Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

In international parts of the world, it was announced that later this month [July 2024], a group of Russian schoolchildren will attend a summer camp in North Korea. 'Cause nothing says summer fun like the words "North Korea" and "camp." According to newly released photos, there's all sorts of classic camp fun to be had, like scarf march before the business center, staying up late under the watchful eye of Dear Leader and meeting the camp mascot, Flippy the Seal Corpse.

Last month [June 2024], Boeing tested out their new Starliner Space Capsule by launching two astronauts to the International Space Station. It was a much-needed PR win for Boeing until we learned that due to some equipment failures, those astronauts may be stuck in space until August. Now the astronauts are totally safe, but the Starliner is suffering from faulty thrusters and a series of small helium leaks. Mission Control found out when they received this message: [breathes in some helium] "Houston, we have a problem, and it's a silly one!"

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

I read that nearly 7,000 pounds of hot dogs shipped to multiple states were recalled due to lack of inspection. I'm even more shocked that hot dogs are inspected.

A gamer just broke a world record by playing video games for 75 hours straight. Seventy-five hours of video games, or, as most single guys call that, the weekend.

Jimmy Kimmel Live! With Anthony Anderson

Today [July 16] is Amazon Prime Day, and in three to five business days, it'll be "Who Stole All My S from My Porch?" Day.

The other major league event this week [July 14-20] is the Republican National Convention. ... Things got off to a rocky start yesterday [July 15] when the teleprompter went out on the House Speaker, Mike Johnson. ... Oh, poor Mike walked off stage with his Johnson tucked between his legs. Is it bad when the Speaker of the House can't speak?

Late Night With Seth Meyers

Two men in Idaho recently set a Guinness World Record by passing a giant inflatable ball back and forth nearly 8,000 times. The record was for least weekend plans.

According to a new study, a diagnosis of sexually transmitted diseases among seniors has increased by nearly 24%. It's part of what your grandpa is calling Medicare Part D.

A man who allegedly got caught in the tide off the coast of Queens was recently rescued off the coast of New Jersey after treading water overnight, which, by the way, is still the fastest way to get from Queens to New Jersey.

A reproductive rights organization recently put up a 20-foot-tall inflatable IUD outside a beach in Virginia, and beachgoers are complaining because it's blocking all the swimmers.

Sunja's saga: 'Pachinko' returns for Season 2

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Eunchae Jung (center) stars in "Pachinko"

Pachinko is a game of chance. Commonly played in cacophonous, neon halls that hum with the farrago of machine clangor and player anticipation, pachinko is a popular Japanese pastime whose closest American counterpart is the slot machine. First created (in its recognized form) in the 1920s, pachinko culture in Japan all but shut down during World War II, only to reemerge with gusto in the late 1940s as the country rebuilt and immigrants from nearby countries, such as 1950s' war-torn Korea, arrived in droves and began to play.

Due to its popularity across Japan, its tenacity as an institution and its ever-evolving landscape — from the crude mechanisms of the early years to the streamlined electronic machines of today — pachinko could easily be interpreted as a symbol of Japan and its people: highly traditional but frequently adapting to change.

This sentiment, however, is rather removed from the heart of the Apple TV+ series "Pachinko," which likens the game of chance more to life as a Korean immigrant in the former empire: a game that makes it extremely difficult to win big, no matter how hard you try.

"Pachinko" begins its second season Friday, Aug. 23, on Apple TV+.

A sweeping epic that begins in 1915, "Pachinko" is based on the 2017 National Book Award finalist of the same name by Korean American author Min Jin Lee. It follows leading lady Kim Sunja and her family as she ages and seeks out a better life amid the chaos and confusion of a world dominated by war, loss and prejudice.

Despite the wide scale of the story, Apple promotes the series as being "intimate in tone" and describes it as "a sweeping saga that journeys between Korea, Japan and America to tell an unforgettable story of war and peace, love and loss, triumph and reckoning."

In the Apple TV+ series, created by Soo Hugh ("The Whispers"), Sunja is played by three separate actresses — Yu-Na ("Good Partner") in childhood, Minha Kim ("Investigation Partners") as a teen-turned-young adult and by Academy Award-winning actress Youn Yuh-jung ("Minari," 2020) in elder adulthood. The latter two actresses are both confirmed as returning for the non-linear series' second season.

Since the series spans 80 years of Sunja's life, it is hard to say whether Season 2 of the series will begin exactly where the first season ended. Rather, according to the official Apple description of the season, "the parallel stories pick up in Osaka in 1945, where Sunja is forced to make dangerous decisions for her family's survival during World War II, and in Tokyo in 1989, which finds Solomon exploring new, humble beginnings."

