Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

The candidates out there on both sides for the vice president are busy prepping for their big showdown next Tuesday night [Oct. 1] and we will be live ... right after the debate. ... Here's the nice thing: you won't even have to change the channel clicker because the debate is being hosted by CBS, which is why the moderators this year are "Tracker" and the stopwatch from "60 Minutes."

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

A new poll found that 64% of people want to see another debate between Kamala Harris and Donald Trump, while the other 36% are Donald Trump.

Some news from Washington today [Sept. 24]. The CEO of the company that makes Ozempic testified before Congress, and he was grilled over the drug's high price. They were gonna roast him, but grilling is healthier.

Tonight [Sept. 25] was the second episode of "The Golden Bachelorette." ... After the first episode, six men were sent home. Joan eliminated four of them and time took care of the other two.

This morning [Sept. 26], our mayor, Eric Adams, became the first sitting New York City mayor to be indicted. Mayor Adams is accused of bribery, fraud and corruption. It's always fun when the city mimics the exact plot of "The Batman" movie.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

[Donald Trump's] also been yelling at Jewish voters saying if he loses the election, they will be to blame. ... Jewish voters don't need Donald Trump to guilt them for the decisions they make. That's what Jewish mothers are for.

Today [Sept. 26] in Hollywood, it felt like Gotham City. We had a real BAM! ZAP! POW! of an event today ... as Batman became the first superhero to get a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame. ... Batman isn't the first cartoon character to be honored on the Walk of Fame. Others include Bugs Bunny, Mickey Mouse and Donald Trump.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

It turns out Eric Adams was right. Crime is way up in New York City. New York Mayor Eric Adams was indicted yesterday [Sept. 25] on federal criminal charges. And that distant laughter you hear is coming from every rat in New York City. [As the rats] "You thought you was going to take us out? Now what, wise guy?"

After CNN published a report last week [Sept. 15-21] about Republican North Carolina Lt. Gov. Mark Robinson's history of posting inflammatory comments on a porn site's message board, several members of Robinson's staff are reportedly planning to resign, and Robinson is either really sad or those tissues are for something else.

'What We Do in the Shadows' returns for a final fang-filled season

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Break out the creepy paper, because everyone's favorite immortal roommates ignore one last spin of the household chore chart as the Emmy-winning mockumentary sitcom "What We Do in the Shadows" nears its end. The show's sixth and final season premiere airs Monday, Oct. 21, on FX.

Vampires Nandor the Relentless (Kayvan Novak, "Cruella," 2021), Laszlo Cravensworth (Matt Berry, "Toast of London"), Nadja of Antipaxos (Natasia Demetriou, "Stath Lets Flats"), day-walker Colin Robinson (Mark Proksch, "The Office") and their human familiar-turned-vampire-turned-human friend Guillermo de la Cruz (Harvey Guillén, "Zoey's Extraordinary Playlist") are back to cause chaos on New York's Staten Island. There to lend a hand, as always, is The Guide, portrayed by Kristen Schaal ("The Last Man on Earth").

For five seasons, the vampires and their loyal familiar have learned lessons and changed forms while sharing a decrepit home just across the bay from New York City. Together they have encountered rivals, whether they are supernatural — like the coven of witches who run a Brooklyn shop — or a more human evil, such as the bureaucratic local city council. With so many lifetimes' worth of lived experiences between them, the roommates always manage to get out of danger alive — or undead — but oftentimes just barely.

This season, all of the housemates are questioning the direction of their lives. The vampires reflect on half a century spent not accomplishing much after their former roommate reappears after a 50-year-long nap, while Guillermo considers who he is if he isn't a vampire or a familiar devoted to his master any longer.

What is waiting out there for the members of Staten Island's eeriest household with a new zest for life? In the upcoming episodes, everyone joins the workforce and travels to New Hampshire, the vampires attend a human dinner party, throw a party for the Baron, conjure a demon and more.

The "What We Do in the Shadows" gang hit San Diego Comic-Con in July, and writer and executive producer Paul Simms ("English Teacher") revealed that the upcoming season includes some cameos from "the people that we just loved and thought were super funny," just as past seasons have.

