Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

I have an important announcement to make. For the next four years, we get to live by airport rules. Calories don't count and it's perfectly reasonable to drink a vodka tonic at 8 a.m.

I have shocking news. CBS is working on a new "FBI" spinoff with a CIA twist called "FBI: CIA." OMG! This is the perfect addition to the extended FBI-verse, there's "FBI: International," "FBI," "FBI: Most Wanted," "FBI: True" and the sexy adult spinoff, "FBI: BBL: DTF."

According to a new AP-NORC MILF Manor poll, only two in 10 Americans support pardoning the [Jan. 6] rioters. Two out of 10. If you want an idea of how unpopular that is, that's only one point better than the Rotten Tomatoes score for "Transformers: Revenge of the Fallen."

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

According to polls, [President] Trump will enter his second term with far more support than he did eight years ago. Yes, the producers of "Joker 2" were like, "Um, sequels can be harder than you think."

A Southwest Airlines flight was delayed several hours after police removed the pilot from the cockpit and arrested him for a DUI. Yeah, this doesn't happen on Spirit, because all of their pilots have to blow into a breathalyzer to start the plane.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

I don't know if you know, this is one of our most anticipated days of the year in Hollywood — the nominations for the 97th Academy Awards. After a shaky couple of weeks, we finally have some good news: the list of Oscar nominees is out and Matt Damon isn't on it! Again, it's the little things that keep me going.

There are several first-time acting nominees, including Demi Moore, Kieran Culkin, Ariana Grande, Zoe Saldana and Sebastian Stan, who is up for best actor for his role in the movie "The Apprentice," where he played the Donald Trump Melania wishes she was married to.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

Former President Joe Biden issued preemptive pardons today [Jan. 20] for many of President Trump's adversaries, like water pressure, wind and Taylor Swift.

Vice President JD Vance was sworn in today [Jan. 20] by Supreme Court Justice Brett Kavanaugh. Call me old-fashioned, it just doesn't sound like something two guys named JD and Brett would be up to. They sound like two guys who would be in an ER waiting after messing with illegal fireworks.

Taco Bell began offering cheesy dipping burritos, which are served with creamy chipotle nacho cheese sauce or reduced-fat sour cream. You know, for the health nuts.

Misinformation overload: Political thriller 'Zero Day' questions the role of truth

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

The divisive political landscape we find ourselves living through these days can feel stranger than fiction.

Proving the idiom true is the new, eerily timely, six-episode limited series "Zero Day," premiering Thursday, Feb. 20, on Netflix. Robert De Niro ("Killers of the Flower Moon," 2023) stars as former President George Mullen, who is pulled out of retirement to head the precedent-setting Zero Day Commission.

When a cyber attack is carried out against the United States, it causes several disasters and country-wide chaos, killing thousands of citizens on what becomes known as Zero Day. Following the tragic events, President Evelyn Mitchell (Angela Bassett, "Damsel," 2024) calls on the former president to lead an investigation into who is responsible for the attacks.

Whether outside forces or home-grown terrorists were behind the fatal plot, the many voices willfully spreading disinformation make Mullen's job incredibly complicated. To get to the bottom of it, the former president surrounds himself with as trustworthy a team as he can in the ambitious world of American politics.

Jesse Plemons ("Kinds of Kindness," 2024) stars as Mullen's former aide Roger Carlson, who is brought back to work for the commission. Also joining the investigation are political strategist and Mullen's former chief of staff Valerie Whitesell (Connie Britton, "Dear Edward") and Department of Justice lawyer Carl Otieno (McKinley Belcher III, "Ozark"), who serves as lead investigator for the Zero Day Commission. Lizzy Caplan ("Fatal Attraction") is progressive congressional representative Alexandra Mullen and daughter of the former president, while Joan Allen (Lisey's Story") is former first lady and nominee to the federal bench, Sheila Mullen.

Also starring in "Zero Day" are Matthew Modine ("Stranger Things") as speaker of the house Richard Dreyer; Bill Camp ("Presumed Innocent") as CIA Director Jeremy Lasch; Gaby Hoffmann ("Transparent") as Silicon Valley billionaire Monica Kidder; Clark Gregg ("Snowpiercer") as Robert Lyndon, another billionaire with a penchant for manipulating politics; and Mark Ivanir ("Mayor Of Kingstown") as intelligence operative Natan.