Based on this description, however, we know that Sunja's grandson, Solomon, played by "Love Life" actor Jin Ha, will return for another installment. Joining him are Lee Min-ho ("Boys Over Flowers") as Hansu, Anna Sawai ("Shogun") as Naomi, Eunchae Jung ("Return") as Kyunghee, Soji Arai ("The Ramen Girl," 2008) as Mozasu and Han Joon-Woo ("Sense8") as Yoseb. Kim Sungkyu ("Kingdom") also joins the cast as Changho, a character from the novel who has yet to appear on screen.

The generational drama, which is told in Korean, Japanese and English (with subtitles), was released to high acclaim from critics and audiences alike, with Rotten Tomatoes critics rating it "Certified Fresh" soon after its 2022 premiere. Between critic and audience scores on the popular rating aggregate, it ranked 92.5% — a score only previously attained by hit shows such as "Breaking Bad" (96.5%), "The Wire" and "Mad Men" (both 95%), and "The Sopranos" (94%). To boot, "Pachinko" won the 2023 Peabody Award for Entertainment and was nominated for both a Primetime Emmy and a BAFTA in its first season, among other honors.

At the end of the day, creator Hugh is delighted to be back for what she hopes is the second of four seasons in total, although further renewals remain unconfirmed at this time.

"This show is fiction ... but it's built on the backs of people like these incredible women who lived," Hugh explained to IndieWire following the Season 1 release, going on to explain the intricacies of working with a near-century-long plot.

"There's just so much story to tell," Hugh noted, somewhat bemused. "I think about Sunja and where we left her. And ... Kyunghee just has this amazing story in Season 2."

But it's clear that Hugh may be most excited to show more of Solomon's storyline, telling IndieWire, "I just want people to understand ... we're watching a human being in formation. [In] Season 1, he's just clay. His storyline is meant to move at a slow-moving pace because it takes place over one year, but it's divided into four seasons. Sunja has the luxury of just going through time like a rocket. With Solomon, we're going to get a final form at the end of the series."

With so much to look forward to in Season 2 (and hopefully Seasons 3 and 4), Apple TV+ has opted to release one episode a week for eight weeks, unlike Season 1, in which the first three episodes were released on the premiere date and the remaining five were released weekly. For those looking to catch up, Season 1 is currently available to stream on the Apple streaming platform.

Season 2 of "Pachinko" premieres Friday, Aug. 23, on Apple TV+.

Exotic pets: A Hollywood ape is resurrected in 'Chimp Crazy'

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Tonka and Tonia Haddix in "Chimp Crazy"

In March 2020, a captive global audience of Netflix subscribers was introduced to Joe Exotic and his rival Carole Baskin through the seven-episode docuseries "Tiger King," detailing the life of eccentric zookeeper Joseph Allen Maldonado. Now, the director and executive producer of that series, Eric Goode, has turned his lens to yet another case of animal exploitation in America with "Chimp Crazy," a four-part documentary series premiering Sunday, Aug. 18, on HBO and the Max streaming service.

"Chimp Crazy" follows Tonia Haddix, a Missouri-based exotic animal broker who calls herself the "Dolly Parton of chimps," as she became the subject of news headlines when her ability to care for animals in captivity was called into question.

As described by HBO, the story is "at turns hilarious and tragic, while unfolding with the pace and suspense of a thriller.

"'Chimp Crazy' explores the captivating, often unfathomable, and secretive world of raising chimpanzees and also examines the colorful and complicated cast of characters that inhabit it," the synopsis continues.

In an official trailer for the series, Haddix speaks to the camera in an almost surreal-looking, monochromatic baby pink children's room between two bunk beds with matching stuffed bears seated on them.

Her tracksuit blends into the wall color behind her as she says, "Tonka loved me as much as I loved Tonka." Tonka being her favorite "kid," as she calls the chimpanzees in her care. She had a special connection to the 32-year-old retired Hollywood chimp who can be seen in two 1997 feature films: "George of the Jungle" and "Buddy."

Haddix's misplaced enthusiasm for exotic animals twisted into serious criminal behavior when her home conditions were declared unfit for keeping chimps in captivity. A desperate desire to keep Tonka no matter the personal cost resulted in more legal battles.