One of those cameos is Michael Patrick O'Brien, creator of the NBC sitcom "A.P. Bio," who you may have seen in the 2019 comedy "Booksmart." O'Brien joins the cast as Jerry, the vampires' beloved former roommate. While they all remember loving Jerry, they have forgotten over the years that they forgot to wake him in 1976 when he laid down for what was meant to be a quick rest.

At the Comic-Con panel, Simms also shared how the creative team behind the show put together the final season. "We wanted to make a really funny season that was not too sentimental or trying to tie up too many loose threads," Simms said, noting that they tried to avoid a formulaic, tidy ending to the series.

Some interpersonal conflicts in the upcoming season promise to keep that sentimentality at bay. Following the tumultuous events of last season, Guillermo has spent some time living away from the vampires' house. After over a decade of dutifully serving Nandor under the assumption that he would turn him one day soon, Guillermo reached a breaking point and upset the natural order by bribing another vampire to transform him into an immortal beast.

Things did not go to plan in any respect, and in last season's finale, Guillermo had a change of heart after realizing he did not have what it takes to kill humans in order to live as a vampire and chose to return to human form. Now, without his presence in the house, Nandor may have to admit that he needs Guillermo around to help him conquer new territories, get involved in the neighborhood or tackle any other projects this season.

Meanwhile, there may be trouble in paradise for the house's lovebirds, Laszlo and Nadja. As Laszlo jumps back into a long-abandoned project, Nadja's new passion for humans and their mundane customs leads her in a different direction from her husband this season.

While Nadja explores office culture for the first time this season, another roommate has long thrived off the dynamics of corporate environments and is hunting for something a bit different. You'll be familiar with someone like energy vampire Colin Robinson if you have ever found yourself on the receiving end of a world record-worthy dull conversation partner in an unending chat. Colin feeds off the life drained out of people and vampires alike during these conversations, resorting to internet trolling at times to satisfy him.

One thing has always eluded Colin, however, and he has lived lifetimes without making a true friend. Though he is close with Laszlo, who recently raised him like a father as he underwent an unexpected rebirth, Colin is looking to befriend one person outside the house this season, working against his nature to avoid boring them into a coma.

Don't miss a spooky new season of "What We Do in the Shadows," premiering Monday, Oct. 21, on FX.

Comedic actor Billy Crystal executive produces, stars in thriller series 'Before'

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Actor and filmmaker Billy Crystal is hardly new on the scene. Made famous by comedy-laced genre films such as "This Is Spinal Tap" (1984), "The Princess Bride" (1987) and "When Harry Met Sally..." (1989), Crystal has been a mainstay of silver-screen laughs since the 1980s. Now, after six Primetime Emmy wins, one Tony and the 2022 Critics Choice Lifetime Achievement Award, Crystal is exploring a new avenue in his career: the long-format thriller.

Premiering its first two episodes Friday, Oct. 25, on Apple TV+, "Before" stars Crystal as Eli Adler, a child psychologist grieving the sudden and tragic death of his wife. While managing his own sorrows, Eli tends to his patients' needs; in particular, those of a "troubled young boy" named Noah, played by Jacobi Jupe ("Britannia"), "who seems to have a haunting connection to Eli's past" (per Apple TV+).

"As Eli attempts to help Noah," the official series description continues, "their mysterious bond deepens."

While little is known regarding specific plot details at the time of writing, first-look images for the series show plenty of concerned expressions, a clear eagerness for answers and a pervasive tension with respect to character body language. A departure from happy-go-lucky Crystal's usual roles, for sure, but per a red carpet interview at the Emmys last month, Apple's new series is a welcome change for the actor, who "never thought [he'd] be acting in" a production such as "Before."

"It's a show that I developed with Eric Roth ["The Curious Case of Benjamin Button," 2008], who is an Oscar-winning screenwriter, and a brilliant writer named Sarah Thorp ["The Bounty Hunter," 2010]," Crystal told a Hollywood Reporter interviewer on the Emmys red carpet. "It's dark and it's strange and it's wonderful."

"At this age, and at this point in my career," Crystal concluded, "to be able to grow and stretch and do something new is very exciting."

