Late Laughs

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Tonight [Sept. 24], [President] Trump hosted President Xi [Jinping] for a state dinner at the White House. Trump walked into the dining room and said, "Where the hell is Xi?" The staffer said, "The president of China is right there. If you're talking about Melania, we have no idea."

The menu for tonight's [Sept. 24] dinner included sesame-crusted sea bass, braised baby bok choy, roasted garden eggplant and two Big Macs with large fries and a Diet Coke. But this is nice. President Xi is sending two panda bears to America. Isn't that nice? Yeah, then Trump was like, "And I'm sending China our most prized animal: Jimothy the Raccoon."

I saw that Lowe's is launching a drone delivery service with DoorDash. Yeah, I like the idea of a person who wants to tackle a DIY project but is too lazy to drive to Lowe's.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

There's a big storm, a powerful nor'easter as they call them, making its way to New York right now. The first time we went to Brooklyn in 2012, the first night, we got hit by Hurricane Sandy and we had to shut down the show. That was a different time, 2012. It's before we got hit by Hurricane Donnie and had to shut down the show.

Reporters from CNN, MS Now and Politico are back to work at the White House, for the most part. They got banned from the party tonight [Sept. 24] after a federal judge ordered the Trump administration to open the doors and let them back in. They're back whether the president wants them or not, and he does not. At this point, the only thing more unwelcome in the Oval Office is a salad.

During their press conference today [Sept. 24], [President Xi Jinping] announced that as a gesture of goodwill, he would be sending two giant pandas to the United States, which is a very bad idea. You know, if they send Trump pandas, he's definitely going to eat them. Did these pandas come express?

Late Night With Seth Meyers

President Trump attended the Tennessee-Texas football game on Saturday [Sept. 26] and appeared to be booed by fans when he was shown on the jumbotron. I'm sorry — he got booed at a game between Tennessee and Texas? It's like Bernie Sanders getting booed at a bookstore in Vermont.

Before traveling to the Presidents Cup golf tournament yesterday [Sept. 27], President Trump told reporters, "We have the best poverty numbers ever in the history of our country." And you know it's true because you heard it from a billionaire on his way to a private country club.

The chain Round Table Pizza recently announced a new collaboration with Dr. Pepper to offer a Dr. Pepper barbecue pizza, and after you eat it, you'll also be collaborating with a doctor.

Pulling society's strings: Monied feuds continue in new 'The Gilded Age'

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

The aristocrats of 1880s New York City are buzzing with activity all up and down East 61st Street. There is gossip to spread, alliances to be made and social power to be won. One of HBO's most anticipated returning shows is back Sunday, Nov. 1, with the Season 4 premiere of "The Gilded Age." Series creator, writer and executive producer Julian Fellowes ("Downton Abbey") helms another season of the hit historical drama that racked up eight nominations at the 78th annual Primetime Emmy Awards.

The tension between old and new money has been powering the New York society rumor mill of "The Gilded Age" since the show's debut in 2022. The Russells' arrival across the street from society leader Agnes van Rhijn's (Christine Baranski, "The Good Fight") home kicked off a seasons-long game of chess that seemed to have gone Bertha Russell's (Carrie Coon, "The White Lotus") way in last season's finale.

As one generation keeps up appearances, the next is blazing a new trail. Agnes' niece Marian Brook (Louisa Jacobson, "Materialists," 2025) continues to pursue a career as a teacher, deferring the obligation of women of her age and social standing to marry and commit to domestic life. Bright and gifted, Peggy Scott (Denée Benton, "The Drop: A Snowfall Saga") balances the excitement of her upcoming wedding with her own ambitions.

Per HBO, "Bertha Russell changed society at a cost. Now, her family must reckon with the consequences as Agnes van Rhijn seizes an opportunity to regain her position. Meanwhile, Marian forges a new path for herself, and Peggy works to be accepted by her future in-laws. In this new era, you must be careful what you wish for."

Returning cast members include Cynthia Nixon ("And Just Like That...") as new head of household Ada Forte; Morgan Spector ("Black Rabbit") as railroad tycoon George Russell, Bertha's husband; Taissa Farmiga ("American Horror Story") as their daughter, Gladys Vere, Duchess of Buckingham; Harry Richardson ("Not Suitable for Work") as their son, Larry Russell; and Blake Ritson ("Foundation") as Agnes' son, Oscar van Rhijn.

Denée Benton and Jordan Donica in "The Gilded Age"

Also returning are Ben Ahlers ("The Last of Us") as footman-turned-inventor Jack Trotter; Kelley Curran ("The Blacklist") as widow Enid Winterton; Jordan Donica ("Charmed") as Peggy's fiancé, Dr. William Kirkland; Audra McDonald ("Private Practice") as Dorothy Scott, Peggy's mother; Brian Stokes Mitchell ("Evil") as Frederick Kirkland; John Douglas Thompson ("Mare of Easttown") as pharmacist Arthur Scott, Peggy's father; Bill Camp ("Presumed Innocent") as J.P. Morgan; and Phylicia Rashad ("Diarra From Detroit") as Elizabeth Kirkland.

The battle for power between the Russells and the van Rhijns continues this season with an elite visitor. Agnes hosts sitting president Grover Cleveland (Jim Gaffigan, "Full Circle"), ratcheting up the war between the two houses.

