By NATE SCHWARTZ Editor

The Coos Watershed Association's (CoosWA) biggest event of the year, the Mayfly Festival, returns to Mingus Park on May 17, 2025. In addition to a free family friendly day filled with music, food, and fun, the fest is a great chance to learn more about how crucial waterways effect all of our lives here on the South Coast.

"That's the message of the whole festival, is that we live in a watershed and not many people know that," said Alexa Carleton, Outreach Program

April 29 marked World Wish Day, an annual celebration of the first Make-A-Wish ever granted by the organization, but in Reedsport it went by a different name this year: BubsFest. Local teen Brian 'Bubs' Reynolds could have wished for anything, but he chose to turn his special day into one the whole community could celebrate with him.

To that end Make-A-Wish, alongside over 25 local businesses and community organizations, came together to put on a parade and carnival that could be enjoyed by the whole City

Legislation introduced to permanently protect the Pacific, Atlantic Oceans from offshore drilling

By JEREMY C. RUARK Country Media, Inc.

U.S. Senators Ron Wyden and Jeff Merkley are co-sponsoring two bills that would permanently protect the Pacific and Atlantic oceans from the environmental and economic costs of fossil fuel drilling off our coastal shores.

Merkley also led a bill to prohibit drilling in the Arctic, which Wyden also co-sponsored.

"The U.S. simply does not need to drill in the coastal waters of the Pacific. We have more than enough clean energy resources without putting Oregon's outdoor recreation and seafood industries at risk," Wyden said. "These bills are all about looking out for small businesses that depend on tourism and the fishing industry, rather than capitulating to the 'oiligarchs' whose only goal is to fatten their wallets, no matter the environmental and economic toil it could bring to our shores."

"Offshore drilling guarantees future oil spills with devastating consequences: from oiled beaches to catastrophic damage to tourism, commercial sport fishing, and ocean ecosystems," Merkley said. "Trump's Dirty Energy First strategy would see his administration expand offshore drilling—all to enrich billionaire corporate polluters—but Senator Wyden and I are leading the charge to protect the Oregon Coast and beyond from dangerous offshore oil and gas drilling."

The West Coast Protection Act would permanently prohibit new oil and gas leases for drilling off the coast of California, Oregon, and Washington.

Springtime in Washington is famous for two things: the Japanese cherry blossoms and the annual White House Correspondents’ Association dinner. It’s one of D.C.’s biggest bashes of the year when the paparazzi and the glitterati come together for an evening of laughter.

There’s a woman who has one foot in each camp, making her uniquely qualified to attend the annual extravaganza. If you’re trying to spot her in photos of this year’s gala, don’t bother (for reasons you will soon understand). But hers is a remarkable story nonetheless.

Baby Boomers fondly re-

HOLY GOW! HISTORY:

The (celebrity!) centenarian White House correspondent member actress June Lockhart from yesteryear. You will recall that she played Timmy’s TV mom on “Lassie,” the astro mom on “Lost in Space,” and was the stand-in mom for the Bradley girls on “Petticoat Junction” after sitcom star Bea Bernadette became ill. For two decades, she was always welcomed into America’s homes as somebody’s mother.

However, she also has a special distinction among the White House press corps. The accomplished actress has a secret passion you probably don’t know about.

June Lockhart is a lifelong political news junkie.

It started as a little girl in the 1930s. Her parents (themselves actors) frequently entertained journalists in their home. That prompted little Lockhart to launch her own neighborhood kids’ newspaper. She got hooked on Time magazine in high school. Although the acting bug eventually bit, she never lost her fascination with news, the people who reported it, and politics.

After wrapping up her Tony Award-winning role in the 1948 Broadway rom-com “For Love or Money,” she finagled her way into the Oval Office for a chat with President Harry Truman. She asked what it was like to work there. “It’s just like being in jail,” Truman told her. When she requested his autograph, the celebrity-smitten chief executive gave her his fountain pen, too.

