Fierce fashion graces post-war Paris in 'The Collection'

By Jacqueline Spendlove TV Media

s the daughter of longtime Trekkies, I've been indoctrinated in the world of Star Trek for pretty much my entire life. My parents' basement is peppered with posters and action figures from the shows, they know every episode of "The Original Series" practically by heart, and they even carted me along to a Star Trek convention with them when I was around 7 or 8 years old. It was a big deal in my house long before it really became a big deal in general, which it undoubtedly has.

Between television series and movies, Star Trek has seen 19 different installments on the screen, and that number's about to become a nice round 20. The long-awaited "Star Trek: Discovery" premieres Sunday, Sept. 24, on CBS, after which the remainder of the series will stream weekly on CBS All Access.

The franchise first made itself known to the world with creator Gene Roddenberry's original series in 1966, with William Shatner in the lead role as Capt. James T. Kirk. Admittedly, the original had its share of cheesiness, and the sets and special effects didn't hold a candle to what its later scions would have, but it was light years (no pun intended) ahead of its time even then.

"Discovery" marks Star Trek's return to the small screen — it's been more than 15 years since the 2001 premiere of "Star Trek: Enterprise," which wrapped in 2005. Chronologically, that series was the earliest, created as a prequel to "The Original Series," and so it remains. "Discovery" is set between the two — roughly a decade before Kirk and Co. set out on their five-year mission.

Harry Potter baddie Jason Isaacs heads up the USS Discovery as Capt. Gabriel Lorca, with Malaysian actress Michelle Yeoh ("Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon," 2000) playing Philippa Georgiou, captain of the USS Shenzhou, another Starfleet ship. As for which of these is the lead in "Discovery," the answer, surprisingly, is neither.

While Star Trek always makes use of a strong supporting cast, the captain has always been the main protagonist. Not so in "Discovery." Sonequa Martin-Green ("The Walking Dead") takes the lead in the new series, but, in a marked departure from the franchise norm, she's not the captain — she's the first officer.

Raised by the Vulcan Sarek (James Frain, "Gotham"), Lt. Cmdr. Michael Burnham (Martin-Green) is the first human to attend the Vulcan Learning Center and Vulcan Science Academy. We're seeing a younger Sarek in "Discovery," but we've met him before; he's Spock's (Leonard Nimoy) father, first introduced in 'The Original Series." If you're wondering why the heck Spock never mentioned an adoptive sister before, be patient — executive producer Alex Kurtzman has affirmed that all will be explained, and it will fit into the canon of the show.

Canon is important with a franchise like Star Trek, with its massive and fervent following. Unsurprisingly, "Discovery" is one of the most highly anticipated shows of the year, and showrunners are acutely aware of the long legacy they have to live up to. There's a fierce fan base to impress, while also drawing in viewers with no prior Star Trek immersion.

"We're very, very attentive to the divergence between audience bases. I think we know that there are folks like us who know way too much, and folks who know very little or not at all," executive producer Akiva Goldsman told TrekMovie in a San Diego Comic-Con interview. "We're trying to be welcoming to people who have never seen an episode of Trek, but also really delightful to those of us who can't stop seeing them."

Burnham's personal story has an important connection to the meat of this first season, which centers on a cold war between the Klingons and the United Federation of Planets. If you're looking for the Klingons of yore, however, you'll need to adjust your expectations. They've gotten a full overhaul in "Discovery," and, as one of Star Trek's most iconic alien species, the change has tongues wagging.

Relax, though. You may recall that the Klingons look wildly less Klingon-y in "The Original Series" than they did in every other Star Trek incarnation down the line, and we all got right on board with those telltale forehead ridges and pointy teeth. The new Klingons are ridgier than ever, and hairless (RIP, Worf's ponytail). They come in a range of distinctly non-human hues (gray, mauve-ish, jet black, etc.) and look decidedly more alien all around.

Another element that sets "Discovery" apart from its forebears is its long-form storytelling. It's much more serialized, with stories, conflicts and character arcs developing from one week to the next, rather than wrapping up in neat, self-contained episodes. The freshman season is split into two chapters, with the first ending in November and the second beginning in January.

With almost two years gone since CBS first announced that a new Star Trek series was coming our way, "Star Trek: Discovery" has been a long time coming, and, judging by the trailers, it won't disappoint.
Catch the premiere when it airs Sunday, Sept. 24 on CBS, after which the remainder of the series will stream weekly on CBS All Access.