While some states allow residents to keep exotic animals as pets with restrictions and regulations — Missouri has relatively permissible exotic pet ownership laws — it is often to the detriment of the animal's quality of life. Chimpanzees are intelligent, sociable animals, and living in captivity that does not suit their needs can make them a danger.

"Chimp Crazy" details not just Haddix's case of animal endangerment but similar past events in the United States that have proved how damaging exotic pet ownership in general, and keeping chimpanzees in inadequate home enclosures specifically, can be.

In June 2021, seven chimpanzees in Haddix's care were ordered by a judge to be removed from her home and sent to the Center for Great Apes, a sanctuary several states away in Florida. However, shortly after the ruling, Haddix claimed that Tonka had died of heart failure the previous month. The six other chimps made themselves at home in the Sunshine State, but the animal rights organization PETA wasn't buying Haddix's claim about Tonka.

In truth, Tonka was healthy, alive and hidden. Haddix had stolen Tonka away to a friend's house for months while the other chimps were seized, coming back for him once the coast was clear. She kept him in her basement, where he interacted with Haddix and some of her trusted friends but was mostly entertained by screens in his brightly colored indoor enclosure.

PETA worked through the legal system to try to prove its case that Tonka was well but unaccounted for and even put up a cash reward for information about the chimp, making a public statement with Tonka's "Buddy" co-star Alan Cumming, who personally doubled the reward. The cash was never claimed, but PETA's suspicions were confirmed with a tip that led to the discovery of Tonka in Haddix's home in July 2022.

Like Goode's last documentary subject, Haddix possesses some self-awareness regarding her unusual and all-encompassing hobby, telling Rolling Stone in a feature following Tonka's relocation that, "Anybody that has an exotic has to have some kind of screw loose."

Goode is an invested storyteller whose film and TV projects, though sensational to an extreme, highlight the necessary work of conservationists. A founder of the Turtle Conservancy, an organization dedicated to protecting turtles and their habitats all over the world, Goode has a clear interest in exposing abusive exotic animal ownership.

While Goode experienced pushback following the release of "Tiger King" from participants in the series claiming that the production misled them about the intent of the project, the filmmaker refuted Baskin's statements, insisting, "she certainly wasn't coerced" to the Los Angeles Times in 2020.

"Chimp Crazy" is just one of a few unscripted projects carrying HBO's summer schedule that prove the idiom that truth is stranger than fiction. The highs and lows of baseball legend Pete Rose's career were recounted in the four-episode docuseries "Charlie Hustle & the Matter of Pete Rose"; the feature documentary "Wild Wild Space" detailed a new kind of space race; and the series "Ren Faire" chronicled a struggle for power at America's largest renaissance festival.

Don't miss the series premiere of "Chimp Crazy," airing Sunday, Aug. 18, on HBO and Max.

New documentary follows a multigenerational family of primates

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

An orangutan's odyssey: Directed by Huw Cordey ("A Perfect Planet") and narrated by legendary biologist, natural historian and broadcaster Sir David Attenborough ("Planet Earth"), the enthralling new docuseries "Secret Lives of Orangutans" welcomes viewers into the world of our primate relatives when it premieres Thursday, Aug. 22, on Netflix.

"Orangutans are not just one of our closest relatives, they're perhaps more relatable to us than any other great ape," Netflix describes. "Narrated by David Attenborough, this film follows a remarkable group of orangutans in the pristine jungles of Sumatra. At the center of this story is [eight-year-old] Eden, who's about to embark on the most challenging moment of her life."

From Silverback Films, "Secret Lives of Orangutans" compiles two years of footage gathered by teams that followed a family of orangutans living in the rainforests of western Indonesia — one of the few places the primates can still be found living freely in the wild.

These intelligent creatures — who share 97% of their genomes with human beings, coming in third behind chimpanzees and bonobos, who share 99% of their DNA with humans — are known to follow routines that may be familiar to you and me, as they build comfortable nests to live in, use tools to complete tasks and even learn their most important skills from their mothers as young — one of the many reasons why infant survival is higher among orangutans than most other apes (according to Attenborough, in a trailer shared for the documentary).

An orangutan as seen in "Secret Lives of Orangutans"

This is where we join Eden and Ellie, two orangutans we first met in 2019's "Our Planet." As Eden embarks on an exciting journey of her own, her mother, Ellie, has her hands full with newborn Emen, the family's latest addition, who will need her care and supervision for years to come. The documentary follows this multigenerational family as its members scale through the jungle, facing the trials and tribulations that come with a dwindling population.

