Welcome to sun and fun!

For several decades, the Tahlequah Daily Press has published tabs during summer months, spotlighting all the recreational wonders the Cherokee County area has to offer. It was called the Lake & River Guide, and a few years ago, it transitioned into what's called in the industry a "pony tab" – in this case, a slick magazine product with color and lots of cool graphic elements.

But our products, like our staff, are ever-evolving, and we realized that for most visitors, Cherokee County is so much more than the lakes and river. While many guests enjoy camping, canoeing, skiing, fishing and other water-related sports, others come to town to enjoy our culture.

The Cherokee Nation offers a number of opportunities for tourists to immerse themselves in tribal traditions, whether that be through the Cherokee Heritage Center, or a visit to the Courthouse Square, old jail, or supreme court building. The latter two are museums in and of themselves, and another display will open soon at the courthouse. And the new casino complex south of town, with its shopping and restaurant plaza, is sure to be part of any visitor's agenda.

Tahlequah's vibrant downtown area always has something going on – festivals, a farmers market, children's activities and an expanding club scene. We have several beautifully manicured city parks, and the Town Branch Creek is known by many local children as a place to catch crawdads.

Music, concerts and artistic venues are key parts of what makes Tahlequah and the surrounding area so special. And visitors are often surprised at the number of museums and galleries they'll find in this area. We may be little, but we've got a big heart, and a full agenda – and we want you to be part of it. So jump in with both feet and have fun with us!

Adventure awaits in Northeastern Oklahoma

By BYRON BEERS

bbeers@tahlequahdailypress.com

One of the primary features of Cherokee County is the great outdoors.

Oklahomans take great pride in the land and resources, and visitors can be sure they will catch a glimpse of the area's beauty.

The J.T. Nickel Family Nature and Wildlife Preserve is one area where visitors can experience all the Ozarks have to offer. The 1,700-acre preserve is in the Cookson area and overlooks the Illinois River.

A diverse group of birds and other animals live in the preserve's mix of forest, scrubland, savanna and prairie. Elk are also known to move through the preserve as part of an effort to reintroduce the animal to Northeast Oklahoma. The Nickel Preserve is seen by many as one of the last landscape-scale opportunities to protect and restore a distinct Oklahoma Ozark ecosystem.

Visitors may also experience ranch life at Sycamore Springs Ranch outside of Peggs. The ranch hosts different rodeos, a variety of trophy hunters, animal auctions and company retreats. The 1,400 acres offers visitors beautiful trails and has luxury log cabins that can accommodate up to 44 people. Available are billiards, gaming tables, tennis, basketball courts and a big screen television. Guests can enjoy hot home-cooked meals along with snacks and a continental breakfast.

For a more intimate experience, Twisted S Ranch, outside of Hulbert, offers a beautiful views for weddings or other events. The ranch offers special team-building races and other competitions for businesses and other groups looking for a day retreat.

Known as the Nursery Capital of the World, Cherokee County's many nurseries are an important part of rural life in the county. Along with shrubs, roses, trees, small fruits and different ground covers, unique selections are cultivated in the area. Family-owned Christmas tree farms are also available.

Just as it has been a steward of the resources of the Grand River since 1935, the Grand River Dam Authority is now proud to have extended that mission to the scenic Illinois River.

Since the July 2016 merger with the Oklahoma Scenic Rivers Commission, GRDA has been committed to managing, patrolling and caring for these picturesque waters that not only support a thriving recreation and tourism industry but also provide a beautiful backdrop for thousands and thousands of river enthusiasts each year.

As you make your memories along these scenic waters, GRDA will be there to help preserve and protect those opportunities.
