THE LEGACY LIVES

18,246 runners and walkers splash through the rain

Few participants were searching for water in the finishing chutes.

Larry Fisher/QUAD CITY TIMES

Rain-drenched runners make their way along the seven miles.

Larry Fisher/QUAD CITY TIMES

They came from every town in the Quad City area, from each of the 50 states and from 20 countries — a record 18,246 runners and walkers.

They included world class runners, weekend joggers and people out for a stroll with friends, soaking up the atmosphere of the 18th annual Quad City Times Tri.

They soaked up more than atmosphere. In only the second time in the history of the race it rained.

The participants soaked their way up Park Street for 18 miles, accompanied by the thousands of Bix Seven.

The annual section is a tribute to each of them.

Watchers from skywalk kept dry

By Sara Miller

In many ways, it was the best spot along the route. And almost everyone would agree it was definitely the driest.

Nearly 200 people who watched the Quad-City Times Skywalk Saturday were treated to brunch and a great view.

The skywalk, bridging the top of Brady Street Hill, was the site of Palmer's sixth VIF Skywalk Party.

Several spectators in the skywalk were former Bix 7 runners and many were old-timers who said they visited Quad-City relatives this week in order to catch the race.

Bever and South Carolina resident Gerald Schroeder said, "It's fun being in that crowd, running in a sea of people."

Schroeder ran the Bix in one hour and 39 minutes three years ago.

"It was about 10 minutes before I even crossed the starting line because of all the people," the structure engineer said.

"What I think is neat is all the people who knew they're going to finish and stick with it."

He said a business trip, a high school reunion and the Bix brought him to the Quad-City this week.

Dave Lenihan and Karen Altemeyer spent most of Saturday morning looking for friends and cheering on some of the more spectacular Bix participants — children, dogs, a man in a wheelchair, someone in a gorilla suit and a one-legged man on crutches.

"It's a great view," Lenihan said. "It was incredible watching them come up the hill. It was like, 'Wow.'"

He is a Palmer student. Some of his classmates probably were participating in an inner-college challenge in which students, staff, alumni and faculty competed to get the most participants in the race.

Palmer, an official sponsor of the race, also awarded $400 to the first male and female to pass under the skywalk. They were Martin Flayo, who finished second in the men's division, and Olga Markova, who won the women's division.

Beneath the skywalk, a little soggy but no less thrilled to be watching, were two fanatics that staked out their spot on the sidewalk about 7 a.m. Saturday.

Rick and April Stephens and their two kids, Kaiti and Brian, were in the midst of a cross-country run when their Davenport relatives convinced them to stay and watch the Bix.

"Now we're going to come back every year," April said. "And the kids want to run."

Rick's brother, Ted, said he and his wife have watched every single Bix 7. The first race, with 84 runners, was in 1975.

"We just come down and cheer on all the people we know who are in it and have fun," Ted said.

The rain cut attendance at Palmer's traditional Top-of-the-Hill Party, which featured free refreshments and a live band.

crowd he had to walk part of way. Still, he enjoyed it all. 'The people are so kind. They don't know who you are, but they still clap for you...'

And, as with the last few years, they came in costume. Last year, it was Mark Twain characters, this year, Batman.

Rounding out the cast, Larry Humes and son, Eric, of Henderson, Ill., portrayed the Penguins, Michelle Anderson, of Mommouth, Ill., played Catwoman.

First-timer couldn't wait to party

'I'm going to be running nervous about the big race. Brenda Wilson, wasn't at all nervous about the big race.'

'I know I'm not going to win. I'm just going to try to finish,' she said while stretching outside the Adler Theatre.

Her sister and a few friends talked her into it this year, her first time out.

'I'm going to be running mostly. And walking. Well, mostly walking mostly,' she said.

Wilson, of Plain, Wis., said she liked the idea of participating with all the runners, but she also liked the idea of the 'T-shirt and food.'

'It's a very organized event, for the big party time that it is.'

Kansans hot dog it

Marlyn Liston (ketchup) and Tami Armstrong (mustard) can't wait to party. They said that running seven miles in hot-dog foam wasn't as bad as they anticipated...

Runners and walkers head into the home stretch as they make the turn onto Fourth Street.

Encouragement from soggy spectators helped Bix'ers conquer the seven-mile course.

Arsenal workers push race participation

Next year, a directorate from the Rock Island Arsenal may be "Participate in the Bix 7."

That is, if suggestions from Judy Palomo, 43, and Marguerite Taylor, 27, are taken seriously.

The two women work at the Arsenal and were convinced by co-workers to walk the course this year.

"I think it would be great to get everyone in the office out here," Palomo said.

