'Cyberpunk' in the city: New punks run Night City in '90s-inspired 'Edgerunners 2'

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

David Martinez is dead. If there is one thing that the trailer for "Cyberpunk: Edgerunners 2" makes abundantly clear, it's that David, the Night City mercenary voiced in the English dub by Zach Aguilar ("One-Punch Man") and KENN ("Beyblade X") in the original Japanese, has truly been defeated this time. And while it may be a bold choice to double down on the death of your main character right before the release of a second season, the statement has certainly sparked interest among the anime community.

With questions on their minds (and message boards) as to what's next for Night City and the Cyberpunk franchise, anime lovers will be relieved to read that the wait is almost over. "Cyberpunk: Edgerunners 2" premieres Tuesday, Oct. 20, on Netflix.

Based on the tabletop role-playing game initially created by Mike Pondsmith and published by R. Talsorian Games in 1988, the Cyberpunk franchise is named for the science-fiction subgenre of the same name, which is most often characterized by themes pertaining to high crime and high tech. In literature, Philip K. Dick, author of "Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep?" (which later became the 1982 film "Blade Runner"), and J.G. Ballard, author of "High-Rise," have become synonymous with the subgenre (among others). On screen, examples include The Matrix, Ghost in the Shell and Tron franchises as well as several more dystopian classics from "RoboCop" (1987) to "The Running Man" (1987) and its 2025 adaptation.

As for "Cyberpunk: Edgerunners" as an animated web series, the plot of Season 1 follows David, a Street Kid who, upon losing his mother — voiced by Gloria Garayua ("Reckoning") in English and Yurika Hino ("Naruto: Shippuden") in Japanese — to gang violence, decides to become an Edgerunner to survive an increasingly cold and technological world. Edgerunners, also called Cyberpunks, are mercenaries who work in a freelance capacity while rejecting the rules and expectations of their society. As David succeeds in his newfound field, however, he learns (too late) the downside of the power and reputation he has earned.

"While the new installment shares its setting with 'Edgerunners 1,' this time it follows a fresh group of hired guns, voiced by an all-new cast and brought to life in a reimagined animation style," reads Tudum's Aug. 21 release announcement on Netflix.com. "The standalone, 10-episode story is a raw chronicle of redemption and revenge in a city that thrives on violence. There, one question remains: When the world is blinded by spectacle, [to] what extremes do you have to go to make your story matter?"

David's story in "Edgerunners" stood out because of the writers' narrative choice, but Season 2 causes viewers to reflect: how many others in Night City are leading similar lives to David's? How many others have turned to the Cyberpunk lifestyle out of grief or desperation? How many others will fail, and what does it take to succeed?

The shift away from one single character to a group leading the charge may seem like a dangerous decision. With so many characters to keep tabs on, details can easily get lost in the plot (literally). But showrunner Bartosz Sztybor ("Mr. Car and the Knights Templar," 2023) shared his vision with Crunchyroll.com reporter Kyle Cardine in a July interview following the season premiere at Anime Expo 2026 in Los Angeles.

"I was thinking of the story of the '90s, and especially my favorite movies, like 'Pulp Fiction' [1994] ... and 'Leon: The Professional' [1994]," said Sztybor. "It was somehow organic that if it was like 'Pulp Fiction,' it would be a wider cast of characters.

"I also wanted to somehow rhyme the second season with the first," Sztybor continued. "The initial idea — what I think is important for the noir and cyberpunk genre — was to show causes and consequences, much like 'Pulp Fiction' and earlier movies by Robert Altman ["MASH," 1970]. Lots of characters show this in a good way: a thing that someone will do will have consequences on someone else."

To complement this stylized approach to the show's new cast of characters, animator and director Kai Ikarashi ("Heavenly Delusion") returns to the series to helm all 10 episodes in Season 2. Ikarashi's work is best encapsulated in Episode 6 of "Edgerunners 1," titled "Girl on Fire," which centered on the downfall of Maine, voiced by William Christopher Stephens ("Yasuke") in English and Hiroki Tochi ("Black Butler") in Japanese.