Viewers will also be introduced to several new members of the local orangutan community. According to Silverback Films, "We also meet several new characters including Rakus, a Sumatran orangutan in Indonesia who hit global news headlines recently for being the first wild animal to be seen treating a wound with a medicinal herb."

Equal parts fascinating and familiar, enter a world much like our own in "Secret Lives of Orangutans," premiering Thursday, Aug. 22, on Netflix.

"UNTOLD" tells all: Returning with three new tales from the "Wild World of Sports," as Netflix calls it, the fan-favorite docuseries "UNTOLD" debuts its fourth volume Tuesday, Aug. 20, on Netflix, starting with a feature on the chilling murder of "Air" McNair.

"With new episodes premiering weekly," Netflix shares, "'UNTOLD' Volume 4 shares the inside stories of the shocking murder of a former NFL MVP, a college football sign-stealing scandal, and a complicated icon of women's soccer. Each of these complex tales goes beyond the headlines to upend what you thought you knew, with candid and intimate first-person accounts from the people who lived it."

The premiere episode of this next volume focuses on the 2009 murder of the legendary Steve McNair — affectionately known as "Air" McNair — an athlete best known for his impressive 13-season run as an NFL quarterback. With 31,304 career passing yards and 174 touchdowns across his career, McNair had significant success with the Tennessee Titans, leading "the franchise for 11 seasons (1994-2005), including its move from Houston (Oilers) to Tennessee in 1996," according to The Tennessean.

McNair retired from the league in 2008, planning to spend time with his wife and four young children, but his life was cut tragically short only a year later as he was shot and killed by his 20-year-old mistress, Sahel "Jenni" Kazemi, during an apparent murder-suicide that took place in Nashville, Tenn., in July 2009. At the time of his death, McNair was only 36 years old.

While many details of the case have been uncovered in the past 15 years, the deaths of both Kazemi and McNair left many questions unanswered and propelled his widow into an extended estate battle that kept the tragedy going for years to come.

Directed by Rodney Lucas ("Black Hercules," 2024) and Taylor Alexander Ward ("Shaq"), this upcoming "UNTOLD" feature will shed further light on McNair's complex life and impressive career, delving into the circumstances of his untimely death as it offers a deeper understanding of a true sports legend.

From producers LeBron James ("Space Jam: A New Legacy," 2021), Maverick Carter ("Hustle," 2022), Philip Byron ("Triumph: Jesse Owens and the Berlin Olympics," 2024), Jamal Henderson ("The Redeem Team," 2022), Micah Brown ("Coach Prime") and Jamie Elias ("For Walter and Josiah," 2022), Volume 4 of "UNTOLD" premieres with this shocking story Tuesday, Aug. 20, on Netflix.

"Incoming" (2024)

Get pumped for the biggest party of the year when the new raunchy coming-of-age comedy film "Incoming" premieres Friday, Aug. 23, on Netflix. Settling into their first week of high school, freshmen Eddie (Ramon Reed, "Just Roll with It"), Connor (Raphael Alejandro, "Once Upon a Time"), Koosh (Bardia Seiri, "Grey's Anatomy") and Benj (Mason Thames, "Walker") are already facing a major right of passage: their first party. The film follows the group as they crash the party, cause some mayhem, and have the wildest night of their lives (so far). Directed and written by brothers Dave and John Chernin, creators of "The Mick," the film's cast is rounded out by Bobby Cannavale ("MaXXXine," 2024), Kaitlin Olson ("It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia"), Scott MacArthur ("The Righteous Gemstones"), Isabella Ferreira ("Love, Victor"), Ali Gallo ("Virtual Mortality"), Loren Gray ("Outsiders," 2021) and Thomas Barbusca ("The Mick").

"Dark Winds" - Seasons 1 & 2

Starring Zahn McClarnon ("Into the West") and Kiowa Gordon ("The Red Road"), Seasons 1 and 2 of "Dark Winds" arrive on Netflix this Monday, Aug. 19. Created by Graham Roland ("Mile 22," 2018) and based on the "Leaphorn & Chee" novel series, written by Tony Hillerman — with these two seasons specifically detailing the events of "Listening Woman" (1978) and "People of Darkness" (1980) — the series transports viewers back to the 1970s, following a pair of Navajo police officers, Joe Leaphorn (McClarnon) and Jim Chee (Gordon), as their spiritual beliefs are challenged during a devastating double murder investigation, catapulting the men down an unfamiliar path. Produced by "Game of Thrones" author George R. R. Martin, and with episodes directed by Chris Eyre ("Smoke Signals," 1998), Sanford Bookstaver ("Dexter: New Blood") and more, the first two seasons of "Dark Winds" also stars Jessica Matten ("Frontier"), Elva Guerra ("Reservation Dogs"), DezBaa' ("When You Finish Saving the World," 2022), Ryan Begay ("Frybread Face and Me," 2023), Rainn Wilson ("The Office") and A Martinez ("Blue Ridge: The Series").