In an interview with Entertainment Weekly about the upcoming season, Nixon shared, "I think my main role is really to try and pull the reins back, try and restrain Agnes from completely losing her mind on Mrs. Russell and embarrassing herself and embarrassing the family."

It sounds like the two matriarchs get dangerously close to public embarrassment before Ada steps in, based on what Baranski said about the feud in the same interview. "It's great fun because Carrie and I get to go head-to-head," the actress said.

"Over the course of eight episodes, a great deal happens," Baranski said of the new season. "And because there are so many well-established characters at this point, you have all these narrative lines and scenes moving from one another with great panache."

The official trailer for the upcoming season teases a few of those many storylines. With ambitions of her own, Peggy looks blindsided by her father and fiancé, assuming that she will go where William's career may take them rather than stay where hers is flourishing. Jack struggles with bridging two very different worlds as he is welcomed into the upper class. Marian continues to circle Larry while maintaining that her passion lies in helping others. Always up to something, Oscar and Enid's plans for a marriage of convenience make them the centre of attention. While Bertha pulled off incredible feats for the sake of her family and its reputation last season, her marriage to George remains on rocky ground.

Also starring this season are Ashlie Atkinson ("Mr. Robot"), Dylan Baker ("The Good Wife"), Jessica Frances Dukes ("The Westies"), Amy Forsyth ("Dear Edward"), Jack Gilpin ("Billions"), Simon Jones ("Downton Abbey," 2019), Celia Keenan-Bolger ("The Terror"), Ben Lamb ("Knightfall"), Debra Monk ("New Amsterdam"), Hattie Morahan ("Fool Me Once"), Donna Murphy ("Brilliant Minds"), Kristine Nielsen ("Z: The Beginning of Everything"), Kelli O'Hara ("Sheriff Country"), Taylor Richardson ("Rise"), Douglas Sills ("Ghosts"), Erin Wilhelmi ("The Accidental Wolf"), Taylor Trensch ("Your Monster," 2024), James Scully ("Titans"), Dennis Haysbert ("Holidazed"), Neal Huff ("The Madness"), Bonnie Milligan ("Search Party"), Dallas Roberts ("Tulsa King"), Andrew Burnap ("Under the Banner of Heaven"), Elizabeth Marvel ("Mrs. Davis"), Adrienne Warren ("The Diplomat") and newcomer Maggie Kuntz.

Salli Richardson-Whitfield ("Task") is director and executive producer, while Sonja Warfield ("Zoe Ever After") is a writer and executive producer for this season of "The Gilded Age." Gareth Neame ("All Her Fault"), David Crockett ("Unstoppable," 2024), Bob Greenblatt ("Six Feet Under"), Kate Churchill ("Anniversary," 2025), Davita Scarlett ("Queen Sugar") and Elaine Aronson ("First Wives Club") also serve as executive producers. Co-executive producers are historian Erica Armstrong Dunbar ("Emancipation," 2022) and Holly Rymon ("Succession").

Catch the season premiere of "The Gilded Age" Sunday, Nov. 1, on HBO.

Back to 'Black': 'Black Doves' returns for second season of political treason

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Keira Knightley in "Black Doves"

In October 2010, amid news of a series of Indonesian natural disasters, the co-ordinated rescue of miners following a collapse in Copiapó, Chile, and the launch of a new social media app called Instagram, the U.K. was rocked by the revelation of decades-long high-level deception. Now widely referred to as the Spycops Scandal, Guardian journalists Paul Lewis and Rob Evans helped activist groups to expose a police program in which "at least 139 undercover officers in deployments typically lasting four years were sent to infiltrate mainly left-wing and progressive groups" for the purpose of "gathering intelligence that could be used to disrupt and monitor political groups" (TheGuardian.com).

As it turns out, in the years between its 1969 inception and its 2010 exposure, the Spycops program is reported to have "spied on more than 1,000 political groups" in the U.K., a fact that rightfully unsettled many Brits. And while there are several other dubious activities surrounding the Spycops scandal that make it an unthinkable misuse of power (interested parties are encouraged to seek out details on TheGuardian.com), television writer/producer Joe Barton ("The Lazarus Project") became inspired to create some of his own complicated political characters.

"Black Doves," which initially debuted in December 2024, is back for a second season of thrilling political espionage starting Thursday, Nov. 5, on Netflix.

In "Black Doves," Keira Knightley ("Atonement," 2007) stars as Helen Webb, the sophisticated wife of British Defence Secretary Wallace Webb (Andrew Buchan, "Broadchurch"). While the public strictly knows her in relation to her husband and his lofty political aspirations, Helen has a secret of her own. As an agent for the Black Doves, Helen is responsible for selling national secrets to the highest bidder via an underground network of freelance spies.

"In Season 2, Helen is still betraying her nation's secrets to the covert organization she serves," begins Netflix's plot synopsis. "But after the misadventures of last Christmas, and with her husband, Wallace, preparing to become prime minister, she's walking a more treacherous line than ever."

The synopsis continues: "As Helen's enigmatic handler, Mrs. Reed [Sarah Lancashire, "Happy Valley"], is ensnared in a ruthless plot to undermine her position in the Black Doves, Helen is reunited with her best friend, Sam [Ben Whishaw, "Skyfall," 2012]. The once high-end triggerman is now reduced to lonely drinks in Soho bars and low-rate hits. As they search for answers, loyalties are weaponized, trust is shattered, and the fight to protect the people they love could cost everything.

