THE BEST THINGS TO DO IN SIOUXLAND

Rock singer-musician
George Thorogood
PAULA A. HEBERT

1 Thorough-bad? No, Thorogood!

Did you know that George Thorogood's version of "Bad to the Bone" can be heard on the soundtracks to such movies as Stephen King's "Christine," "Bull Durham" and "Beverly Hills Chihuahua?" No doubt, GT & The Destroyers will be also be covering this classic when they perform at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at The Orpheum, 528 Pierce St.

Massacring music!

2 Bands calling themselves Bloodgeon, Fatal Fall or Hell Vendetta probably won't do 1990's boy band covers no matter how nicely they are asked. Yes, we did test out that theory. However, all three of these bands (plus six more bands) will be part of "Midwest Metal Massacre Six," which starts at 2 p.m. Saturday at The Marquee, 1225 Fourth St.

PROVIDED

Floats (*of the parade and ice cream social variety)

3 Downtown Sioux City traffic will be even more congested, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday. That can only mean one thing. The River-Cade Parade will be back for its 60th year. Will floats be going two miles an hour, from Iowa to Pierce St. on Fourth? You betcha!

JESSE BROTHERS, SIOUX CITY JOURNAL
Port of Sioux City River-Cade parade on Pierce Street in Sioux City, 2022.

Leapin' Lizards!

4 Lizards can be as tiny as a gecko or as ginormous as a Komodo Dragon. We're guessing Sioux City-based rock band Crystal Lizard will measure up to be somewhere in the middle to those extremes. Prove us wrong by seeing Crystal Lizards in performance at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Jolly's on the River, 1100 Larsen Park Road.

PROVIDED

A novel 'Twist!'

5 We always knew that former Sioux City Journal night editor Mike Lewis was a jack of all trades. But who knew he was such a talented, 19th-century singing and dancing pickpocket? See the talented Mr. Lewis as he makes his stage debut as Fagin in the Sioux City Community Theatre musical adaptation of "Oliver," with multiple performances between now and July 23 at 1401 Riverside Blvd.

True 'Drew!'

6 Some people are just magnets for mayhem. This can be said of fictional teen detective Nancy Drew, who has been tracking crime in 175 novels over the nearly 75-year period. Twenty-five of those novels were penned by Iowa-born author Mildred Augustine. Retired University of Northern Iowa English professor Barbara Lounsberry will examine Augustine's quirky literary career during a special 2 p.m. Sunday presentation at the Betty Strong Encounter Center, 900 Larsen Park Road.

Riding the next wave

5 years after winning 'Idol,' Poppe has a new look, sound and indie spirit

"American Idol" winner Maddie Poppe has ditched the honeyed 'do for a sleeker, more contemporary look. The Clarksville, Iowa native will debut the makeover — as well as new music — at July 21 concert at Hard Rock Hotel & Casino's Anthem. PROVIDED

BY EARL HORLYK

Maddie Poppe is currently riding the third wave of her career.

Or, maybe, it's the fourth. "Life ebbs and flows all the time," the 25-year-old Clarksville, Iowa native explained. "All you have to do is hang on and keep moving forward."

The first wave of Poppe's career was when she emerged the winner of the 16th season of TV's "American Idol" in 2018.

"That was five years ago," she noted with a laugh. "Can you believe it?"

Known for a folksy singing style, Poppe released 2019's Whirlwind, an album that charted two Top 25 hit singles, including "Made You Miss" and "Not Losing You."

Then, COVID hit.

In 2020, Poppe released a popular holiday EP, "Christmas from Home," and began touring again the following year.

Today, she has a brand-new single "One That Got Away," a brand-new sound that combines elements of pop, Americana and R&B, as well as a brand-new look.

Gone are the golden locks. They've been replaced with a darker, more dark-looking 'do.

"It was time for a change," Poppe said. "I'm a big fan of change."

She'll be debuting her new look, new sound and new attitude during a concert at 8 p.m. July 21, inside of Hard Rock Hotel & Casino's Anthem, 111 Third St.

Poppe will be joined by Megan

Danielle, the soulful Georgia native who was runner-up during this season's "American Idol."

"I am so happy to have Megan as a tour mate," she said. "It will be a blast."