Roth, too, as mentioned by Crystal, is a big name in the industry. Best known for his Academy Award-winning screenplay, the 1994 Tom Hanks classic "Forrest Gump," Roth has been nominated for six more Oscars, including Best Writing for "The Insider" (1999) and "Munich" (2005); Best Adapted Screenplay for both "A Star Is Born" (2018) and "Dune: Part One" (2021); and Best Motion Picture of the Year for Netflix and director David Fincher's ("Se7en," 1995) 2020 black-and-white showbiz epic "Mank."

But "Before's" talent is not limited to Crystal and Roth alone. Other familiar faces appearing throughout the series are those of Oscar nominee Rosie Perez ("Your Honour") as Denise and Emmy and Tony winner Judith Light ("Who's the Boss?") as Eli's late wife, Lynn. Ava Lalezaradeh ("In the Garden of Tulips," 2023), Maria Dizzia ("Martha Marcy May Marlene," 2011), Hope Davis ("Asteroid City," 2023), Jorie Blake Rosen ("Quarentwinned"), Will Hochman ("Blue Bloods") and new talent Rebecca Ruane also star.

"Before" is billed as a psychological thriller, although some publications, such as BBC and People.com, speculate that it may also take "a walk on the supernatural side." What, exactly, that comment means in the context of the series, however, remains to be seen. What viewers can be pretty sure of, however, is that the darkness to which Crystal alluded on the red carpet is partially informed by the grey weather provided by its filming location.

Filmed on location between Moonachie, Hoboken, Paterson and Independence Township in New Jersey, production had begun by 2023, only to cease shortly thereafter due to the Writers Guild of America strike.

When filming finally resumed in December of that year, the remainder of the series was shot over the four months that followed, with the official wrap occurring in March 2024.

Of the experience, Paterson Mayor Andre Sayegh shared the city's relationship with Hollywood as of late, saying, "What we often get from individuals in the industry is that Paterson is very film-friendly. ... I made it a point that we would partner with the New Jersey film commission ... and that we were open for filming in the city."

"I was mightily impressed meeting him [Crystal] in person," Sayegh added. "I've seen so many of his movies."

Thorp serves as "Before's" showrunner, with Howie Miller ("Nellyville") and Joseph Sousa ("Chicago Med") providing additional writing support.

Series direction is divided among experienced film and TV directors David Petrarca ("Warrior"), Emmanuel Osei-Kuffour ("Black Box," 2020), Barry Levinson ("Rain Man," 1988), Zetna Fuentes ("How to Get Away with Murder"), pilot director Adam Bernstein ("Breaking Bad") and producing director Jet Wilkinson ("The Chi") — the latter three of whom also serve as co-executive producers alongside Crystal, Roth and Thorp.

Don't miss the double-episode premiere of the series BBC Online is calling "[one] of the best TV show to watch this October." Consisting of 10 hour-long episodes (the first three of which are rumored to be titled "The Imposter," "The Scientist" and "The Liar," respectively), "Before" begins Friday, Oct. 25, on Apple TV+.

Season 3 of '1000-lb Best Friends' sees tensions running high

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Friendship follies: Experience the highs and lows of friendship when Vanessa, Meghan, Tina and Ashley return for Season 3 of "1000-lb Best Friends," starting Tuesday, Oct. 22, on TLC.

When last season concluded, the ladies were in Georgia to celebrate Meghan's upcoming nuptials. While it was supposed to be a cheery event for all involved, tensions were high as these once best friends began experiencing resentment and jealousy of each other. Since then, according to TLC, the problems between Vanessa, Meghan and Ashley have only grown.

In a synopsis for the upcoming season, the network shares that "since viewers last saw them, a growing rift threatens their 30-plus-year relationship. Meghan and Ashley feel that Vanessa's continued celebration of her weight loss has turned into gloating, while Vanessa believes her friends are jealous of her success."

After completing a rigorous trip to the Fit Farm in Season 2 — and plenty of hard work back at home — Vanessa now waits to hear if she will be approved for skin removal surgery, which would be a transformative step following her recent weight loss. While her relationship with the others is strained, Vanessa relies on her team of health-care professionals to encourage her through the process.

