele Bertaccini ['Wildcard Kitchen'] and Einat Admony ['Tournament of Champions']," leading to some dishes that truly makes the brine shine.

While plenty is still to come, Alex will later compete against her fiercest rivals in a less-than-friendly competition, as her fellow Iron Chefs — Michael Symon ("Symon's Dinners Cooking Out"), Stephanie Izard ("Guy's Grocery Games: All-Star Invitational") and Jose Garces ("Iron Chef") — are called in as Adjepong's secret weapon during an epic season finale. What takes place, Food Network promises, is "an intense and emotional two-round battle for supremacy," which will be judged by even more of Alex's "Iron Chef" comrades: Simon Majumdar ("Extreme Chef") and Geoffrey Zakarian ("The Great American Foodathon").

Prepare to get "salty" if your favorite loses during the latest episode of "Alex vs America," airing Sunday, Aug. 11, on Food Network.

Furiosa: A Mad Max Saga
Set decades after the apocalypse but prior to the events of "Fury Road," Australia is a barren wasteland. The Green Place of Many Mothers is one of the few remaining regions with access to food and fresh water. When raiders discover the Green Place, Furiosa, as a child, attempts to sabotage their bikes but is captured as a prize for their leader, Dementus (Hemsworth) of the Biker Horde. The raiders are killed before they can reveal the location of the Green Place, but not before she is turned over to Dementus and adopted by him in hopes she will lead him to the Green Place. Eventually, she is traded to Immortan Joe (Hulme) in exchange for more resources for the Biker Horde. Disguising herself as a boy, Furiosa escapes confinement and works her way up the ranks of Joe's men in order to obtain the resources she needs to return to the Green Place.
Director: George Miller. Stars: Anya Taylor-Joy, Chris Hemsworth, Tom Burke, Lachy Hulme, John Howard, Angus Sampson, Nathan Jones, Josh Helman, Charlee Fraser, Elsa Pataky, David Collins, Clarence Ryan, Quaden Bayles, Lee Perry, Daniel Webber, Jacob Tomuri. 2024. 148 min. Action.

If
Twelve-year-old Bea (Fleming) moves into her grandmother's (Shaw) New York City apartment while her father (Krasinski) awaits heart surgery. One day, Bea sees a strange creature and discovers it lives in her grandmother's building. Tracking it down, she meets its caretaker, Cal (Reynolds), along with a plethora of other unique creatures. The creatures are revealed to be IFs, imaginary friends whom Cal is responsible for placing with new children once their original children have grown up. Lonely and struggling with the circumstances surrounding her father's health, Bea decides to aid Cal.
Director: John Krasinski. Stars: Cailey Fleming, Ryan Reynolds, John Krasinski, Fiona Shaw, Alan Kim, Bobby Moynihan, Catharine Daddario, Phoebe Waller-Bridge, Louis Gossett Jr., Steve Carell, Awkwafina, Emily Blunt, George Clooney, Bradley Cooper, Matt Damon, Bill Hader, Richard Jenkins, Keegan-Michael Key, Blake Lively, Sam Rockwell, Maya Rudolph, Amy Schumer, Jon Stewart. 2024. 104 min. Fantasy Comedy.

June Zero
In the early 1960s, Adolf Eichmann is put on trial for war crimes committed during World War II. Haim (Levi) is Eichmann's Moroccan guard during the trial, sentencing and leading up to his execution. Micha (Hagi) is an investigator for the prosecution in Eichmann's trial. Lastly, 13-year-old David (Ovadia) is a Libyan immigrant who is sent to work at a factory that manufactures industrial ovens, that has been contracted to build a one-off crematorium to dispose of Eichmann's body. Intertwining the tales of these three individuals, the impact of Eichmann's execution on the Jewish community is given profoundly illuminating details.
Director: Jake Paltrow. Stars: Tzahi Grad, Joy Rieger, Koby Aderet, Adam Gabay, Tom Hagi, Assi Itzhaki, Rotem Keinan, Yoav Levi, Noam Ovadia, Ami Smolartchik. 2022. 105 min. Drama.

Tuesday Best Bets

Steve Harvey is featured in "Judge Steve Harvey"

America's Got Talent

(5) 8:00 PM

This week, eleven acts will take to the stage live as America votes for their favorite acts to advance to the semi-finals. For the first time in the show's history, a live show "golden buzzer" will be used to send one act directly to the upcoming finals.

100 Day Hotel Challenge

HGTV 8:00 PM

There's a little competitiveness in the best of marriages. To prove they've still got it, Brian and Mika go head-to-head in this series premiere. Rather than their traditional home renovations, they take on two dated hotels on the Carolina coast.

Judge Steve Harvey

(22) 9:00 PM

Here, common sense reigns supreme. From small claims to big disputes, television icon Steve Harvey brings forth his unique perspective and signature humor to settle cases between a wide variety of characters, assisted by real-life bailiff Nancy Price.