Dan Stevens ("Cuckoo," 2024) portrays Mullen's most vocal critic, political talk show host Evan Green, complete with the faux-blue collar look of real right-wing propagandists. In an official trailer for the upcoming series, Green films a segment of "The Evan Green Show" for the fictional American Access Network, riling viewers up by saying, "Ex-President George Mullen is not only a wannabe tyrant, he's a deeply troubled man."

Claims of tyranny are to be expected, given the exceptional reach of the government's Zero Day Commission to pull anyone they suspect of having involvement without warrants. However, Green suggests on his program that Mullen is withholding the kind of secrets that call into question the integrity of the commission under his leadership.

With the threat of repeat attacks made clear through a nationwide text alert on Zero Day promising "this will happen again," it is imperative that Mullen and the members of the commission work quickly, by any means necessary, to find those responsible before they can act again. Is calling out the hypocrisy of a possibly compromised leader like Mullen a step in the right direction for a more just America? Or is it just another distraction tactic from those interested in degrading civil liberties?

Though the series was developed before the most recent U.S. presidential election came to pass, some of the events of the series bear a striking resemblance to real circumstances that arose during the campaign — notably Mullen questioning his own competency as he begins noticing signs of cognitive decline.

Series co-creator Eric Newman ("Griselda") spoke to Vanity Fair in November about the upcoming series, revealing that he and fellow co-creator Noah Oppenheim ("Jackie," 2016), former president of NBC News, sought to confront the country's relationship with the truth in "Zero Day," tuning into Americans' imaginings of the future.

"It feels like it could happen. Based on how you feel about the election, this is either going to be an aspirational story about people who can find their way to the truth, even when it's really hard, or a cautionary tale of the perils of the deep state and absolute power corrupting absolutely," Newman said. "For me, it's a little bit of both."

Talking to Tudum, Newman remarked on legendary screen actor De Niro's influence on the series, saying, "[De Niro] very much became our partner in this process — very hands-on, very involved, read everything at every stage, and it's been an incredible honor and privilege."

Portraying Mullen in "Zero Day" is De Niro's first starring television role, having previously made small screen appearances as himself or as a cameo — nothing as integral as this upcoming role. At 81 years old and with several projects in the works, including the upcoming mobster biopic "The Alto Knights" — slated for release in theaters this March — it looks like De Niro is holding true to his oft-repeated word of never retiring from acting.

Get ready to follow the thread of conspiracy wherever it may lead in the thrilling new Netflix limited series "Zero Day," premiering Thursday, Feb. 20.

Live from New York: 'SNL' celebrates half century of late-night comedy

Bowen Yang, Sarah Sherman and Marcello Hernandez feature in "SNL50: The Anniversary Special"

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

From baby boomers to Generation Z, if you grew up in or currently live in North America, chances are you have at least heard of "Saturday Night Live." First airing on NBC as "NBC's Saturday Night" in October 1975, the sketch comedy darling changed its name to "Saturday Night Live" following the 1976 cancellation of rival variety series "Saturday Night Live with Howard Cosell" on ABC.

Roll on 50 years to 2025, and the iconic improvisational comedy series celebrates half a century of laughs with a weekend-long celebration on NBC. Beginning with its regularly scheduled late-night episode on Saturday, Feb. 15, the festivities reach a pinnacle on Sunday, Feb. 16, during a three-hour prime-time special featuring musical guests, celebrity appearances and returning cast members. Both events can also be streamed on Peacock.

While the 50th anniversary special was officially announced this past fall, NBC's press team has done a fabulous job of keeping the scheduled programming a surprise for its viewers. As of writing, no specifics have been released as to who will be hosting (or if indeed any one person is), which musicians will perform or who from the 50-years-worth of cast will return to star again. That said, if the show's 40th anniversary is any indication of what's to come this February, fans of the series are in for a laugh-laden treat.

When "SNL" reached its 40th-anniversary celebration in February 2015, it gave audiences one of the series' most highly regarded performances in pop star Miley Cyrus's rendition of Paul Simon's "50 Ways to Leave Your Lover." Backed by a full band that included "SNL" cast member Fred Armisen ("Portlandia") on tambourine, the performance helped to solidify Cyrus as a legitimate musician packing serious vocals at a time when she was at the heart of the tabloids due to her shifting style and tumultuous relationship with actor Liam Hemsworth ("The Hunger Games," 2012).

