Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

I share your excitement everybody because tonight [Sept. 8] is the 10th anniversary of "The Late Show." Of course, every anniversary has its traditional gift. First anniversary is paper, the fifth anniversary is wood, and the 10th anniversary is cancellation. Thank you. Thank you, Paramount, for remembering.

On Friday [Sept. 5], Donald Trump signed an executive order to rebrand the Defense Department as the Department of War. Oh, a rebrand. You know what that means? The Pentagon is getting bangs.

So how can Donald Trump just change the name of the DoD? Well, he can't, because that would require congressional approval. So Trump is making Department of War the secondary title. Secondary? The government agencies can't have nicknames. Remember when NASA tried to get everybody to call them Big Dawg?

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Yesterday [Sept. 7], here in New York, President Trump attended the U.S. Open final. Yes, Trump was excited. It was the first time in years he went to court without his lawyers.

This year, Trump's been to the Super Bowl, the Daytona 500, the World Cup, two UFC fights and a wrestling championship. Eric and Don Jr. were like, "Still couldn't come to one our Little League games?"

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

If you've ever wondered how far Republicans will go to distract you from the fact that Trump won't release the Epstein files, they actually scheduled UFO hearings. For real. The House Oversight Committee held hearings today [Sept. 9] on UFOs. Even though there's never been a worse time for an alien to visit this planet.

The gang at Forbes last night [Sept. 9] released their annual list of the 400 Richest Americans, which is very big for billionaires. ... For the fourth straight year, Forbes has named Elon Musk the richest American in the world. He also topped the list of Americans we'd most like to see get their penis caught in their zipper.

Just as the Musk celebrations began, there was a twist. Bloomberg this morning [Sept. 10], which is an even more influential outlet in financial circles, released a ranking saying Larry Ellison, the founder of Oracle, is the richest person in the world. He leads Elon Musk by $8 billion. In other words, this was not a good day to be a bag of ketamine in the glove compartment of Elon's Cybertruck.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

President Trump attended the U.S. Open men's finals. Apparently, he became very interested when he found that in tennis, love means nothing.

Authorities in Massachusetts recently arrested two people who allegedly stole more than $2,000 worth of clothing from a TJ Maxx store, so all of it?

Ring of fire: Music City heats up in '9-1-1: Nashville' premiere

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Three chords and the truth can't heal every wound. A new spinoff series follows Music City's emergencies from dispatch to the scene, as "9-1-1: Nashville" premieres Thursday, Oct. 9, on ABC. The procedural sees Tennessee first responders attend to urgent crises that could only happen in a place like Nashville.

Per ABC, "9-1-1: Nashville" is "a high-octane procedural about heroic first responders, as well as their family saga of power and glamour set in one of America's most diverse and dynamic cities." It seems that the firehouse is the center of the glamour and family drama in the upcoming series. Full of multi-talented firefighters and a common last name, there is sure to be lively action between some big personalities in their down time.

The upcoming series cast some real Nashville stars, with Grammy-winning country artist LeAnn Rimes ("It's Christmas, Eve," 2018) in a main role. Rimes is Dixie Bennings, a mother of one of the series' firefighters. Kimberly Williams-Paisley ("Nashville") stars as Cammie Raleigh, the dispatch call center operator. Williams-Paisley calls Nashville home, where she lives with her husband, "Whiskey Lullaby" singer Brad Paisley and their sons.

Guest starring in the series premiere is CMT Music Award winner Kane Brown ("Fire Country"). Brown held down co-hosting duties for four successive CMT Music Awards ceremonies from 2020 to 2023 and made a splash in his first dramatic TV performance when he appeared in an episode of the CBS series "Fire Country" in 2023. ABC revealed that Brown "proves heroic in a major storyline" in the premiere, with a scene set at a concert.

