

A photograph of a man with a beard and grey hair, wearing a green t-shirt, lying on a blue folding lounge chair in a lush garden. He is wearing blue patterned socks and has his feet propped up on the chair's footrest. The garden is filled with green foliage, including large-leafed plants and a bush in the foreground. The text "No more drilling - just chilling!" is overlaid in a large, white, bold, sans-serif font with a black outline.

No more drilling - just chilling!

Dr. Dale Chomas - Congratulations on your retirement!

After 40 years of telling people to “open wide,” you’ve officially hung up your scrubs! You’ve filled thousands of cavities, calmed countless nervous patients, and perfected the art of small talk while everyone else had their mouth full. Enjoy every nap, every moment spent gardening, putzing around with wood projects, traveling, volunteering in the community, and enjoying your grandchildren during your well-earned retirement!

We love you and couldn’t be prouder!

Tam, Kerry & Danny, Andrew,
and grandkids Malachi, Lucas, Teddy, and Gabriel
