Connie Britton, Angela Bassett and Peter Krause star in "9-1-1"

The new drama from the creators of "Glee" and "American Horror Story" follows first responders as they struggle to balance their high pressure careers with their personal lives.

First responders struggle to save the day and themselves in Fox's '9-1-1'

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

When the heat is on, it helps to keep a cool head. In an emergency situation, first responders must keep it together and rely on their training to help those in need. However, that doesn't mean first responders don't need help themselves.

Creators Ryan Murphy and Brad Falchuk explore the pressures faced by today's first responders in "9-1-1," airing Wednesday, Jan. 10, on Fox. Set in Los Angeles, the procedural drama follows cops, paramedics and other professionals as they are thrust into frightening and shocking situations.

Casting for the series caused a buzz in the television industry because of the caliber of its stars. Academy Award nominee Angela Bassett ("What's Love Got to Do With It," 1993) headlines the series as police officer Athena Grant, and Emmy nominee Peter Krause ("Six Feet Under") has also nabbed a prominent role as paramedic Bobby Nash. Emmy nominee and former "Nashville" star Connie Britton co-stars as a 9-1-1 operator, while supporting cast members include Aisha Hinds ("Underground") and Rockmond Dunbar ("Prison Break").

Even with the talented ensemble cast, Murphy and Falchuk have their work cut out for them if they want to do justice to the subject matter. While such professions are unquestionably some of the most high-pressure jobs in the world, many first responders contend that they're also the most rewarding, and this new series sheds light on the highs and lows these brave men and women experience every day.

"In those moments when you actually save someone, there's no better feeling in the world," Nash says in "9-1-1."

Bringing those moments to the small screen may be a big challenge, but if there's currently a team in network television that can pull it off it's this one. Murphy and Falchuk's combined credits include Fox's smash-hit musical series "Glee" and FX's horror anthology series "American Horror Story." "9-1-1" marks the pair's third straight-to-season order for Fox network, and their combined successes in prime time have earned them a lucrative development deal with 20th Century Fox Studios. Executive producer Tim Minear has written for various television series, including "The X-Files," "Angel" and "Firefly," and also served as an executive producer for "American Horror Story."

In fact, "9-1-1" features both behind-the-scenes and on-screen talent from "American Horror Story." Bassett earned an Emmy nomination for her role as voodoo queen Marie Laveau in "American Horror Story: Coven," the show's third season. Her portrayal of Desiree Dupree in season 4, entitled "American Horror Story: Freak Show," nabbed her another Emmy nod. She also appeared as Romona Royale in season 5 ("AHS: Hotel") and Monet Tumusiime in season 6 ("AHS: Roanoke"). Aside from her top-notch television work, Bassett is best known for her appearances in feature films. She secured her spot as a Hollywood icon with her portrayal of Tina Turner in the biopic "What's Love Got to Do With It," for which she won a Golden Globe and earned an Oscar nomination. She's also famous for her starring turn in the romantic comedy "How Stella Got Her Groove Back" (1998).

Like Bassett, fellow "AHS" alum Britton has been prominently featured in the horror anthology series. She was a part of the show's inaugural season as Vivien Harmon, a role that earned her an Emmy nomination for Outstanding Lead Actress in a Drama Series. She later appeared in Murphy's "American Crime Story: The People vs. O.J. Simpson" as Faye Resnick in 2016. In addition to her work with Murphy and Falchuk, the actress has been a part of some of the most popular primetime series of the modern television era, dating all the way back to 1996 when she was cast in the ABC comedy "Spin City" opposite Michael J. Fox ("Back to the Future," 1985). Her star continued to rise as she took on roles in "The West Wing" and "24," but the show that made her a household name was NBC's "Friday Night Lights." She was similarly praised for her work on the ABC country music drama "Nashville," in which she played fading star Rayna Jaymes.

Krause may not be part of the "AHS" club, but he's no slouch. Early in his acting career, he appeared in such series as "Seinfeld," "Cybill" and "Sports Night" before his starring role as Nate Fisher in the HBO drama "Six Feet Under" won him critical acclaim. The gig earned him nominations for three Emmys, two Golden Globes and seven Screen Actors Guild Awards, of which he won two SAG Awards for Outstanding Performance by an Ensemble in a Drama series. He's also well known for his role as Adam Braverman in NBC's now-defunct comedy-drama "Parenthood."

As police officers, paramedics and more, these performers bring the triumphs and heartaches of emergency workers to light. Tune in as the first responders struggle with their own demons and strive to help those in need in a new episode of "9-1-1," airing Wednesday, Jan. 10, on Fox.

