Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

Last month [President Trump] met with U.K. prime minister and bottle of drinkable yogurt, Keir Starmer. Starmer brought an invitation from King Charles III for an unprecedented second state visit for Trump. But then, King Charles hosted Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy and now Trump is privately fuming that the King makes other leaders feel special, too. President Trump. Mr. President. If you thought Charles wouldn't two-time you, you've missed a whole season of "The Crown."

The King [Charles III] is also in the news for another reason because it was announced that he is set to debut a radio show on Apple Music. Oh, just like King Arthur before him, who pulled the Bluetooth-enabled microphone from the stone and started his podcast "The Round Table" with co-hosts Lancelot and Will Arnett.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Tomorrow [March 7] in Washington, [President] Trump is hosting the first-ever White House crypto summit. Tickets cost $200. Wait, $50. Wait, $120. Wait. Now it's nothing. It's worth nothing.

Today [March 12] Trump imposed tariffs on all steel and aluminum imported into the U.S., and the European Union retaliated with tariffs on beef, peanut butter and whiskey. Or as it's also known, the single-dad food pyramid.

Disney just released a trailer for their live-action remake of "Lilo & Stitch." You can tell they're running out of ideas because their next movie is an animated remake of the live-action remake of the animated movie "The Lion King."

RFK Jr. said that he wants major food companies to remove synthetic colors from their products. Yeah, it sounds good until you're sitting there squirting clear ketchup.

Jimmy Kimmel Live

If you did a poll this morning [March 10] when that alarm went off an hour earlier than usual, it would have been 98-2 in favor of getting rid of [Daylight Saving]. Trump could finally do one thing to make almost everyone in this country happy. ... Marco Rubio, a Republican senator at the time, introduced a bill that would eliminate Daylight Saving three years ago. It's called the "Sunshine Protection Act." It was passed by unanimous consent. You know how hard it is for the Senate to get unanimous consent on anything? They can't get unanimous consent on consent. You want to make America great again, end this Daylight Saving madness forever, Mr. President.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

Sotheby's auction house announced last week that it will host a sale of rookie jerseys belonging to basketball legends Michael Jordan and Kobe Bryant that is expected to take in $20 million, while Shaq's rookie jersey is still being used in yacht races.

Goodbye to Gilead: 'The Handmaid's Tale' concludes with Season 6

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

O-T Fagbenle and Elisabeth Moss in "The Handmaid's Tale"

Blessed be the fruit, and heroic be the handmaids. After a three-year hiatus, the citizens of Gilead, Little America and New Bethlehem alike return for the sixth and final season of "The Handmaid's Tale," coming to Hulu with a three-episode premiere Tuesday, April 8. Episodes set to release weekly thereafter.

Created for television by Bruce Miller ("Eureka") and inspired by Margaret Atwood's 1985 novel of the same name, this dystopian tale takes place in a totalitarian society, Gilead, built in what was once the United States. Low fertility rates led to the rise of theocracy, and the creation of a system in which fertile women (called "handmaids") are assigned to powerful men and their wives, forcing them to bear children they must immediately surrender.

Eager to save her eldest daughter, Hannah (Jordana Blake, "Riot Girls," 2019), one steadfast Handmaid, Offred (Elisabeth Moss, "The Invisible Man," 2020) — later known by her real name, June — has fought tooth and nail to free herself from Gilead's oppressive constraints, despite working for the likes of the ever-powerful Cmdr. Waterford (Joseph Fiennes, "Shakespeare in Love," 1998) and his wife, Serena Joy (Yvonne Strahovski, "Teacup"), as well as Gilead architect Joseph Lawrence (Bradley Whitford, "The West Wing"), a complicated man wrestling with the reverberations of his own creation.

June's fight continued following the birth of her daughter Nichole, eventually leading both to find safety in Canada, with June's husband Luke (O-T Fagbenle, "No Good Deed") and her best friend, former Handmaid Moira (Samira Wiley, "Orange Is the New Black").

Captured alongside her husband, Serena soon followed suit, confined in Toronto until she was eventually freed and sent to live with a couple more than obsessed with her newborn child. As tensions grew on both sides of the border, however, both Serena and June found themselves on the run in Season 5's chilling finale, children in tow as they made way for the supposedly-safe Hawaii.