"With all the explosive wit of Season 1, Helen and Sam's mission leads them back to old friends and enemies, through the dark decisions and painful sacrifices of their pasts, and right to the heart of the Black Doves."

Although "Black Doves" is entirely fictional, Helen and Wallace's relationship dynamic was inspired by very real relationships formed during the Spycops affair. Wallace, oblivious to Helen's true identity, married the spy and fathered two children with her — a situation not unlike several cases raised in the U.K. following the 2010 undercover police inquiry that were declared by Metropolitan Police in a public statement to be "abusive, deceitful, manipulative and wrong."

In addition to Helen's ongoing whopper of a secret, her and Wallace's marriage was previously in hot water because of her affair with Jason Davies (Andrew Koji, "Warrior"), whose murder at the hand of London's criminal underworld drove the show's Season 1 plot. Should he discover her treasonous behavior, there is no obvious way their union — or Wallace's political campaign — would survive. The question is: how far will Helen go to keep her shadow self a secret?

Joining the cast this season is Babou Ceesay ("Alien: Earth") as Mr. Conteh, "a Black Doves executive with suspicious motives"; Ambika Mod ("This Is Going to Hurt") as Laila, an "acerbic and anarchic Black Doves agent sent to help Helen on a mission"; and Sam Reilly ("Control," 2007) as Patrick, an "emissary from a mysterious organization who offers Sam a lifeline." Also appearing this season are Sylvia Hoeks ("See") and Goran Kostic ("Taken," 2008) as Katia and Alexi Chernov; Samuel Barnett ("Dirk Gently's Holistic Detective Agency") as Jerry (no surname or additional character information as of writing); and Scream franchise actress and Canadian icon Neve Campbell, who stars as Cecile Mason.

"I couldn't be more excited to delve back into the world of our murderous little spy family," Barton said of the show's second-season return. "To have so many [members] of our amazing cast returning and also being able to add some of my absolute favourite actors into the mix is such a great joy. Downing Street will never be the same."

Flip over to Netflix this fall for a peak at the stress and excitement that comes hand-in-hand with leading a double life. "Black Doves" returns for Season 2 Thursday, Nov. 5.

Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson tackles comedy in new special

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Mike on mic: Boxing legend Mike Tyson swaps the ring for the stage, "[letting] loose like never before with outrageous stories, wild reflections and zero filter" (per Netflix), in his latest one-man show. Filmed at the Seminole Hard Rock Hotel & Casino in Hollywood, Florida, the all-new special "Mike Tyson: Return of the Mike" premieres on Netflix Tuesday, Nov. 3, documenting Tyson's first on-stage performance since 2013.

"It's Tyson like you've never seen him: Unguarded, unpredictable and genuinely hilarious — proof that the baddest man on the planet might also be one of the funniest," the show's logline reads, suggesting the boxer is more than able to hold his own in the world of comedy.

As the youngest heavyweight boxing champion in the sport's history — taking the title at only 20 years old — Tyson reigned undisputed over his opponents and his fans from 1987 to 1990. Four decades after his retirement, Tyson was still beloved by fans and returned to the ring for a match against internet celebrity-turned-boxer Jake Paul ("Bizaardvark") in 2024 — which is the most-streamed sporting event of all time.

Despite the shine of his success, Tyson's reputation was tarnished by incarceration, financial strain, substance abuse and in-ring controversies. In this special, Tyson addresses many of those dark moments and controversies head-on.

"Most people are too scared to look at their lives objectively, wanting to paint themselves as the hero of their own story," Tyson explained, speaking with Netflix. "But if we are truly objective, we know we can never be the hero in our own story. We have to be able to face the man in the mirror — taking the good with the bad — to give a full account of our contributions in this life."

Later, while discussing "Return of the Mike" with ESPN, Tyson shared that "a lot has happened since the last time [he] did a one-man show."

"I get to tell you guys about all of my new lawsuits that you don't know about and some other pretty exciting stuff that has happened in my life," the boxer joked. "It'll be very exciting, pretty riveting, a few sad stories and a totally different insight on the things that you may have already known about."

Also acting as the directorial debut of Lakiha "Kiki" Spicer — Tyson's wife — "Mike Tyson: Return of the Mike" lands Tuesday, Nov. 3, on Netflix.

Stars on ice: Spend some time on the ice with singer Michael Bublé ("Haven't Met You Yet") and TV personality Drew Scott ("Property Brothers") — two hockey fans from British Columbia — as they welcome viewers into the cutthroat world of major junior hockey in "Hometown Giants," now streaming on Prime Video.

With Bublé and Scott at the helm, this fledgling series follows the young players of the Western Hockey League's Vancouver Giants — players no younger than 16 and no older than 20 — through their 2025-26 season. As team part-owners, Bublé and Scott (who have been minority owners of the major junior hockey team since 2008 and 2023, respectively) set out to earn the team's first championship title since 2007.

Across six episodes, "Hometown Giants" captures the "bold front-office decisions, roster-shaping trades and high-pressure moments that define a season in which NHL dreams hang in the balance and every shift could make or break a future" (per Amazon).

"But for the players, hockey is only part of the story," says the streamer. "They're teenagers living away from home, finishing high school, navigating first relationships and chasing NHL dreams they've built their lives around — even though only a few will ever make it."