Filling out the main cast are Chris O'Donnell ("NCIS: Los Angeles") as fire captain and rodeo rider Don Hart; Jessica Capshaw ("Grey's Anatomy") as Blythe Hart, Don's wife; Hailey Kilgore ("Power Book III: Raising Kanan") as firefighter and singer Taylor Thompson; Michael Provost ("The Holdovers," 2023) as firefighter and cowboy Ryan Hart; Juani Feliz ("Harlem") as firefighter and former surgeon Roxie Alba; and newcomer Hunter McVey as bad-boy firefighter Blue Bennings, Dixie's son.

Recurring cast members include Gregory Alan Williams ("The Righteous Gemstones") as Harold Foster, Mackenzie Porter ("The Runarounds") as Samantha Hart and Tim Matheson ("Virgin River") as Edward.

As far as what fans can anticipate from the new series, showrunner Rashad Raisani ("Burn Notice") told The Wrap in an interview, "We're going to do what Nashville is known for, among many things, country music and honky-tonks and tornadoes. We'll probably have all three in our first few episodes."

Every first responder in "9-1-1: Nashville" seems to have their own passion outside of saving lives that embraces a facet of Tennessee tradition. Where fellow franchise spinoff "9-1-1: Lone Star" followed a fish out of water fire captain who'd made the move from New York City to Austin, Texas, this new series is packed with characters that live like picture-perfect Nashville natives or transplants there to keep the dream alive.

Don may have passed down his affinity for the rodeo along with the family business of fighting fires to his son, Ryan, who sports the title of modern-day cowboy. On the more glamorous end of what Nashville is known for is Taylor, who moonlights as a singer. Details about Dixie are being kept under wraps for now, but viewers will certainly be anticipating a character played by a real-life country diva to take to the stage at some point. One thing is confirmed, and that is that Dixie's son Blue's wild tendencies led him to a career as a stripper before he moved into the firehouse.

The frequent collaborators behind long-running hits such as anthology series "American Horror Story," Ryan Murphy and Tim Minear teamed up with "9-1-1: Lone Star" writer and producer Raisani to co-create the new spinoff series. Brad Falchuk ("American Crime Story") executive produces the series alongside the creators, "9-1-1" star Angela Bassett, O'Donnell and Bradleu Buecker ("Scream Queens").

The third installment in the "9-1-1" franchise, "9-1-1: Nashville" has arrived just as "9-1-1: Lone Star" completed its five-season run on Fox. Set in the same universe, "Doctor Odyssey" was canceled this summer at ABC after just one season, despite a passionate fan base. It has been an eventful year for the franchise with some unexpected shake-ups that really got viewers talking. "9-1-1" fans will know that a major character death last season shocked viewers who thought if anyone was safe, it was fire captain Bobby Nash (Peter Krause, "Parenthood") who was exposed and succumbed to a lethal virus.

With "9-1-1: Nashville" premiering immediately after the originating series' ninth-season return, it begs the question of crossover possibilities. Entertainment Weekly posed that question to Minear during an interview about the landscape of the franchise, with the creator giving a cheeky non-answer of, "I think the network would love that."

Remain calm and tune in to the disaster-filled series premiere of "9-1-1: Nashville," airing Thursday, Oct. 9, on ABC.

Remaking 'Maigret': Simenon's top detective returns on Masterpiece

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

There is nothing meager about Maigret. First introduced to the public by author Georges Simenon in his 1931 novel "Pietr the Latvian," French police detective Jules Maigret — thanks to his Belgian creator — paved the way for a new literary genre: detective fiction. Now, after 75 novels, 28 short stories and more than 30 actors having portrayed the detail-oriented, street-wise policeman on screen, Maigret is finding a new home on PBS. "Maigret," the six-episode first season, premieres Sunday, Oct. 5, on Masterpiece. Check your local PBS listings for details.

The series, reimagined for modern audiences, stars Benjamin Wainwright ("Belgravia: The Next Chapter") as the titular Parisian chief inspector, who, per the official PBS description, "heads the elite police unit known as La Crim, responsible for investigating all serious crime in and around Paris."

"Maigret is an unconventional young detective with something to prove, relentless in his investigations," the description continues, "with an uncanny ability to get under the skin of the criminals he is chasing and a matchless knowledge of Paris and its inhabitants."

