Merry midwives

Charlotte Ritchie, Helen George and Emerald Fennell star in "Call the Midwife"

A Christmas tradition continues with a special holiday episode of "Call the Midwife," airing Monday, Dec. 25, on PBS. Participating in the convention of many British dramas, the series has created a standalone Christmas special each year since its conception. This year's special sees the midwives of Nonnatus House brave the "Big Freeze" of the winter of 1962 to dutifully care for the mothers and babies of Poplar in East London.

Christmas 'Call': A holiday tradition continues for 'Call the Midwife'

By Sarah Passingham

premiere holiday tradition continues on PBS with a special Christmas Day episode of the popular British drama series "Call the Midwife." The midwives of Nonnatus House return to care for the babies and mothers of Poplar in London's East End as they brave the coldest winter in 300 years. Settle down in front of the fire to catch what's sure to be another heartwarming "Call the Midwife" holiday special, Monday, Dec. 25, on PBS.

Executive producer Pippa Harris revealed at the BFI & Radio Times Television Festival that the special this year sees the characters experience the "Big Freeze" of the winter of 1962, which hit the U.K. with heavy snow and blizzards throughout December of that year. The busy midwives surely have a lot to handle between the extreme weather and their dedicated patient care. This year's chilly theme is a far cry from 2016's Christmas special, which sent the midwives to assist the struggling Hope Clinic in South

Actress Jenny Agutter ("Logan's Run," 1976) has portrayed Sister Julienne, the compassionate, steadfast Sister-in-charge of Nonnatus since the series' conception. Sister Julienne is in full form this Christmas, and has tasked herself with reuniting a family for the holiday. "Royal Shakespeare Company: Henry IV" (2014) actor Jennifer Kirby, a relative newcomer to the show, returns as nurse Valerie Dyer, who helps a young couple with a traumatic birth during the winter storm. Nurse Dyer joined the midwives during season 6, when she rose to the occasion in assisting them after an explosion. As a former Army nurse and local Poplar girl, she was keen to become a midwife to care for her community, and soon joined the others at Nonnatus.

Also starring are Charlotte Ritchie ("Siblings"), Helen George ("Hotel Babylon") and Emerald Fennell ("Chickens"), reprising their roles in the show as the midwives of Nonnatus House. Like Agutter, George has been with the show since the beginning, and her character Trixie Franklin has taken audiences on an emotional roller-coaster. Fans have seen Franklin through devastating breakups, alcoholism and treatment, and had the pleasure of watching her create meaningful friendships with the women of Nonnatus, helped by her nosey, busybody nature.

'Call the Midwife" doesn't just tell stories of difficult and joyous births in London's poverty-stricken East End. The show has expanded the narrative of the series beyond the source material of author and nurse Jennifer Worth's Midwife book trilogy to explore issues facing the community of Poplar and beyond. Over its six seasons, the series has become known for tackling touchy topics with compassion. Nonnatus House has been the framing device for stories exploring faith, poverty, prejudice, disability and equality that are told through the midwives and members of their community. Though the series is set in 1950s and '60s London, the issues addressed have just as much impact and relevance today.

One such storyline handles homosexuality and how attitudes toward it in mid-century London affects one of the main characters on a very personal level. It is revealed that Patsy Mount's (Fennell) close friendship with surgical nurse Delia Busby (Kate Lamb "Red Heart," 2011) developed into a romantic relationship in season 4 of the show. The two experience the oppression of the time, forced to keep their relationship a secret from loved ones and out of the public eye. Like most tales told in "Call the Midwife," the drama of Mount and Busby is balanced with happy endings. After being separated due to an injury, Busby returns to Mount and Nonnatus House to work as a nurse, train as a midwife and live with her girlfriend.