Mike Tyson in "Mike Tyson: Return of the Mike"

As reported by The Washington Free Press, Bublé and Scott thought of fellow Canadian Ryan Reynolds ("Deadpool," 2016) — who co-owns the Wrexham FC, a Welsh soccer club — when they set out to film "Hometown Giants." Reynolds and fellow actor Rob Mac ("It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia") have documented the highs and lows of their experience across five seasons of "Welcome to Wrexham."

According to Scott, Reynolds did not hold back.

"All Canadian celebrities, they buy a sports team. That's just what we do. His advice was, 'Don't do it,'" Scott shared, detailing the conversation during Prime Video's Upfront presentation in May. "But all jokes aside, I mean, it was great to talk to somebody who's been through this and what he's done with his team and with Wrexham is phenomenal."

While there are many similarities between "Wrexham" and "Hometown Giants," Bublé highlights one key difference in the series trailer.

"This is one step below pro, but these are teenagers," he says. "The best young hockey players. And they've all come here chasing the same thing."

Regardless, Bublé recognizes the universal draw of an underdog story. "I don't think there's anything more compelling than seeing somebody fight for their life."

Produced by Scott Brothers Entertainment, "Hometown Giants" is now streaming on Prime Video.

"Bass X Machina" – Season 1

Saddle up for the wildest ride the West has ever seen when Season 1 of "Bass X Machina" premieres Tuesday, Nov. 3, on Netflix. Inspired by the legend of Bass Reeves, this adult animated Western is set in a lawless frontier where steam-powered machines and supernatural creatures roam freely, leaving Bass (Brian Tyree Henry, "Atlanta") to take the law into his own hands as the town's judge, jury and executioner. Along the way, he crosses paths with Glory (Janelle Monae, "Hidden Figures," 2016), Dana (Tati Gabrielle, "You"), Lighthorse (Chaske Spencer, "Twilight," 2008), Ahni (Cree Summer, "A Different World"), Rivenbark (Currie Graham, "NYPD Blue") and Etta (Starletta DuPois, "The Notebook," 2004), but every act of justice comes with a price, and the harder Bass fights to protect the people he loves most, the closer he drifts toward losing every last one of them in the process.

"Animals" (2026)

After arriving in select theaters last month, Ben Affleck's ("Argo," 2012) political crime thriller "Animals" is now streaming on Netflix. With a screenplay co-written by Affleck, Billy Ray ("Breach," 2007) and Connor O. McIntyre (who is reportedly working on a "Lights Out" sequel), "Animals" marks Affleck's sixth feature film as a director. Affleck stars as Mark Kimball, a Los Angeles mayoral candidate whose life takes a drastic turn for the worse when his son (Christopher Woodley, "Spirit Rangers") is kidnapped, with the clock ticking on a ransom he and his wife, Abigail (Kerry Washington, "Scandal"), can barely cover. A costly campaign has drained their finances, leaving only hours to find the money and no clean way to get it. To get their son back, the couple has to start digging into corners of their lives they never wanted anyone else to see — and the life they've built together may just come crashing down with it. With many difficult choices left to make, Mark and Abigail must decide how far they'll go to bring their son home. Gillian Anderson ("The Crown"), Steven Yeun ("Beef"), Luis Gerardo Mendez ("Murder Mystery," 2019), Adriana Paz ("Emilia Perez," 2024) and Ray Fisher ("Justice League," 2017) round out the film's cast.

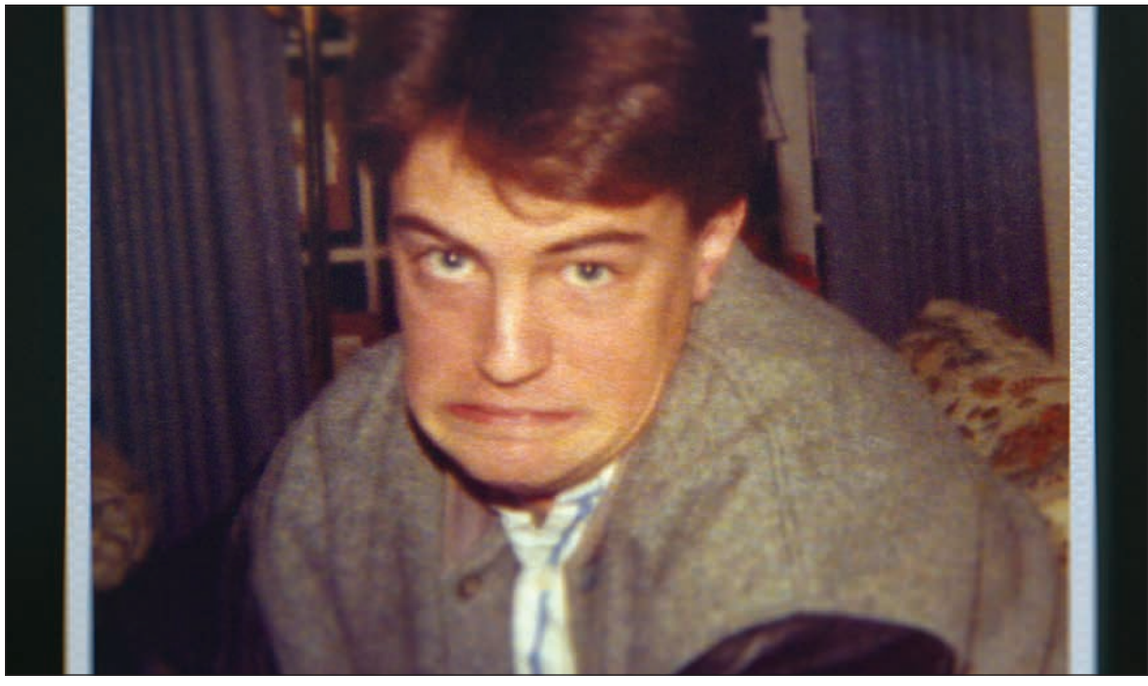

"The One About Matthew Perry"

