Empty nesters take in their grown daughters in NBC comedy

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

For people in the throes of modern-day parenthood, the notion of an empty nest may seem like a distant oasis. Eventually, however, most young adults strike out on their own, leaving their parents to adjust to life without them — at least temporarily.

Two such parents — initially heartbroken over the departure of their youngest daughter — begin to reclaim their wild sides, only to have their two adult daughters move back in with them in “Crowded,” debuting Tuesday, March 15, on NBC. Patrick Warburton (“Seinfeld”) and Carrie Preston (“True Blood”) star as said couple, Mike and Martina Moore. Miranda Cosgrove (“iCarly”) and Mia Serafino (“Shameless”) portray their daughters, Shea and Stella. Stacy Keach (“Mickey Spillane’s Mike Hammer”) and Carlease Burke (“Switched at Birth”) round out the main cast as Mike’s parents, Bob and Alice.

Created by producer and writer Suzanne Martin (“Hot in Cleveland”), the comedy addresses a popular modern trend. These days, the “empty nest” is disappearing like the notion of a secure retirement. Adult children who move back in with their parents are so prevalent, there’s even a catchphrase for them: the boomerang generation.

NBC poked fun at the premise in a couple of promos released in February. Shot in a classic horror-film style, the clips showed Warburton and Preston terrorized by the idea of their daughters moving back in. One video even emulated the iconic shower scene from Hitchcock’s “Psycho” (1960), touting “You can’t escape. The terror. The kids are moving back home.”

All kidding aside, “Crowded” shows a lot of potential. Warburton endeared himself to millions of TV viewers in the ‘90s as Puddy, Elaine’s (Julia Louis-Dreyfus, “Veep”) quirky on-again-off-again boyfriend in the hugely popular NBC comedy “Seinfeld.” He went on to star as the title character in Fox’s short-lived live-action adaptation of “The Tick,” and has landed numerous voice-acting gigs, notably as Joe in “Family Guy” and Kronk in Disney’s “The Emperor’s New Groove” (2000) and its sequels.

Up until now, Preston was known more for her dramatic work on TV, including her role as Arlene in HBO’s “True Blood” for seven seasons. In 2013, she won an Emmy for Outstanding Guest Actress in the drama “The Good Wife.” She had nothing but good things to say about working with legendary television director James Burrows (“Cheers,” “Taxi,” “Frasier,” etc.) in “Crowded.” In a November USA Today article, she explained that comedy seems to come naturally to him:

“He will say, ‘Put your hand on the doorknob, then turn, then say the line. It’s funnier.’ And you do it, and it is. It’s second nature for him.”

Playing a daughter of Warburton and Preston’s characters is Cosgrove, who may be young but needs no introduction to TV viewers. She’s been acting since the age of 3, and first captured the attention of audiences as Megan in Nickelodeon’s “Drake & Josh,” before starring in the lead role in “iCarly.” Her other credits include “School of Rock” (2003), “Despicable Me” (2010) and “The Good Wife.”

Compared to her on-screen sister, Serafino is just starting out in the biz. Her more notable credits include “Secrets of a Psychopath” (2015) and the TV series “Stitchers.”

Keach is the most seasoned of the cast, a television and film veteran with a résumé that stretches back to 1964. He’s perhaps best known for starring in the 1984 TV series “Mickey Spillane’s Mike Hammer,” and as the father of comedian Christopher Titus in the Fox sitcom “Titus.” He has also done narration for educational programs on PBS and Discovery, as well as for CNBC’s “American Greed.”

Burke, though not as well known as Keach, has an extensive résumé of her own and appeared in such films as “Get Shorty” (1995) opposite John Travolta and “In Her Shoes” (2005) with Cameron Diaz and Toni Collette.

Though the cast is stellar and the subject matter timely, it was for Burrows himself that “Crowded” attracted so much attention this fall. In November, the second episode of this new NBC comedy became the 1,000th episode of a TV series directed by Burrows. The milestone was marked with a lavish and well-attended celebration showcased in “Must See TV: An All-Star Tribute to James Burrows,” which aired last month. The “Crowded” cast and crew are no doubt hoping that some of Burrows’ Midas touch rubs off on their show as well.