There to witness the groundbreaking performance was a crowd packed with celebs, including 50 Shades franchise star Dakota Johnson, pop icons Taylor Swift ("Midnights"), singer/actor Justin Timberlake ("Friends with Benefits," 2011), Star Wars film franchise creator George Lucas, Hollywood royal Steven Spielberg ("Jurassic Park," 1993), then-governor of Alaska Sarah Palin and would-be president Donald Trump, among others.

Ten years later, the list of celebrities attending "SNL50," as it has come to be called, will likely look a bit different, but there is no doubt that the event will be one for the books. With a current series cast that counts Chloe Fineman ("Search Party"), Ego Nwodim ("Singularity," 2017), Sarah Sherman ("Nimona," 2023), Bowen Yang ("Isn't It Romantic," 2019), James Austin Johnson ("Praise Petey"), Andrew Dismukes ("The Second Best Hospital in the Galaxy"), Mikey Day ("Home Sweet Home Alone," 2021), Heidi Gardner ("Hustle," 2022), Michael Longfellow ("Ghosts of Ruin"), Devon Walker ("Everything's Trash") and Marcello Hernandez ("The Improvisor," 2022) among its main cast members, alongside longest-running cast member Kenan Thompson ("Kenan & Kel"), the comedy keeps coming half a century after the show's inception.

Of course, a part of what makes "SNL" such a success is the nurturing guidance of its creator and executive producer Lorne Michaels. Also well-known for his involvement in "30 Rock" and "The Kids in the Hall," and for writing the 1986 cult-classic buddy comedy "Three Amigos!," Canadian-born Michaels has been a part of "SNL's" magic from the very beginning, leading the variety series to 103 Emmy wins to date and more than 300 nominations. Now 80, Michaels is starting to give thought to who will take up the mantle when he steps down.

"We're doing the 50th anniversary show in February of '25," Michaels told Entertainment Weekly on the red carpet at the 2023 Emmy Awards. "I will definitely be there for that, and definitely be there until that, and sometime before that we'll figure out what we're gonna do."

While that is hardly an announcement of his departure, Michaels' Emmys statement may signal a big announcement during "SNL50," which has reportedly been in the planning stages since early 2022. As for his successor, the esteemed producer has stated, "It could easily be Tina Fey," one of the series' best-known performers and a member of "SNL's" Five-Timers Club.

It's also likely that the Five-Timers Club — a growing but intimate list of people who have hosted the show five or more times — will be invited to attend and take part in "SNL50." Should they all show up, viewers can expect to see Tina Fey ("Mean Girls," 2004) and Timberlake alongside Steve Martin ("Only Murders in the Building"), Alec Baldwin ("30 Rock"), Chevy Chase ("Community"), Candice Bergen ("Boston Legal"), Tom Hanks ("Forrest Gump," 1994), Danny DeVito ("It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia"), John Goodman ("Roseanne"), Bill Murray ("Scrooged," 1988), Christopher Walken ("Pulp Fiction," 1994), Drew Barrymore ("Never Been Kissed," 1999), Ben Affleck ("The Town," 2010), Melissa McCarthy ("Gilmore Girls"), Scarlett Johansson ("Black Widow," 2021), Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson ("Young Rock"), Will Ferrell ("Elf," 2003), Paul Rudd ("Ant-Man," 2015), Jonah Hill ("War Dogs," 2016), John Mulaney ("Big Mouth"), Woody Harrelson ("True Detective"), Emma Stone ("La La Land," 2016), Kristen Wiig ("Bridesmaids," 2011), Martin Short ("Three Amigos," 1986) and Jack White of the White Stripes.

Don't miss what may well be the funniest weekend of 2025 when "Saturday Night Live" celebrates 50 years live on NBC and Peacock.

Relive the 2024 MLS season during all-new 'Onside' docuseries

David Beckham features in "Onside: Major League Soccer"

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Pitch perfect: "Go beyond the pitch with the personalities that power MLS" (per Apple TV+), during the eight-part series "Onside: Major League Soccer," premiering Friday, Feb. 21, on AppleTV+.