It's not always easy, however, as "irreconcilable differences are brought to light in Dr. Procter's bariatric support group," while "some of his patients quickly find themselves caught up in the middle of their messy relationships" (per TLC).

Tina, meanwhile, "begins to second-guess her decision when her food addiction derails her progress" (TLC).

Tina, Scott, Meghan, Vanessa and Ashley in "1000-lb Best Friends"

While drama brews amongst old friends, some new faces will also be introduced: "Scott, who comes to Dr. Procter weighing 596 pounds and faces an almost insurmountable challenge to lose enough weight for surgery approval" (TLC).

As Season 3 boasts plenty of changes — and not just for the ladies — fans of the show are welcome to take an inside look at "1000-lb Best Friends," with its companion series, "1000-lb Best Friends: Inside the Episode." New episodes air weekly on Max, discovery+ and TLCGo, joining the cast as they "spill the tea" and discuss the biggest, most shocking and most exciting moments from the season.

From executive producers Tom Cappello ("1000-lb Sisters"), Alana Goldstein ("Family by the Ton"), Vasoula Plakas ("90 Day Fiancé: The Other Way") and Keely Walker Muse ("Bad Hair Day"), "1000-lb Best Friends" returns Tuesday, Oct. 22, on TLC.

Glory Days: Follow "The Boss" down a long and winding road as the eponymous singer shares his story in "Road Diary: Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band," an all-new documentary premiering Friday, Oct. 25, on Hulu and Disney+.

Narrated by Bruce Springsteen himself — the singer of classic hits such as "Born to Run," "Dancing in the Dark" and "Hungry Heart" — and directed by Springsteen's longtime collaborator, award-winning filmmaker Thom Zimny ("The Gift: The Journey of Johnny Cash," 2019), this walk down memory lane offers an "evocative look at the band's career" (per Disney), which has been playing together since 1972.

"Twenty Grammy Awards, record-setting concerts, albums charting in the Top 5 in each of the last six decades — as a musician, Bruce Springsteen has conquered just about every mountain there is to climb. From that high vantage point, an artist gains a unique perspective," shares a description of the film, given by the Toronto International Film Festival ahead of the film's premiere at TIFF 2024.

The description continues: "That's what Springsteen brings to 'Road Diary': an evocative look back at the path he and his band have blazed since the '70s, and a look forward to what lies on the horizon. Mortality, yes, but also more of the passion, energy and grit they've always brought to touring, as they prepare to hit the road one more time."

According to Disney, the project offers the "most in-depth look ever at the creation of their legendary live performances — sharing fly-on-the-wall footage of band rehearsals and special moments backstage — as well as hearing directly from Springsteen on the topic." Additionally, fans of the raspy-voiced crooner will be treated to high-definition footage from the current Springsteen & E Street Band 2024 World Tour — shared for the first time ever — as the documentary follows the band through rehearsals and right onto the stage.

Delving into the "singular alchemy that produced such a tight-knit and enduring group" (Disney), "Road Diary: Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band" was produced by Springsteen, Zimny, Jon Landau ("Springsteen on Broadway," 2018), Adrienne Gerard ("Bruce Springsteen's Letter to You," 2020) and Sean Stuart — who produced Springsteen music videos including "Do I Love You (Indeed I Do)" and "Don't Play That Song."

The documentary premieres Friday, Oct. 25, on Hulu and Disney+.

"Simone Biles Rising Part 2"