The Foreigner

After his daughter is killed in a bombing for which an IRA splinter group takes credit, retired Vietnam War special-forces-operator-turned-Chinese-restaurant-owner Quan Ngoc Minh (Chan) is devastated. After trying and failing to get information from Scotland Yard about the bombers, the grieving father turns to Liam Hennessy (Brosnan), an IRA-member-turned-politician who claims ignorance regarding the identities of the perpetrators. Unable to believe that Hennessy knows nothing, Quan puts the skills he learned during his time in the special forces to get the truth.

Magical mayhem

Arcane antics continue in season 3 of 'The Magicians'

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

Magical mayhem: A magical academy hidden from non-magical folks, filled with students whose adventures could end up saving the world — or destroying it. It sounds like Harry Potter, but while Syfy's "The Magicians" may have a lot of similarities with that cultural juggernaut, it's definitely its own unique series.

The enchanting series returns for a third season on Wednesday, Jan. 10, with the world facing a magical crisis — namely, that it's gone. The magic, that is, which was revoked from the world following Quentin's (Jason Ralph, "Aquarius") actions in last season's finale.

"The Magicians" is based on the critically acclaimed novel of the same name and its sequels by author Lev Grossman, which have been called "Harry Potter for adults." In the first season, Quentin was accepted to the secretive Brakebills University in New York City, where he learns that his favorite childhood fantasy book series is based on reality — but also that the truth is far more dangerous than a piece of children's literature had led him to believe.

Olivia Taylor Dudley ("Paranormal Activity: The Ghost Dimension," 2015), Rick Worthy ("The Man in the High Castle"), Jade Tailor ("Murder in the First"), Hale Appleman ("Teeth," 2007), Stella Maeve ("Chicago P.D."), Arjun Gupta ("Nurse Jackie") and Summer Bishil ("The Last Airbender," 2010) all star as various magical folks at and around Brakebills who are now suddenly facing a world without the magic on which they've come to rely.

Much like the novels, the on-screen adaptation of "The Magicians" has been met with critical acclaim, with its incredible special effects drawing praise, along with the creativity of its storylines. The quest to restore magic to the world won't be an easy one, but luckily there's a resourceful group of students on the job. "The Magicians" returns to Syfy Wednesday, Jan. 10.

We're 'Golden': Awards season is well underway, and for the Golden Globe Awards, this year marks a major milestone. The glitz and the glamour may be most obvious in the annual celebration of the year's best in film and television, but the 2018 Golden Globes also marks three-quarters of a century that the awards have been handed out.

"Late Night with Seth Meyers" front man Seth Meyers takes the stage Sunday, Jan. 7, as host of this year's ceremony, taking over from last year's emcee Jimmy Fallon ("The Tonight Show"). As always, the event broadcasts on NBC.

Unlike the Oscars or Emmys, the Golden Globe Awards recognize excellence in both movies and television. One of the defining events during each year's ceremony is when the Cecil B. DeMille Award is bestowed upon a recipient for "outstanding contributions to the world of entertainment." First awarded in 1952 to its namesake, director Cecil B. DeMille ("The King of Kings," 1927), in recent years the recognition has been given to George Clooney ("Ocean's Eleven," 2001), Denzel Washington ("American Gangster," 2007), Jodie Foster ("The Silence of the Lambs," 1991) and last year to Meryl Streep ("The Devil Wears Prada," 2006), who made headlines when she gave a highly political speech while accepting the award.

Awards season is always an eventful time in Hollywood, and the Golden Globe Awards is one of the highlights. Join Meyers as 2017's best in film and television are recognized Sunday, Jan. 7, on NBC.

Back to the Shore: One of MTV's biggest hits may have wrapped up five years ago, but clearly the appetite for "Jersey Shore" is still there. The one-time reality hit is staging a comeback, and many of its original personalities are returning along with it.

"Jersey Shore Family Vacation" has been announced by the channel, with no release date attached to it yet, but it's big news for fans of the original "Shore," which ran for six seasons. The new series will feature almost the entire gang that made the original one such a breakout hit: Mike (The Situation) Sorrentino, Deena Nicole Cortese, Paul (Pauly D) DelVecchio, Vinny Guadagnino, Jenni (JWoww) Farley, Ronnie Ortiz-Magro and Nicole (Snooki) Polizzi are all confirmed to be returning for the revival.

In the current age of spinoffs and reboots, it's not surprising that MTV would try to bring back the magic that made "Jersey Shore" such a success. The unscripted series followed a group of wild friends living out loud in the Garden State, and at the time, it was the channel's most successful show ever.

Many of its personalities became household names, and the series inspired countless spinoffs (including the recent "MTV Florigama Shore") and international adaptations, such as the United Kingdom's "Geordie Shore," which wrapped up its 15th season late last year.

It was the "Jersey Shore" crew that started it all, though, and they're heading back to the spotlight with "Jersey Shore Family Vacation" in the not-so-distant future on MTV.

Q&A Hollywood

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Is Louie Anderson still active? I haven't seen him in a while.