One of the most controversial episodes of the show tackled domestic abuse to mixed opinions from the audience upon its air date. Though the fans may have criticisms of the show, they are a driving force for creator Heidi Thomas. In an interview at BBC Showcase 2016, she recalled her nerves when the show began, saying: "I don't think anyone was more surprised than us that we got eight million viewers on the air overnight." She continued: "I think it's not just the size of the audience, it's the loyalty, the passion you get from them." Those passionate fans have contributed to high series ratings for its entirety, keeping it enthusiastically renewed by its network and ensuring that they will receive more "Call the Midwife" for years to come, so long as showrunners have stories for the women of

The stories Thomas tells through the characters of "Call the Midwife" have hit home for the writer in many ways. The series is a family affair for the creator, as her husband, actor Steven McGann ("Emmerdale"), portrays Dr. Patrick Turner in the show. McGann revealed in his autobiography that he first fell for Thomas after reading a script of hers, and the difficulty of seeing her through medical emergencies had a profound effect on the long-married couple. Following her health scare, Thomas was inspired by her experience with the diligent nurses that she encountered throughout her recovery to create "Call the Midwife" with all of the heart that has kept audiences in love with the show over six years.

Idris Elba stars in "The Mountain Between Us"

The Mountain Between Us

When a storm grounds both of their flights, Ben (Elba), a doctor scheduled to perform an emergency surgery, and Alex (Winslet), a photojournalist on her way to her own wedding, hire a local pilot (Bridges) for an uncharted flight that they hope can get them to their destinations on time. Things take a turn for the worse when the pilot suffers a medical emergency mid-flight, crashing the plane on a mountainside, wounding both of his passengers and killing himself in the accident. For Ben and Alex, the situation couldn't be more dire, with deep snow, frigid temperatures and dangerous wildlife all working against them as they fight to make their way back to civilization. Director: Hany Abu-Assad. Stars: Idris Elba, Kate Winslet, Beau Bridges. 2017. 112 min. Action.

Such an honor

CBS presents 2017's Kennedy Center Honors

By Andrew Warren TV Media

Such an honor: Near the end of every year, one of the greatest cultural honors in the United States is given to those who have spent their lives contributing to the rich vitality that is American culture. Since 1978, the Kennedy Center Honors have been bestowed upon deserving artists in late November or early December, and this year's honorees couldn't be any more deserving of the recognition.

Unlike many other big-ticket awards ceremonies, the Kennedy Center Honors are not broadcast live. Instead, the star-studded gala, which was held on Dec. 3, broadcasts Tuesday, Dec. 26, on CBS. It features other performers and artists recognizing the honorees through tributes and performances; the honorees themselves do not perform.

So just who are the national icons being recognized this year? For people who watch a lot of TV, LL Cool J, who's starred in "NCIS: Los Angeles" since 2009, will be a familiar face, and he's being honored for his contributions to hip-hop music, while five-time Grammy winner Lionel Richie is also being recognized for the contributions that he's made to the music industry.

Norman Lear, the man behind some of the 20th century's most enduring sitcoms, including "All in the Family," "The Jeffersons" and "Sanford and Son," is also being recognized, along with seven-time Grammy winner Gloria Estefan and dance icon Carmen de Lavallade.

The televised gala is just one part of an event-filled weekend for the honorees, including a State Department dinner and a special luncheon, but this year's Kennedy Center Honors included one fewer event than usual. The president and first lady typically host a reception for the honorees at the White House, but due to ongoing political tensions, the White House declined to participate in this year's events to help prevent politics from overshadowing the achievements of the five honorees.

The Kennedy Center Honors gala broadcasts Tuesday, Dec. 26, on CBS.

No 'Fear': There are some changes in store for the upcoming fourth season of "Fear the Walking Dead," but have no fear: they're mostly additions, with one new actor, another sort-ofnew actor and two new showrunners all boarding the AMC series, which returns sometime in 2018.

First up is Garret Dillahunt, who joins the prequel to the monstrously popular "The Walking Dead." The veteran actor has starred in a broad range of genres, from comedy ("The Mindy Project," "Raising Hope") to western ("Deadwood") to science fiction ("Terminator: The Sarah Connor Chronicles"), but for now, his "Fear the Walking Dead" role is being kept tightly under wraps.