Baby Driver

After stealing one of crime lord Doc's (Spacey) cars, Baby (Elgort) is coerced into driving getaway vehicles for heists staged by the criminal mastermind as a means of paying off his debt. As a longtime sufferer of tinnitus, Baby blocks out the ringing by listening to music on his MP3 player, and he dreams of finishing off his debt and going straight with his new girlfriend, Debora (James). When Doc promises Baby that his next job will be his last, however, the getaway driver isn't prepared for the violence that ensues. Director: Edgar Wright. Stars: Ansel Elgort, Kevin Spacey. 2017. 112 min. Action.

The House

Scott (Ferrell) and Kate (Poehler) Johansen turn to their kooky neighbor Frank (Mantzoukas) for advice after their college-bound daughter discovers that her parents don't have any savings set aside to pay for her education. Frank, a gambling addict, proposes that the Johansens open an underground casino in their basement to make some quick cash. The plan seems to be going off without a hitch until Scott accidentally chops off a gambler's finger, earning himself the nickname "The Butcher" and drawing the attention of not only the authorities, but

Fast as lightning: Superhero hit 'The Flash' returns with new faces

By Andrew Warren TV Media

Fast as lightning: Don't blink. The fastest man in the world is back, and he's hard enough to spot as it is. Grant Gustin ("Glee") returns to the dual role of Barry Allen and The Flash in the fourth season of "The Flash," premiering Tuesday, Oct. 10, on CW.

The hit superhero series, which also stars Danielle Panabaker ("Justified"), Candice Patton ("The Game"), Carlos Valdes ("Vixen"), Tom Cavanagh ("Ed") and Keiynan Lonsdale ("Dance Academy"), follows the adventures of the iconic DC Comics character as he fights villains and criminals — especially those who have also gained abilities that can only be described as "superhuman."

This season also features an impressive roster of guest stars and new characters. Sugar Lyn Beard ("Mike and Dave Need Wedding Dates," 2016) joins the cast in the third episode as Rebecca Sharpe, a woman who's forever down on her luck, until an accident changes everything and transforms her into the villainous Hazard.

Don't let the new villain fool you, though — this season won't be nearly as dark as the last, with executive producer Todd Helbing promising a lighter tone that hearkens back to the earlier seasons.

Other new faces lined up for the season include Neil Sandilands ("The 100") as The Thinker, the season's main villain; Kim Engelbrecht ("Dominion") as The Mechanic, The Thinker's chief ally; Hartley Sawyer ("The Young and the Restless") as the Elongated Man; and Danny Trejo ("Sons of Anarchy") as the bounty hunter Breacher.

It's a lot of new faces, but "The Flash's" setting is a big one. It's part of the larger "Arrowverse," a shared world that connects CW's superhero shows together, including "Arrow," "Vixen," "Supergirl" and "Legends of Tomorrow." The new season gets underway Tuesday, Oct. 10.

A new "friend": Elliot Alderson is making a new acquaintance. The "Mr. Robot" character, played to brooding perfection by Emmy winner Rami Malek ("Night at the Museum," 2006), returns in the third season of the acclaimed series Wednesday, Oct. 11, with a new face in his already complicated life.

Bobby Cannavale ("Boardwalk Empire") joins the cast of the USA series just as it looks to top its second season, which won two Emmy Awards and two Golden Globes. Cannavale's new character, Irving, is a used car salesman sporting a manly mustache and a wicked pair of glasses, but in true "Mr. Robot" fashion, it's likely that there's way more to him than meets the eye.

Of course, veteran actor
Christian Slater ("Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves," 1991) is also
back — how could he not be, considering that he is the titular Mr. Robot? In the first season, he recruited cybersecurity engineer Elliot to his team of hacktivists called fsociety, which aims to totally upend the global order.

The Netherlands native has retained a spot in "Bachelor" fandom, though, with his name frequently being floated as a potential headliner. He had reportedly been in on-again, off-again talks with the series' producers for years, and the decision to finally hand the role to the 36-year-old racer was finally made five years after he appeared in "The Bachelorette."

Q: My favorite shows are always being canceled — I may be the kiss of death. Has "Elementary" been canceled?

A: You're likely not the only "Elementary" fan feeling a little worried right now. Previous seasons of the CBS mystery series have shown up late in the fall — season 4 was the latest, premiering Nov. 5, 2015 — but they've always shown up before the snow does. Not this time, though.

The good news is, Sherlock Holmes (this version of him, at least, played by Jonny Lee Miller) is still in New York. However, being the impolite and thoughtless character he is, he's keeping us waiting: "Elementary's" sixth season won't premiere until sometime in early 2018.

