Recapping the best and worst of TV in 2015

By Cassie Dresch
TV Media

Where has 2015 gone? It seems like only yesterday we were ringing in the new year with Ryan Seacrest in Times Square, watching the ball drop and belting out "Auld Lang Syne." Now, it's time to do it all over again, but not before taking a trip down memory lane to recap some of this year's best and worst TV moments.

In a year that has seen some serious highs and lows, it's tough to pick a place to begin — from new shows such as "Empire" and "Better Call Saul" making good first impressions, to series such as "Parks and Recreation" and "Mad Men" saying goodbye, quite a lot has happened on television since Jan. 1.

Perhaps, then, it's fitting to start at the 67th Primetime Emmy Awards, which aired in September — the one night a year when television's best gather to celebrate the cream of their own crop. It was then that Oscar- and Golden Globe-nominated actress Viola Davis took home an Emmy for Outstanding Lead Actress in a Drama Series for her role in ABC's "How to Get Away with Murder," becoming the first black woman in the ceremony's history to win the prestigious award.

That same night, actor and comedian Tracy Morgan ("30 Rock") surprised everyone with his first public appearance since a tragic car accident in June 2014 put him in an eight-day coma and left him with traumatic brain injuries.

The 2015 Emmys also served as the icing on the cake for triple-threat writer-comedian-actress Amy Schumer. This year alone, she premiered her first film, "Trainwreck"; released a new comedy special, "Amy Schumer Live at the Apollo," on HBO; was named one of Time magazine's 100 most influential people; and took home an Emmy for Outstanding Variety Sketch Series for her Comedy Central show "Inside Amy Schumer."

Two other comedians who were making waves in 2015 were longtime "Late Show" host David Letterman and 16-year "The Daily Show" host Jon Stewart. Both stepped away from their desks for good (the former in May and the latter in August), leaving behind some enormous shoes for their successors to fill. It marked an end of an era for the two comedians who were pillars of their respective genres — Letterman revolutionized modern late-night talk shows, and Stewart turned satirical news into a comedy staple.

It wasn't all "out with the old" in 2015, though. We were also introduced to a ton of new programming as networks and censors continued to vie for viewership.

It's no surprise that CBS did well this year, having capitalized on its beloved NCIS franchise with a New Orleans-based spinoff starring Scott Bakula ("Quantum Leap"). What did surprise us this year was Fox's "Empire." The series debuted in January with Taraji P. Henson ("Person of Interest") and Terrence Howard ("Hustle & Flow," 2005) headlining, and it took only 10 days for the network to order a second season, which premiered back in September.

AMC also (unsurprisingly) hit it out of the park in 2015 with its "Breaking Bad" spinoff, "Better Call Saul," starring Bob Odenkirk ("Nebraska," 2013). The series notched four Emmy nods and took home both of the Critics' Choice Television Awards for which it was nominated, with critics praising Odenkirk and Jonathan Banks ("Airplane," 1980) for their portrayals of the eponymous Saul (a.k.a. Jimmy McGill) and Mike Ehrmantraut, respectively. (Season 2 premieres Monday, Feb. 15, on AMC.)

Of course, for every great series there are two or three downright disappointing ones, and there's no better example of this principle than season 2 of "True Detective." Next to a widely acclaimed first season that picked up four Golden Globe nominations, five Emmy wins, another six Emmy nominations and countless other nods and wins, the second installment of the anthology series paled in comparison. It still received some positive reviews, but came nowhere close to matching the previous success of the show.

NBC had to deal with a surprising dud as well, after its A list-laden miniseries "The Slap" — based on the Australian show and novel of the same name — did not go over well with viewers or critics. Despite a roster that included Uma Thurman ("Kill Bill: Vol. 1," 2004), Zachary Quinto ("Star Trek," 2009), Thandie Newton ("The Pursuit of Happyness," 2006) and Peter Sarsgaard ("Green Lantern," 2011), the drama flopped and was quickly forgotten.

A look back at the major television moments of 2015

Health Insurance Marketplace

A resource where individuals, families, and small businesses can: learn about their health coverage options; compare health insurance plans based on costs, benefits, and other important features; choose a plan; and enroll in coverage.

Witham Health Services is pleased to offer assistance in answering questions and enrolling you in the Healthcare Marketplace plan that best fits your needs.

Open Enrollment is the time when you can find a new Marketplace plan, keep your current plan, update your expected income and household information for 2016, or see if you can get help paying for coverage. If you want to make sure you're covered in 2016, mark these 3 dates on your calendar:

- December 31, 2015. The day all 2015 Marketplace coverage ends, no matter when you enrolled. If you are currently enrolled in a 2015 plan you should have received a letter from your Marketplace plan regarding 2016 coverage.

- January 31, 2016. The last day you can enroll in 2016 coverage before the end of Open Enrollment.

Please call Witham Health Services at 765-485-8060 for further assistance or to schedule an appointment with a certified navigator or visit www.healthcare.gov.