"The best episodes to me are the ones that are self-contained stories," Sztybor added in his Crunchyroll interview. "It was not even in the script, but he [Ikarashi] made a little movie out of it. It added a huge depth to Maine, who is my favorite character from Season 1. On our end, we knew that Ikarashi-san is super talented, and our dream was to have him as director for Season 2."

For his part, Ikarashi's art style and lighting only help to weave the '90s aesthetic into Sztybor's story.

"I am very intentional about the black silhouette lines on the characters to be prominent, and to leave ink blob-ish lines in the lines," said Ikarashi to Crunchyroll's Cardine. "I like to add particle-like effects to the lights. I was inspired by '90s American comics, as well, like Bill Sienkiewicz's work on 'Daredevil.'"

Overall, Sztybor would like returning fans to the series to "be open" and keep one thing in mind: "Season 2 is very similar, but totally different."

Tune in to find out how Night City's story continues without David when "Cyberpunk: Edgerunners 2" premieres Tuesday, Oct. 20, on Netflix.

Witching hour: 'Yaga' investigates a mystical missing persons case

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Where do the spookiest creatures hide out? There are ghosts in the attic, mutants in the sewers and monsters in the abandoned castle on the hill. Then, there is everything that haunts the woods. Folklore has given us so many reasons to think twice before strolling through forests alone, lest they be wicked woods. One witchy character from Slavic folklore, Baba Yaga, has been both a fearsome foe and a fond friend in generations of storytelling.

An old woman who lives in the woods in a cabin on chicken legs, Baba Yaga sometimes presents herself as genial forest folk, while other times she transforms into child-eating beast. A new Canadian horror series blends a whodunit mystery with folklore in "Yaga," premiering Friday, Oct. 23, on AMC+. When a commercial fishery heir (Hudson Williams, "Heated Rivalry") goes missing in the small town of Whittock while researching Baba Yaga with a local professor (Carrie-Anne Moss, "Jessica Jones"), a private investigator (Noah Reid, "Schitt's Creek") drops into town to look into the disappearance.

Catch the first two episodes of "Yaga" on premiere day with new episodes streaming weekly. The eight-episode series wraps up Friday, Nov. 27, with a double-episode finale.

A fish out of water in the tight-knit Whittock community, Rapp (Reid) doesn't receive the warmest welcome when he helicopters into the dreary town. Eckert (Patrick Gilmore, "School Spirits") introduces Rapp to his new partner within the local police department, Carson (Clark Backo, "Letterkenny"), who is less than enthused to be pulled off her desk to work this case with the private detective.

Rapp has arrived to follow up on the mysterious circumstances surrounding the disappearance of local student Henry Park (Williams), a sort of celebrity around town given his family's wealth. Raring to delve into the case, Rapp immediately comes up against Carson, whose attitude towards Henry's disappearance is skeptical at best.

Whittock might seem like a sleepy, dull town at first glance, but there is another, stranger side to it that reveals itself when Rapp and Carson start turning over rocks during their investigation. "A charismatic professor with a taste for younger men," per Crave, Katherine (Moss) was assisting Henry with his studies, talking with him about "eating bones and a witch named Baba Yaga," she tells Rapp plainly in the official trailer for the upcoming series.

Carson and Rapp come face to face with something perhaps even more odd than Henry's research interests when they arrive at his house. Henry's roommate, Logan (also portrayed by Williams), answers the door, looking like a spitting image of the missing man. While trying to track down Henry, Rapp and Carson encounter "a labyrinth of enigmatic suspects, secret lives and ancient magic," per Crave. The pair of detectives parse whether the bizarre goings-on are a result of rich kid mischief and a steamy affair between a teacher and her student, kooky cult rituals or something a bit more supernatural.

Also starring in "Yaga" are Sheila McCarthy ("The Umbrella Academy"), Megan Follows ("The Way Home"), Ezra Franky ("Untamed"), Katharine Isabelle ("Ginger Snaps," 2000), Hiro Kanagawa ("Upload"), Emilija Baranac ("Fakes"), Georgia Acken ("Under the Bridge"), Anisa Harris ("Yellowjackets") and Sam Krochmal ("Voice-mails for Isabelle," 2026).