Get an inside look at the hard work and dedication that led to celebrated Olympian Simone Biles' triumphant comeback when Part 2 of the docuseries "Simone Biles Rising" debuts Friday, Oct. 25, on Netflix. After her incredible debut at the Olympics in 2016, Simone Biles instantly became a household name throughout America. Following that, Biles went on to become one of the most decorated gymnasts in history. Despite her unbelievable accomplishments — especially at such a young age — Biles shocked the world by withdrawing from the 2020 Olympic Games in Tokyo, despite being the clear frontrunner. While the withdrawal was best for Biles' struggling mental health, it led to a massive online backlash. Four years — and a much-needed hiatus — later, Biles returned to world athletics' biggest stage for the Paris 2024 Olympic Games, with hopes of reclaiming her throne. The final two installments of this four-part series see the U.S. women's Olympic gymnastics team compete in Paris, with exclusive footage from the 2024 team trials, the road to the games, the main competition and more. of Sports and the Olympic Channel, the series is directed by Katie Walsh ("Marvel's Hero Project") and executive produced by Gotham Chopra ("Tom vs. Time"), Ameeth Sankaran ("Man in the Arena"), Giselle Parets ("The Amazing Race") and Janey Miller ("Simone vs Herself"). The documentary also features appearances from Simone's family; her NFL player husband, Jonathan Owens; past and present teammates Aly Raisman, Jordan Chiles and Sunisa Lee; and more.

Nadia Caterina Munno shines in 'The Pasta Queen'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

From Hello Sunshine and Candle Media, the mouth-watering new culinary travel series "The Pasta Queen" premieres Thursday, Oct. 24, on Prime Video.

No, the name's not for show. As a descendant of an Italian pasta-making dynasty, host Nadia Caterina Munno ("In a Silent Way," 2020) knows the carbo-loaded meal better than most. With a gift for making everything from spaghetti, to farfalle, to ditalini, Munno truly has proved herself as a part of the cuisine's "royal family," so to speak, with knowledge that dates back to the 1800s.

After conquering the kitchen, Munno went on to become a New York Times and Wall Street Journal bestselling cookbook author, eager to share her love for Italian cuisine far and wide. She soon made appearances on "Today," "The Drew Barrymore Show," "Good Morning America" and more, reaching massive audiences with her impressive online following.

Now, with ample experience under her belt — and a 200-year-old stack of classic recipes ready to be shared — Munno hopes to spread the beauty of Italy, bringing long-time fans and foodies along as she travels through the country for inspiration, before using regional ingredients to handcraft authentic Italian dishes with us back at home.

"The series is a charming, comedic and insightful journey, and there is no one better to take us on this extraordinary adventure through beautiful Italy than Nadia," promised Sara Rea ("Meet Me in Rome," 2024), head of Unscripted Television for Hello Sunshine. "She is such a vibrant star who lights up the screen. We're so excited to team up with this true Pasta Queen and the team at Prime Video to bring viewers along to share in the joys of cooking and tradition."

Munno shared her own excitement regarding the series' debut, saying: "I'm proud to have worked with such amazing partners, Hello Sunshine and Prime Video, to bring this to life. Come on a journey with me into my home kitchen and across my beloved Italy to experience firsthand my just gorgeous world of authentic Italian food, family and culture."

With Munno also acting as an executive producer — alongside Rea, Cat Sullivan ("Nailed It!") and Reese Witherspoon ("The Morning Show") — "The Pasta Queen" makes its debut Thursday, Oct. 24, on Prime Video.

RELAX Riesling is America's favorite Riesling. A refreshing, crisp, authentically German Riesling. Slightly dry with an enticing fruity bouquet, it shows intense flavors of apples and peaches with a hint of citrus. Serve chilled.

Cabernet Sauvignon is a bright red color with a fragrant nose of primary red fruits and blackcurrants. Aromas of crushed blackberries with sweet mocha also fill the nose. Brimming with rich blackcurrant fruit and sour cherry flavors, the wine is mid-weight and displays a soft velvety finish.

“Carved” (2024)

Halloween tricks take on a whole new meaning in “Carved,” Hulu’s original new horror comedy film, when it premieres on the streamer Monday, Oct. 21. For most people, getting trapped in a historical reenactment village on Halloween night would be scary enough. But for the group of frantic survivors in “Carved,” that nightmare comes to life and is made worse when their group is relentlessly attacked by a “sentient and vengeful pumpkin” (per Hulu). Banding together, the rag-tag group must do everything they can to make it through the assault alive. Written for the screen by Cheryl Meyer (“Beyond Black Beauty”) and director Justin Harding, who also directed the original 2018 short of the same name, “Carved” stars Peyton Elizabeth Lee, Corey Fogelmanis (“Girl Meets World”), Wyatt Lindner (“Titans”), Carla Jimenez (“The Mick”), Sasha Mason (Novitiate, “2017”), Jonah Lees (“Sun Records”), DJ Qualls (“The Man in the High Castle”), Marc-Sully Saint-Fleur (“Home Economics”), Elvis Nolasco (“Godfather of Harlem”), Matty Cardarople (“Reservation Dogs”), Jackson Kelly (“Chucky”) and Chris Elliott (“Schitt’s Creek”).