Could he be any more iconic? Honoring an icon of '90s television, "The One About Matthew Perry" is streaming now on Netflix. From 1994 to 2004, actor Matthew Perry ("17 Again," 2009) delighted audiences as the sardonic, sarcastic and hilarious Chandler Bing in "Friends." Whether you watched the episodes live, through reruns or through streaming, generations of viewers related to Chandler's self-effacing comedy, making the character — and Perry by extension — a friend to fans across the globe. Behind the on-screen jokes, laughs and gags, however, Perry was facing internal struggles of his own, including a long and difficult battle with addiction. In October 2023, at only 54 years of age, Perry died of an accidental overdose. In this three-part documentary series, director Mary Robertson ("Quiet on Set: The Dark Side of Kids TV") delves into Perry's time on television, sharing stories about his early auditions, sitcom work and film career. Beneath the laughs, Robertson also explores the darker aspects of Perry's life, detailing the actor's aforementioned struggles with addiction and his journey through recovery. Mia Perry Bowick, Perry's younger sister and a psychotherapist, speaks on camera for the first time, while close friends Roger Castillo, Marjorie Harris Newman, actor David Pressman ("It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia"), former NBC president Warren Littlefield ("The Handmaid's Tale") and co-star Billy Gallo ("Who's the Boss?") share memories from the early days.

Jaalen Best and Kai Parham in "The Greatest"

"The Greatest" – Season 1

Before he was known as boxing champion Muhammad Ali, a young Cassius Clay (Jaalen Best, "All American: Homecoming") stepped into the ring with a bold promise to shake up the world. His story is told in Season 1 of "The Greatest," an eight-episode series premiering Wednesday, Nov. 4, on Prime Video. Growing up in Louisville, Kentucky, Cassius Clay develops the confidence and determination that carry him beyond his hometown. His gold medal win at the 1960 Olympics marks an early career milestone, but he wants to prove himself on boxing's biggest stage. Trainer Angelo Dundee (Giovanni Ribisi, "Sneaky Pete") prepares him for the professional circuit, while his family — father Cassius "Cash" Clay Sr. (Omari Hardwick, "Power"), mother Odessa "Bird" Clay (Dana Gourrier, "The Hateful Eight," 2015) and younger brother Rudy (Kai Parham, "Colin in Black & White") — remains close. As his profile steadily rises, Cassius faces heavyweight champion Sonny Liston (Amin Joseph, "Snowfall"). "The Greatest" is the first scripted series about the life of Ali, offering unprecedented access and going beyond the amazing victories and defeats that made Ali a legend — both in and out of the ring. Ali's widow, Lonnie Ali, serves as an executive producer after previously serving as a producer in "Ali in Me" last year, as well as the 2021 documentary "City of Ali."

"Stick" – Season 2

Grab your clubs and cue the fairway banter because "Stick" tees off its second season with a two-episode premiere Wednesday, Nov. 4, on Prime Video via the Apple TV channel. Talent is a gift until everyone starts expecting it. Just ask young Santi Wheeler (Peter Dager, "Insidious: The Red Door," 2023), who works his way closer to the pro ranks and discovers how quickly the game changes when promise turns into pressure. Meanwhile, his mentor, Pryce Cahill (Owen Wilson, "Wedding Crashers," 2005), has an old score of his own to settle. Cahill sets his sights on a major title, a comeback that means finally facing the past he has dodged for two decades. Along for the ride is coach Amanda (Rhea Seehorn, "Better Call Saul") and his old friend and caddie, Mitts (Marc Maron, "GLOW"). Created by Jason Keller ("Mirror Mirror," 2012), this heartfelt comedy keeps its makeshift family close as the stakes climb, with new episodes teeing up weekly through Dec. 30. Elena (Mariana Trevino, "A Man Called Otto," 2022), Amber-Linn (Judy Greer, "Archer") and Clark Ross (Timothy Olyphant, "Justified") all return for another season.

"Treasure Island" – Season 1

Shiver me timbers! A brand-new episode of "Treasure Island" sets sail Sunday, Nov. 1, on Prime Video via MGM+. Set in 1788, the adventure follows restless teenager Jim Hawkins (Tom Sweet, "Great Expectations") and his fierce mother, Bess (Hayley Atwell, "Captain America: The First Avenger," 2011), as they are pulled from the rugged Cornish coast into a deadly race for Capt. Flint's fortune. With a treasure map in hand, Jim and Bess board the Hispaniola and soon find themselves caught between two dangerous men. Their voyage threatens to turn a sheltered boy into a daring young pirate, as ruthless survivor Long John Silver (David Oyelowo, "Selma," 2014) and revolutionary spy Aaron Graham (Jack Huston, "Boardwalk Empire") compete for control. Across treacherous seas and a jungle island filled with secrets, Jim must learn who to trust as danger closes in from every direction. Tomer Capone ("The Boys") rounds out the cast of this coming-of-age adventure.

