Jay Hernandez stars in "Magnum P.I."

Private investigator Thomas Magnum returns to TV screens on Monday, Sept. 24, when CBS doubles down on the reboot trend and reintroduces another fondly remembered franchise of yore with "Magnum P.I." Jay Hernandez ("Suicide Squad," 2016) takes on the titular role in the reboot, while the character of Higgins is now female, played by Welsh actress Perdita Weeks ("Ready Player One," 2018). Catch the premiere when it airs Monday, Sept. 24, on CBS.

Back to the well: 'Magnum P.I.' returns to television with CBS reboot

By Kenneth Andeel TV Media

ame the most famous mustache to ever grace a TV screen. You have 10 seconds to deduce the answer, and should you fail, a shadowy cabal of drug-dealing, bank-robbing, helicopter-hijacking racketeers will forever escape justice, in possession of a priceless crystal figurine and a dossier of fantastically important government secrets.

With stakes so high, I'm confident that you'll provide the correct information without breaking a sweat and declare that the single, indisputable answer is that of Thomas Sullivan Magnum, the now-iconic namesake of the 1980s hit, "Magnum, P.I." This fall, CBS is counting on the enduring recognition of that iconic character when it reboots the classic series with Jay Hernandez ("Suicide Squad," 2016) as the inheritor of the Magnum mojo. Catch the premiere when it airs Monday, Sept. 24, on CBS.

Hernandez is backed up by Welsh actress Perdita Weeks ("Ready Player One," 2018) in the role of Higgins, the straight woman to Magnum's wild card, and fellow Americans Zachary Knighton ("Happy Endings") and Stephen Hill ("Boardwalk Empire") as Rick and TC, close friends of Magnum's from his military past.

The pilot for the new series was greenlit in February of this year, and a polished trailer for the show was dropped in May. The person behind the controls is Peter M. Lenkov, a self-professed fan of the '80s "Magnum" and a writer/producer on CBS's first Hawaiian crime-fest reboot, "Hawaii Five-0." Lenkov's secret weapon for the pilot was director Justin Lin. Lin is best known for thrilling audiences with his dynamic and outrageous action sequences in the immensely popular Fast and the Furious franchise, and his skill at creating high-energy setpieces is bringing Magnum back with a

The original "Magnum, P.I." first aired in 1980, but for many critics and fans, the show holds up in significant ways. It still receives praise for being an early depiction of a Vietnam War veteran character, and the charisma of its star, Tom Selleck ("Blue Bloods"), has cemented the titular character as a memorable part of TV history.

The modern sensibilities of figureheads such as Lin and Lenkov heavily inform the reboot, and the differences between the old "Magnum, P.I." and the new "Magnum P.I." go well beyond that missing comma. For starters, the mustache is MIA. The first teaser photo of Hernandez in his new role made it clear that the show wasn't interested in being a 1:1 remake of its predecessor and was willing to take big, potentially clumsy risks that could attract the ire of diehard Magnum-heads.

Magnum's second most essential possession (after the mustache) was his red Ferrari, and it turns out that that ride wasn't so sacred, either. The Ferrari appears in the trailer for the show, but after a good-natured meta taunt, the trailer sends the poor vehicle to explode into smithereens at the wrong end of a speeding, multi-ton transport truck. And then the pulverized pieces fall off a cliff. So much for tradition.

These sorts of changes seem like a declaration of intent and a statement that the show isn't interested in superficial fan service. Beyond these examples, however, are other alterations that seem to come from a more thoughtful place. The original Thomas Magnum was something of a boilerplate avatar of American heroism the strapping, broad-chested former quarterback that audiences would have recognized from countless other stories. Hernandez earned the role in a culture that has made strides in offering a variety of representation. The Mexican-American actor would have probably been relegated to supporting character status in the original series, but in 2018, a major network is happy to have him as the lead.

The casting of Weeks in the role of Juliet Higgins was a deliberate decision meant to erode some of the "Boys' Club" atmosphere of the original series, in which Higgins was a male character. Some commentators have expressed concern that the grudging friendship between Higgins and Magnum — a big part of the original show's charm — might be replaced by an overused dependence on sexual tension in the new formula. That will ultimately come down to the skill and restraint of the writing staff, however, and there's no inherent reason the new dynamic can't be as engrossing as its prototype was.

There will be other notable cameos, though. Supporting characters from "Hawaii Five-0" will pop up during the first two episodes of "Magnum P.I.," and more involved crossovers featuring lead characters will occur later in the season. Hawaii's not that big, so it's perfectly logical that all of these tropical crime-fighters would find their paths crossing.

The initial announcement and gradual reveal of the "Magnum P.I." reboot has drawn mixed reactions, and a fair amount of skepticism, but perhaps the increased scrutiny will lead to more interested eyeballs when the series debuts. The network is hoping that the recent success of other rebooted properties across the television world (including its own "Hawaii Five-0") bode well for the latest example of this trend. This fall will give us an idea as to whether "Magnum P.I." can recapture some of the lasting pop culture penetration and abiding critical acclaim of the original, or if it will end up swept out to sea. Catch the premiere on Monday, Sept. 24, on CBS.