Palomo and Taylor said they didn't put up much resistance to participating, but they did wait until Thursday night to register.

"We procrastinated, but we're here," Taylor said.

Their co-workers were funny, but they decided to walk.

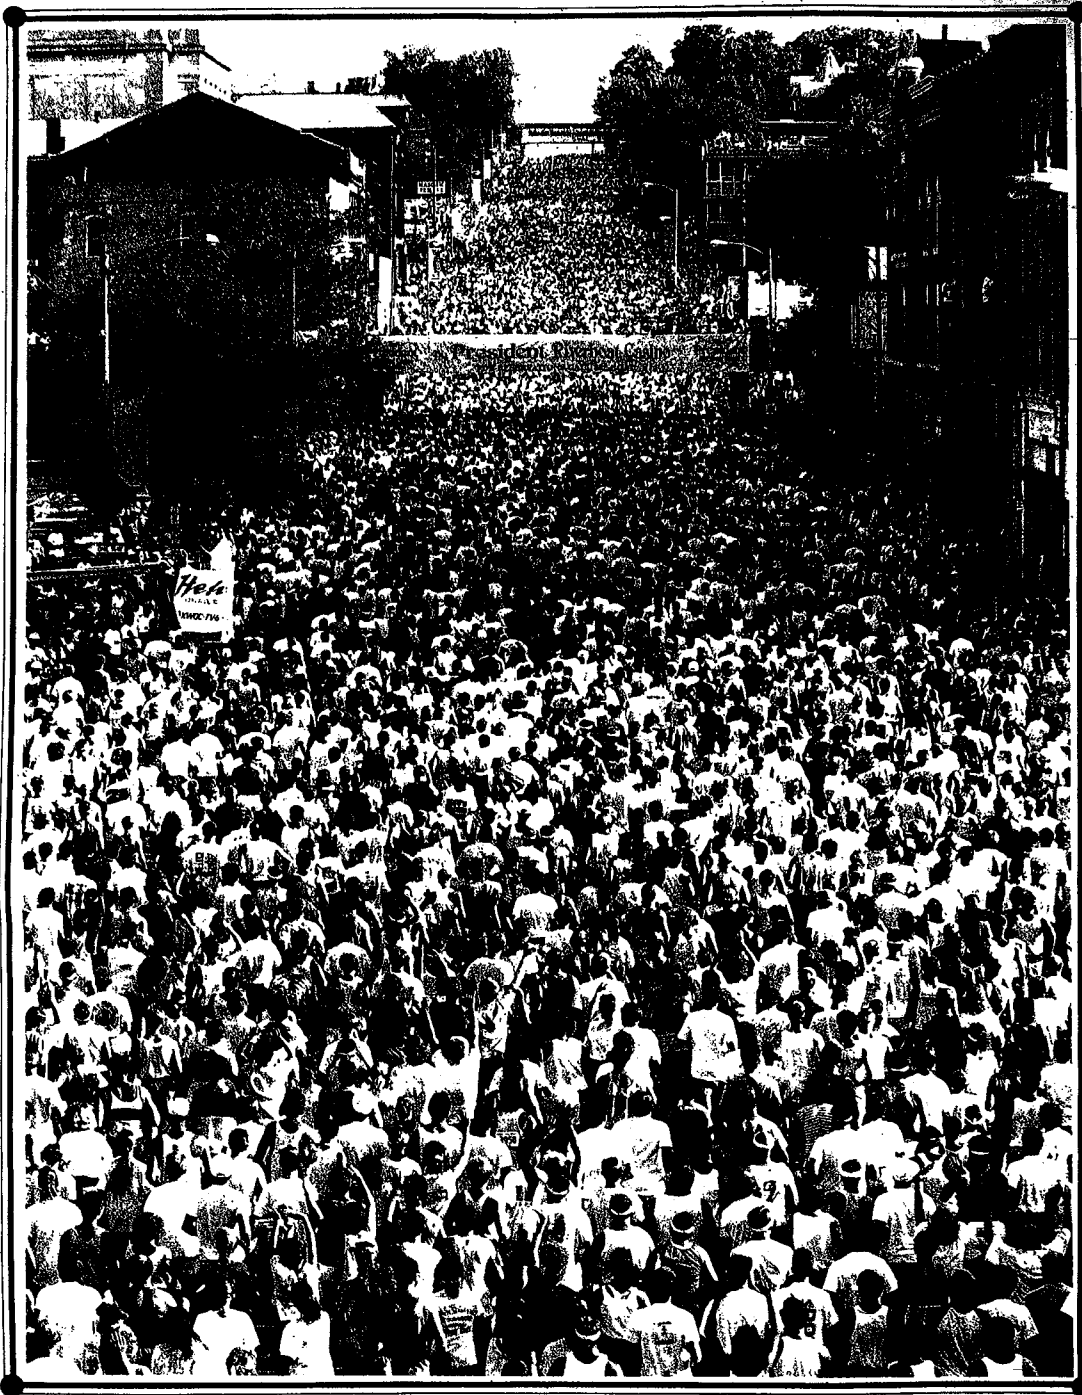

"I would like a chance to walk it first to see how drastic it is," Taylor said.