From shocking, game-changing debuts to stunning performances from seasoned professionals, the 2024 MLS season had plenty to offer its fans: MLS history was made when 14-year-old Cavan Sullivan took to the pitch, becoming the youngest player in MLS history; "Raquinho" stole hearts while being chased around Subaru Park; Lionel Messi made assist after assist after assist; European stars crossed the pond to play in U.S.A.; and the L.A. Galaxy became MLS Cup champions for the first time since 2014. The gameplay was fast and biting, and the drama — both on the pitch and off — was ceaselessly captivating for all fans tuned in.

Celebrating a year with unrivaled energy, this one-of-a-kind series offers "unprecedented access to players, coaches and teams," according to an official synopsis given by Apple TV, "[taking] fans through the most compelling storylines, adrenaline-pumping moments and captivating personalities of the 2024 MLS season, from preseason all the way to the 2024 MLS Cup final."

In the official "Onside" trailer, David Beckham (owner of the Inter Miami CF), Tim Parker (defender, New England Revolution) and the aforementioned Cavan Sullivan (midfielder, Philadelphia Union) are revealed to be three of the personalities followed. As key moments of gameplay are shown, intertwined with clips from players' personal lives, Beckham shares: "This is a massive moment to have exceptional players playing in this country. But this league, it's a tough league."

Parker then agrees, adding that "as you get older, it gets harder."

From a talented team of executive producers — including Academy Award winner James Gay-Rees ("Formula 1: Drive to Survive"), Emmy winner Paul Martin ("Make or Break") and Hillary Olsen ("Faceoff:

Inside the NHL") — and showrunner Steve Rankin ("Naked and Afraid"), "Onside" comes as part of Apple's ongoing partnership with MLS, joining the likes of other unscripted, straight-from-the-pitch series such as "Messi Meets America," "Messi's World Cup: The Rise of a Legend," "Real Madrid: Until The End" and "Super League: The War for Football."

With more sure to come — as the 2025 MLS season kicks off the following day, Saturday, Feb. 22 — Apple debuts its latest soccer-obsessed series, "Onside: Major League Soccer," Friday, Feb. 21, on Apple TV+.

Heavyweight hitter: Hear the story of a man who defeated Muhammad Ali on his way to becoming heavyweight champion of the world in the feature-length documentary special "I Am Joe Frazier," making its debut on The CW Saturday, Feb. 22.

In this latest installment of the "I Am" series — a series profiling icons from across the worlds of film, sport, TV, politics and music — fans of the boxing world are offered an in-depth look at the life and career of "Smokin' Joe" Frazier, known to be one of the greatest heavyweight boxers of all time, through unprecedented access to never-before-seen archival footage and exclusive interviews with family, friends and peers of the boxer.

Known to be humble outside the ring but a perfectionist within, Frazier was listed among the 10 greatest heavyweights of all time by the International Boxing Research Organization. With ample strength and a formidable left hand, Frazier first gained notoriety after winning a gold medal at the 1964 Tokyo Summer Olympics, where he competed as a total amateur. From there, Smokin' Joe went on to hold the NYSAC heavyweight title from 1968 to 1973 and was the undisputed heavyweight champion from 1970 to 1973, earning himself endless acclaim in the boxing world.

There was one fight, in particular, that cemented Frazier as a boxing legend. In March 1971, Frazier took to the ring alongside the world-renowned champion Muhammad Ali during what was widely regarded as the biggest boxing match in the history of both the WBC and the WBA. After 15 grueling rounds, Frazier not only won the match but served the seemingly unbreakable Ali his first professional loss.

Within the next five years, Frazier agreed to face Ali yet again — once during 1974's Super Fight II, then again during 1975's Thrilla in Manila — but not long after the duo's first fight, Frazier lost his world heavyweight title to "Big George" Foreman in '73, who then, unlike Frazier, went on to suffer a loss against Ali during 1974's Rumble in the Jungle.

Frazier's professional career concluded in 1976 — excluding a brief comeback in 1981 — but Smokin' Joe left behind an impressive record of 32 wins, four losses, one draw and countless fascinating stories. Relive his wins, losses and awe-worthy moments during "I Am Joe Frazier," airing Saturday, Feb. 22, on The CW.