Awkwafina revives family restaurant in Apple series

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Comedian Awkwafina ("Crazy Rich Asians," 2018) may be best known to television (and her friends and family) as Nora from Queens, but this autumn you can catch her as queen of the kitchen. Well ... kind of.

Apple TV's new cooking series, "Awkwafina: The Unlikely Cook," premieres on the streamer Friday, Nov. 6, and follows the actress as she learns the skills that supported her family years before she was born.

"I can't cook. Like, at all," says Awkwafina, whose given name is Nora Lum. And while this may not seem like a big problem for many celebrities who can afford to eat out, order in or hire a chef, Awkwafina's lack of kitchen skills has always been a bit of a sticking point on account of her family's close ties to food.

"My great-grandpa opened one of New York City's first Chinese-American restaurants, Lum's," shared the comedian in preparation for her new series. "Call me crazy, but I've set myself the challenge of bringing Lum's back."

Over eight episodes, "Awkwafina: The Unlikely Cook" follows the actress on a "cross-country culinary road trip" as she meets with

Awkwafina and Jimmy O. Yang in "Awkwafina: The Unlikely Cook"

"acclaimed chefs, celebrated restaurateurs and her family ... [and] sets out to build her kitchen skills, explore contemporary Asian American cuisine and reimagine Lum's legacy for a new generation."

According to the series description from Apple.com, "Nora takes a crash course at the Culinary Institute of America, hits the road for Texas barbecue with Jimmy O. Yang ["Interior Chinatown"] and learns from culinary icons Roy Choi ["Broken Bread"] and Martin Yan ["Iron Chef America: The Series"]. In Hawaii, she explores the tiki culture that inspired her grandma's restaurant, before taking on the challenges of serving at a restaurant in Los Angeles' Chinatown."

She has lots on her plate (so to speak) and "it all builds toward one high-stakes opening night and the toughest VIP diner of all: her grandma."

So, pull up a chair, set aside your expectations and wash your dinner down with some Awkwafina this fall: Apple TV launches "Awkwafina: The Unlikely Cook" Friday, Nov. 6.

The End of Oak Street

In 1982, members of the Platt family struggle to hold their lives together as marital tensions, financial troubles and family conflicts threaten to unravel their seemingly ordinary suburban existence. Denise Platt (Hathaway) dreams of becoming a novelist, while her husband, Greg (McGregor), struggles with unemployment and secretly works as a pizza delivery driver. Their children, Audrey (Stella) and Brian (Convery), are dealing with their own challenges. After a mysterious cosmic event unleashes a blinding flash of light, the entire neighborhood is inexplicably transported to a prehistoric world inhabited by dinosaurs and other dangerous creatures. What begins as confusion quickly turns into a desperate fight for survival.

Forbidden Fruits

Working at Free Eden, a trendy clothing store in a Dallas shopping mall, Apple (Reinhart) leads a seemingly glamorous life alongside her co-workers Cherry (Pedretti) and Fig (Shipp). Behind the store's fashionable facade, the three women secretly operate as a witch coven, performing rituals in the basement and maintaining a twisted version of sisterhood built on loyalty, manipulation and strict rules. Their carefully controlled world is disrupted when Pumpkin (Tung), a new employee from the mall's pretzel counter, catches their attention and is invited into their inner circle. As Pumpkin becomes involved with the group, she begins to uncover the disturbing secrets beneath their carefully curated image of female empowerment.

Director: Meredith Alloway. Stars: Lili Reinhart, Lola Tung, Victoria Pedretti, Alexandra Shipp, Emma Chamberlain, Gabrielle Union. 2026. 103 min. Comedy Horror.

Super Troopers 3

The Vermont State Police's most unpredictable officers are back. When the obnoxious Trooper Farva (Heffernan) becomes engaged to Thorny's (Chandrasekhar) sister (Simone), his over-the-top Indian engagement celebrations quickly spiral out of control. Thorny, convinced the relationship is a terrible idea, launches a series of schemes to sabotage the romance before it can reach the altar.

Director: Jay Chandrasekhar. Stars: Jay Chandrasekhar, Kevin Heffernan, Steve Lemme, Paul Soter, Erik Stolhanske, Hannah Simone, Nat Faxon, Chace Crawford, Brian Cox. 2026. 104 min. Comedy.

Tracy Morgan in "The Fall and Rise of Reggie Dinkins"

Holiday Baking Championship

FOOD 8:00 PM

As a new season begins, host Jesse Palmer divides the 12 bakers into two teams before challenging them to make holiday stained-glass cakes. The winning team walks away with a $1,000 prize package, while one member of the losing team faces elimination.

The Fall and Rise of Reggie Dinkins

(5) (12) 8:30 PM

The comeback documentary still isn't finished, and the family drama keeps multiplying. Reggie Dinkins (Tracy Morgan) reels as son Carmelo (Jalyn Hall) dates the daughter of old gridiron nemesis Jerry Basmati (Craig Robinson) in this Season 2 premiere.

