QUESTION OF THE WEEK

What is the best Halloween candy and what will generate nothing but boos?

"Worst has to be black licorice. The best? That's tough. There is a lot of great candy but full size Reese's are toward the top."

"Full-size Kit Kats and Twix always come off on top. Milk Duds, Gummy Bears and anything that will tear our molars generate shrieks of horror."

"In my day – when a person could buy a new Plymouth for 85 cents, when a polished walnut shell passed for a three-cent piece and you could take the streetcar to Halidayburg – the kids' faces invariably lit up when they got a hard-boiled egg for Halloween. Most kids then had dentures, like they do today, and the eggs were easier to chew. Some things never change."

THE BEST THINGS TO DO IN SIOUXLAND

1 Sunflower Sounds!

Yes we had to look it up but Kansas is, officially, "The Sunflower State." Kansas, the band, however, does not have such a catchy nickname. Instead, they have musical hits like "Dust in the Wind" and "Fight Fire with Fire." They will also play a 7 p.m. Friday concert at the Orpheum Theatre, 528 Pierce St.

Headbanging for half a century!

Can you believe Judas Priest has been making music for more than 50 years? That is a lot of headbanging! See these heavy metal Brits at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Tyson Events Center, 401 Gordon Drive.

Drink beer for playground equipment!

Jefferson Beer Supply will host the second annual Jefferweentown from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday in Jefferson, S.D., which will help purchase and install new playground equipment in the town's Tower Park. What's fun to drink? A new pumpkin ale called MadCat Pumpkinslapper. What's fun to listen to? A free metal show from 7 to 10 p.m.

Calamitous comics!

What can be better than free Halloween-themed comic books? How about a comic book autographed by famed Marvel 'toonist Adam Gorham ("Godzilla Rivals")? That's just part of the fun activities going on at ACME Comics & Collectible's "Trick or Read" event from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the 1622 Pierce St. store.

Brews of a non-witchy variety!

The second annual 712 Brew Fest, taking place at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Tyson Events Center, 401 Gordon Drive, will give hop-heads a chance to sample from more than 100 different local, regional or national craft beers.

ADVICE

ANSWERS FOR ALL YOUR WOES

DEAR ANNIE
ANNIE LANE

Dear Annie: I just read your comments to a person whose husband had Alzheimer's and was upset by what people said to her. Earlier this year, I lost to Alzheimer's the woman who was the center of my universe for 60 years. I can relate to the comments from the woman who wrote to you. But I chose to believe that everyone who comments about my loss is truly concerned about my welfare.

Some people just do not know what to say, and they may unintentionally say something that hurts. I would suggest, for those who want to ease the pain of a friend, to read the book "Don't Sing Songs To a Heavy Heart: How to Relate to Those Who Are Suffering" by Kenneth Haugk.

It helped me accept everyone's comments as attempts to ease my pain. — Still Miss Her

Dear Miss Her: Thank you for your letter, and I hope this book helps people find the right things to say. I am truly sorry for your loss. I love your letter because it gives people the benefit of the doubt. So many times, we judge others harshly instead of seeing them as fundamentally good and trying their best.

So many times, we judge others harshly instead of seeing them as fundamentally good and trying their best.

Dear Annie: I'm writing in response to the letter written by "Self-Discipline," who said that he believes he might be a sex addict.

A sudden jump in libido can be an indication of several health issues. If this person's testosterone has risen precipitously, it is an indication that they need to see their health care provider and have their levels checked.

High levels of testosterone can cause aggravated levels of high blood pressure and cardiac stress. I definitely agree that this person needs to be communicating with their wife about what's going on, but I'd like to add that when there are any extreme changes in our health, whether seemingly good or bad, they should be followed up by a doctor's visit. If they are good changes, then perhaps there is nothing wrong, but at the very least we can get a better baseline from our tests. And although this one seems like a good side effect, it could come with very extreme consequences to health in other ways.

Thank you for listening. — A Concerned Biologist

Dear Concerned Biologist: Thank you for your wise feedback. Sudden changes in one's physical body should be followed up with a doctor's appointment to see what is going on.

JESSE BROTHERS PHOTOS, THE WEEKENDER

Cayden Werner, left, Christian Vietor, and Tyler Morton, right, put on their costumes as they prepare for the Haunted Tunnels at Briar Cliff University. For nearly 30 years, BCU has invited the community to travel through their tunnels, which have been decked out in terrifying fashion.

Tunnel-vision!