"Court of Gold"

Join the men's basketball teams from the United States, Canada, Serbia and France as they take on the 2024 Paris Olympic Games in the six-episode limited series "Court of Gold," making its debut on Netflix Tuesday, Feb. 18. Directed by Jake Rogal ("The Last Dance"), this series brings cameras courtside to watch on as talented players — like Kevin Durant, Steph Curry, Shai Gilgeous-Alexander, Nikola Jokic and Victor Wembanyama, to name a few — participate in the qualifying events for the 2024 Summer Olympics, following the athletes as they train, practice, and finally compete for a highly-coveted Olympic gold medal. Over time, Rogal built unique relationships with each team, gaining unprecedented, behind-the-scenes access to conversations that took place in locker rooms, on team buses and during pivotal games, with each episode building a further picture of the drive, dedication and determination required to make history. "Court of Gold" comes from executive producers Aaron Cohen ("Haywire," 2011), Libby Geist ("30 for 30"), Jason Hehir ("UFC Primetime"), Ethan Lewis ("More Than an Athlete"), Vinnie Malhotra ("Start-

"Gabby's Dollhouse" - Season 11

Gabby (Laila Lockhart Kranner, "The Secret of Sinchanee," 2021) and her "Gabby Cats" are back for more purr-fect adventures during Season 11 of "Gabby's Dollhouse," premiering on Netflix this Monday, Feb. 17. Upon her return to the dollhouse, Gabby discovers a brand-new room called the Kitty Care Ear, where she, Pandi and CatRat can practice "big sister" responsibilities — like feeding hungry tummies and changing cupcake wrappers — by caring for all their newest and tiniest friends. This new edition opens the door to endless possibilities both in the dollhouse and out, as Gabby steps further into her independence and grows her understanding of the world. Throughout the season, she celebrates holidays, mingles with Gabby cat family members, and even cheers on Baby Benny Box as he grows his very first tooth. Created by Jennifer Twomey ("Blue's Clues") and Traci Paige Johnson ("Creative Galaxy"), "Gabby's Dollhouse" features the voice acting talents of Juliet Donenfeld ("The Big Show Show"), Tucker Chandler ("Madagascar: A

"American Murder: Gabby Petito"

Revealing the true story behind the sensational story, the three-part docuseries, "American Murder: Gabby Petito" premieres on Netflix this Monday, Feb. 17. After she went missing in 2021, the face of 22-year-old Gabby Petito was plastered across social media, as internet sleuths, curious onlookers and investigators alike tried to discern what happened between the young woman and her fiancé, Brian Laundrie, in late August of that year. In the weeks following, it was discovered that — despite her outwardly happy appearance on social media — Petito was involved in an abusive relationship with Laundrie, one that ended with her death. Now, nearly 3 years later, Gabby's friends and family join to tell the young woman's story from start to finish, sharing real text messages, video footage and journal entries as they dissect the relationship that would eventually cost Gabby her life, and speak candidly about the overwhelming attention Petito's case received once it hit the internet, going viral across platforms like TikTok, Facebook, Instagram and Youtube.

"Reacher" - Season 3

Get ready to head undercover when the hit action series "Reacher" streams its Season 3 premiere Thursday, Feb. 20, on Prime Video. Based on the works of Lee Child, this new installment of "Reacher" dives into the story of Childs' seventh book in the Jack Reacher series, "Persuader." With a penchant for wandering wherever he wills and following no one's rules but his own, former U.S. Army Maj. Jack Reacher's (Alan Ritchson, "Titans") life is as wild as he is strong. As he gets called back in to take on another case, Reacher finds himself taking on a vast criminal enterprise from the inside. As he works undercover himself, Reacher's mission is to rescue an undercover DEA informant before it's too late. In the process, Reacher's storied past comes back to haunt him once again. Season 3 also stars Maria Sten ("Swamp Thing"), Anthony Michael Hall ("War Machine," 2017), Sonya Cassidy ("Lodge 49"), Brian Tee ("Chicago Med"), Johnny Berchtold ("The Passenger," 2023), Roberto Montesinos ("Father Stu," 2022), Olivier Richters ("Black Widow," 2021)

Cher and Nicolas Cage in "Moonstruck"

Saturday, February 15, 2025

George Lopez stars in "George Lopez: Muy Catolico" and Daniel David Stewart ("For All Mankind").