WFXT 13 8:00 p.m. First responders feel the pressure to deal with harrowing incidents that happen on one of the hottest days of the year in the season premiere of "9-1-1," airing Sunday, Sept. 23, on Fox. During one call, they help the victims of a road rage accident involving a van full of tourists.

'Good' comedy

'The Good Place' returns for a third season

By Andrew Warren

TV Media

'Good' comedy: One of the most sinfully hilarious sitcoms on television isn't about a team of detectives, a group of nerds or a multigenerational extended family. Those all have a home on the dial, but the comedy in "The Good Place" has a unique edge: it's literally out of this world.

The third season of the critically acclaimed comedy premieres Thursday, Sept. 27, on NBC. As a sitcom, the laughs come first, but both seasons have also featured jaw-dropping twists that practically demand that its audience rewatch the entire series to put things into perspective. There won't be any major spoilers here, but fair warning: "The Good Place" really is a mind-bending sitcom that makes its viewers think.

Kristen Bell ("Veronica Mars") is back as Eleanor Shellstrop, a deceased woman who's sent to The Good Place after she dies in a tragic accident. The first season deals with her struggles to fit in once she deduces that there's been a mistake — she was a pretty horrible person in life and should have been sent to The Bad Place, but one bureaucratic mixup later has her living the good (after)life, while trying to evade the insightful questioning of Michael (Ted Danson, "Cheers"), The Good Place's architect and benevolent overseer.

William Jackson Harper ("The Breaks"), Jameela Jamil ("Animals") and Manny Jacinto ("The Romeo Section') star as three other recently deceased people who join Eleanor in puzzling out the secrets of The Good Place, while D'Arcy Carden ("Broad City") rounds out the main cast as Janet, an artificial intelligence that provides information and assistance to The Good Place's residents.

After the wild ride and shocking finale of the first season, it speaks to the strength of the show's writing that its second one was just as twisty and entertaining. With Eleanor, Michael and the rest of the afterlifers in an entirely unexpected new situation, the third season promises to keep surprising viewers. The new season premieres Thursday, Sept. 27, on NBC.

Game show double-down: Fox is all in when it comes to the game show biz. The network recently ordered two exciting new shows that are unlike anything else currently on television, with plans for both to premiere later this TV season.

Of course, these days new game shows demand a celebrity host, and Fox's new duo doesn't disappoint on that front. Actor and comedian Dax Shepard ("CHIPS," 2017) will host "Spin the Wheel," while Rob Lowe ("Code Black") will head up "Mental Samurai."

"Spin the Wheel" is a pop culture trivia game with higher stakes than have ever been seen before in the genre. With every correct answer, the contestants add extreme amounts of cash to a colossal 40-foot wheel, while getting an answer wrong adds dangerous wedges that reset their winnings back to zero. With the chance to win up to a whopping $20 million with a spin of the wheel, the stakes really can't get any higher, making the decision to either give it a spin and risk losing it all or walk away with the money accumulated so far an incredibly difficult one.

The other new game show in the works, "Mental Samurai," is described by Fox as an obstacle course for the mind. Every episode will feature people from all walks of life testing their minds' boundaries as they race to answer questions with both speed and precision. This isn't just a mind game, though — it's an obstacle course, and the contestants also have to deal with being transported at high speeds in a rotating capsule.

Game shows are hot right now, and Dax Shepard and Rob Lowe bring their own new series to Fox later this TV season.

Reality reunion: A beloved reality TV favorite is staging a comeback. "The Hills" ran on MTV for six seasons, from 2006 to 2010, chronicling the lives of a group of young women trying to make it in Los Angeles. Now, eight years later, many of the original cast are returning for another go at it.

"The Hills: New Beginnings"

was announced at August's
MTV Video Music Awards, and while no premiere date
has been given yet, most of the original cast was present at the ceremony to hype
up the announcement.

That said, not everyone will be returning. Original series star Lauren Conrad, who first rose to fame in the reality TV series "Laguna Beach: The Real Orange County," won't be part of the reunion, and neither will fellow "Laguna Beach" stars Kristin Cavallari, Whitney Port or Lo Bosworth.

Just like its parent,
"The Hills: New Beginnings" will follow the lives of a group of women living in Los Angeles. Of course, time has passed and many of them are now married and have children, so the focus of the new spinoff may skew a little more mature.

Q&A Hollywood

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q: Why did NBC cancel "Rise"? The actors were wonderful — I really cared about the characters. Interesting storyline and the singing was fabulous. I was really disappointed.

A: Unfortunately, perhaps, there's no interesting story for why NBC dropped "Rise," which seemed like a promising, feelgood musical drama in the style of "Glee" or "Nashville." It just didn't perform well versus expectations (unlike the plucky young singers it featured).

Its premiere in March drew 5.5 million viewers, which is solid but not great, particularly for a fairly expensive scripted show. However, the ratings dropped steadily from there.

One of the reasons it was expensive is also a reason why it held such promise. It was created by Jason Katims, whose previous work has included beloved melodramas "Friday Night Lights" and "Parenthood," and it starred Josh Radnor, still beloved for his role in the modern-classic sitcom "How I Met Your Mother." It was also co-produced by Jeffrey Seller, who was one of the brains behind the Broadway phenomenon "Hamilton."