Palomo said she thought she wasn't fit enough in past years, but "Now I thought I'd give it a try."

"They thought they might finish in 2 hours. Or 2 hours, 15 minutes. But they weren't going to look at their watches, either."

"I hear it's a fun time, rain or not. That's what we're out here for," Taylor said.

CONGRATULATIONS QUAD-CITY AREA!
THANKS TO YOUR PARTICIPATION... THE LEGACY LIVES!

The Quad-City Times would like to express our appreciation to:

- the hundreds of volunteers who helped make the Quad-City Times Bix 7 an event the entire community enjoys.
- all runners and walkers who participated in the race.
- all those who watched and cheered the participants during this year's Quad-City Times Bix 7.

CLEAN OUT YOUR GARAGE

...GET PAID FOR IT!

3 Lines—2 Days—$15.95

It's remarkable, but ever since the dawn of man no one has really ever understood how the average garage collects so many unaverage items. An old chair here, an extra bike there, and all sorts of things of different shapes and sizes seem to multiply overnight. For as little as $15.95, we can help you clean out that garage and you'll get paid in the process. Simply round up all those items you'd like to sell and give us a call at 383-2232. One of our friendly Classified Professionals will help you write an effective Garage Sale Super Seller.

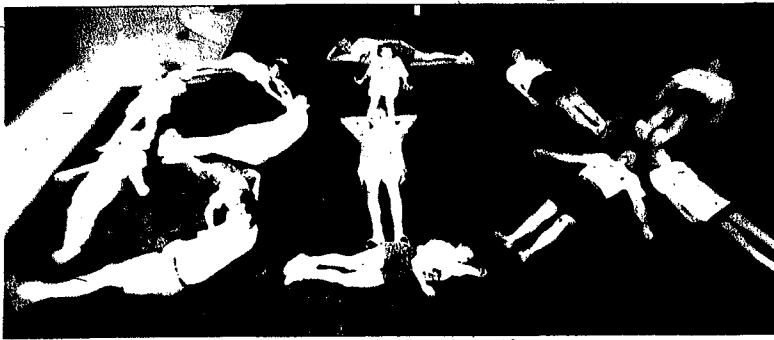

Clearly stated...it's the best Garage Sale value in town. Who knows, once you clean out your garage you may find a whole new use for it...like taking care of your car.

Give me a 'B'

John Schelle/QUAD CITY TIMES

This time of year, you can spell fun B-I-X. Fourteen members of the Frank and Mary Grimes family came from Dallas, Chicago, Massachusetts and the Quad-Cities to run or walk in the Quad-City Times Bix 7. Spelling the "B" are Angela Sanders, Mandy Marti, Steve Grimes, Danny Marti, Greg Grimes and Krisya Sanders; spelling "I" are Teresa Grimes, Monica Judd, Frank Grimes and Laura Grimes; and marking the "X" are Cheryl Marti, Dave Marti, Joe Epping and Carl Epping.

Rookie runner tops his goal

By Carlo Dann

Joe Rueber, the featured rookie runner of the Quad-City Times Bix 7, was flying high after the race.

His official finishing time was 54 minutes, a second almost six minutes faster than his goal of one hour.

Rueber was the neophyte who agreed to follow the Quad-City Times Bix 7 training schedule and have his progress reported in articles.

The schedule carried me the whole way. It was a kick," he said. His face covered with a smug and rambles.

Rueber

Robison. They ran together until five miles, then Rueber put together two 2 1/2 minute miles to attack his friend. "He's a sandbagger," Robison joked, referring to running's equivalent of a pool shark.

Rueber, who had been an occasional jogger until beginning the 14-week Bix 7 training program this spring, had help along the course. He stayed with his wife and daughter at the innatourist and saw his secretary volunteering at a water station.

Then it was a push to the finish. "After McCallan Boulevard, I felt good. It was fun."

What will he do now that Bix 7 is finished? "Reggie and I want to run a half marathon (13.1 miles) in October," he said. "But that's in the paper, and you'll hold me to it."

Kind of like his Bix 7 training.

No, this Bix'er wasn't carrying his lunch. But he did a good imitation of a walking commercial for Oscar Mayer.