"George Lopez: Muy Catolico" (2025)

After making audiences laugh with past specials like "America's Mexican" (2007), "Tall, Dark and Chicano" (2009), "It's Not Me, It's You" (2012), "The Wall" (2017) and "We'll Do It for Half" (2020), comedian George Lopez ("Lopez vs Lopez") bids farewell to stand-up comedy with one final, hour-long special.

"George Lopez: Muy Catolico" makes its debut on Prime Video Tuesday, Feb. 18. Recorded last September at the Dolby Theatre in Los Angeles, "Muy Catolico" (which translates to "Very Catholic") joins Lopez as he reflects on the challenges of getting older, Latino family dynamics, generational clashes and cultural superstitions. Speaking to daytime talk show host Tamron Hall ("Tamron Hall Show") about this latest special and his decision to retire, Lopez shared: "It is the last one. I've subjected the American people to enough of my crap. It seems like the right time; it's been the one thing that has just never left me my whole life and it's a wonderful place to leave it at this particular point." "Muy Catolico" was produced by Amazon MGM Studios and Travieso Productions.

"Moonstruck" (1987)

Having earned three Oscars at the 1988 Academy Awards, the Cher ("Burlesque," 2010) and Nicolas Cage ("Leaving Las Vegas," 1995)-led romantic comedy "Moonstruck" (1987) is now available to stream on Prime Video. After the tragic loss of her first husband, Brooklyn-born Loretta Castorini (Cher) hopes for a second shot at happily ever after with her brand-new fiancé, Johnny Cammareri (Danny Aiello, "Do the Right Thing," 1989). When Johnny leaves to take care of his ailing mother, however, Loretta is left to meet her future husband's estranged brother, Ronny (Cage), all by her lonesome. Despite his hot-headed personality, Loretta immediately feels pulled towards Ronny, and the two begin a torrid affair. From writer John Patrick Shanley ("Doubt," 2008) and director Norman Jewison ("In the Heat of the Night," 1967), "Moonstruck" also stars Vincent Gardenia ("Little Shop of Horrors," 1986), Olympia Dukakis ("Steel Magnolias," 1989), Julie Bovasso ("Saturday Night Fever," 1977), John Mahoney ("Frasier"), Louis Guss ("Highlander," 1986), Feodor Chaliapin Jr. ("The Name of the Rose," 1986), Leonardo Cimino ("Dune," 1984) and Paula Trueman ("The Outlaw Josey Wales," 1976), among many others.

Reality TV superstars show off during 'Celebrity Family Food Battle'

The celebrity contestants of "Celebrity Family Food Battle" with host Manolo Vergara (center right)

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Some stars align — while others discover they can't take the heat and decide to stay out of the kitchen — during the fun- and food-filled series "Celebrity Family Food Battle," now available to stream on Roku.

Hosted by Manolo Gonzalez Vergara ("From Heaven Is Cali," 2020), who is joined by judges Kalen Allen ("Snack on This!") and Fariyal Abdul-lahi ("Tamron Hall"), "CFFB" asks Hollywood stars to leave their trailers behind, bringing their families along as they take part in a cooking competition made to measure their kitchen capabilities.

In each and every episode, Vergara welcomes two teams of players (one A-lister and one family member) to his ladle-laden battleground, where they are asked to create dishes inspired by iconic films and popular TV shows. While defeat may not taste so sweet, a win earns players the coveted Golden Fork Award and money to be donated to a charity of their choosing, meaning it (quite literally) pays to get the job done right.

During the series' first episode, "Deal or No Deal" host Howie Mandel teams up with his son, Alex, to face off against "Modern Family" mom Sofia Vergara, who brings her niece, Claudia, along for the ride. Now working as judges for high-stakes competition series "America's Got Talent," the competing celebs must get up from their seats and pick up some oven mitts to prove that their talents transcend talent shows and binge-worthy sitcoms.