In other bad news, it might be a shorter season than usual. All five previous rounds have been at least 22 episodes long — what's considered a "full" season by the broadcast networks — but so far, only 13 episodes have been ordered for season 6.

I say "so far" because there's still time for CBS to pick up the other nine — networks often do that, ordering a partial season at first and then committing to the rest later, depending on how the rest of their lineup shapes up.

Indeed, a wait-and-see approach would explain everything that's going on here. The fact that "Elementary" isn't back until winter means it's being used as a "midseason replacement" show — it'll come on to fill space made in the schedule once the unsuccessful fall shows are cut. Thus, exactly when it comes back could depend on their fortunes.

Q: I loved watching reruns of "Celebrity Name Game" with Craig Ferguson. Will it ever come back?

A: It's a good thing you enjoy the reruns, because that's all you'll get from here on. "Celebrity Name Game" has been cancelled.

Its co-production companies, Debmar-Mercury and FremantleMedia North America, actually made the announcement nearly a year ago, but the show was allowed to finish out its third season.

"We've had a wonderful time producing 'Celebrity Name Game' and we are exceptionally proud of its three seasons in syndication," said FremantleMedia exec Jennifer Mullin.

Interestingly, Mullin dropped a hint that the show could be renewed at a later date when she added, "While we are not renewing in syndication at this time, it is a format we believe in."

That could mean producing it again with different partners or with a different host, though it seems unlikely that Ferguson was the problem, since he won two Daytime Emmys for his performance.

Being a daily syndicated game show means that in just those three seasons it managed to get literally hundreds of episodes to air, meaning there will be plenty of reruns available for channels to pick up if they so desire.

Q: The actor who plays Zack Addy in "Bones" looks a lot like Tim Robbins in the later seasons. Are they related?

A: The resemblance is there. Both actors possess a sort of twinkle-eyed baby-facedness, despite both being well past youth (Robbins is 58; "Bones" actor Eric Millegan is 43). But it's just chance, apparently. Robbins and Millegan are not related.

Both of them do have family in the business, but no one in common.

This is less surprising in Robbins' case. He and Susan Sarandon were a Hollywood power couple for a while, so it's unsurprising their sons, Jack and Miles Robbins, would go into showbiz (as a director and actor, respectively).

More surprising, albeit more distant, is Millegan's famous relation: He's film star Jeremy Renner's step-uncle.

He explained the rather strange designation on his Twitter feed a few years ago: His older sister is married to Renner's father. This is made even more complicated by the fact that Renner is actually three years older.

When asked about hurricane Irma, President Trump said, "This is some big monster." In other words, Trump's plan to combat hurricane Irma is fat-shaming it.

Over Twitter, billionaire Richard Branson revealed the damage done by the hurricane to his private island. I know what you're thinking: "How could God allow such a thing?"

It was reported yesterday that two people were arrested for throwing a yoga mat at the White House. When she heard, Melania Trump said, "Yoga mat? I told them to throw me a rope ladder."

The Tonight Show With Jimmy Fallon

I read that the company that makes Heinz ketchup picked a 29-year-old to be its new CFO. He was a little shy at the press conference, so they turned him upside down and slapped his bottom till some words came out.

I read that a woman is suing Delta Airlines because she broke a tooth on an in-flight meal. Delta apologized and said under no circumstances should ANY of its passengers get an in-flight meal.

I guess Hillary Clinton's book "What Happened" came out today, and I heard that it's almost 500 pages long. Unfortunately, the only person with enough time to read it is Hillary Clinton.

I heard that Hillary will actually be signing books at a Costco in Connecticut. It's gonna be awkward when someone gets to the front and goes, "Oh, I thought this was the line for cheese samples."

Late Night With Seth Meyers

In a new interview with "60 Minutes," former White House chief strategist Steve Bannon said he thinks he is a "street fighter." And looking at him, I'd say the street won.

Today was National Make Your Bed Day. So if you see a rumpled pile of sheets that looks like it's been slept in, that's Steve Bannon.

Hillary Clinton's new book, titled "What Happened," was released today. As was Putin's new book, "Me."

Wish Upon

High school student Clare (King) is given an old Chinese music box by her father (Phillippe), who found it in the trash while searching for valuables. After translating an inscription on the device that seems to say that it grants its user seven wishes, she discovers that those words are true — the box is making her wishes become reality, but for each one granted, a horrible and deadly price must be payed. Clare finds herself torn as her every wish starts to come true. Director:John R. Leonetti. Stars: Joey King, Ryan Phillippe. 2017. 90 min. Horror.