In her first interview following said finale, the Emmy-nominated Strahovski spoke candidly to Vanity Fair about Serena and June's journey. "Personally, I don't feel like they're going to make it very far," she says. "I can't see them making it to their destination of choice."

According to Hulu's synopsis for the upcoming season, it seems Strahovski is correct. While welcoming series newcomers like Josh Charles ("Dead Poets Society," 1989), D'Arcy Carden ("The Good Place") and Timothy Simons ("Veep"), this sixth and final season promises more trouble for series favorites Serena Joy and June, as the former dives into a campaign to reform Gilead, while the latter fights to demolish the oppressive regime.

Later, speaking with W Magazine, Strahovski shared her thoughts on the upcoming season: "It got pretty raw in past seasons, but it gets even rawer this season. I don't know how to explain it any other way. They just have some kind of a no-[nonsense] language between them, where they can really see and hear each other. They can't lie to each other very well. And that relationship is also really, really complicated, and it's been great to go even deeper into those complications."

While Serena and June fight for opposing sides once again, the morally ambiguous Cmdr. Lawrence is busy reimagining his blueprints for Gilead, creating a more welcoming, approachable environment with New Bethlehem — a development meant to offer more modern-day amenities and less stringent rules to those interested in joining a Gilead-adjacent way of life. New Bethlehem offers sanctuary to all, including banished traitors and runaway handmaidens, which may prove tantalizing for runaway Serena.

Despite his role in Gilead's creation and evolution, however, Lawrence has often undermined his own totalitarian society, leaving fans to wonder what his true intentions might be with this next plan of action.

Speaking to Liam Crowley at SXSW, Whitford shared his complicated (and cheeky) feelings regarding the show's final season.

"I won't say the ending, but we just wrapped up," Whitford said. "Obviously, it's a dark show, but it was such a joyous, weirdly sweet set, and a really wonderfully creative, interactive experience. It's a show I'm really proud of. I love that part, and it was really hard to say goodbye to everybody. But we solved the whole misogyny fascism thing. Our work was done."

Whether June and her allies are truly able to "solve the whole misogyny fascism thing" has yet to be seen, but "Handmaid's" fans and avid Atwood readers alike know that Gilead's story is far from over, given that "The Handmaid's Tales" sequel, "The Testaments," is set to be developed into a series of its own.

Set 15 years after the original, this next series will also feature Miller as series creator and will star the likes of Ann Dowd ("The Exorcist: Believer," 2023), who reprises her role as Aunt Lydia, alongside Chase Infiniti ("Presumed Innocent"), Lucy Halliday ("Blue Jean," 2022) and more.

Ending one story and introducing another, the epic, sixth and final season of "The Handmaid's Tale" debuts with a three-episode premiere Tuesday, April 8, on Hulu.

Desperate times: Hamm preys on 'Friends & Neighbors' in new Apple series

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Whether diving into the sinister world of tech companies and the ideal 9-5 worker in "Severance," or creeping behind Hollywood's velvet curtain in "The Studio," Apple TV+ has recently made a name for itself by presenting storylines centered around the destructive hopes and dreams of the rich. But what about the fallen rich — those who have built their lives on stately homes, beautiful partners and seemingly perfect families, only to watch it all crumble beneath the soles of their Italian leather loafers? Well, this new series on Apple TV+ has that covered.

"Your Friends & Neighbors," premiering Friday, April 11, on the Apple-owned streaming service, stars "Mad Men" actor Jon Hamm as Andrew "Coop" Cooper, an affluent hedge fund manager who loses his well-paying, high-powered job shortly after divorcing his wife, Mel, played by "Fatal Attraction" actress Amanda Peet. After Coop meets with his financial adviser — who tells him he has enough money to "coast" in his current lifestyle for no more than six months — he begins looking for ways to sustain his wealth by other means. Unfortunately for those around him, Coop's methods may not be in their best interest.

More specifically, "after being fired in disgrace, Andrew 'Coop' Cooper ... resorts to stealing from his neighbors' homes in the exceedingly affluent Vestment Village," the official Apple TV+ logline reads, "only to discover that the secrets and affairs hidden behind those wealthy facades might be more dangerous than he ever imagined."