"Rise's" plot, about a crusading young teacher trying to inspire kids through performing art, earned it comparisons to "Fame" and "Glee," and Katims' involvement had the New York Times calling it "'Friday Night Lights' for theater kids." With towering expectations like these, it's almost not surprising that it didn't do well.

And it didn't. The show certainly had its fans (yourself among them, obviously), but simply not enough.

Q: Can you please find out if Animal Planet plans to have new episodes of "Animal Cops: Houston"?

A: I can tell you that they haven't announced any plans, but that doesn't mean much in this case — "Animal Cops" can sneak up on you.

The Houston edition is just one of many in the "Animal Cops" franchise, which has also included shows in Philadelphia, Detroit and, just for a change, South Africa.

The Houston show last released a new installment in 2015, as part of a brief spate of episodes (too disorganized to call a "season") that brought the show back nearly a decade after its last new episode in 2006. Whether another revival could come is anyone's guess, but nothing of the sort has been announced so far — the network announced its slate of shows for the 2018-19 season back in the spring, and there wasn't an animal cop among them.

But that could change. The reason the "Animal Cops" shows are able to come back is because the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals isn't going anywhere and, unfortunately, there's never a shortage of animal-cruelty cases for it to investigate.

Q:Who did "True Detective's" theme song? I loved it and thought it was perfect for the show.

A: It depends which season you mean. Given that each season follows a completely different cast of characters in a completely different setting, it makes sense that each one has had a different theme.

The first season's horn-accompanied country ballad was a song called "Far From Any Road" by The Handsome Family, a husbandand-wife alt-country duo. It appears on their 2003 album "Singing Bones."

Season 2's theme was by a somewhat more famous artist it's "Nevermind" by legendary folk poet Leonard Cohen, from his 2014 record "Popular Problems."

The husband half of "The Handsome Family," who writes all their music (while his wife writes the lyrics) said that their song was written with deserts and scorpions in mind — far from the lush bayou setting of the first season of "True Detective."

"But that's what's so wonderful about it" being selected as the show's theme, he said in an interview on National Public Radio. "A song should have space that it can take on many meanings and take on many lives and can be put in different contexts and fit perfectly."

This Is Us

WBTS 10 9:00 p.m.

The Pearsons return to prime time to share the ups and downs of family life in the season premiere of "This Is Us," airing Tuesday, Sept. 26, on NBC. Set in both the 1980s and present day, the hit drama weaves back and forth through time as it tells the story of parents Jack (Milo Ventimiglia) and Rebecca (Mandy Moore) and

The peacock network is coming off a trio of unscripted hits with its summer staple, "America's Got Talent," the sophomore "World of Dance" and newcomer "Making It." Looking to extend that streak, "The Voice" returns to NBC on Monday, Sept. 24, with a new, exciting mix of coaches for its 15th season.

Since its debut in 2011, the long-running competition series has focused on finding the best unsigned talent. Be it a solo or duet performance, the best singer determined by public voting receives $100,000 and a record deal with Universal Music Group. The aspiring singers must be 13 and older and are selected from a series of public auditions held throughout the country.

Brynn Cartelli, the series' most recent victor, became the youngest person to win the competition in the show's history. At only 15, the Massachusetts native won over America with powerful renditions of Adele's Bond classic, "Skyfall," Sia's "Unstoppable" and Coldplay's "Fix You." Will there be another first this season? Only time will tell.

Maroon 5 main man Adam Levine and country superstar Blake Shelton return once again to the red chairs this season, making them the only artists to appear as coaches for the entirety of the series. The returning Kelly Clarkson rounds out the panel, along with Jennifer Hudson. Hudson, who sat out last season, returns to replace Alicia Keys, who is sitting out this one. As always, the coaches will guide and critique the artists' performances. Clarkson and Hudson will no doubt make for an entertaining addition to the Levine/Shelton dynamic.

Over the years, the series has seen a veritable who's who of talented and popular artists try their hand at coaching, including Christina Aguilera, CeeLo Green, Pharrell Williams, Shakira, Usher, Miley Cyrus and Gwen Stefani. Each one approached the task differently, but all had the same goal in mind: to discover great, unsigned talent.

Discussing the upcoming season of "The Voice" with The-Wrap, NBC's head of reality programming, Paul Telegdy, proclaimed his excitement with this season's crop of coaches and what they will bring to the table. "We are so excited to welcome Don Winslow's back Kelly and Jennifer, two dynamic forces who bring undeniable soul, passion and inspiration as coaches," he said.

Telegdy continued by emphasizing how Clarkson and Hudson have a unique understanding of what it's like to be on the other side of the chair. Both coaches got their start on the Fox/ABC juggernaut "American Idol," with Clarkson becoming the show's first-ever winner in 2002 and Hudson placing seventh in the show's third season.

The coaches' advisers for the season are CeeLo Green for Team Adam, Thomas Rhett for Team Kelly, Halsey for Team Jennifer, and Keith Urban for Team Blake.