“The Speedway Murders” (2023)

On Friday, Nov. 17, 1978, four employees — Ruth Sheldon, Jayne Friedt, Mark Flemmonds and Daniel Roy Davis — working the graveyard shift at the Speedway, Ind., Burger Chef went missing. Originally thought to be the four running off with cash from the restaurant’s safe, the case was soon determined to be a kidnapping and robbery before the four’s bodies were found in the nearby woods by the end of the weekend. Despite thousands of hours investigating the case, it remains unsolved to this day. Through re-enactments and interviews, “The Speedway Murders,” which comes to Hulu Thursday, Oct. 24, takes a deep dive into these unsolved murders to piece together a possible theory on what actually happened that fateful night in the Burger Chef. Written and directed by Adam Kamien and Luke Rynderman (“Relic,” 2020), the re-enactments star Essie Randles (“Apples Never Fall”), Joseph Zada (“Total Control”), Davida McKenzie (“Silent Night,” 2021), Nya Cofie (“The PM’s Daughter”), Murray Curtis (“Paper Cuts,” 2023), Cordell Horsell (“[pseudonym],” 2022), Audrey Vincent (“Embrace: Kids,” 2022) and Brodie Bowers (“The Inbetweeners 2,” 2014). Moreover, “The Speedway Murders” is produced by executive producer Ari Harrison (“Talk to Me,” 2022); associate producer Daniel Luzzader; archival producer Noah Weitzman (“Desus & Mero”); and producers Bonnie McBride (“Mercy Road,” 2023), Louise Nathanson (“Golda,” 2023), Lisa Scott (“Janet King”) and Anna Vincent (“I Am Mother,” 2019).

“The Beast Within” (2024)

The horror-thriller “The Beast Within” makes its streaming debut Friday, Oct. 25, on Hulu. The movie follows a 10-year-old girl by the name of Willow (Caoilinn Springall, “The Midnight Sky,” 2020). After multiple strange occurrences, Willow becomes curious of the reason why her family lives an isolated life in the English wilds. Growing sick of her parents, Noah (Kit Harington, “Game of Thrones”) and Imogen (Ashleigh Cummings, “Hounds of Love,” 2016), dismissal of her curiosity, Willow follows them during one of their secret late-night treks into the nearby forest. Upon following her parents, Willow witnesses Noah’s beastly transformation, which now ties Willow to her family’s dark ancestral secret. In addition to Springall, Harington and Cummings, the film also stars James Cosmo (“Braveheart,” 1995), Andrei Nova (“The Tattooist of Auschwitz”), Adam Basil (“Django”), Martina McClements (“There’s No Such Thing as Zombies,” 2020) and Ian Giles. Directed by Alexander J. Farrell (“Refugee,” 2018) and written by Farrell and Greer Ellison (“Butterfly Kisses,” 2017), “The Beast Within” is produced by Alex Chang (“A Woman at Night,” 2021), Jack Christian (“Nandor Fodor and the Talking Mongoose,” 2023), Ryan Hamilton (“Hotel Mumbai,” 2018), Merlin Merton (“How to Date Billy Walsh,” 2024), Martin Owen (“The Loneliest Boy in the World,” 2022), Evan Ross (“Ashlee+Evan”), Sebastian Street (“Tomorrow,” 2018) and Jordan Wagner (“Hypnotic,” 2023).

Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Whatever happened to the Prime Video series "Night Sky"? All I ever see is the first season.

A: Unfortunately for fans, all anyone saw was the first season.

This is despite a considerable amount of pre-release buzz and promotion from Prime Video. Most notably, it beamed the first episode directly into space, "marking the first-ever intergalactic premiere for a TV series," the streamer said in a news release.