AMC+ has kept fans fed with promotion for "Yaga" ahead of the show's premiere, including an exciting trailer and a three-minute sneak peek scene of Rapp's arrival. Flexing some big-name Canadian connections, "Yaga" features a cover of Donovan's 1966 hit song "Season of the Witch," performed by none other than Canuck rock royalty Alanis Morissette ("Hand in My Pocket") and available to stream now.

Canadian playwright Kat Sandler ("Kim's Convenience") adapted her 2019 play of the same name into "Yaga" for Crave, serving as writer, showrunner and executive producer. David Frazee ("Billy the Kid") and Rachel Talalay ("Riverdale") are co-directors of "Yaga." Mackenzie Donaldson ("Snowpiercer"), Andrew Miller ("Dirty Beautiful," 2015) and Moss are executive producers with Charles Cooper ("Wild Cards") producing the series.

"Yaga" was among a handful of highly anticipated television highlights to premiere at this year's Toronto International Film Festival. The festival's Primetime program included international shows "2.6 Seconds: Death in the Outback" from Australia, "Alice" from France, Germany's "Blindspot Berlin" and "Oxygen Masks Will (Not) Drop Automatically" out of Brazil.

New series "American Hostage" from MGM+, "Below" on Netflix, "Carrie" from Prime Video and Peacock's "Crystal Lake" all premiered episodes at the festival. Apple TV's hit British spy drama "Slow Horses" also had a TIFF premiere of its sixth season with Season 7 already filmed and a renewal for the eighth announced in September.

Get ready for some spooky thrills when "Yaga" premieres Friday, Oct. 23, on AMC+. Catch the first two episodes on premiere day with new episodes available weekly until the double-episode finale on Friday, Nov. 27.

Comedians try not to laugh (or get spooked) in 'LOL' Halloween special

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Shout and you're out: The undead love dark comedy, ghouls have a ghastly sense of humour and skeletons have a funny bone built right in — but how will plain old comedians fare in a world of hilarious spooks, tricks and surprises? Premiering Friday, Oct. 23, on Prime Video, "LOL: Last One Laughing – Halloween" sees famous friends from across the pond doing their best to hold in their shrieks and their giggles in a spirited game of laugh-or-shout-and-you're-out.

Hosted by Jimmy Carr ("Roast Battle") and Roisin Conaty ("After Life"), this Halloween-themed iteration of the U.K.'s "Last One Laughing" is the first of its kind, expanding the series' usual antics to embrace the holiday spirit. As comedians compete in a battle of witty remarks, timely jokes and physical humor — trying desperately to make their opponents laugh — they'll face a myriad of cursed props, ghostly interruptions and unexpected jump scares meant to throw them off their balance. As always, if they crack a chuckle, they're out of the game. But this time around, any yelps, shouts, squeals or hollers will also see players eliminated.

For this first season, brave comedians Jack Dee ("Lead Balloon"), Daisy May Cooper ("Am I Being Unreasonable?"), Phil Wang ("Finding Emily," 2026), Lou Sanders ("Alice and Steve"), Reece Shearsmith ("The League of Gentlemen"), Harriet Dyer ("Colin from Accounts") and Tom Allen ("The Night Before Christmas in Wonderland," 2024) have agreed to participate — but only one will survive the frightful competition.

The cast of "Last One Laughing: Halloween"

With countless iterations around the globe, "LOL: Last One Laughing" has previously seen hosts such as Graham Norton ("LOL: Last One Laughing Ireland"), Jay Baruchel ("LOL: Last One Laughing Canada"), Rebel Wilson ("LOL: Last One Laughing Australia") and Trevor Noah ("LOL: Last One Laughing South Africa"). While this will be Carr's first time hosting a themed addition of "LOL," he has steadily hosted "LOL: Last One Laughing UK" since the show's 2025 premiere.

Produced by Banijay's Zeppotron and Initial — with Richard Cohen ("8 Out of 10 Cats Does Countdown"), Peter Holmes ("Would I Lie to You?") and Ruth Phillips ("The Ranganation") acting as executive producers — the first three episodes of "LOL: Last One Laughing – Halloween" premiere on Prime Video Friday, Oct. 23. The Season 1 finale premieres the following week on Friday, Oct. 30.