"Wyatt Earp and the Cowboy War"

Detailing the legendary, real-life feud between Wyatt Earp and Ike Clanton, the gritty, six-part series, "Wyatt Earp and the Cowboy War" makes its debut this Wednesday, Aug. 21, on Netflix. Narrated by Ed Harris ("Love Lies Bleeding," 2024), this hybrid docu-drama offers vivid reenactments of the feud in question, exploring the chaos that dominated the new frontier when cowboys and outlaws roamed the streets. "Forget everything you know about Wild West history," says the series' trailer. The Gunfight at the O.K. Corral? It wasn't the end of the story. It was just the beginning." Played by Tim Fellingham ("Final Destination 5," 2011), the Tombstone lawman finds himself in the midst of a turf war with Ike Clanton (Peter O'Meara, "Knightfall"), a man associated with a band of outlaws known as the Cowboys. Tensions mount, leading to a gun fight at the O.K. Corral in Tombstone, Arizona, on Oct. 26 of 1881 – a fight that would go down in history as an encapsulation of the Wild West at its wildest. From BAFTA-winning director Patrick Reams ("The Men Who Built America"), "Wyatt Earp and the Cowboy War" also stars Edward Franklin ("The Brain Hack," 2015), Jack Gordon ("Captain America: The First Avenger," 2011), Christian Mackay ("Dangerous Liaisons") and Christina Leonardi ("Titans: The Rise of Hollywood").

"Classified" - Season 1

Autumn is just around the corner, and class is back in session — the season is ripe for the new coming-of-age drama series "Classified," which makes its premiere on Prime Video Thursday, Aug. 22. The series is also available on the Amazon Freevee streaming platform. Imani Pullam ("The Orville") stars in the series as 15-year-old Ella, a high school student living in Oakland, California. After being arrested at a protest, Ella just narrowly misses out on jail time thanks to her stepmother Dianne's (Christine Horn, "Snowfall") powerful connections. But, as part of her deal to avoid incarceration, Ella must uproot her life and move to Johannesburg, South Africa, to finish out her high school education there while living with her father and Dianne. As Ella takes on a brand-new school, not to mention a completely different country and culture from the one she's used to, the series follows along as she attempts to navigate her new life — and gets wrapped up in some complicated secrets along the way. Directed, written and executive produced by Kagiso Lediga ("The Pure Monate Show"), the series cast also includes Sule Rimi ("Andor"), Paballo Koza ("Housekeepers"), Victor Makgati ("Baba," 2022), Omhle Tshabalala ("Unseen"), Mila Rayne ("Just Now Jeffrey," 2024), Matt Blerk ("Summertide," 2024), Luyanda Zwane ("Outlaws"), Kelly Damon ("Recipes for Love and Murder"), Neels Clasen ("Black Sails") and newcomers Nicola Nothnagel and Shuwa.

"Lethal Weapon" - Complete Series

If the over 25-year wait for the fifth "Lethal Weapon" is getting more unbearable, then Prime Video has you covered when all three seasons of Fox's 2016 reboot, "Lethal Weapon," become available to stream Saturday, Aug. 24, on the platform. The series follows aging LAPD detective Roger Murtaugh (Damon Wayans, "My Wife and Kids") as he teams up with unruly young detective Martin Riggs (Clayne Crawford, "A Walk to Remember," 2002) to take down the worst criminals in Los Angeles. Starting out at odds with one another — mainly due Riggs' tactics for capturing criminals regularly leading to dangerous situations — the duo eventually warm to one another. However, Murtaugh and Riggs' partnership is cut short when Riggs is gunned down in the series' second season finale. With Riggs gone, former CIA agent Wesley Cole (Seann William Scott, "American Pie," 1999) steps in to be Murtaugh's partner for the third and final season. Developed by Matthew Miller ("Chuck"), "Lethal Weapon" also stars Keesha Sharp ("Girlfriends"), Kevin Rahm ("Nightcrawler," 2014), Michelle Mitchenor ("First Wives Club"), Johnathan Fernandez ("Gossip Girl"), Jordana Brewster ("The Fast and the Furious," 2001), Chandler Kinney ("Gortimer Gibbon's Life on Normal Street"), Dante Brown ("Ma," 2019), Andrew Creer ("Barracuda"), Rex Linn ("Rush Hour," 1998), Kristen Gutoskie ("The Handmaid's Tale"), Maggie Lawson ("Psych"), Shay Rudolph ("The Baby-Sitters Club"), Floriana Lima ("The Punisher"), Richard Cabral ("Paranormal Activity: The Marked Ones," 2014), Chase Mangum ("Paul T. Goldman"), Thomas Lennon ("Reno 911!"), Paola Lázaro ("The Walking Dead"), Tony Plana ("Ugly Betty") and Andrew Patrick Ralston ("Nope," 2022).