A Boston (R)evolution

(33) (57) 10:00 PM

This brand-new, feature-length documentary explores the gender politics prevalent in Boston's historic 2021 mayoral race, in which a Black woman became the first to break a 200-year-strong pattern of white male mayors being elected into the role.

Wednesday Best Bets

Gordon Ramsay, Aarón Sánchez and Joe Bastianich in "MasterChef"

Big Brother

③ 8:00 PM

Julie Chen Moonves knows: you keep your friends close and your enemies closer. The show's intrepid host watches on as the remaining houseguests scramble for the power of veto, with no one able to sleep soundly so long as eviction remains on the table.

MasterChef

⑫ ㊹ 8:00 PM

The generations continue to go at it as the remaining cooks now get to work twice as hard, thanks to remaining episodes being two-hours long. This week, the chefs must utilize their baking skills as they're asked to make celebratory birthday cakes.

Who Wants to Be a Millionaire

㉒ 8:00 PM

Jim's back at the podium and ready to go. Jimmy Kimmel has left his talk show desk behind, now embracing his role as questioner in this revamped game show, in which celebrity contestants win money for charity by answering tough trivia questions.

Good Bones

HGTV 9:00 PM

Many believe it was Nietzsche who said that buying a lake house is the only thing that makes life worth living. So, Mina goes all in with a waterfront fixer-upper that will give her the work/life balance she desperately craves. But can it really do that?

"Solar Opposites" - Season 5

Home is where the pupa is. Season 5 of the oddball animated comedy "Solar Opposites" premieres Monday, Aug. 12, on Hulu. From executive producers Mike McMahan ("Rick and Morty") and Josh Bycel ("Psych"), "Solar Opposites" follows a team of aliens from the planet Shlorp as they make the most of their new lives after crash landing in middle America. Armed with a pupa (first-time voice actor Sagan McMahan) that should eventually terraform Earth into the new planet Shlorp, aliens Korvo (Dan Stevens, "Downton Abbey"), Terry (Thomas Middleditch, "B Positive"), Yumyulack (Sean Giambrone, "The Goldbergs") and Jesse (Mary Mack, "Twin Cities," 2017) have stayed split on whether Earth is awful or amazing. While they enjoy junk food, TV and other fun activities, they are repulsed by humanity's pollution, consumerism and frailty as a race. Heading into the new season, the Solar Opposites are focused on family values now that Terry and Corvo are married. From honeymooning to getting settled into their new life, the series follows their seemingly ordinary — but often outrageous — adventures.

"Immaculate" (2024)

Nothing is quite what it seems on the surface of the convent at the center of "Immaculate," which becomes available to stream Thursday, Aug. 15, on Hulu. After surviving drowning in a frozen lake at an early age, Cecillia (Sydney Sweeney, "Euphoria") turns to the life of devout faith. Leading up to her final vows to become a nun, Cecillia is invited to an illustrious Catholic convent in the Italian countryside by Father Sal Tedeschi (Álvaro Morte, "The Wheel of Time"). Soon after arriving, Cecillia starts to discover weird occurrences that hint at dark and horrifying secrets. Things get even weirder when she becomes pregnant out of nowhere and the other nuns start treating her like the second coming of the Virgin Mary. Directed by Michael Mohan ("The Yoyeurs," 2021) and written by Andrew Lobel ("Mysteries Unknown"), "Immaculate" also stars Simona Tabasco ("The White Lotus"), Benedetta Porcaroli ("Perfect Strangers," 2016), Giorgio Colangeli ("There's Still Tomorrow," 2023), Dora Romano ("Perfume: The Story of a Murderer," 2006), Giampiero Judica ("All the Money in the World," 2017), Betty Pedrazzi ("The Hand of God," 2021), Giuseppe Lo Piccolo ("Rainbow: A Private Affair," 2017), Cristina Chinaglia ("The Champion," 2019), Niccolò Senni ("Mission Impossible III," 2006), Viviane Florentine Nicolai ("The Dinner," 2014), Marisa Regina ("America Latina," 2021), Tiziano Ferracci ("One of the Family," 2018) and newcomers Cinzia Fantauzzi, Giulia Heathfield Di Renzi, Isabel Desantis and Laura Camassa.