The best medicine: Boasting a stand-up resume overflowing with specials such as "The Special Special!" (2012), "Old Baby" (2017), "Weakness Is the Brand" (2019) and "Local Act" (2023), comedian Maria Bamford has never shied away from talking about her personal life — even sharing countless stories through her semi-autobiographical Netflix series "Lady Dynamite," which aired two seasons between 2016-17.

But with the help of directors Neil Berkeley ("SNL50: Beyond Saturday Night") and Judd Apatow ("The 40-Year-Old Virgin," 2005), Bamford delves even deeper into her past in "Paralyzed by Hope: The Maria Bamford Story," premiering Friday, Oct. 23, on Netflix.

On the road to success, Bamford travelled from Duluth, Minnesota, to Altadena, California, facing countless professional and personal roadblocks — including struggles with depression, anxiety, obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD), suicidal ideation, eating disorders, extreme debt and more. Despite the detours and delays she faced, Bamford kept pushing forward anyway, earning herself a stellar reputation amongst her fellow comedians. Now, Bamford looks back and reflects on her long and winding journey.

Speaking with Deadline ahead of the documentary's release, Apatow himself described Bamford as "one of the best comedians of all time."

"Not to embarrass Maria," he says, "but I feel like she really is a true original in the subjects she chooses, but also her style and how she gets laughs and she always follows her ideas that she's never adjusting for the mainstream. She's like the John Cassavetes ["Rosemary's Baby," 1968] of stand-up. You know what I'm saying? She's the Radiohead ["Creep"]! Come on, let's go with more examples. The Neil Young ["Heart of Gold"] of this sh*t!"

Throughout the documentary, many of Bamford's friends and colleagues also share stories from the comic's career: some heartbreaking, some hopeful, some downright hilarious. "Paralyzed by Hope" features interviews with Conan O'Brien ("Conan O'Brien Must Go"), Zach Galifianakis ("The Hangover," 2009),

Stephen Colbert ("The Late Show with Stephen Colbert"), Patton Oswalt ("The Dink," 2026), Jackie Kashian ("Bam Bam and Celeste," 2005), Tig Notaro ("One Mississippi"), Ron Funches ("Rock Paper Scissors") and more, including Bamford's father, sister and husband.

One of four documentaries set to premiere on the streamer throughout October — all celebrating comedians and comedy institutions — "Paralyzed by Hope: The Maria Bamford Story" makes its debut Friday, Oct. 23, on Netflix.

Amelia Gething and Emma Mackey star in "Emily"

"Emily" (2022)

Before Emily Brontë put pen to paper on one of literature's most enduring novels, she searched for a life beyond the expectations surrounding her. "Emily" arrives Wednesday, Oct. 21, on Netflix, with Emma Mackey ("Sex Education") starring as Emily, Oliver Jackson-Cohen ("The Invisible Man," 2020) as curate William Weightman and Fionn Whitehead ("Dunkirk," 2017) as her brother Branwell. In this semi-fictional drama from writer-director Frances O'Connor ("Mansfield Park," 1999), Emily desires personal and artistic freedom but struggles within the boundaries of her family and society. When her older sister Charlotte (Alexandra Dowling, "Game of Thrones") returns home, she dismisses Emily's stories as childish and urges her sister to instead find a respectable path. When a new curate, William, arrives in town, their shared passion for poetry soon leads to an unexpected romance. And as Emily searches for freedom, she begins to see her experiences, passions and frustrations as fuel for her writing, setting her on a creative path toward the novel that will define her legacy and help her find her voice.

"Nobody Wants This" – Season 3

It's that "first time" feeling, all over again. Joanne (Kristen Bell, "Frozen," 2013) and Noah (Adam Brody, "The O.C.") are ready for a new chapter as Season 3 of "Nobody Wants This" arrives Thursday, Oct. 22, on Netflix. After recommitting to each other at the end of last season, Joanne and Noah are moving into a new home together and are embracing every exciting "first" that comes with building their life together. Their happiness unfolds as Sasha (Timothy Simons, "Veep") and Esther (Jackie Tohn, "GLOW") find themselves back in the dating pool, navigating awkward introductions, surprising sparks and the challenges that come with starting over. At the same time, Morgan's (Justine Lupe, "Succession") career takes off, pushing her closer to becoming a media sensation. Meanwhile, Sasha and Morgan have been circling something neither of them wants to admit to.