Largely filmed in Budapest, Hungary, in order to evoke the look and feel of Paris without the luxury price tag, this newest iteration of the beloved character's story is the first adaptation to be set against a contemporary backdrop, thus bringing cases and character quirks to the forefront in a more relatable way for modern audiences. And with just three main cases spanning all six episodes of the series' first season, modern audiences may also appreciate this departure from the neatly arranged one-case-per-episode model that has become standard issue for the traditional one-hour procedural.

"Maigret" will be a perfect addition to Masterpiece's lineup of Mystery! shows," Susanne Simpson, executive producer and head of scripted content for Masterpiece, said in a PBS press release. "Our partners at Playground have assembled an incredible cast and creative team, and our audience is going to love Insp. Maigret and his unique style of crime solving."

Benjamin Wainwright in "Maigret"

In preparation for the new series, which is produced for Masterpiece by Playground and distributed by way of Banijay Rights, PBS announced last September that Maigret would return rather differently than the way the many longtime readers may remember him. Although the character's humanity and investigative penchant remain intact, the television network recognizes that this new take on the age-old crime solver is likely to be more inclusive for a new generation of content consumers.

Likewise, audiences are sure to get an updated view of France's capital city — from the Ritz to the riff-raff — rather than the oft-idealized, romantic take on the city that is so often portrayed on both screen and page.

"Maigret" inhabits a vividly realized Paris not often seen on camera," reads PBS's September 2024 adaptation announcement, "[one] that takes us from the glitzy upper-class world of luxury hotels and mansions to local bourgeois bistros and bars and the underground haunts of the professionally criminal."

But, as many fans of Simenon's work or adaptations will already be aware,

Paris is frequently positioned as a central character within Simenon's works. In fact, this focus on a location and the social fabric therein is key to Simenon's oeuvre, meaning that — even with the updated take on its main character — "Maigret" manages to channel the spirit of its author 36 years after his death at home in Lausanne, Switzerland.

"Simenon crisply encapsulates that Paris of neighborhood bars and bistros, of payphones and platform buses, sparing us neither the gloom of November nor the heat of August," France Today reporter Thirza Vallois writes in her 2016 article titled "Georges Simenon's Paris: Following in the Footsteps of his Fictional Sleuth, Jules Maigret," continuing, "He even takes us past the loge of the concierge into private homes and gratifies us with the smell of floor polish or the cooking smells of ragout de mouton, blanquette de veau or tripes à la mode de Caen."

Joining Wainwright in bringing "Maigret's" characters to life are Stefanie Martini ("The Last Kingdom") as Mme. Louise Maigret, wife of the leading man, while Blake Harrison ("The Inbetweeners"), Reda Elazouar ("Sex Education"), Shaniqua Okwok ("The Flatshare"), Kerrie Hayes ("Tin Star") and Rob Kazinsky ("EastEnders") portray Maigret's fellow Paris-based detectives, who together make up the chief inspector's own unofficial task force known as "Les Maigrets."

Amira Ghazalla ("The Baby"), Rebecca Johnston ("Midsommar," 2019),

Jack Deam ("Father Brown"), Alexander Forsyth ("The Capture"), Francis McBurney ("Terminator: Dark Fate," 2019), Daniel Kanalas ("To Russia With Love," 2022), Rachel Shelley ("The L Word"), Waleed Elgadi ("A Hologram for the King," 2016) and Scott Alexander Young ("Tom Clancy's Jack Ryan") also appear.

So, whether you tune in for the intricate crimes, the eccentric detective team or the vicarious experience of trekking around Paris, you can be sure that Masterpiece's "Maigret" has something to offer.

Don't miss the premiere of "Maigret," airing Sunday, Oct. 5, on PBS.

'RHOP' Season 10 sees relationships faltering

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Friendship follies: The landmark 10th season of "The Real Housewives of Potomac" makes a bold impression with a supersized premiere landing Sunday, Oct. 5, on Bravo, with all episodes streaming the next day on Peacock.