Foul Play With Anthony Davis

TBS 9:00 PM

A kids' TV segment goes off the rails when Anthony Davis sets up Pro Bowl safety Tyrann Mathieu and a puppeteer melts down on cue. Then, billionaire Mark Cuban aims a T-shirt cannon prank at ex-NBA forward Chandler Parsons that goes hilariously sideways.

CIA

(3) 9:00 PM

Rules are optional for spy Colin Glass (Tom Ellis), which keeps FBI partner Bill Goodman (Nick Gehlfuss) on edge. Working out of the agency's New York station, the mismatched duo hunts threats on American soil, finding strength in their friction.

Omar Metwally in "Doc"

The Amateur

HBO 6:05 PM

After his wife, Sarah (Rachel Brosnahan), is killed in a vicious terrorist attack, CIA decoder Charlie Heller (Rami Malek) begins a daring search for those responsible, using his skills as an agent to track down potential suspects.

Vote 2026: PBS News Election Special

(33) (57) 8:00 PM

Control of Congress hangs on every precinct. Amna Nawaz and Geoff Bennett anchor live midterm coverage as results pour in for all 435 House seats, 35 Senate contests and 36 governorships, with expert analysis to help viewers make sense of a long night.

Doc

(12) (44) 9:00 PM

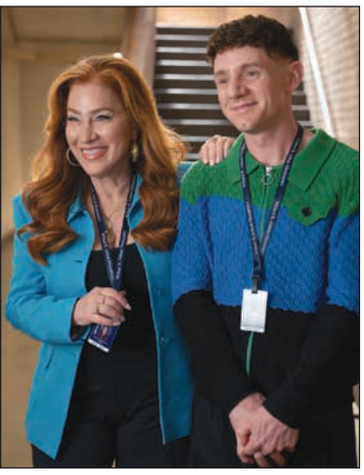

Dr. Amy Larsen (Molly Parker) keeps piecing together a life she can't fully remember, the last eight years erased by a brain injury. Former patients, colleagues and the tragedy that once drove her from everyone she loved stay frustratingly out of reach.

The Golden Life

E! 10:00 PM

As Season 1 continues, Luann begins the final stretch of her cabaret tour, Dorinda adjusts to living in Palm Beach, Fla., Sonja and Kelly put their differences behind them and things go off the rails when Sonja clashes with Dorinda at the spa.

Lisa Ann Walter and Chris Perfetti in "Abbott Elementary"

NHL Hockey

TNT TRUTV 7:30 PM

Sasha Barkov is back, and so is Florida's swagger. After missing the playoffs, the two-time champion Panthers unleash their healthy captain and brothers Matthew and Brady Tkachuk on Connor Bedard's Chicago Blackhawks at Amerant Bank Arena in Sunrise, Fla.

Abbott Elementary

(22) 8:30 PM

Short on supplies but never on heart, Janine Teagues (Quinta Brunson) and the rest of the staff keep improvising for the kids at their Philadelphia public school, while Principal Coleman (Janelle James) finds fresh ways to test everyone's patience.

NOVA

(33) (57) 9:00 PM

Why did life bother splitting into males and females? Scientists trace sex from single-celled beginnings to showy courtship feathers, revealing how the drive to mate pushed species to specialize and helped shape everything from microbes to the ostrich.

99 to Beat

(44) 9:00 PM

Ken Jeong and Erin Andrews host this game show where 100 contestants go head-to-head across a range of distinctive and hilarious games such as Fish Fling and Rope Wrangle. Each round drops the number of players down until one person is left standing.

"The Devil Wears Prada" (2006)

Based on the novel by Lauren Weisberger and brought to the screen by director David Frankel ("One Chance," 2013), 2006's "The Devil Wears Prada" arrives Sunday, Nov. 1, on Hulu. Andy Sachs (Anne Hathaway, "The Princess Diaries," 2001) is an aspiring journalist who lands a coveted job at Runway magazine in New York City, but her big break quickly turns into a trial by fire under the command of formidable editor-in-chief Miranda Priestly (Meryl Streep, "Only Murders in the Building"), whose icy demands and impossible standards push Andy to her limit. As Andy learns the ropes of working in a cutthroat industry — guided by Nigel (Stanley Tucci, "The Lovely Bones," 2009) and her clashing co-assistant Emily (Emily Blunt, "Oppenheimer," 2023) — she secures a trip to Paris Fashion Week. But behind the glitz and glamor, Andy must decide how much of herself she's willing to sacrifice to succeed in Miranda's world. Karen Rosenfelt ("Twilight," 2008) and Joseph M. Caracciolo Jr. ("Dune: Part 1," 2021) executive produce.

"Percy Jackson and the Olympians" – Seasons 1 & 2

With Season 3 of "Percy Jackson and the Olympians" scheduled to premiere later this month, catch up on the first two seasons, arriving Sunday, Nov. 1, on Hulu. Based on the bestselling book series by Rick Riordan, the series finds young Percy Jackson (Walker Scobell, "The Adam Project," 2022) being sheltered at Camp Half-Blood, a sanctuary for demigod children, after the death of his mother. Discovering that he himself is a demigod, Percy, with the help of his new friends Annabeth (Leah Jeffries, "Beast," 2022) and Grover (Aryan Simhadri, "Trevor: The Musical," 2022), sets out on a quest to prove himself, confront his origins and pursue new enemies in search of the Underworld, hoping to find out whom he's truly destined to be. Season 2 sees Percy returning to Camp Half-Blood one year later, only to find his world completely changed — including learning of his long-lost cyclops brother, Tyson (Daniel Diemer, "Under the Bridge"). Created by Riordan and Jonathan Steinberg ("Black Sails"), the series' star-studded cast also includes Dior Goodjohn ("Are You Afraid of the Dark?") and Charlie Bushnell ("Diary of a Future President").