"Lupin" – Season 4

Paris has a new Lupin, and Assane Diop (Omar Sy, "The Intouchables," 2011) is not the one wearing the costume as Season 4 of "Lupin" arrives with all eight episodes Friday, Oct. 23, on Netflix. Four years after surrendering to protect his family, Assane Diop is still in prison, ready to serve his sentence and keep a promise to his son (Etan Simon, "Josephine, Guardian Angel") to visit their family in Senegal. Then, a mysterious note signed "Lupin" promises a coordinated strike on several museums. Guards are on alert, yet every theft still goes as planned. Assane insists he is innocent, but a camera places him inside one of the museums during a robbery that leaves a police captain seriously injured. Every piece of evidence points his way. To clear his name and unmask the imitator, Assane has to break out of prison and put on the Lupin costume once more. The identity he gave up is the only one that can save him now. "Lupin" is created by George Kay ("Criminal: UK") and directed by Hugo Gelin ("Two Is a Family," 2016).

"Love in Disguise" – Season 1

One bodyguard, one murder suspect and one very big secret arrive together when the first season of "Love in Disguise" premieres Monday, Oct. 19, on Prime Video. Kang Jae-hee (Seol In-ah, "Business Proposal"), a former special forces officer-turned-police detective, goes undercover as the personal secretary of Yoon Yi-jun (Yim Si-wan, "Squid Game"), the cold-blooded heir to a powerful conglomerate and the prime suspect in a murder case. Used to trusting no one but himself, Yoon keeps Kang at arm's length, unaware that his new secretary is secretly searching for evidence against him. And the closer Kang gets to the truth, the harder it becomes to separate her assignment from her growing feelings for Yoon. When Kang's true identity is revealed, however, both are forced to face their fears of betrayal, vulnerability and love itself. Adapted from the hit web novel "Why Don't You Know It's a Girl?," the series is directed by Park Dan-hee ("Weak Hero Class 1").

"The Terminal List" – Season 2

The list may be finished, but James Reece (Chris Pratt, "Guardians of the Galaxy," 2014) is not. Based on Jack Carr's "True Believer," Season 2 of "The Terminal List" arrives Wednesday, Oct. 21, on Prime Video. With his list crossed off, Reece drifts without purpose until a terrorist attack in London pulls him back into the fight. The CIA soon closes in, and clearing his name means stopping a resurgent terror network that has turned a trusted ally against him. The trail stretches across the Indian Ocean, Africa, the Middle East and Europe, exposing a conspiracy that links Moscow to CIA headquarters and cuts deep into his own family's past. Alongside Pratt, the series cast includes Tom Hopper ("The Umbrella Academy") as Raife Hastings, Constance Wu ("Crazy Rich Asians," 2018) as Katie Buranek, Dar Salim ("Game of Thrones") as Mohammed Farooq and Luke Hemsworth ("Westworld") as Jules Landry, with Gabriel Luna ("The Last of Us") joining the cast this season as Freddy Strain.

"Final Table" – Season 1

The heat is on from the very first plate when the first season of "Final Table" premieres Saturday, Oct. 24, on Prime Video. Ahn Hyo-seop ("Business Proposal") stars as Kang Han, a world-class chef who has spent years working at restaurants abroad before returning to Korea with a new post as head chef at Familia. But when he stumbles upon a televised cooking competition called "The Table: K-Chef," Han sees it as a once-in-a-lifetime career opportunity to prove himself and compete against the country's top chefs. Starring Hong Hwa-yeon ("Buried Hearts"), Chang Ryul ("The Golden Spoon"), Jung Yoo-jin ("Snowdrop"), Jang Young-nam ("It's Okay to Not Be Okay") and Cha Ji-yeon ("Taxi Driver"), the drama is written and directed by Kim Do-hoon ("Chimera").