"Drive-Away Dolls" (2024)

Ethan Coen ("No Country for Old Men," 2007) continues to break away from his brother Joel ("The Tragedy of Macbeth," 2021) with the comedic crime drama "Drive-Away Dolls," streaming Thursday, Aug. 22, on Prime Video. Following a brutal breakup, Jamie (Margaret Qualley, "Once Upon a Time... in Hollywood," 2019) decides to join her best friend, Marian (Geraldine Viswanathan, "Blockers," 2018), on a trip to Tallahassee, Florida. When the girls pick up a rental car for the trip, a misunderstanding lands them with a car that has already been booked by criminals Arliss (Joey Slotnick, "Twister," 1996), Flint (C. J. Wilson, "Manchester by the Sea," 2016) and The Chief (Colman Domingo, "Fear the Walking Dead"), which contains evidence of their illegal dealings in the truck. Not long into their road trip, the girls learn of the contents of the truck, which sends them on a wild, dangerous and sexually-charged adventure. Written by Coen and his wife Tricia Cooke ("O Brother, Where Art Thou?," 2000), "Drive-Away Dolls" also stars Beanie Feldstein ("Booksmart," 2019), Pedro Pascal ("The Mandalorian"), Bill Camp ("12 Years a Slave," 2013), Matt Damon ("The Martian," 2015), Connie Jackson ("Pivoting"), Annie Gonzalez ("Gentefied"), Gordon MacDonald ("The Brave One," 2007), Sam Vartholomeos ("Bridge and Tunnel"), John Menchion ("Hungry Years," 2009), Abby Hilden ("The Mad Whale," 2017), Haley Holmes ("Sec Shorts") and newcomers Fatima Fine and Michael Counihan.

'The Kitchen's' 37th season has your summer menu planned

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

With plenty of delicious recipes ready to be shared, a brand-new episode of "The Kitchen" airs Sunday, Aug. 18, on Food Network.

Hosted by four Food Network greats — restaurateur Geoffrey Zakarian ("The Great American Foodathon"), "Food Network Star" Season 7 winner Jeff Mauro ("Sandwich King"), cookbook author Katie Lee Biegel ("Best.Ever.") and beloved TV personality Sunny Anderson ("Cooking for Real") — this series has been a daytime staple for the network for the past decade, sharing quick and accessible dinner recipes that are sure to entice the whole family.

During its latest season — its 37th — Zakarian, Mauro, Lee Biegel and Anderson have shared some of their favorite summer-ready feasts, keeping cool in more ways than one as they utilize the latest food trends to keep classic recipes interesting, refreshing and easy-breezy. Throughout the season's first three episodes alone, the crew enticed viewers with step-by-step tutorials for Anderson's super easy cool as a cuke soup, Mauro's triple tomato caprese focaccia sandwich and Zakarian's Mediterranean orzo salad — all meals that can be crafted without turning on the oven during a hot summer night.

Jeff Mauro, Sunny Anderson, Geoffrey Zakarian and Katie Lee Biegel from "The Kitchen"

From skirt steaks served with "cowgirl butter" to sweet and spicy pepper jelly baked beans, the good eats don't stop. During this upcoming episode, according to a description shared by the network, "'The Kitchen' hosts go back to the basics with foolproof recipes and techniques every home cook should know. Jeff Mauro prepares a saucy beef and broccoli stir fry, while Katie Lee Biegel roasts sheet pan lamb meatballs with veggies. Then, Geoffrey Zakarian shares a trick for his simple poached cod and classic brown rice pilaf, and Sunny Anderson gets sweet with her easy lemon sunshine bars."