In a season promising nonstop drama between the Wives — drama that rips through relationships, business ventures and friendships, according to Bravo — this history-making 10th season will see the return of some familiar "RHOP" faces, including busy single mom Gizelle Bryant, holistic health enthusiast Ashley Darby, political analyst Wendy Osefo, entrepreneur Stacey Rusch and MedSpa owner Keiarna Stewart. The ladies will be joined by two new Housewives — Tia Glover, a British-Nigerian real estate adviser, and Angel Massie, an experiential curator — and by longstanding "RHOP" player Monique Samuels, who makes her long-awaited comeback to the series following her Season 5 exit and "stirs the pot as a friend of the Housewives," per Bravo.

In an announcement shared by the network, "RHOP" promises this double-digit season will offer a "new chapter with fresh reads," as OG housewife Gizelle "steps up to bring the ladies together, but never fails to keep them in check." A first-look preview for the upcoming season shared a glimpse of what's to come, as Gizelle writes to Karen Huger and explains: "In a lot of ways, life has been moving on ... and some things haven't changed at all." For Gizelle, that means "embracing the single life with a few new prospects, as her castmates speculate about her actual relationship status" (per Bravo).

"Everyone knows you have a boy-

Angel Massie stars in "The Real Housewives of Potomac" friend," Stacey explains, later in the preview.

The "boyfriend" in question? Well, that just might be Mauricio Umansky — the estranged husband of "The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills" star Kyle Richards — who has been seen getting comfortable at Gizelle's side.

There's more drama to be seen between Gizelle and Stacey, however, as the two are later seen arguing in the season's preview. Stacey, who recently founded a cannabis brand called SHAYO, is called out by Gizelle, who believes the woman's latest business venture will put Stacey in direct conflict with Wendy's husband, Eddie Osefo, who runs a cannabis line of his own: Happy Eddie.

Seeing friendships falter and new relationships formed, Season 10 of "The Real Housewives of Potomac" premieres Sunday, Oct. 5, on Bravo, with all episodes streaming the next day on Peacock.

Fantastic funnyman: Celebrate one of the most beloved comedic actors of our time with the premiere of this feature-length documentary from director Colin Hanks ("All Things Must Pass: The Rise and Fall of Tower Records," 2015). "John Candy: I Like Me" makes its streaming debut on Prime Video this Friday, Oct. 10, reflecting on the life and career of a once-in-a-generation talent — one lost far too soon.

Known for his roles in films such as "Planes, Trains & Automobiles" (1987), "Uncle Buck" (1989) and "Spaceballs" (1987), John Candy's impressive body of work is now admired posthumously, through archived materials and sentiment-filled testimonies shared during heartfelt interviews with Candy's family and friends, including Steve Martin ("The Jerk," 1979), Tom Hanks ("Big," 1988) and Catherine O'Hara ("Best in Show," 2000).

"It's a delight to revisit Candy's endlessly hilarious body of work, from the ingenious array of characters he created for SCTV [Second City Television] to his big-screen roles in 'Splash' [1984] 'Spaceballs,' 'Home Alone' [1990] and 'Planes, Trains and Automobiles' — the John Hughes film from which 'I Like Me' takes its title," reads an article shared by the Toronto International Film Festival, where Hanks' film made its debut.

They continue on to say: "Hanks' buoyant portrait pays tribute to Candy's genius as a thespian, improviser and creator, taking care to highlight the tenderness and depth found in quieter performances. Through insight from Candy's family members, 'I Like Me' also draws attention to fatphobia and anxiety disorder, issues that shadowed Candy's life and career. Candy died three decades ago, but his legacy endures in the hearts and funny bones of millions. 'I Like Me' is a worthy tribute that will provoke tears of joy, loss and blissful laughter."

Jennifer Candy ("In Vino," 2017), John Candy's daughter — who also appears in the documentary — spoke with The Hollywood Reporter, sharing just how approachable her father was, despite his insurmountable fame. "He was very relatable and a down-to-earth guy, and someone whose ego wasn't at the forefront of who he was.