Reach for the stars

'Knife Edge' releases second season

As anyone who has ever worked in the service industry can attest, secret shoppers are a stressful and oft-dreaded reality. A secret shopper will appear, often alone, as a seemingly innocuous dinner guest and order a full meal, always ensuring a well-rounded dining experience. For the average family restaurant, pub or bistro, a secret shopper determines whether an establishment's steps of service are being met and assesses the quality, timeliness and presentation of the fare. For more elite enterprises, the evaluation is more intense — it also comes with significantly higher stakes than industry approval and a good Yelp score.

In "Knife Edge: Chasing Michelin Stars," chefs from around the world try to impress "Michelin Guide inspectors who dine undercover with fake IDs and numbers to award stars" (per IMDb), the culinary industry's highest mark of taste. Hosted by English TV personality Jesse Burgess ("Dirty, Sexy, Things"), Season 2 of "Knife Edge" dropped a two-episode premiere Friday, Sept. 25, on Apple TV.

This season "follows 16 restaurants at pivotal moments in their journeys," reads the official description from Apple TV. "A chef and his family risk everything to put a tiny island on Michelin's map. Two generations of a legendary culinary family pursue recognition on their own terms. Two chefs voluntarily give up their Star when they open a new restaurant and have just 52 days to win it back. One sandwich shop transforms into a fine dining restaurant each night, while a young couple seeks to put Filipino cuisine at the center of one of America's most competitive dining scenes.

"Their circumstances could hardly be more different," the description continues, "yet each faces the same uncertainty: When Michelin makes its decision, will everything they have strived for be enough?"

Episode 1 begins at Ynyshir in Eglwys Fach near Machynlleth, Wales, a no-expense-spared "dining destination" that serves curated ingredients from afar. Under the helm of chef Gareth Ward, the twice Michelin-starred restaurant procures only the most coveted menu products, regardless of cost. But when surprising news arrives from on high, Ward and the Ynyshir team must work harder than ever to earn their third Michelin star.

Meanwhile, Guernsey restaurant Vraic, a local-ingredients establishment in the Channel Islands, chases its first star after just six months of service.

Feel the pressure as 16 chefs struggle for their star in Season 2 of "Knife Edge: Chasing Michelin Stars." New episodes drop every Friday until Nov. 6 on Apple TV.

Over Your Dead Body

Dan Burton (Segel) is a struggling filmmaker whose career has stalled, while his wife, Lisa (Weaving), is an aspiring actress. Hoping to repair their failing marriage, the couple retreats to their isolated lakeside cabin. However, neither is actually there to reconcile. Dan has secretly arranged to murder Lisa, while Lisa has devised her own plan to kill Dan. Before either can finish the job, their situation becomes more complicated when Henry (Curran), Dan's accomplice, arrives, followed by the revelation that three escaped criminals have been hiding in the cabin.

Anna Camp hosts "A Very Haunted Renovation"

NCIS

③ 8:00 PM

When Torres’ (Wilmer Valderrama) undercover identity is used to commit a string of homicides, he’s pulled out of retirement and forced to team up with his old handler, Walt Keller (Mike O’Malley), and confront the dark past he’d left behind.

A Very Haunted Renovation

HGTV 8:00 PM

Two designers remain, and only one challenge separates the victor from their winning title. Before a champion can be crowned, the designers must totally transform a kitchen and dining room. Tempers flare during the toughest challenge yet.

NBA Basketball

⑤ 9:30 PM

Frost Bank Center hosts a measuring-stick matchup as the reigning-champion Thunder roll into San Antonio to face a Spurs squad built around a generational talent. Both rosters bring real title aspirations into this early-season Western Conference test.

R.J. Decker

⑫ ②② 10:00 PM

Long odds and stormy tides are in the forecast for R.J. (Scott Speedman) as Season 2 of this crime drama continue. This time, the private investigator looks into the violent death of a woman who looks to have died in a hurricane that never made landfall.

Dolly Parton to be honored in "CMA Presents I Will Always Love You: A Celebration of Dolly Parton"

Nature

(33) (57) 8:00 PM

Two tiger mothers raise their cubs against constant danger on a remote island tucked into western Nepal's forests. Every hunt and close call shows just how much instinct and stamina it takes to keep a new generation of predators alive out there.

CMA Presents I Will Always Love You: A Celebration of Dolly Parton

(22) 9:00 PM

She was an artist, an entertainer, a humanitarian. Celebrating the late country singer, this two-hour special promises a joyful celebration of Dolly Parton, featuring personal stories, archival footage and touching performances from special guests.