Keeping us fed with content through the remainder of the summer, further episodes will also share recipes for "a mammoth cowboy steak with roasted shallots and watercress salad" (per Food Network), Anderson's coveted chipotle cheeseburger dip, Lee Biegel's picnic-ready peach slab pie and more, including some perfect drinks to beat the heat, like Mauro's ginger mint highball.

From executive producers Blake Swerdloff ("Trisha's Southern Kitchen") and Beth Burke ("Big Restaurant Bet"), Season 37 of "The Kitchen" keeps us fed, with a delicious new episode airing Sunday, Aug. 17, on Food Network.

"Reasonable Doubt" - Season 2

Explore a case that is anything but straightforward when Season 2 of "Reasonable Doubt" premieres Thursday, Aug. 22, on Hulu. The most brilliant and fearless defense attorney in Los Angeles, Jax Stewart (Emayatzy Corinealdi, "Hand of God") plays by her own set of rules, bucking the justice system whenever she can if it means getting results. While those around her may judge her for her wild interpretation of the law and questionable ethics, Jax often finds them changing their tune as soon as her unique skills are needed. This season finds Jax doing her best to heal in the aftermath of "last season's arduous trial and deadly affair" (per Hulu). But, when one of her closest friends reveals that she has killed her husband and is claiming self-defense, Jax is thrown right back into the chaos. With an uncompromising prosecutor on her tail who thinks Jax's friend is guilty, it'll be a fight to the finish line in another tough case. Created by writer and executive producer Raamla Mohamed ("Scandal"), the series also stars McKinley Freeman ("Queen Sugar"), Morris Chestnut ("The Resident"), Tim Jo ("This Is Us"), Angela Grovey ("Joyful Noise," 2012), Thaddeus J. Mixson ("Candy Cane Lane," 2023), Aderinsola Olabode ("Love," 2022), Essence Atkins ("First Wives Club"), Melissa Ponzio ("Chicago Fire") and Vaughn W. Hebron ("The Oval").

"The New York Times Presents: Lie to Fly"

"Agent Recon" (2024)

The third entry in writer, director and star Derek Ting's ("Supercapitalist," 2012) Agent trilogy, "Agent Recon," starts streaming Tuesday, Aug. 20, on Hulu. Like the other films in the trilogy, Ting stars as Jim Yung, a super-powered rookie soldier who hunts down an alien threat known simply as the Infected. Yung's vendetta takes him and his mentor, Capt. Alastair (Chuck Norris, "Walker, Texas Ranger"), to New Mexico to help Col. Green (Marc Singer, "The Beastmaster," 1982) and his team search for a unit that went missing. While searching for the missing unit, Yung, Alastair and Green discover that Dr. Penn (Christopher Showerman, "Radio America," 2015) is using alien technology for nefarious means. Rounding out the cast are Sylvia Kwan ("Grey's Anatomy") as Tanya, Jason Scott Jenkins ("Future Man") as Miller, Matthew Ryan Burnett ("Agent Revelation") as Aaron Klak, Nikki Leigh ("Silencer," 2018) as Capt. Lila Rupert, Teo Briones ("Will vs. The Future) as Larry Higgins and Yarett Harper ("The Rookie") as Harden. Moreover, "Agent Recon" comes from producers Ting and Joyce Yung ("Always," 2015); and executive producers Grady Craig ("Scrambled," 2023), Larry Greenberg ("Bandit," 2022), Matthew Helderman ("Clerks III," 2022), Judah Klatzker ("As They Made Us," 2022), Berry Meyerowitz ("Jungle," 2017), Jeff Sackman ("American Psycho," 2000) and Luke Taylor ("Redemption Day," 2021).

"Stress Positions" (2024)

Get whisked back to the early days of the COVID-19 pandemic with director Theda Hammel's ("My Trip to Spain") dramatic comedy "Stress Positions," available to stream Wednesday, Aug. 21, on Hulu. During the summer of 2020, Terry Goon (John Early, "DC League of Super-Pets," 2022) is trying to adapt to a strict quarantine in his ex-husband's (John Roberts, "Bob's Burgers") house in Brooklyn, N.Y., while caring for his injured nephew — and Moroccan model — Bahlul (played by new talent Qaher Harhash). Unfortunately for Terry, his quarantine gets continually broken as everyone in his life comes over uninvited to visit Bahlul, leading to immense frustration and paranoia. As Terry deals with all the uninvited guests, his friend Karla (Hammel) befriends Bahlul. Written by Hammel and Faheem Ali, "Stress Positions" also stars Elizabeth Dement ("Ford v Ferrari," 2019), Amy Zimmer ("Problemista," 2023), Gordon Landenberger ("My Trip to Spain"), (), Felipe di Poi ("The Special Without Brett Davis"), Davidson Obennebo ("Water and Garri," 2024), Tarek Ziad ("The Equalizer"), Macy Rodman ("Fantasmas"), Louisa Judge ("FBI: Most Wanted") and new talents Elias Abawi, Joe Van O and Rebecca F. Wright.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Paul Rudd seems to be everywhere nowadays. Where did he get his start?