He loved his family and wasn't afraid to say that. And that grounded him in a business that could be a bit chaotic," she said.

Hanks shared similar sentiments, which ultimately led to the creation of this documentary. "The thing that struck me most about John was his everyman quality," Hanks said. "You took one look at him and thought, 'I want to know everything about that guy. I relate to that guy.'"

"John Candy: I Like Me" makes its streaming debut Friday, Oct. 10, on Prime Video.

"The Woman in Cabin 10" (2025)

A luxury cruise turns into a nightmare at sea in "The Woman in Cabin 10," premiering Friday, Oct. 10, on Netflix. Based on the bestselling novel by Ruth Ware, Keira Knightley ("Pride and Prejudice," 2005) stars as Lo Blacklock, a travel journalist looking to regain her footing after a recent trauma. When Lo's assigned to cover the maiden voyage of an exclusive luxury cruise through the fjords of Norway, it seems like the perfect work trip — until late one night when Lo is jolted awake by a scream and the unmistakable sight of a woman being thrown overboard from the cabin next door. But when she raises the alarm, every passenger is accounted for and the crew insists nothing is wrong. As Lo finds herself trapped at sea with a ship full of strangers — some of whom may be hiding dark secrets — she conducts her own frantic search for the truth before she becomes the next to vanish. Starring Hannah Waddingham ("Ted Lasso"), Guy Pearce ("Neighbours") and Kaya Scodelario ("The Maze Runner," 2014), "The Woman in Cabin 10" is directed by Simon Stone ("The Daughter," 2015), with Richard Hewitt ("Bohemian Rhapsody," 2018) serving as the film's executive producer.

"Boots" - Season 1

A bold new dramedy about finding yourself in the unlikelyst of places, Season 1 of "Boots" premieres Thursday, Oct. 9, on Netflix. "Boots" puts an irreverent spin on the classic coming-of-age story, set in the gritty, unpredictable world of the 1990s U.S. Marine Corps — when being openly gay in the military was still illegal. The series follows Cameron Cope (Miles Heizer, "Love, Simon," 2018), a closeted young man searching for purpose, and his lifelong friend Ray McCaffey (Liam Oh, "The Thing About Harry," 2020), the son of a decorated Marine determined to prove himself. Thrown together with a diverse group of recruits, they discover their true selves in an environment designed to push them to their limits. The series also stars Vera Farmiga ("Orphan," 2009), Nicholas Logan ("Dark Winds"), Max Parker ("Emmerdale"), Brandon Tyler Moore ("English Teacher") and Kieron Moore ("Vampire Academy"). Written for television by Greg Cope White ("Holiday Rush," 2019), Andy Parker ("Tales of the City") acts as the series' executive producer.

vibrant world alongside friends old and new, learning valuable lessons about courage, kindness and standing up for what's right. Designed for preschoolers yet entertaining for the whole family, the series brings Dr. Seuss's beloved pachyderm to life in a playful, new way. The voice cast features Ethan Monaghan ("Mickey Mouse Funhouse") as Horton, Max Mittelman ("Miraculous: Tales of Ladybug & Cat Noir") as Samson and Kitana Turnbull ("The Rocketeer") as Jane Kangaroo. Part of Netflix's trio of new Dr. Seuss preschool 'toons debuting this year, "Horton!" is executive produced by Dustin Ferrer ("Blaze and the Monster Machines") and Becky Friedman ("Daniel Tiger's Neighborhood"), with Friedman also serving as showrunner.

"Maintenance Required" (2025)

Love and rivalry collide in "Maintenance Required," premiering Wednesday, Oct. 8, on Prime Video. Charlie (played by "Riverdale" star Madelaine Petsch, who also serves as an executive producer), a fiercely independent owner of an all-female mechanic shop, finds herself at a crossroads when she's forced to rethink the future of her business. Seeking advice, she turns to an anonymous online confidant known only as Beau (Jacob Scipio, "Bad Boys for Life," 2020), whose insight and empathy become an unexpected lifeline. What Charlie doesn't realize is that Beau is actually her real-life rival — the head of a competing garage just down the street. With the shop's survival now in question, Charlie must navigate the delicate and undeniable pull of a budding romance. From writer-director Lacey Uhlemeyer ("The Dancer," 2025), "Maintenance Required" also stars Madison Bailey ("Outer Banks"), Naomi J. Ogawa ("Wednesday"), Katy O'Brian ("Twisters," 2024), Jim Gaffigan ("Peter Pan & Wendy," 2023) and Inanna Sarkis ("After," 2019).