Throughout the remainder of Season 1, fans can watch as Chrishell Stause ("Selling Sunset") and her sister, Shonda, take part in a reality-star showdown against Brad Goreski ("Canada's Drag Race") and his husband, Gary Janetti; TikTok-famous sisters Charli and Dixie D'Amelio fight against their parents, Heidi and Mark, during two rounds of social media-inspired challenges; and early-2000s singer Ashlee Simpson ("Pieces of Me") faces her mother, Mama Mai, in a bake-off inspired by the classic tale "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory." In between, viewers are treated to episodes featuring WWE superstars, "American Ninja Warrior" hosts, impressive feats of wedding cake decorating and more.

Whether their dishes are delicious or disastrous, the celebrity contestants remain delightful throughout Season 1 of "Celebrity Family Food Battle," continuing with a brand-new episode Wednesday, Feb. 19, on Roku.

"A Thousand Blows" - Season 1

The dark side of the ring takes center stage in the new period

sports drama "A Thousand Blows," premiering Friday, Feb. 21, on Hulu. The series, set in 1880s London, follows the story of best friends Hezekiah Moscow (Malachi Kirby, "Devils") and Alec Munroe (Francis Lovehall, "Champion"), who moved from Jamaica to the Big Smoke to try their hands at a new life. But, quickly drawn into the city's dark underbelly, their talent for bare-knuckle boxing soon draws the attention of a number of unsavory characters. While Hezekiah's talent earns him fortune and fame, it also piques the interest of the infamous Queen of the Forty Elephants, Mary Carr (Erin Doherty, "The Crown"). Soon, a battle of the old world versus the new comes to a violent head. Created, written and executive produced by Steven Knight ("Rogue Heroes"), "A Thousand Blows" is directed by Dionne Edwards ("Everything Now"), Katrin Gebbe ("The Empress"), Ashley Walters ("Top Boy"), Nick Murphy ("A Spy Among Friends"), Tinge ("Industry") and Coky Giedroyc ("Harlots"). Stephen Graham ("Snatch," 2000), Jason Tobin ("Warrior"), James Nelson-Joyce ("C.B. Strike"), Darci Shaw ("The Irregulars"), Gemma Carlton ("Lockerbie: A Search for Truth"), Daniel Mays ("Moonflower Murders"), Adam Nagatis ("The Agency"), Ziggy Heath ("The Miniaturist") and newcomers Morgan Hilaire and Will Bagnall also star.

"Chris Distefano: It's Just Unfortunate" (2025)

Expanding the streamer's "Hularious" slate of programming, Chris Distefano's latest comedy special, "It's Just Unfortunate," lands on Hulu this Friday, Feb. 21. While his career started on shows like MTV's "Guy Code" and IFC's "Benders" — before then careening into the world of podcasts — comedian Chris Distefano made headlines in 2023 as the first-ever stand-up comedian to sell out both Radio City Music Hall and Madison Square Garden on back-to-back nights, cementing him as a master of the stage. With two prior specials to his name — "Size 38 Waist" (2019) and "Speshy Weshy" (2022) — Distefano is back to make the masses laugh yet again. In this latest special, the observational comedian speaks on trying to be the best father he possibly can be, turning the phrase "actions speak louder than words" on its head as he discusses life lived in the modern era, where a person's words — when posted online, at least — often outweighs their actions by far. Eager to set a good example for the next generation, Distefano takes aim with good intentions — but not every shot hits the mark.

"Things Will Be Different" (2024)

Written and directed by Michael Felker ("Would You Like to Try Again?," 2019), the sci-fi thriller "Things Will Be Different" comes to Hulu this Friday, Feb. 21. Starring Adam David Thompson ("A Walk Among the Tombstones," 2014) and Riley Dandy ("Christmas Bloody Christmas," 2022) as siblings Joseph and Sidney (respectively), the film begins with the duo scrambling after a botched robbery, looking for a secluded hideout where they can lay low until the cops disperse. Joseph leads his sister to a remote farmhouse that holds a unique secret — a closet that can transport its occupants into an alternate timeline — and the siblings agree to step inside, knowing they must spend fourteen days in this other world before returning to their own. On the fourteenth day, however, Joseph and Sidney return to find their exit barricaded, and must push their tumultuous bond even further as they face the unknown. Chloe Skoczen ("Undergrads," 2022), Sarah Bolger ("Mayans M.C."), Jori Felker ("Would You Like to Try Again?," 2019) and Justin Benson ("The Endless," 2017) also star.