"Your Friends & Neighbors" comes from author, creator and executive producer Jonathan Tropper, who is also known for his writing work on the Jason Momoa-led sci-fi series "See" as well as films such as 2017's retro road trip drama "Kodachrome" and 2022's action film "The Adam Project," starring Canadian actor Ryan Reynolds ("Deadpool & Wolverine," 2024).

Tropper, excited about the debut of his first original television series creation since 2019, told Apple TV+ Press about his experience taking the first season off the page and onto the screen.

"I've had this show in my head for years, and making it has been a dream come true," Tropper said.

Jon Hamm and Hoon Lee in "Your Friends & Neighbors"

"It's been an absolute thrill partnering with Jon Hamm, along with [fellow executive producers] Connie Tavel ['Judging Amy'] and Craig Gillespie ['I, Tonya,' 2017], to bring it to life.

"The support from everyone at Apple has been phenomenal," he continued, "and the fact that they've ordered a second season before we aired our first is an incredible validation and a tribute to the work of this stellar cast, as well as the crew, writers, directors and producers who worked so hard to make this show what it is. We can't wait for everyone to see it."

Indeed, as Tropper stated, Season 2 of "Your Friends & Neighbors" was announced in November 2024 alongside the release date for the series premiere — an action that is a relative rarity in the television business, especially for an original series not tied to pre-existing property (for example, book-to-TV franchises such as "The Wheel of Time" or "Game of Thrones"). The series' "quick renewal," Deadline writes, "is a big vote of confidence and indicative of Apple's lofty expectations for the drama, which marks Hamm's first time headlining an ongoing series since his Emmy-winning turn on 'Mad Men.'"

But Hamm isn't the only recognizable face in the dramedy's 10-episode debut season. Peet, who rose to fame following her role as Jill St. Claire in "The Whole Nine Yards" (2000), stars as Hamm's ex-wife and mother of their children, Tori (Isabel Gravitt, "In Search of Fellini," 2017) and Hunter (Donovan Colan, "Chapelwaite").

Fans of the 2012-2014 HBO series "The Newsroom" may also be delighted to know that Olivia Munn, who played Sloan Sabbith in that series, will star in "Your Friends & Neighbors" as Samantha Levitt. Based on the trailer and series write-ups, it seems likely that Munn's character will be a love interest for Hamm's character, Coop. At the time of writing, however, very little information has been released regarding the relationships between characters.

The main cast is rounded out by Tony Award winner Lena Hall ("Snowpiercer") as Allison "Ali" Cooper, Mark Tallman ("First Wives Club") as Nick Brandes, Aimee Carrero ("The Menu," 2022) as Elena Benavides, and Hoon Lee ("Banshee") and Eunice Bae ("Fallout") as Barney and Grace Choi, respectively. Sandrine Holt ("House of Cards"), Corbin Bernsen ("Kiss Kiss Bang Bang," 2005), Sarah Thompson ("7th Heaven"), Daniel Dale ("Y2K," 2024), Gino Vento ("Mayans M.C."), Happy Anderson ("Bad Boys for Life," 2020), Jennifer Mudge ("Somebody Somewhere"), Miriam Silverman ("The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel"), Lizbeth MacKay ("Rarely Never Sometimes Always," 2020) and rising talent Jameson Flynn Lopez appear in recurring roles.

Don't miss the double-episode premiere of "Your Friends & Neighbors" when the first of two confirmed seasons premieres Friday, April 11, on Apple TV+.

Comedian Tony Hinchcliffe offers killer feedback to co-workers

By Staff Writers
TV Media

Roasting the roasters: Headline-making comedian Tony Hinchcliffe ("The Burn with Jeff Ross"), perhaps best known for his podcast "Kill Tony," his appearances on "The Roast of Bert Kreischer" (2023) and "The Roast of Tom Brady" (2024) — and for his poorly received jokes at President Trump's Madison Square Garden rally in October 2024 — is set to release three exclusive specials with Netflix, with the first making its debut on the streamer Monday, April 7.