"Saquon" (2025)

Taking viewers inside Saquon Barkley's remarkable journey, "Saquon" premieres Thursday, Oct. 9, on Prime Video. When Barkley hoisted the Lombardi Trophy in Philadelphia Eagles green, it marked the perfect culmination of a journey defined by unwavering self-belief. This feature-length documentary gives viewers a firsthand account of Barkley's journey by utilizing five years of video diaries recorded by Saquon as he navigated his career's most challenging chapters: methodically battling back from ACL surgery with the same explosive power that defines his playing style, while enduring tense contract negotiations with the team that drafted him, ultimately leading him to a bitter division rival. Directed by Alexander Pappas ("Portland Is the New Portland," 2024), "Saquon" is executive produced by Jon Weinbach ("The Last Dance"), Jason Reed ("Mulan," 2020), Martin Scorsese ("Boardwalk Empire") and Jesse Siskold ("Kelce," 2023).

"House of David" - Season 2

The epic biblical saga continues when "House of David" returns Sunday, Oct. 5, on AMC+ with a two-episode premiere.

Ali Suliman and Michael Iskander in "House of David"

"House of David" chronicles the rise of David — played by Michael Iskander, who also starred in the 2021 Broadway musical "Kimberly Akimbo" — the young shepherd who would become Israel's most celebrated king. Picking up after David's legendary battle with Goliath (Martyn Ford, "Robin Hood: The Rebellion," 2018), the drama follows his ascent amid palace intrigue, family rivalries and a romance that puts his convictions to the test. Season 2 deepens the exploration of David's early life, charting the pressures of prophecy, the jealousy of those closest to him and the shifting loyalties within the kingdom. The ensemble cast includes Ali Suliman ("Lone Survivor," 2013) as King Saul, Ayelet Zurer ("Angels & Demons," 2009) as Queen Ahinoam, Stephen Lang ("Avatar," 2009) as the prophet Samuel and Oded Fehr ("The Mummy," 1999) as Abner. Created by Jon Erwin ("Jesus Revolution," 2023) and Jon Gunn ("Ordinary Angels," 2024), the series is executive produced by Chad Oakes ("Fargo") and Justin Rosenblatt ("Flack").

Antonia Lofaso and more to compete on Season 5 of 'Alex vs America'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

After making a lasting impression on shows such as "Beat Bobby Flay," "Supermarket Stakeout," "Tournament of Champions" and more, Alex Guarnaschelli knows she's got what it takes to be a winning chef. But can she beat the best of the best? "Alex vs America" returns Tuesday, Oct. 7, for a fifth season on Food Network, hoping to answer exactly that.

This season — tantalizingly themed as "Alex's Nightmares" — will see Alex joined by host Eric Adjepong ("Wildcard Kitchen"), who raises the stakes by bringing in some of the most celebrated chefs and "winningest champions" as Alex's opponents, each dead set on taking Alex down once and for all.

As Food Network describes: "In each episode, Alex will go up against three expert chefs in two cooking rounds where anyone can be sent home, including Alex. With ultimate bragging rights and $15,000 on the line, the chefs will battle to see if they have what it takes to beat Alex. With surprising all-star chefs around every turn, minds will be blown, friendships will be tested and challenges will be won and lost."