Briar Cliff is now the Halloween destination for chainsaw demons and clowns who go bump in the night

BY EARL HORLYK

Do the sleeves of a straitjacket go on the front or do they go in back?

This was the question facing Briar Cliff University (BCU) student Christian Vietor as he put on the restrictive wardrobe that came emblazoned with the words "County Asylum" on it.

Straitjackets on college campuses? Exams must be pretty brutal, right?

Well, no. Vietor, who is also wearing a "Pennywise the Clown" mask, is one of the students participating in BCU's Haunted Tunnels, an annual Halloween event which dates back nearly 30 years.

"Actually, we can't pinpoint the actual start date of the Haunted Tunnels," BCU residence coordinator Ashley Pawlowski explained. "But we do know it was around in the early-to-mid '90s."

Every Halloween since then, the underground tunnel, which normally allow dorm-dwelling students to escape harsh winter weather, is turned into a terrifying obstacle course, filled with things that go bump in the night.

Beginning Thursday and running through Monday, the tunnels will be open for people brave enough – or foolhardy enough – to experience some frightful fun at BCU's Heelan Hall.

Family friendly tours will run from 6 to 7 p.m., each night, while unadulterated anguish will take place from 7 to 9 p.m.

All of the proceeds will be split among student organizations as well as for a BCU Christmas Party for People with Disabilities.

ante with more frights, more scary rooms and more scary people jumping out at you in the dark," Pawlowski said. "This year, we're focusing on scary movies from the present to the past."

Which is good news for BCU student Kylee Lukes, who considers herself a devotee of sinister cinema.

"I love scary movies and I can't wait to see that new 'Smile' film which just opened," she said. "It looks super-creepy."

Perhaps, the film will give Lukes

a few tips on how to be horrifying as an official "scare-er" in the Haunted Tunnels.

"It doesn't matter how old you are," she said. "People will always get a kick out of being scared."

That's especially true since many fear the tunnels may actually be haunted by some malevolent spirits.

"I haven't personally experienced anything out of the ordinary," Pawlowski said. "But I have heard some rumors."

Oh, c'mon. How gullible does she think we are? We're not afraid to go through the tunnels. Wait, is it our imagination or are we being followed by a chainsaw-wielding demon?

No, it is simply BCU student Cayden Werner, who is cosplaying as a demonic Bob Vila for the Haunted Tunnels.

"I think most college kids like Halloween and it's a kick getting a chance to play dress-up," he said.

Maybe yes and maybe no. We do know that Werner was getting major heebie-jeebies from Jarmier Blunt, who was getting into character as an ominous, porcelain-faced clown.

"That is really scary, man," Werner said as Blunt cocked his head to one side and stood on his knees in BCU's darkened tunnels.

But believe it or not, Blunt insists he never watches horror flicks.

"If I had the choice between watching Halloween movies and Christmas movies, I'd choose Christmas moves every time," he said.

Pawlowski nodded her head in agreement.

"I scare way too easily," she said. "They've tried to enlist me as one of the scare-ers in the past but I much prefer organizing the Haunted Tunnels than being in the middle of the action."

Then, maybe Pawlowski should have a chat with Lukes, who said being an All Hallows ghouel does have a bright side.

"If you're having a hard day, you can get rid of a bit of aggression," she suggested.

Yet for Pawlowski, Briar Cliff's Haunted Tunnels is just one more way that the university is reaching out into the community.

"For some people, our Haunted Tunnels have become an annual tradition," she said. "We're happy to have them on campus."

And who knows? They might even be able to see a straitjacketed Pennywise or frightened by a chainsaw maniac.

Feel-good FLICKS!

Film festival to highlight inspirational and historic short subjects

BY EARL HORLYK

A movie doesn't have to include sex and violence to be entertaining.

That's why Tom Schoening founded the Siouxland Inspirational & Historical Short Film Festival more than three years ago.

"I've always loved movies," the former newspaper editor and retired truck dealership marketing director said. "But I liked movies that made you feel good afterwards."

PROVIDED

A former newspaper editor and retired truck dealership marketing director, Tom Schoening.

Because of that, the goal of the the film festival was to feature positive, uplifting and thought-provoking short subject movies from directors from around the world.

This year's Siouxland Inspirational & Historical Short Film Festival will screen nine professional or student films at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Betty Strong Encounter Center, 900 Larsen Park Road.

According to Schoening, the films, which run from three to 15 minutes in length, come as far away as Australia and Japan.

But he said this year's crop will include everything from historical to true-life stories to music videos.