These latest specials are said to feature a mixture of both established and aspiring comedians, all performing in front of Hinchcliffe and his esteemed panel of comedians who will provide brutally honest, unfiltered feedback. Part comedy special, part roast, "Kill Tony" offers constructive criticism, countless sets and cheeky laughs, all while poking fun at yet-to-be-announced celebrity guests who must perform at random.

The first of these three installments — airing this week — was filmed at the Comedy Mothership in Austin, Texas, kicking off a slate of releases for Hinchcliffe, who is also set to debut an hour-long special with the streamer.

Tony Hinchcliffe hosts "Kill Tony"

He added, "It's the most spontaneous and improvised show that is out there, and the creative freedom given to us by Netflix to keep the show in its pure form is a comedian's dream, and we can't wait to 'Netflix and Kill.'"

An utterly chaotic and comedic ride from start to finish, Tony Hinchcliffe's first televised series, "Kill Tony," airs its first installment Monday, April 7, on Netflix.

Dark Waters: Long-buried treasure sends a siren call from the dangerous waters of the North Atlantic to shipwreck salvagers in "The Death Coast," an eight-episode docuseries premiering Tuesday, April 8, on USA Network.

The incredibly high concentration of shipwrecks along a stretch of Nova Scotia's coast has earned it the title of "Death Coast," drawing thrill-seeking salvagers to plumb the depths of the Atlantic in search of forgotten treasures. Some ocean admirers choose to respect the Atlantic from the safety of dry land, but one Nova Scotian dares to dive in and explore what lies beneath the surface.

In "The Death Coast," Cape Breton's Capt. Jeff MacKinnon and his team scour the Marine Heritage Database for their next recovery adventure, landing on the wreck of Le Chameau. Jeff and his team believe there could be a fortune in rare coins inside the sunken 18th-century French cargo ship.

All artifacts discovered while filming the series are returned to the Nova Scotia Department of Communities, Culture, Tourism and Heritage, Special Places Protection — if you were curious about where any potential finds from Jeff's dives end up.

The seafaring team uses its treasure-hunting skills and a 300-year-old map to search for the wreck, battling the unpredictable ocean waters and weather that threaten to storm and bury the ship all over again. With an estimated 25,000 shipwrecks dotting the seafloor of Death Coast, there are as many opportunities for adventure as there are reminders of just how deadly the ocean can be.

As a third-generation recoverist, Jeff began salvaging shipwrecks at 14 years old with his father, Robert MacKinnon. In fact, artifacts that Robert recovered from wrecks can be viewed in museums around the globe. Throughout his years of recovering shipwrecks, Robert discovered several of Cape Breton's most profitable undersea treasures, including single coins valued at $200,000 each.

Trained by the best, Jeff is an expert at recovering wrecks in rocky waters. He now holds the only license to dive on the shipwrecks resting on the Cape Breton coast's seafloor. Over his salvaging career, Jeff has worked with his father in addition to expert archeologists, geologists and survey technicians to conserve artifacts found during recovery dives.

With the influence of so many experts in recovery, Jeff developed his own techniques for preserving his finds, recruiting and training a new generation of salvagers in his team to use those specialized procedures.

Recovering long-lost treasures of all shapes and sizes, "The Death Coast" premieres Tuesday, April 8, on USA Network.

Jack is torn between duty and his former friendship with Phil Ashe (Yuto Uemura, "Tsurune"), who leads the lunar resistance. As they navigate shifting alliances, Jack and Phil must decide where their loyalties lie. ## Acclaimed chef shares family-friendly recipes in 'Girl Meets Farm'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Embrace the country life with cookbook author, food blogger, TV personality and chef Molly Yeh ("The Best Thing I Ever Ate") during a brand-new episode of "Girl Meets Farm," airing Sunday, April 6, on Food Network.

Throughout this delicious and educational series, Yeh — who was once a New Yorker but now lives on a sugar beet farm on the North Dakota-Minnesota border — welcomes friends, family and viewers alike into her gorgeous gourmet kitchen, where she shares personal recipes that reflect, embrace and celebrate her Jewish and Chinese heritage.

Certifiably "food obsessed," Yeh has been on a mission to share her passion for cooking since the release of her 2016 memoir, "Molly On The Range: Recipes and Stories from an Unlikely Life on a Farm." Yeh followed that up with her cookbook "Yogurt" (2018), an ode to one of the culinary world's most versatile ingredients, gaining further virality through her lifestyle and food blog, mynameisyeh.com.