The competition starts off strong, as three former "Tournament of Champions" winners — who have gone on to become Food Network stars in their own right — arrive in Alex's kitchen for an explosive season premiere. Antonia Lofaso ("BBQ Brawl: Flay V. Symon"), Tiffani Faison ("Best Bite in Town") and Mei Lin ("Guy's Grocery Games: All-Star Invitational") believe they have what it takes to beat Alex at her own game, acting as some of Alex's most formidable competitors yet. Chefs Cat Cora ("Iron Chef America: The Series") and Susan Feniger ("Susan Feniger: Forked," 2023) stand by, waiting to share their expert opinion as judges, sending some on to victory while others are eliminated from the game.

With more exciting competitors slated for later in the season, fans are also welcome to debrief with Alex following newly released episodes of "Alex vs America," during "Alex vs America: Chef's Cuts" — a post-mortem in which Adjepong joins Alex to rewatch battles from the series, asking for the star chef's input on game-changing moments and for her takes on the series' top dishes.

Victory is sweet, no matter who wins. "Alex vs America" returns Tuesday, Oct. 7, for the debut of its fifth season on Food Network.

"Frankie Quinones: Damn That's Crazy" (2025)

Frankie Quinones, the actor-comedian best known for his roles in "This Fool" and "What We Do in the Shadows," hits the stage for his debut stand-up special, "Frankie Quinones: Damn That's Crazy" (2025). Premiering Friday, Oct. 10, on Hulu, the special is directed and produced by Emmy-winning actress-comedian Ali Wong ("Birds of Prey and the Fantabulous Emancipation of One Harley Quinn," 2020) and features witty observations and personal stories, with Quinones tackling topics ranging from love and addiction to the quirky rituals people use to navigate mental health — including how surprisingly therapeutic it can be to go to brunch. Quinones also reflects on growing up in a Chicano family, sharing stories of family life, cultural identity and the moments that shaped him. "I talk about things that I never thought I would talk about on stage," Quinones told Entertainment Weekly. "The fact that I was able to make them funny felt like I took it to the next level as a stand-up comedian." Executive produced by John Irwin ("House of Villains"), "Damn That's Crazy" offers a candid and sharply funny look at the highs and lows of Quinones' life.

"The Rule of Jenny Pen" (2024)

A deadly puppet haunts the halls of a secluded nursing home in "The Rule of Jenny Pen" (2024). Available on Hulu this Tuesday, Oct. 7, the film follows former judge Stefan Mortensen (Geoffrey Rush, "The Life and Death of Peter Sellers," 2004), who resides in a nursing home after suffering a stroke. He meets long-term resident Dave Crealy (John Lithgow, "The Old Man"), who wields a hand puppet named Jenny Pen and uses it to scare the other residents. At first, his actions seem like harmless pranks, but the cruelty quickly turns deadly. Confined to his stroke-ridden body, Stefan refuses to become another victim and forms a wary alliance with his roommate — former rugby player Tony Garfield (George Henare, "Kaitangata Twitch"). As they become entangled in the twisted games Dave is playing, they have only two options: to stop him or die trying. Starring Fiona Collins ("Meme"), Ian Mune ("The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring," 2001) and Bruce Phillips ("The Lovely Bones," 2009), "The Rule of Jenny Pen" is directed by James Ashcroft ("Coming Home in the Dark," 2021) and written by Eli Kent ("The Hobbit: The Desolation of Smaug," 2013), with Samuel Zimmerman ("When Evil Lurks," 2023) as an executive producer.

deadliest threats when "The Hills Have Eyes" (2006) and "The Hills Have Eyes II" (2007) premiere Friday, Oct. 10, on Hulu. Directed by Alexandre Aja ("High Tension," 2003), a family traveling through the desert becomes stranded after their tires are punctured by a hidden spike strip, causing their car to crash. Isolated and vulnerable, they're targeted by a clan of deformed cannibals who inhabit the surrounding hills, forcing the family into a desperate fight for survival. The terror continues in director Martin Weisz's ("Butterfly: A Grimm Love Story," 2006) sequel, "The Hills Have Eyes II" (2007), when a group of comrades stationed at a desert military base becomes the mutants' next prey. The soldiers are hunted relentlessly, and their training is tested against the brutality of the desert's inhabitants. A remake of the 1977 film written and directed by Wes Craven ("A Nightmare on Elm Street," 1984), these thrillers star Aaron Stanford ("12 Monkeys"), Kathleen Quinlan ("Apollo 13," 1995), Michael McMillian ("True Blood"), Jessica Stroup ("Prom Night," 2008) and Jacob Vargas ("Cold Case"). Craven, Peter Locke ("Thrills") and Marianne Maddalena ("Dracula 2000," 2000) serve as executive producers in both films.