Q: What's Simon Helberg up to now? And can he really speak all those languages?

A: Simon Helberg, who played the multilingual Howard Wolowitz on "The Big Bang Theory" until its end in 2019, rushed to learn French to get a role in the 2021 musical drama "Annette." But other than that and some high school Latin, he only speaks English.

The "Annette" story is even more complicated than it sounds. After more than a decade on one of the biggest sitcoms of all time, he decided to make a hard turn toward art films. That's when he heard about "Annette," a script being worked on by the highly decorated French director Leos Carax ("Holy Motors," 2012). Helberg told Vulture.com that Carax wanted him for the role but could only hire him if he was a European citizen (for funding purposes). So, long story short, he hurriedly jumped through all sorts of hoops, including hiring a tutor to learn French, in order to get French citizenship.

It was a juicy role — a lead, opposite famed stars Marion Cotillard ("Inception," 2010) and Adam Driver ("Star Wars: Episode VII — The Force Awakens," 2015) — so it was certainly worth the effort.

That level of dedication has earned him more success in his post-"Bang" career. He's done three other quirky indie films since 2019. These include the 2022 family dramedy "As They Made Us" (written and directed by his old "Bang" co-star Mayim Bialik) and the sci-fi rom-com "Space Oddity" (also 2022). And he recently wrapped filming on the wedding-set comedy "For Worse," due out next month.

Helberg's turn toward film started before he finished with "Big Bang," though. In 2016, he had a lead in the musical dramedy "Florence Foster Jenkins," which earned him a Golden Globe nomination for best supporting actor.

Q: Why do TV shows and movies always use 555 in their phone numbers? Does no one have those numbers in the real world?

A: Numbers starting with 555 have been reserved for fictional uses, to avoid the holders of real numbers from getting a whole bunch of mislabeled or prank calls.

It's a practice that dates back at least to the 1960s — the earliest example I could find is the 1961 Western comedy "The Second Time Around," starring Debbie Reynolds ("Singin' in the Rain," 1952), which mentions the phone number 555-3485.

So why was 555 free?

In the early days of the telephone system, phone numbers actually began with two letters to indicate the region of the number. If you remember the old Glenn Miller "Pennsylvania 6-5000," that's a reference to this old phone system, and specifically to the number for the Hotel Pennsylvania, whose number at the time was PE-6-5000.

Simon Helberg in "Annette"

As the population grew and the phone system got more complicated, systems dropped the letter-based prefixes to go fully numerical, so PE-6-5000 became 736-5000 (because P corresponded with six on old rotary phones, and E with 3).

This left 555 basically free because there were very few exchange names that translated to 55 (since 5 corresponded with JKL on the dial).

Since then, some 555 numbers have been added back into use. Today, only 555-0100 to 555-0199 are officially reserved for fiction.

And, of course, it's all voluntary. Films and shows have been using other numbers all along. "Bruce Almighty" (2003), for example, gave a 776 number as the number for God himself (played by Morgan Freeman, "Driving Miss Daisy," 1989). It resulted in hundreds of reported prank calls to people across the country and as far away as England (since Freeman, as God, didn't give his area code).

Q: What else is Angie from "Will Trent" in? Is she doing other stuff at the same time?

A: Erika Christensen likes to keep busy, apparently. While serving as Angie Polaski, the chief supporting star in the ABC procedural "Will Trent," she found time to shoot three different indie films, all of which are in post-production: the family drama "After All," the avant-garde art drama "FEEL," and "86," about which very little is known except that it also stars former "Arrow" star Stephen Amell.

However, all three have been stuck in post since last spring, so there's no telling yet when they'll be released.

Christensen can keep up this kind of pace because she's been doing it since she was 13. That's when she landed her first major role, a lead in the 1997 big-screen remake of "Leave It to Beaver." She's been on screen almost nonstop since.

Three years later, she landed a dream teen role in the Oscar-winning film "Traffic" (2000), playing the drug-addicted daughter of a White House anti-drug czar (played by Michael Douglas, "Wall Street," 1987).

You may also have seen her in the NBC dramedy "Parenthood," starring in all six seasons as Julia Braverman-Graham.