According to Food Network, Yeh's talent in the kitchen has been widely recognized, as she has been "featured by the New York Times, Food & Wine, Bon Appetit and New York Magazine, and has contributed to Vanity Fair, Saveur, Condé Nast Traveler, Food52 and The Jewish Daily Forward. She was named to Forbes' 30 under 30 list for 2017 and Apartment Therapy's 10 under 40 list."

Molly Yeh hosts "Girl Meets Farm"

Now, with more than a dozen seasons of "Girl Meets Farm" under her belt, Yeh has taken her skills and shared them with the masses, showcasing beginner-friendly, time-conscious recipes that are perfect for busy parents and students. Some of her standout dishes include shakshuka with feta, homemade chili potato chips and sesame avocado salsa, gochujang meatloaf sandwiches, Korean corn dogs, grilled cheese with everything bagel seasoning and slow cooker Asian wedding soup.

This week, Yeh takes on a family-friendly challenge as she throws a superhero-themed birthday party for her niece. For dinner, our host prepares green pesto pasta with burrata, a pepperoni pizza cheeseball with crunchy cheese crackers and salami chopped salads. For dessert, she tops it off with a chocolate beet superhero cake that's a real crowd pleaser.

Join Yeh in her food obsession — and perhaps bake a cake of your own — when "Girl Meets Farm" airs a brand-new episode Sunday, April 6, on Food Network.

"Got to Get Out" - Season 1

When there's a million dollars on the line, there's not much people won't do. Seeing 20 contestants living together for a brutal and intensive 10 days of challenges, the all-new reality game show, "Got to Get Out," debuts its first season this Friday, April 11, on Hulu. Hosted by actor Simu Liu ("Shang-Chi and the Legend of the Ten Rings," 2021), this series challenges a group of reality TV newcomers to play against a top-notch group of television veterans, adding money to the final prize pot for each second the players last in the game. Across eight episodes, these contestants will be put through the ringer with several physical and mental challenges, as the game's main objective stays constant: to earn the money, you must steal the prize pot and escape the mansion – either by yourself, or as part of an alliance. The manion's gate will open at random intervals, prompting total chaos as players scramble to grab the money and run, each hoping to earn themselves some big bucks. The longer you wait, however, the more money you win, meaning strategy, patience and quick-thinking take priority over all. This first season, Cynthia Bailey ("Celebrity Big Brother"), Demi Burnett ("Bachelor in Paradise"), Val Chmerkovskiy ("Dancing with the Stars"), Clare Crawley ("The Bachelor"), Rashad Jennings ("Dancing with the Stars"), Susan Noles ("The Golden Bachelor"), Omarosa Manigault Newman ("House of Villains"), Spencer Pratt ("The Hills") and Kim Zolciak-Biermann ("The Real Housewives of Atlanta") play as experienced reality television stars, while newcomers include Jill Ashlock, Lindsey Coffey, Yahné Coleman, Shane Dougherty, Steven Giannopoulos, Steve Helling, Nick Metzler, Stein Retzlaff, Rob Roman, Athena Suich, and Athena Vas.

"Lake George" (2024)

From writer-director Jeffrey Reiner ("High Fidelity"), the ever-comedic and crime-filled "Lake George" is available to stream on Hulu Tuesday, April 8. Fresh out of jail following a 10-year stint, former insurance adjuster Don (Shea Whigham, "American Primeval") finds he doesn't have much of a life left to return to. With no job opportunities and no money to his name, Don decides to collect on an old debt from an Armenian gangster, Armen (Glenn Fleshler, "Billions"). Seeing his desperation, Armen agrees to pay Don back – but only if Don agrees to kill and dispose of Armen's girlfriend, Phyllis (Carrie Coon, "The White Lotus"), in return. While Don agrees, he finds himself unable to get the job done once he's face to face with Phyllis, who then suggests they turn the tables on Armen by stealing the gangster's stashed cash – at least, enough so they can both buy their way into new lives. Also produced by Reiner, "Lake George" features a cast including Max Casella ("Tulsa King"), Ashley Fink ("Glee"), Troy Metcalf ("The Middle"), Joey Oglesby ("Killers of the Flower Moon," 2023), Derek Phillips ("Friday Night Lights") and Keri Safran ("Blush," 2019).