"The historical category is new this year," Schoening explained. "I'm also adding a religious film category that will be specific for films that I show to church groups."

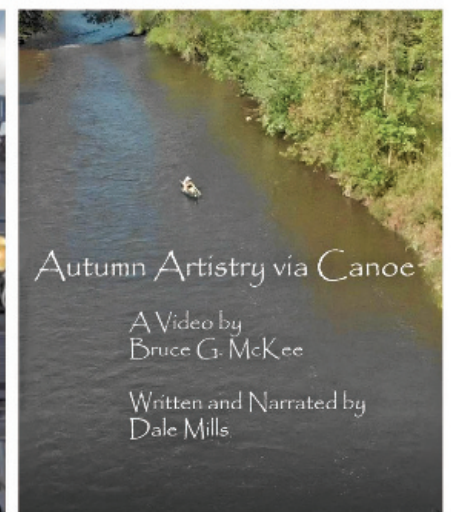

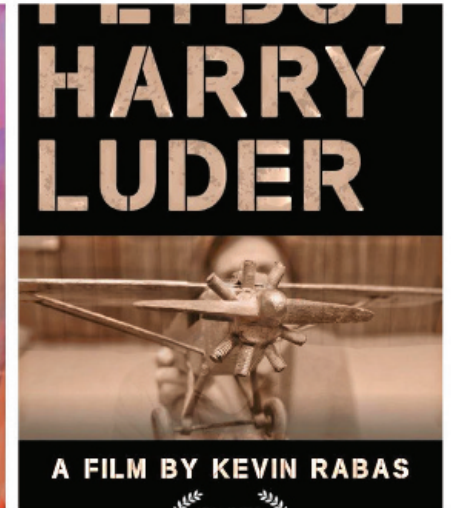

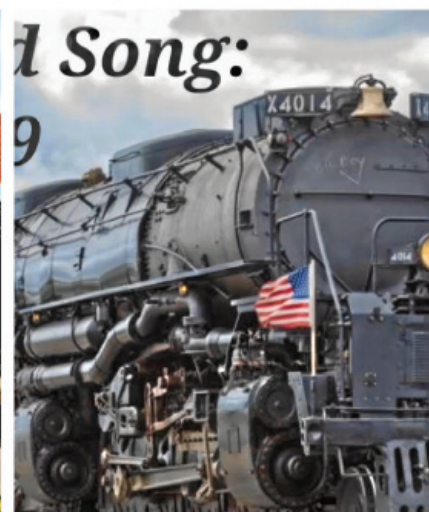

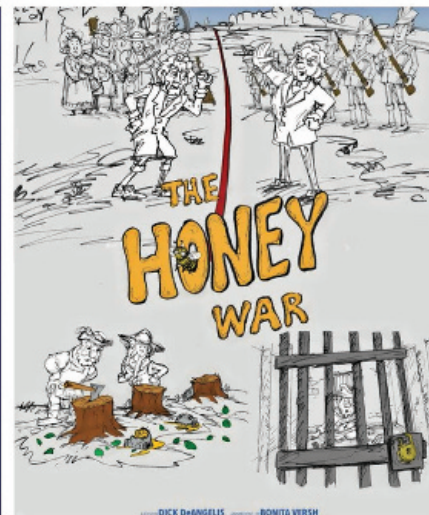

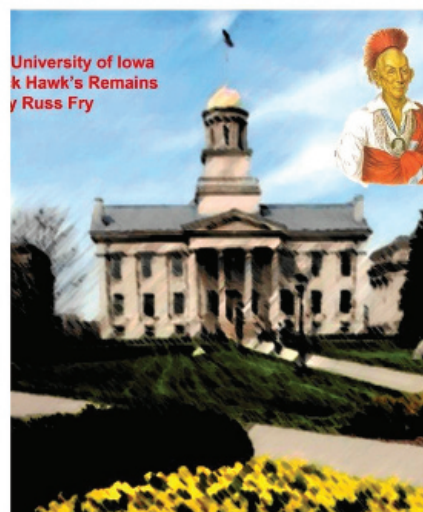

Indeed, Schoening wants the film festival to offer an alternative to Hollywood sex, violence, immorality that he said permeates much of the movie industry.

"We offer positive films with highly moral characters and clean language," he explained. "Then, the audience can vote for their favorite movies."

Going through a list of this year's entries, Schoening said there is something for everybody.

Or maybe not?

"Our film festival is taking place the day before Halloween," Schoening said. "Let's just say our film festival is perfect for people who don't like horror movies."