"All's Fair" – Season 2

Is all truly fair in love and law? Hulu's legal drama "All's Fair" returns for a new season with a three-episode premiere starting Wednesday, Nov. 4, with Kim Kardashian ("The Kardashians"), Naomi Watts ("King Kong," 2005), Glenn Close ("Fatal Attraction," 1987), Niecy Nash-Betts ("Claws") and Teyana Taylor ("Straw," 2025) reprising their roles. According to the official logline, "[t]he lawyers of Grant, Ronson & Greene are back for another season of scandals, secrets and stilettos. As new allegiances form, friendships are tested, and a shocking revelation threatens the very existence of the firm." Also starring Sarah Paulson ("American Horror Story") as Carrington Lane and Matthew Noszka ("No Hard Feelings," 2023) as Chase Munroe, this new season features a lineup of guest appearances from Dorinda Medley ("The Real Housewives of New York City"), Noah Fearnley ("The Company You Keep"), Denise Richards ("The World Is Not Enough," 1999), Jaime Pressly ("My Name Is Earl") and Margo Martindale ("The Americans"). "All's Fair" is created and written by Ryan Murphy ("Glee"), Jon Robin Baitz ("Feud") and Joe Baken ("Doctor Odyssey").

Anne Hathaway, Meryl Streep and Emily Blunt star in "The Devil Wears Prada"

Walker Scobell and Leah Sava Jeffries star in "Percy Jackson and the Olympians"

Kim Kardashian returns as Allura Grant in Season 2 of "All's Fair"

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: How did the Academy Awards get the nickname of "Oscars"?

A: Incredibly, no one seems to know.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, the organization behind the awards, offers only one theory, though it admits it's not certain.

"While the origins of the moniker aren't clear, a popular story has it that upon seeing the trophy for the first time, academy librarian (and eventual executive director) Margaret Herrick remarked that it resembled her Uncle Oscar."

However, others have claimed to have created it over the years.

Most famously, screen legend Bette Davis ("All About Eve," 1950) said in her 1962 autobiography that she named it after her first husband, Harmon Oscar Nelson, in 1936 and that the name just stuck. Specifically, she said the nude statue reminded her of her husband's backside. However, she later backtracked on the claim.

Over the years, gossip columnist Sidney Skolsky and academy secretary Eleanore Lilleberg have also been given the credit, but with less evidence to back it up.

"The only thing we are sure about is it happened around 1935 — around the seventh or eighth year of the Academy Awards," said the late film historian and beloved Turner Classic Movies host Robert Osborne in a 2015 interview.

Q: I still miss "Longmire." What has the guy who played Walt been doing since? Anything similar?

A: The first thing you need to know is that Robert Taylor ("Focus," 2015), who played Sheriff Walt Longmire on the Western drama series "Longmire," is actually Australian. Knowing that will make his partial screen absence make more sense.

After "Longmire" finally wrapped in 2017 (I say "finally" because it was canceled once by A&E before being rescued by Netflix for three more seasons), Taylor essentially started splitting his work between the U.S. and the thriving film-and-TV scene of his homeland.

For example, his first post-"Longmire" role was in the blockbuster American action movie "The Meg" (2018), about a prehistoric shark terrorizing an undersea rescue mission.

Then, a year after that he was starring in the Australian horror film "Blood Vessel," about vampires infesting a lost ship during the Second World War.

But lest he be written off as a water-based horror guy, he was soon appearing in the much more serious Australian series "The Newsreader," a newsroom drama set in the '80s that ran from 2021 to 2025.

Back on this side of the planet, he's had a recurring role in the super-high-profile "NCIS: Origins" as the father of central character Leroy Jethro Gibbs (Austin Stowell, "Whiplash," 2014) since 2024.

Q: Has Amber Marshall ever talked about leaving "Heartland"? It would be a tragedy in my house.

A: The only thing "Heartland" star Amber Marshall has said about leaving the long-running heartwarmer is that she'll never do it.

"I'll do 'Heartland' till I die," she said in an interview earlier this year with CBC, the Canadian network that produces the show. So your household can relax. "This is my life. I love being in Western Canada. I love being on a ranch. I love being surrounded by my animals."

Marshall, who plays the show's main character, rancher Amy Fleming, said that as a child, her dream was to live and work with animals. "I knew that that's who I wanted to be when I grew up ... I wanted to be Amy Fleming."

The show is one of the greatest examples of a Canadian series that's just as successful abroad. Though it is very clear that the show's set in the province of Alberta, among the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, it has nonetheless found an equal or maybe even larger audience among Americans. That's thanks to its syndication on multiple networks, including UPtv, The CW Plus and others.

Marshall might be confident of her ability to stick with the show because it's allowed her time to moonlight. She's done multiple other projects in the years since "Heartland" debuted in 2007.

For example, she starred in the 2023 Hallmark Christmas romance "My Christmas Guide" and another made-for-TV romance, 2020's "Love in Harmony Valley."