99 to Beat

(44) 9:00 PM

One hundred players enter the game, but only one can win. Ken Jeong and Erin Andrews host as guests compete in oddball, visually inventive games where a wrong answer means going home and the lone contestant left standing claims a $1 million grand prize.

Chicago P.D.

(5) 10:00 PM

Drug trafficking, organized crime and high-profile murders all land on Sgt. Hank Voight's (Jason Beghe) desk this week. The Intelligence Unit's toughest cases demand answers fast, and Voight's methods keep testing exactly how far justice can bend.

"Wolf Man" (2025)

One man's grisly transformation threatens to destroy what he holds most dear in "Wolf Man," streaming on Hulu starting Sunday, Oct. 18. Blake (Christopher Abbott, "It Comes at Night," 2017) lives in San Francisco with his wife, Charlotte (Julia Garner, "Ozark"), and their daughter, Ginger (Matilda Firth, "Disenchanted," 2022). Haunted by his past, he wrestles with the same volatile temper as his father, Grady (Sam Jaeger, "The Handmaid's Tale"), while Charlotte's demanding job keeps her away from home, leaving their marriage under strain. But when Blake unexpectedly receives a death certificate for his father — who had been missing for many years — and the keys to his childhood farmhouse in rural Oregon, he proposes a family trip to pack up his father's belongings and repair his relationship with his family. Soon after arriving, Blake and his family are attacked by an unseen animal and, in a desperate escape, barricade themselves inside the house as the creature prowls the perimeter. As the night stretches on, Blake — injured in the struggle — begins to change. His senses sharpen, his behavior grows erratic and his humanity slips away, revealing a monstrous side of him that puts Charlotte and Ginger in grave danger during one terrifying night. "Wolf Man" is directed and written by Leigh Whannell ("Insidious," 2010), with Macdara Kelleher ("65," 2023) as executive producer.

"Companion" (2025)

What's human instinct if not internal programming? Human and humanoid collide in 2025's "Companion," coming to Hulu on Sunday, Oct. 18. Josh (Jack Quaid, "The Hunger Games," 2012) thinks his girlfriend, Iris (Sophie Thatcher, "Yellowjackets"), is perfect. He knows his friends will too. So when Kat (Megan Suri, "Never Have I Ever") and Eli (Harvey Guillen, "What We Do in the Shadows") invite them for a weekend spent at an isolated lake house, it's an easy yes. Everything starts out perfectly — with Iris, it always does. But when they find Iris soaked in blood their first morning there, Josh's friends soon discover that his girlfriend is not who — or what — they expected. Written and directed by Drew Hancock ("My Dead Ex"), "Companion's" cast list includes Lukas Gage ("Voice-mails for Isabelle," 2026), Rupert Friend ("My Notes on Mars," 2026), Jaboukie Young-White ("The Love Hypothesis," 2026), Matthew J. McCarthy ("How We Roll"), Marc Menchaca ("Dutton Ranch"), Woody Fu ("No Good Deed") and Ashley Lambert ("KPop Demon Hunters," 2025).

"Phony" - Season 1

Crash into the mother of all nightmares with the first season of "Phony," a darkly twisted comedy, premiering

Christopher Abbott stars in "Wolf Man"

Tuesday, Oct. 20, on Hulu. Sonny Cooke (Sam Nivola, "The White Lotus") was in a terrible car accident. He's lucky to be alive, but upon waking up, Sonny has countless battles to face — the most concerning being closest to home. No one seems to believe him, but Sonny is utterly convinced that his mother, Ellen

(Connie Britton, "American Horror Story"), is not really his mother, but an imposter who's taken her place. Created by Nick Paley ("Marcel the Shell with Shoes On," 2021), "Phony" also stars Maliq Johnson ("Grand Army"), Elijah Fox ("Monster in the Family: The Stacey Kananen Story," 2025), Kelvin Yu

("Bob's Burgers"), Mellany Barros ("The Spiderwick Chronicles"), Adam Beauchesne ("You Me Her"), Kai Cragh ("The Last Upload," 2025), Carolyn Adair ("His & Hers," 2024), Callum Orchison ("Bad Girls Eat Brains," 2024), William Budijanto ("Lost in Space") and more.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I was excited for "Parking Wars" to hit Netflix because I loved it when it was on A&E. Unfortunately, the storylines I liked — set in Philadelphia — aren't included. Was that a different show?

