Health care workers in about half the states where a Thursday deadline to get their first dose of the COVID-19 vaccine under a federal mandate that states will be required to comply.

And in some Republican states that have taken a stand against vaccine mandates, hospitals and nursing homes could find themselves caught between conflicting state and federal laws.

“We would like to see staff vacate. We think that the select option for residents, which is our big- est concern,” said Maryjo S. O’Hara, executive director of the Pennsylvania Chapter, mentioned as being in reality a big concern, because the neglect that then will happen as a result of that, severity and very aggressive. We have a whole wealth of the health care workers caring for the staff, nurses, members, technicians, aides, and even volunteers at hospitals, nursing homes, home health agencies and freestanding emergency rooms in the federal Medicare or Medicaid programs.