Indeed, they'll both be able to reminisce about "American Idol" while Poppe helps Danielle navigate the sometimes choppy, post-"American Idol" waters.

"My 'American Idol' experience was very positive," Poppe said. "But I'll be the first one to insist you're in a bubble at all times."

And like all bubbles, it will burst as soon as the show's over.

"When you're on 'American Idol,' you don't have to worry about a social media team, a top-notch hair and makeup team as well as a nice, top-rated weekly showcase on national TV," Poppe explained. "You have access to all of that through the show."

Once the TV spotlight cools, it is up to the artist to assemble her own team.

"Obviously, it was easier to be a part of my team five years ago than it is today," Poppe acknowledged. "But the people who are currently with me really believe in my talent."

That includes a manager whom Poppe deserves the title of Most Valuable Player.

"You're nowhere unless you have the right management team behind you," she said. "I feel blessed."

In fact, Poppe has been honing her songwriting style while incorporating a soulful Bruno Mars-type swagger to her performing repertoire.

PROVIDED
“American Idol” winner — and Clarksville, Iowa native — Maddie Poppe said she isn’t surprised that the hit TV competition show has produced more male than female idols. Poppe said there’s more pressure placed on women in the recording industry.

As she sets sail for the next wave of her career, Poppe insists she is still a bit of a traditionalist at heart. “When I’m on the tour bus, I love listening to what I call ‘throwback stuff,’” she noted with a chuckle. “I’m still a girl who loves the Carpenters and the Eagles.” Yet Poppe said she’s been modeling her musical career after such indie favorites as Ingrid Michaelson (whom she has toured with) and Sheryl Crow.

“There are artists who do it all themselves, whether it is writing their own music or handling all aspects of the career,” she explained. “That’s not the most romantic side of show business but it is a more realistic approach.” Which is an insight Poppe planned to share with Danielle. “I enjoyed my time on ‘American Idol’ and I know there have been way more male ‘American Idols’ than female ‘American Idols,’” she said. “Us girls have to stick together.” Poppe said it is tougher for female artist to make it in the music world and it is harder to be taken seriously. “If I had to give advice to Megan or any or any female talent, it is to always stay true to yourself,” she said. “It might sound like a cliché but it’s true. Always be yourself.” Right now, Poppe is at the start of a tour that will keep her on the road for remainder of the year.

The new tour – which will include both new music as well as the biggest hits – is beginning in very familiar stomping grounds. “I love the Midwest and Iowa is still my home,” Poppe said. “I can’t wait to be back in Sioux City.” For the moment, she can’t wait to find out where the next wave of her career will end up. “As long as I’m moving forward, I’ll be fine,” Poppe said.

My mom is great except for this

ROBERT WALLACH

DR. WALLACE: I have a nice mother for the most part, but there is one issue that comes between us, and it really bothers me. Whenever my mother and I disagree on some topic that relates to my life, she resorts to yelling at me.

Now, some people might say that she screams at me, but it's really just loud yelling. I've heard my mother scream during a scary movie that we watched together, so I know the difference between her yells and screams.

Anyhow, this does two things to me. First, it brings me down and makes me feel a touch depressed that we can't seem to be civil with each other and second, it causes me to walk on eggshells with my mom about most small things since I don't want to set her off.

Is there anything I can do about this? — My Mom Is Great Except for This, via email

MY MOM IS GREAT EXCEPT FOR THIS: Well, we're all human and nobody is perfect, right? Even so, I do agree that there is definitely room for improvement here.

A true key to the parent/teen dynamic is open and trusting communication on a regular basis. Of course, you can direct your mother to your letter here and my reply, but also remember that it takes two to keep communication and harmony flowing smoothly. Take time to think carefully how you can help to defuse the situations (in advance) that usually trigger these outbursts.

Finally, find a good quiet time to give your mom a big hug on a weekend morning and tell her how much you love her. Ask her to join you in an effort to improve your interactions and ask her how you can make some adjustments as well that can help this situation to become vastly improved going forward.

We can stop HIV, Iowa.

One key step?
Get tested.

An estimated 14% of people in Iowa living with HIV don't know their status. Testing is the only way to know your HIV status.

The CDC recommends everyone get tested for HIV at least once in their lifetime and more often when needed.