"The Woman King" (2022)

Catch the multiple award-winning historical epic "The Woman King" when it becomes available to stream Tuesday, Aug. 13, on Hulu. Based on true events, the film follows the Agojie, an all-female warrior unit entrusted with protecting the West African kingdom of Dahomey during the 17th to 19th centuries, as they fend off foreign invaders in 1823. At the center of the story is the leader of the unit, Gen. Nanisca (Viola Davis, "The Help," 2011). In order to properly defend the kingdom, Nanisca trains the next generation of female warriors, including the strong-willed Nawi (Thuso Mbedu, "Castlevania: Nocturne"). As Nanisca and Nawi become closer as comrades, they learn of a secret that connects them. Directed by Gina Prince-Bythewood ("The Old Guard," 2020) and written by Maria Bello ("A History of Violence," 2005) and Dana Stevens ("Fatherhood," 2021), "The Woman King" also stars Lashana Lynch ("No Time to Die," 2021), Sheila Atim ("Pinocchio," 2022), John Boyega ("Star Wars: Episode VII - The Force Awakens," 2015), Jordan Bolger ("Tom & Jerry," 2021), Hero Fiennes Tiffin ("After," 2019), Jimmy Odukoya ("Mamba's Diamond," 2021), Masali Baduza ("Noughts + Crosses"), Jayme Lawson ("The Batman," 2022), Adrienne Warren ("Rustin," 2023), Chioma Antoinette Umeala ("One Piece"), Shaina West ("Black Widow," 2021), Sivuyile Ngesi ("Invictus," 2009), Riaan Visman ("Dis Koue Kos, Skat," 2016), Seputla Sebogodi ("The River") and Angélique Kidjo ("The CEO," 2016) and newcomer Siyamthanda Makakane.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Does Gordon Ramsay have a restaurant in the Hell's Kitchen area of New York or was the show just named "Hell's Kitchen" because it's clever?

A: The show title "Hell's Kitchen" has little to do with the neighborhood, other than being the source of the pun.

Celebrity chef Gordon Ramsay was still mostly unknown in the U.S. when he launched the first iteration of "Hell's Kitchen," the cooking-competition show that debuted first on Britain's ITV network in 2004. The American version followed in 2005.

His first American restaurant, Gordon Ramsay at The London, was indeed in New York City, and was just a few blocks east of the Hell's Kitchen neighborhood, but it didn't open until 2006 — two years after he started using the name "Hell's Kitchen."

Rather, it seems Ramsay went with the name because it reflects both the heat that all commercial kitchens are known for, as well as his famously fiery temper.

That hotheadedness pretty quickly became his whole thing (see also his later British TV series "The F Word" — the joke being that the word in question is "food," even though he also frequently shouts the profane one at contestants).

Notably, his first Hell's Kitchen-branded restaurant was also in the U.S., but in Las Vegas, not New York.

Q: Is there any chance of "So Help Me Todd" coming back to TV? What's Marcia Gay Harden doing next?

A: You can never say never in showbiz, but it's at least unlikely at this point that "So Help Me Todd" will be revived. As for its star, Marcia Gay Harden (who plays Margaret, the "me" referred to in the title), she's not quite over it yet, but she'll surely land on her very talented feet once she's ready.

A few days after "So Help Me Todd" was cancelled by CBS midway through its second season, Harden shared a petition on her official Instagram account calling for another network to swoop in and rescue it. She, like everyone else angry at the cancellation, is particularly aggrieved that the show ends on a cliffhanger.

"Make your voices heard, because we think you deserve to have a Season 3. We think we deserve to have a Season 3, to bring this story to a wonderful culmination."

Sadly, even she seemed to give up hope a little in the weeks that followed. On May 16, the day of the show's finale, she simply said, "Happy trails, until we meet again" — no mention of the petition.

The petition itself followed a similar arc: it started out very strong in gathering signatures but seems to have lost momentum.

As for Harden's next move, she hasn't announced it yet — unless you count "continuing to collect awards" as a next move. She will receive the North Fork TV Festival's Canopy Award in a few weeks for her "incomparable body of work," meaning it's not specifically "Todd"-related.

After that, she'll almost certainly be snapped up by another show in need of some experience, glamour and gravitas, much like what she did for her other recent role — a supporting spot on the Apple TV+ drama "The Morning Show."

Q: Why haven't I seen Ed Westwick anywhere since "Gossip Girl"?

A: The short answer to your question is, put simply: you're not part of his target market.

He may have done a believable American growl as Chuck Bass in CW's "Gossip Girl," the late-2000s melodrama about spoiled Manhattan teens, but Ed Westwick is actually English.

He was part of an ensemble of young, unproven actors around whom the show was built. Some of those actors went on to more fame in the U.S. — such as Penn Badgley (now of Netflix's buzzy drama "You") and Blake Lively (who transitioned to a pretty solid film career, including the title role in 2015's "The Age of Adaline" and the 2016 horror hit "The Shallows").

Westwick has instead settled into a lower-key career split between the U.S. and his homeland. But most of the success happened over there.

That includes shows such as "White Gold," a period comedy about unethical window salesmen in the early 1980s, and a role on the high-profile (but ultimately short-lived) sitcom reboot of the big-screen crime-comedy "Snatch."

Meanwhile, over here, his biggest non-"Gossip" role was a smallish one in the 2011 biopic "J. Edgar."

He's setting his sights even further afield in his next project. He has a central role in the upcoming "Sandokan," a lavish, pirate-themed miniseries that will debut in Italy before being distributed internationally.