"Theoretically, this makes the broadcast available to anyone open to receiving satellite signals 384,000 kilometers away from Earth and beyond — the equivalent distance from Earth to the moon."

But unfortunately, not a lot of people were watching, on Earth or elsewhere. As a result, "Night Sky" was canceled just six weeks after the release of the first season in 2022, which is a pretty quick turnaround time.

Deadline.com, reporting on the cancellation, said the show failed to bring in many viewers, while at the same time being more expensive to produce than the average show.

That high budget was largely the result of the show's sci-fi premise — about a couple who, years before the events of the show, discovered a chamber that leads directly to another planet. They manage to sit on that secret for years before things go haywire.

That couple was played by a pair of Oscar-winning film stars — Sissy Spacek ("Coal Miner's Daughter," 1980) and J.K. Simmons ("Whiplash," 2014) — which certainly added to the budget. The cast also included Kiah McKirnan ("Mare of Easttown"), Chai Hansen ("The New Legends of Monkey") and Adam Bartley ("Longmire").

"The Righteous Gemstones" is played by Tim Baltz, a Chicago-raised comedian and graduate of that city's legendary Second City comedy troupe.

Baltz first came to popular attention via the 2017 Comedy Central series "The Opposition with Jordan Klepper," appearing as a "citizen journalist."

But, his star has undoubtedly risen thanks to his three seasons, so far, as an honorary Gemstone (his character married into the titular "Righteous Gemstones" family). A fourth season was filmed over the summer, likely to be released sometime early next year.

Still, Baltz has been busy in the meantime. He did a guest voice in an episode of the Fox animated sitcom "The Great North" in the spring and a small role in the political satire "The American Society of Magical Negroes," which got a limited big-screen release in March of this year after premiering at the Sundance Film Festival.

And in case you missed it, last year he was part of the large-scale comedy anthology miniseries "History of the World: Part II," a sequel to the classic 1981 film "History of the World: Part I" by comedy legend Mel Brooks ("Spaceballs," 1987).

Q: What's Hannah Waddingham from "Ted Lasso" doing now that the show's over?

A: From the looks of it, Hannah Waddingham ("Sex Education") is splitting most of her time between frantically shooting big projects and answering her phone to book more.

If there was a single breakout star from Apple TV+'s surprise smash "Ted Lasso," it was Waddingham, who played the initially frosty Rebecca Welton, owner of the show's fictional soccer team.

Her character's long journey from villain to hero (and co-lead) was the engine that drove the first season. And it mirrored, in a way, her own journey from mostly unknown supporting actress to in-demand star.

Prior to "Ted Lasso's" debut in 2020, she was best known (to North American audiences, at least) for her largely silent role as the monstrous Septa Unella in eight episodes of "Game of Thrones" from 2015 to 2016.

Fast-forward a few years, and she's now booked into major roles in four different big-budget film projects in a two-year span.

This year she appeared in the mega-budget action hit "The Fall Guy" as well as in the animated comedy "The Garfield Movie" as the voice of the film's chief villain, Persian cat Jinx.

Next year, she's slated to pull off a very similar double, with a role in the surefire action hit "Mission: Impossible 8" as well as another family-friendly cartoon, "The Smurfs Movie."

Meanwhile, she's also in pre-production on an untitled action-comedy series for Prime Video, pairing her with Oscar-winning actress Octavia Spencer ("The Help," 2011).

She's also been attached to the heartwarming drama "West the Road" back in her native United Kingdom, though that hasn't even reached the pre-production stage (and could depend, at least partly, on finding time in Waddingham's busy schedule).

"Night Sky" was released within a month of another, rather similar Prime series — "Outer Range," about a rancher (Josh Brolin, "No Country for Old Men," 2007) who finds something like a black hole on his property and sci-fi strangeness ensues. That one, at least, got a second season, but then was canceled earlier this year.

Q: Who's the guy who plays B.J. on "The Righteous Gemstones"? What else can I see him in?

A: Mild-mannered assistant optician B.J. Barnes in the HBO comedy