A: Louie Anderson is as active as he ever was, but it's not quite as easy to see the activity.

It used to be easy to see the famous and famously gap-toothed standup: you could see him every day hosting "Family Feud" for three years, from 1999 to 2002. Prior to that, in the mid-'90s you could see him once a week in his very own show "The Louie Show" and hear him once a week in his cartoon "Life With Louie," in which he did most of the voices.

During this time, and in the decade beforehand, he was also a frequent guest on game shows such as "Hollywood Squares" and in comedian-friendly late-night shows such as "The Tonight Show" and "Late Night With David Letterman."

It's a little harder to see him now, but he's still quite busy. I'll start with the easiest: he's an Emmy-nominated supporting star in the FX sitcom "Baskets." This show's a little harder to find than his previous series work in that it's on cable instead of broadcast, and his name isn't right in the title.

He's also doing frequent guest work, such as in an episode of Comedy Central's "Drunk History" in 2016 (well cast as Winston Churchill) and the animated Disney XD comedy "Pickle and Peanut" in 2015.

Arguably the hardest way to see him is the one taking up most of his time: he's gone back to regular touring, appearing at venues around North America. In his heyday, even his live performances were easier to catch, or at least more predictable: he had a residency at the Palace Station Hotel & Casino in Las Vegas, in a theater called — not surprisingly, perhaps — the Louie Anderson Theater.

Q: I know it just came back and all, but do you know if "Nashville" is going to get another season after this?

A: Savor every note of this season, fans, because this is it. The show's second life on CMT (which came after it was canceled by ABC) is nearing an end: the cable channel announced that this sixth season will be the show's last.

As has been the case with previous seasons, this one will air in two parts — the first half is airing now, and the final half, including the series finale, will air in the summer.

Q: What has the guy from "Slumdog Millionaire" done since then? I thought he was great.

A: There are a number of guys in "Slumdog Millionaire," the surprise 2008 hit that cleaned up at the Oscars — there are indeed a number of guys just playing the main character. However, I assume you mean Dev Patel, who played the oldest version of Jamal and was the star and title character of the film (the other two versions of Jamal were, thus, also slumdogs, but were not yet millionaires). The answer to your question is: continuing to impress.

He was a near-total unknown when director Danny Boyle cast him in his relatively low-budget drama. Patel's only role up to that point had been a supporting role in the cast of a short-lived British series called "Skins." But in a film positively heaped with praise, much of it went to Patel — L.A. Weekly's Scott Foundas said he portrayed the role "with terrific chutzpah."

Role offers rolled in after that as people tried to figure out what to do with the guy, as is usually the case when a newcomer gets a fast breakout hit.

His next major project was a very big role in the very high-profile flop "The Last Airbender" (2010). Fortunately for him, though, that film's huge losses weren't blamed on him, and in the next year he was in another big movie, albeit in a smaller role. This is where his underdog's success shows up again: the movie was the 2011 romantic comedy "The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel," in which he had only a medium-size part. However, when they made a sequel in 2015, his character (and he) had been promoted to a major plot driver.

His success is continuing. He's currently in post-production on a sort of passion project — the true-life drama "Hotel Mumbai," which he stars in and is executive-producing.

A black and white photograph of a man with short, light-colored hair, wearing a dark suit jacket over a light-colored shirt. He is seated at a desk, looking directly at the camera with a serious expression. His hands are resting on the desk, near a laptop and some papers. The background is dark with large, white, stylized letters, including 'LIVE' and 'E', suggesting a news studio setting.

Real talk

Nesting instincts: Y'all ready for more historic homes rescued from the brink of condemnation? Home renovation stars Ben and Erin Napier return to HGTV for a second season of southern goodness in "Home Town," premiering Monday, Jan. 8.

"I can't wait to see our favorite circus come back to town, to hug their necks, to eat inordinate amounts of snacks on set and get dinners together at the Loft with our amazing film crew. I can't wait to see what new families we will meet, what homes will be restored!" Erin wrote recently on her blog.

December 2017 marked the one-year anniversary of the couple's opening of their store, the Laurel Mercantile. The first season attracted more than 15 million viewers, who loved the Napiers' small-town sensibility, good vibes and their sweetness when working together.

The couple has new homes to update and transform into family sanctuaries. A few lucky Laurel citizens will get a budget-friendly property that meets their needs.

The Napiers use reclaimed materials from each estate to build a one-of-a-kind home. Past examples include a bench made from the porch's flooring and a 12-foot dining room table made from repurposed beams in the sunroom.

But that's not all that's new this season — the Napier family is about to expand. Erin announced back in April that the couple was expecting, teasing fans about the news on Instagram before the big announcement. The new parents welcome their bundle of joy this month, and Erin says she's soaking up all the quiet moments before the big day.