"Magpie" (2024)

Starring Daisy Ridley ("Star Wars: Episode VII – The Force Awakens," 2015), Shazad Latif ("The Man Who Knew Infinity," 2015) and Matilda Lutz ("Brigands: The Quest for Gold"), 2024's "Magpie" – a thrilling neo-noir from director Sam Yates ("Towards Zero") – comes to Hulu this Friday, April 11. With a story by Ridley and a screenplay by Tom Bateman ("Murder on the Orient Express," 2017), "Magpie" follows Ben (Latif) as he chaperones his young daughter while she's working on a film set alongside popular actress Alicia (Lutz). While his wife, Annette (Ridley), is at home tending to their newborn child, Ben finds himself falling for the actress, who turns their lives entirely upside down. Alistair Petrie ("Rogue One: A Star Wars Story," 2016), Pippa Bennett Warner ("See How They Run," 2022) and Cherrelle Skeete ("Hanna") also star.

Simu Liu hosts "Got to Get Out"

Shea Whigham and Carrie Coon star in "Lake George"

Daisy Ridley and Hiba Ahmed in "Magpie"

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: How did they manage to get both Disney and Warner Bros. characters in "Who Framed Roger Rabbit"?

A: As the old punchline says, "Very carefully."

It was indeed a huge achievement to bring together characters from cartoon competitors Disney and Warner Bros., as well as ones owned by King Features Syndicate, Turner, Universal and others, for the 1988 smash "Who Framed Roger Rabbit." And when you need a huge cinematic achievement, who do you call? Steven Spielberg ("Raiders of the Lost Ark," 1981).

The short answer is Spielberg came on board as a producer and used all his Hollywood influence to get various studios to sign up with him.

A scene from "Who Framed Roger Rabbit"

According to a retrospective of the movie published by the Hollywood Reporter, he got them to agree to license their characters for "the unbelievable flat rate" of $5,000 per on-screen appearance.

There was another odd but important stipulation: Warner demanded that its marquee character, Bugs Bunny, receive the same amount of screen time as Disney's leading character, Mickey Mouse. You can see it in the scene where they both skydive out of a plane with the live-action main character Eddie Valiant (Bob Hoskins, "The Long Good Friday," 1980).

That same dynamic plays out with a few other characters. Daffy Duck (WB) and Donald Duck (Disney) are on screen together for the exact same amount of time, playing piano at a night club. And at the end, Porky Pig (WB) gets to do his "That's all, folks" line, but is then magicked away so Disney's Tinker Bell can do her own traditional end-of-show goodbye.

Q: Where is Bonnie Hunt nowadays? I haven't seen her in a while.

A: Once a very visible face and name on TV — starring in a string of three shows with her name right in the title and ending with the daytime talker "The Bonnie Hunt Show" from 2008 to 2010 — Bonnie Hunt ("Jumanji," 1995) has retreated from the limelight a little, but she's no less busy.

Hunt is now a prolific voice actor, with longstanding gigs in some of the biggest animated films of all time. She is, for example, Sally in the Cars franchise, Dolly in "Toy Story 3" (2010) and "Toy Story 4" (2019), and she voiced a character creatively named Bonnie Hopps in "Zootopia" in 2016.

She also does work behind the scenes, such as writing and producing the 2022 AppleTV+ dramedy series "Amber Brown."

But, she still steps in front of the camera from time to time, most recently in a pretty big way. She was Mrs. Claus in 2024's "Red One," the mega-budget Christmas action-comedy that also starred Dwayne Johnson ("Black Adam," 2022) and Chris Evans ("The Avengers," 2012).

Hunt has always had a pretty diverse career, often writing and producing the projects she's starred in, especially all those "Bonnie" shows, which also included the two-season sitcom "Life With Bonnie" from 2002 to 2004 and another sitcom simply called "Bonnie" from 1995 to 1996.

It all stems from her early days as an improv performer in Chicago. This included being part of the legendary Second City troupe, which launched the careers of many other great multitasking stars.