Meanwhile, "The Walking Dead" actor Lennie James ("Jericho") has departed from that series, but he's far from done with the franchise. He's joined the cast of the prequel series, where he'll be stepping right back into Morgan's shoes and exploring the character from an entirely different angle. It isn't just on the screen that "Fear the Walking Dead" has some new faces, though. Dave Erickson, who created the spinoff and has served as showrunner for all three seasons, left at the conclusion of the most recent season. Taking his place are industry veterans Andrew Chambliss and Ian B. Goldberg, both of whom have worked on ABC's "Once Upon a Time," among other series.

That's four new faces (so far) for a fourth season of "Fear the Walking Dead." Watch for the hit AMC series to return later in 2018.

Nicky, Ricky and done: Two kids' series have reached their final tracks. Nickelodeon has pulled the plug on both "School of Rock" and "Nicky, Ricky, Dicky & Dawn," but while it may be the end of the line for both series, at least they aren't finished quite yet.

While neither has been renewed for additional seasons, both will continue to air new episodes into 2018. In "Nicky, Ricky, Dicky & Dawn's" case, the fourth season will premiere sometime in the new year (no date is yet announced as of press time), hopefully giving that show's fans a satisfying conclusion.

As for "School of Rock," the series based on the 2003 Jack Black film of the same name is currently in its third season and will conclude sometime in the new year with a special one-hour episode.

"School of Rock" stars Tony Cavalero ("Hart of Dixie") as a middle school teacher who persuades some of his students to form their own band, teaching them some valuable life lessons along the way, while "Nicky, Ricky, Dicky & Dawn" follows quadruplets and their parents as they get into — and out of — some pretty hilarious situations.

For fans of the two series, their cancellations can't be good news, but there is a silver lining. Many shows get pulled without a chance to wrap up plotlines in a satisfying way, but with the advance notice here, that hopefully won't be the case for "School of Rock" and "Nicky, Ricky, Dicky & Dawn."

Q&A Hollywood

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q: Is Mike Franks still alive and how old is he?

A: I'm a little unsure how to answer this. I'm assuming you mean the "NCIS" character Mike Franks (the only other Mike Frankses I could find are a former pro tennis player and track and field star). However, do you want to know about the age and aliveness of the character, or the actor? I'll do both, to be safe.

Muse Watson, the actor who played grizzled veteran agent Mike Franks in CBS's long-running action hit "NCIS," is 69 years old, alive and well — well enough, in fact, to be playing pranks on former co-stars.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the horror flick "I Know What You Did Last Summer," in which Watson played the killer. As a joke, he sent a text message to co-star Ryan Phillippe, in character as the hook-handed killer. "I think he wrote something creepy like 'Hello, old friend,'" Phillippe told the Huffington Post. "I found it really weird and creepy."

As for the character Mike Franks, the answer's slightly less clear — and he's up to the same creepy stuff as the actor is.

Franks is supposed to be dead, and yet he popped up at the end of an episode last month. He seemed to explain this when he told Gibbs that he was seeing dead people, but of course if he's supposed to be dead, he'd say that regardless, wouldn't he? Maybe, maybe not. Fans, of course, can hope that he's alive and just messing with his old protégé (rather than dead and messing with his old protégé).

Q: The bailiff from "Judge Judy" said during an interview that he was recording an album. Did he ever do that? Do you know what it's called and when it came out?

A: Yes and no. Yes, he did release an album of some kind, but I know nothing about it.

Countless albums are released every year in North America, some independently, some for labels so small they might as well be independent, and it can be tough to find a single one in the crowd. And

"tough" becomes impossible if the artist himself doesn't promote it.

Petri Hawkins-Byrd took a funny path to fame, finding it as a mostly silent presence on the biggest daytime show on American TV. Given that he actually has a rather lovely voice, you'd think he'd want people to hear it.

And yet, on his own website (petrihawkinsbyrd.com, if you're curious) the only evidence that he wrote and recorded an album is that he lists singer/songwriter as one of his "hobbies." His PR agency calls him a "published and recorded songwriter" (in the third paragraph of his official biography).