A: It's hard to define a screen star's "start."

Is it their first taste of performing for a crowd? For Rudd, that was probably in high school dramatics, which inspired him to major in theater at the University of Kansas.

Maybe it's their first time on screen. For Rudd, that would be a TV ad for the Super Nintendo video game system in 1991.

But when most people think of an actor's start, they're thinking of their first "significant" or "notable" role — the first time they got real screen time and contributed to the plot. For Rudd, that was in "Sisters."

"Sisters" was a popular NBC sitcom that debuted in 1991. Rudd joined in the show's third season, in 1992, playing Kirby Philby, an aspiring filmmaker who married the daughter of one of the show's leads. That daughter, by the way, was played by a young Ashley Judd ("Kiss the Girls," 1997), also prefame.

Rudd was a supporting star on the show until 1995, during which time he was able to moonlight on a few other projects, such as made-for-TV dramas "Moment of Truth: Stalking Back" (1993) and "Runaway Daughters" (1994).

Shortly after leaving "Sisters," he landed his first big-screen role in the 1995 comedy classic "Clueless." Many would say that this was his "start," since it's a role for which he's still remembered today.

Q: Is Mel Gibson still doing a fifth "Lethal Weapon" movie?

A: Yes he is, and he's "doing" more than ever.

There's been talk of a "Lethal Weapon 5" for ages — 26 years to be exact, since "Lethal Weapon 4" (1998) came out and more than doubled its massive $140-million budget at the box office.

It's been so long that Mel Gibson's ("Braveheart," 1995) career has had time to totally crater and then, seemingly, revive again.

And sadly, it's been so long that the director-producer and visionary behind the first four Lethal Weapon films, Richard Donner ("Superman," 1978), has died. Donner passed in 2021 at the age of 91.

In a recent interview on the "Inspire Me" podcast, Gibson confirmed not only that the fifth movie is still happening, but that he would take over directing duties, with Donner's blessing.

"He kind of tasked me with carrying the flag home on that one, so it'll be an honor for me to do that."

A lot of things have contributed to the decades-long delay in getting this made. These include Gibson's aforementioned career troubles, of course, but also the more predictable problems with settling on a script.

Back in 2020, Danny Glover (Gibson's co-lead in the four previous installments) said he was impressed by "the script that I read," but suggested that it was still a work in progress. And at the time, rumors were already swirling that previous versions had been rejected by one or both of the stars.

But when Gibson was unveiling the news that he would direct, he also said that a new version of the script was ready and that he was pleased with it. "It's funny, but it's pretty serious, too. It tackles a couple of hard issues. I'm looking forward to it."

Q: When is Baz Luhrmann releasing another movie? I love his style.

A: I think it's safe to say Baz Luhrmann won't be releasing another movie for a while.

The director of hits such as "Moulin Rouge!" (2001) and "The Great Gatsby" (2013) freely admits that he likes to take his time once he starts a project, and he also admits that he hasn't even started on anything yet.

His most recent production, the Hulu miniseries "Faraway Downs," was released in the fall of 2023. Two months later, Variety magazine tried to pin him down on his next one, but he didn't have an answer.

"In my mind, anyway. I've made myself a deadline that by the end of the year, I will be committed to what I'm going to do. Because I never make [films] that often, and when I do they take years, so that's one decision that you cannot get wrong."

He said he had a few possible ideas he was considering, including an adaptation of the classic Soviet novel "The Master and Margarita" by Mikhail Bulgakov. But just a few months ago, Variety reported that he has since abandoned that project. So we're no closer to knowing what his next movie will be.

But even if we knew, we'd still be a long way from seeing it.

As he said in the interview, Luhrmann takes years to make a movie. There was only one year between "Faraway Downs" and his previous one, 2022's "Elvis," but that was a huge anomaly (it was also an anomaly because he doesn't do a lot of TV).

He's averaged five years between releases. However, a whopping nine years passed between "Elvis" and his previous big-screen project, 2013's "The Great Gatsby."