A: It sounds like you're just encountering the later seasons. The reality show, which began in 2008 by following officials from the Philadelphia Parking Authority, eventually expanded its war to several other fronts. It started in Season 3, when the show split its time between Philadelphia and Detroit.

According to producer Dan Flaherty ("King of Cars"), the choice of where to expand to was obvious.

"Our first two seasons were shot exclusively in Philadelphia," he told journalist Christopher Wink of Metro Philadelphia newspaper in 2009. "In getting a third season, we said, 'Let's see what we can do.' And Detroit is Motor City. It's all about cars and about parking there."

But it would eventually set its sights still further. By Season 6, Providence, Rhode Island, was added to the mix. Then, Staten Island and North Hempstead in New York and Trenton, New Jersey, were added in later seasons.

The expansion seemed intended to rejuvenate the show, which makes sense — after all, it was a fairly thin premise. A&E's official marketing materials summed it up as riding "with the people we love to hate," which is pretty compelling, but ultimately, there are only so many different situations that parking enforcement gets into.

Q: Remember "Hell on Wheels"? What happened to the guy who played Elam? Is he still acting? I think someone told me he was a musician.

A: Common ("John Wick: Chapter 2," 2017), born Lonnie Rashid Lynn, remains both an actor and a musician — highly decorated in both fields, in fact.

The Western-themed series "Hell on Wheels," in which he starred from 2011 to 2014, was his first TV role, but it's a medium he really took to. He's appeared in several shows since then.

Common currently stars in the Apple TV sci-fi series "Silo," and has since its debut in 2023. He's already signed on for a fourth season, slated for release next summer.

The bad news is it will be the final season.

Common is not likely to have to wait long for his next project, though — he's attached to several others in various stages of development.

But in the meantime, Common also has his music career. His most recent album, "The Auditorium, Vol. 1," was nominated for a Grammy.

It didn't win, but that might be just as well for Common, who would have had to make space on his already-full shelf. He already has three Grammys, as well as an Oscar (for his song "Glory," used in the 2014 film "Selma") and an Emmy (for his song "Letter To The Free," from the 2016 Netflix documentary film "13th").

Q: I just heard that Leslie Bibb was cast in a new show. Does that mean no more "Palm Royale"?

A: Both of these things are true, though they aren't necessarily related — Leslie Bibb ("Talladega Nights: The Ballad of Ricky Bobby," 2006) has proven willing to moonlight.

Bibb did in fact just get cast in the already-buzzy HBO series "The Rush Whisperer." Based on a New York Magazine article, the series is about the lengths to which teens go to join a sorority (the "rush" in the title refers to the sorority-recruitment period). It was just announced, so there's no indication of a release date yet.

And she does have more time on her hands now that — sorry to break it to you — "Palm Royale" has been canceled at AppleTV.

The period dramedy, about a woman trying to break into late-'60s Palm Beach, Florida, high society, ran for two seasons and won four Emmys. Bibb played one of the wealthy socialites who made up the ensemble.

But as I said, she hasn't been shy of juggling multiple shows at once. She has, in fact, appeared in three of the hottest shows on TV just in the past year and change.

On top of "Palm Royale," she appeared in the third season of the critically beloved "The White Lotus" in 2025, and she had a small but impactful guest turn in the hit comedy series "Hacks" in 2026.

She was nominated for Emmys for both roles — as part of the "White Lotus" ensemble and on her own for her guest spot in "Hacks."

Indeed, Bibb's work ethic is such that between now and whenever "The Rush Whisperer" is released, we'll likely see her in two other high-profile projects. She's currently filming a role in the Amazon-produced rom-

com series "Escorted" — starring Brett Goldstein of "Ted Lasso" fame — and she's part of the star-studded cast of the biopic "Hal," about journalist and activist Hal Donaldson (portrayed by "Vikings" star Alexander Ludwig).