This could be humility — he might not want to be seen tooting his own horn too much (even though there could be horns on his album for all anyone knows). This theory gets a little stronger when you notice that most of these official sources of information spend more time talking about his charitable work — sometimes more than they spend on his "Judge Judy" role.

Q: I really love the actor who plays Ali in "Ten Days in the Valley." What can you tell me about her?

A: Erika Christensen is a former child star who seems to have survived that often traumatizing experience and done some of her best work as an adult.

She was born in Seattle but soon moved with her family to the suburbs of L.A. She said in an interview with Buzzfeed that she decided on her own, at the age of 12, that she wanted to act. "I told my parents I wanted an agent, and they decided to let me have a go at it. Then I started working right away."

Her first job was modest — a spot in a McDonald's commercial but soon after, she had a coveted role in the big-screen "Leave It to Beaver" movie (1997). More roles followed, and at 17 she got to try out more serious fare, playing the drug-addicted daughter of the White House drug czar in the critically beloved 2000 film "Traffic." That meant her name was on the many best-ensemble-cast awards the movie raked in, written alongside such greats as Michael Douglas, Benicio del Toro, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Don Cheadle and more.

How the Grinch Stole Christmas

WBTS (10) 8:00 p.m.

Dr. Seuss's beloved holiday tale comes to life as the mean-spirited Grinch tries to ruin Christmas for the whimsical Whos in the classic animated special "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," airing Monday, Dec. 25, on NBC. In the end, it's the Grinch who learns an important lesson about the true meaning of the season.

The Orville

WFXT 13 9:00 p.m.

Two Union anthropologists go missing on a planet similar to 21st century Earth in this rebroadcast of "The Orville," airing Thursday, Dec. 28, on Fox, prompting Ed (Seth MacFarlane) to send Kelly (Adrianne Palicki) with a team to investigate. Their mission, however, quickly goes off the rails when they discover that the planet's society has some interesting quirks.

suades two of her fellow students, Sophia (Clemons) and Jamie (Norton), to help her explore what happens after death. Using medical equipment, they stop Courtney's heart for 60 seconds before reviving her, and while dead, she finds herself reliving past events, which she vividly remembers upon being revived. Soon, she and her friends are frequently "killing" and reviving one another, but when the darker parts of their past begin returning to haunt them, the lines between the living and the dead begin to blur in terrifying ways. Director: Niels Arden Oplev. Stars: Ellen Page, Diego Luna, James Norton, Kiersey Clemons, Nina Dobrev, Kiefer Sutherland. 2017. 110

Real talk

By Kat Mulligan

Questing for truth: Long before Josh Gates was captivating would-be travelers with "Expedition Unknown," his adventures were a little more eerie in nature. "Josh Gates' Destination Truth" originally aired on Syfy from 2007 to 2012, but the series has found new life on Travel this year. The puns and rough treks still accompany the group on their journeys, but things take a far more terrifying turn with each new investigation. The chilling journeys continue in the next episode of "Destination Truth," which airs Friday, Dec. 29, on Travel.

"Destination Truth" is travel with a fresh twist, exploring supernatural and extraterrestrial legends from a perspective of truth rather than blatant skepticism, though rationality is still key. The series travels to nearly 20 countries per season, often to rare, remote locations with a deep connection to traditional mythology and spirituality. In contrast to "Expedition Unknown," which is heavily shot in the warmth of daylight, darkness and night vision dominate "Destination Truth." The series also relies heavily on the pseudoscience of Cryptozoology, which involves proving that creatures normally thought to be the stuff of myths and folklore have actually physically existed in reality.

Evening fieldwork is key, which commences after Josh and his team meet with locals to find out how these mythical entities have impacted their communities. This information is then combined with the use of a variety of monitoring and detection equipment, including infrared cameras, traps, monitors and more to try to capture as much data as possible that could prove the existence of these perhaps not-so-fictional creatures.
