BEVERLY HIGH SCHOOL

Class of 2020

A strong and resilient set of seniors

To Our Dear Seniors,

You have always been curious about ideas, concerned about others, willing to explore and experiment, and ready for a challenge. You have made your mark on Beverly High School — breaking records, establishing new traditions and norms, creating new works, and advocating for others.

It has been a pleasure for faculty and staff to work with you and watch you develop these attributes throughout these four years. Sadly, you did not have the opportunity to complete all the milestones and moments that are part of the last year of high school. But despite that, you have risen to the challenges of the situation. You have shown us the true strength of the Class of 2020.

Now, you face an unusual time. (And that is an understatement.) It is a time that calls upon you to further develop and refine all your traits. You will need — and we all will need — your imagination, your empathy, your innovation and your strength to create a better future.

All of the Beverly High School community will be watching your progress. Know that we thank you; we support you, believe in you and wish you nothing but the best of all the best.

MRS. BETTY TAYLOR
Principal
Beverly High School

More than classmates, seniors are a family

To the Beverly High School
Class of 2020,

We have worked together for the last two years, and though this is not exactly the way we intended on celebrating all that you all have accomplished, believe me, we will find a way!

I have never been more impressed with a group of young men and women than I am with this class. So many accolades, determined students striving to always improve and an incredible amount of maturity throughout. However, what I believe distinguishes this group above all others is that the BHS Class of 2020 is a family.

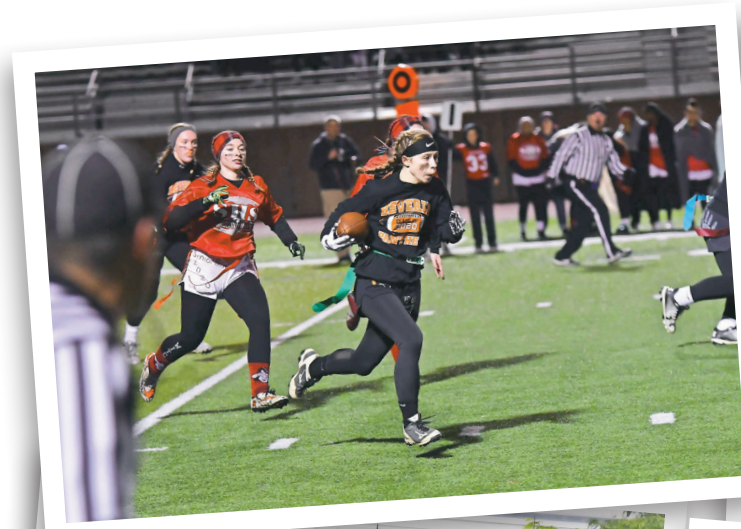

These 282 students take care of one another, and are there for one another, no matter what. This family has become stronger, more tightly knit especially now in the midst of a pandemic, and these bonds that have been created will never be broken.

So I say to the Class of 2020, thank you for letting me be a part of this family. This bond will be with us forever. I will never forget you.

Graduates, celebrate your accomplishments

To the Class of 2020:

First, I would like to congratulate you all on this impressive and momentous accomplishment. While in times like this, your pride in graduating high school may feel overshadowed by fear and uncertainty, be sure to celebrate yourself and the 12 years of schooling that led to your graduation. You have put in the time and the effort and deserve the recognition that other graduating classes have taken for granted. Despite the strange circumstances, try to see the good that has become more apparent amidst all the bad.

Our unique situation is one that showcases how strong our community is and how much those around us care. We have had parents and other loved ones supporting us and fighting to ensure that we are honored in spite of the pandemic that is threatening all of the pomp and circumstance we have looked forward to. Teachers have made unbelievable efforts to make sure we can continue to learn at home. Our whole class has been innovative in how we have stayed connected, using technology as an asset to stay united and informed while being socially distanced. These valiant efforts are just small glimpses of the good that our class and our community are able to attain even in the most devastating of circumstances.

So, despite the pandemic, I hope you can look ahead with optimism. I see bright futures for the Class of 2020, no matter what path you choose to follow, be that college, the workforce or the military. I wish you all luck in whatever you choose to do in life. Once again, congratulations!

A future full of possibilities awaits

Dear Classmates,

As high school becomes an event of our past, it's easy to dwell on how many traditions cannot transition with us into our futures. We've undergone four years worth of relentless, year-round studying; vigorous practices and games; spring months brimful with semis, proms and musical performances; and the constant desire for more hours in the day to balance it all more gracefully.

We may never be able to duplicate the feeling of breaking through the foyer doors at 11:45 a.m. on the Friday of midterm week. And maybe we won't meet people who understand us as thoroughly as our high school friends do, people who were there to witness the circumstances in which we came of age.

Here in our hometown, each of us exists in our own alcove within the greater Beverly community. There are a number of external factors — factors we cannot necessarily control — that influence how we are known by other people here: our siblings, our parents, the house we grew up in, how we acted back in elementary and middle school, the Snapchat username we carelessly chose, not realizing that we would be desperate to change it six years down the line ... While these details of our lives are not inherent facets of our own character, they are often the preceding factors in determining how we are viewed by our community.

Next year, regardless of whether we're headed to college, military service, employment or abroad, we're going to meet people who grew up far from Beverly, the majority of whom will probably have never even heard of it. And while it is comforting to know that Beverly will still be here behind us, with all of our favorite coffee shops, restaurants, beaches and memories, there is something to be said for how much freedom we are now being granted.

As we move forward and surround ourselves with unfamiliar faces, we're allowed to become any version of ourselves that we wish to be. From this point onward, all that we have to fight for our character is how hard we work, how we treat other people, whom we choose to surround ourselves with and how we respond to adversity. In the future, there will be times when our fate lies in someone else's hands. We can't always control whether we're chosen for the internship we applied for, or whether our interviewer is impressed with us enough to appoint us to the job position. But in a world that has proven to be so unpredictable, there are things that we can control. We are the only people who can ensure that we present ourselves as humble, diligent people.

More importantly, we are the only people who get to decide whether we are proud of ourselves, even if our efforts do not always earn us the recognition for which we hope.

I feel so lucky to have spent the past four years with this group of people. All of you are ambitious, spirited and — as we have learned the hard way — resilient. Congratulations to the Beverly High School Class of 2020. I wish you all the best of luck in achieving whatever you want to achieve in life, because I know that you all have the talent and devotion to do so.
