Poems and short stories sought for South Coast book

COOS BAY - Do you have a poem or short story depicting what you love about living along the Oregon South Coast, or one you would like to write?

If so, Gary Carter of Port Orford, local poet and author, is calling for submissions concerning what inspires you about the Southern Oregon Coast. These works of art will be published in April 2018, in a chapbook titled "Songs of the Southern Oregon Coast." Cost to purchase the book to contributors will be the cost to print plus shipping and handling. Extra copies will be sold at regular retail price, which will be determined by the cost to print the books.

Send your submissions via email to garter123@frontier.com or snail mail to: Gary Carter, 41863 Old Mill Road, Port Orford, OR 97465 or, for more information, you can email or call Carter at 541-332-8899. There will be no judging or contests, etc., and all poems and short stories submitted will be printed unless vulgar, obscene or written in a negative voice.

Deadline to submit is Feb. 15, 2018. Poems and short stories must depict life and experiences along the Southern Oregon Coast. If you are 18 years of age or younger, note that on your submission. All ages are welcome to submit. Poems are limited to 30 lines or less and short stories to 500 words or less.

April has been designated as National Poetry Month so the chapbook will be published sometime during April.

For more information on any of the above events, call 541-347-3221 or visit BLFF/www.bandonlff.org.

Chinese brush paintings on display at library

BANDON - Chinese brush paintings by local artist Janice Horne will be on display through Nov. 30 at the Bandon Library Art Gallery.

The subtle colors, delicate lines and spare composition of Chinese brush painting are very different from art made in the West.

While traveling in China 30 years ago, Horne studied and practiced this ancient art, a discipline passed down through the generations by masters to new students.

Using their chi (one's own, intrinsic energy or life force) to guide them, students work to replicate the brush, composition and color techniques of the masters, until they are ready to create their own works, at which point they use these difficult and precise methods in original compositions.

Artistic satisfaction is derived from both the successful grasping and executing of the masters' work and from the ability to find one's own personal expression via the medium.

In this show, Horne displays both paintings that represent the work of the masters of the Lingman School of Art (of the Guangdong region), as well as her own, original paintings.

Bandon Community Radio to start up soon

BANDON - Bandon Community Radio, a nonprofit organization, will soon be starting up radio station KBOG 97.9 FM.

KBOG will be a non-commercial radio station for the Bandon community, showcasing local issues and programming produced by volunteers. KBOG will soon be online at www.kbog.org and organizers are interested to hear the public's opinions on what they'd like to hear on the station and what would represent the community of Bandon the best.

There is a quick survey here: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/KBOG> and the public's input on the survey would be greatly appreciated.

Donations to Southern Coos Hospital will be doubled

BANDON - The Southern Coos Health Foundation has received a matching donation for the Together for Bandon's Health year-end campaign. An anonymous donor has agreed to match all donations up to a total amount of $30,000.

Together for Bandon's Health is a campaign that will increase the capacity of Southern Coos Hospital to serve the community. The matching contribution gives Southern Coos Health Foundation a boost as it raises funds to replace 22 IV pumps and an outdated anesthesia monitor in the operating suite.

IV pumps form the backbone of the hospital's care. With the replacement of 22 units in the emergency department, medical-surgical floor and the operating suite, Southern Coos Hospital staff will have increased confidence in the equipment they are using for patient care.

As SCHHC continues to develop health-care services for Bandon and the southern Oregon coast, it is building the infrastructure of its surgical department. The addition of a new anesthesia monitor will allow the surgery team to perform more surgeries than ever before.