Hollywood Q&A

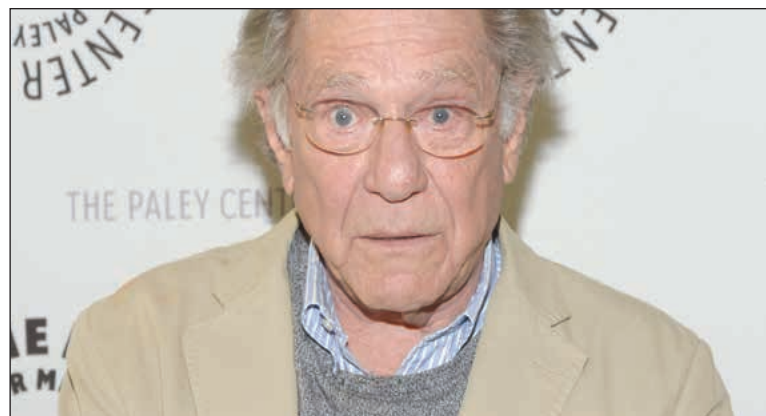

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Help me out here. I remember watching a comedic remake of "The Maltese Falcon" from the '70s, I think, but I can't remember what it was called.

A: It wasn't quite a remake, but you're probably thinking of 1975's "The Black Bird."

It starred George Segal ("Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," 1966) as Sam Spade Jr., son of the great detective played to great acclaim by Humphrey Bogart in "The Maltese Falcon" (1941).

The premise is that Sam Jr. inherits his father's San Francisco detective agency and soon also finds himself in possession of a supposedly fake version of the priceless falcon statue that Sam Sr. once chased. But once a lot of familiarly shady characters start expressing an interest, it starts to seem like maybe he has the real thing after all.

Unfortunately, "The Black Bird" is pretty tough to find these days. It seems to have never gotten a DVD release, and none of the streaming services seem to offer it.

That could have something to do with the fact that critics and audiences both seemed to reject it. It was considered a flop at the time, with New Yorker reviewer Pauline Kael calling it "a dumb comedy, with an insecure tone and some good ideas mixed with some terrible ones."

Q: What's Ray Romano been up to? The last thing I saw him in was the "Get Shorty" series.

A: Ray Romano ("Everybody Loves Raymond") seems to have reached the "oh-that-sounds-interesting" stage of his career. Having conquered stand-up comedy in the '90s and then sitcoms in the late '90s and early '00s with "Everybody Loves Raymond," he now seems to just be taking roles for the sake of variety.

If you last saw him on his crime-comedy series "Get Shorty," a remake of the film of the same name that ran for three seasons on Epix until 2019, the biggest thing you missed is "The Irishman." Romano played against type as a member of a powerful mafia family in the award-winning, star-studded 2019 Netflix drama.

In 2022, he directed, produced, wrote and appeared (but just in a supporting role) in another feature film, the lighter and more personal "Somewhere in Queens," a story of a dad wrapped up in his son's would-be basketball career. Romano told Screen Rant that, "I wanted to make it about an Italian family from Queens. I wanted to write what I know."

But he's also found ways to keep small-screen comedy feeling fresh as well. He's appeared in a number of prestige sitcoms, such as Peacock's "Bupkis" in 2023, and the HBO Max series "Made for Love" and "Bookie," which finished airing its second, and final, season earlier this year.

Most recently, he was back on the big screen, with a role in the star-studded indie comedy "The Best You Can," which debuted at the Tribeca Film Festival in July and is looking for distribution.