Her love of news landed her a spot as a regular on a 1950s primetime TV quiz show called “Who Said That?” Lockhart got to know fellow panelist Merriman Smith, the UPI correspondent who went on to win the Pulitzer Prize and the Presidential Medal of Freedom for his reporting from President John F.

Kennedy’s Dallas motorcade in 1963.

That friendship proved invaluable. Smith helped her fulfill a lifelong dream by assisting Lockhart in getting credentials to accompany the press contingent covering the 1956 presidential campaign. Questioned by “the boys on the bus” who was going to win, she said Dwight Eisenhower would. They scoffed. And Ike coasted to a comfortable re-election victory. The actress saw in the crowds what the journalists had missed.

The next summer, Lockhart and Hugh Downs were filling in as hosts of a TV talk show. The producer had longed hoped for an interview with presidential press secretary Jim Hagerty. Lockhart made a few calls and, on July 31, 1957, she sat down in the White House and talked to him on film. When it was over, Hagerty gave her something extraordinary: a lifetime White House press pass. Nearly 70 years later, she still has it.

There were other campaigns, other presidential meetings. She was on the press bus again when Nixon (“very stiff,” she says) lost one of the closest elections in history to Kennedy in 1960, whom she went on to meet with her husband the following year (“charming and delightful”).

She made the most of that pass, too, whenever she was in Washington. While performing in “Steel Magnolias” at the Kennedy Center, she would often drop by the press room. In fact, she got to ask press secretary Marlin Fitzwater a non-political question. She wondered who the vet was for President George H.W. Bush’s family dog, Millie. (That was hush-hush information, she was told.)

Lockhart attended the high-level press briefings through George W. Bush’s presidency. (“They were always so cordial.”)

Though she still keeps up with presidential comings and goings in the news, she no longer follows them in person. After all, June Lockhart will turn 100 on June 25.

Unlocking knowledge: online resources for every learner

By JENNY M. BROWNFIELD
Guest column

Most people know that you can get books, movies and other items at the library, but did you know we also provide access to exclusive online resources? That’s right, all you need is a Coos Bay Public Library (CBPL) card to access over 35 resources and databases. Several of these free resources also have fully supported apps, allowing you to download them to your phone or other devices so you can explore them wherever you go.

Looking for something to read? There are several resources that fit the bill. The first is Libby, which is available to everyone with a Coastline library card. Both e-books and audiobooks are available for loan and will return automatically at the end of their checkout period. If all the copies of a book are checked out, you can place your digital item on hold to be delivered when it becomes available. Many e-books available on Libby can be accessed on Kindle, Nook, and Kobo e-readers.

CBPL also provides its patrons with access to Hoopla. This app gives patron 6 credits per month each and offers movies, music, television shows, and comics in addition to e-books and audiobooks—all delivered instantly! That’s right, there are unlimited copies of each item in the Hoopla system, so you never have to wait for an item to become available. Instant gratification. Hoopla also has binge-pass. For just 1 credit you get 7 days of unlimited access to the resources such as The Great Courses, PBS Kids, Hallmark collections, Indie films, crafting resources, and so much more. Just like Libby, your digital items will return automatically at the end of their check out period.

If you are someone who enjoys reading magazines, try Flipster. This app has the most popular digital magazines from The Atlantic to Wired. You can search for magazines by title or subject, so you are sure to find something that speaks to your interests. As you digitally flip through the pages, you will see everything that you would in the paper magazine, even the advertisements. Just like with Libby and Hoopla, you can download the Flipster app to your device and enjoy access at home and on the go.

Interested in learning a language? Your library card provides access to the Mango app, which offers lessons in 37 languages. This app is highly recommended by its users for its clear explanations and focus on cultural context. If you’ve been considering learning another language, give it a try – after all, it’s free with your library card!

If you need to do some research, there are several services available through CBPL’s website. Academic OneFile provides peer reviewed, full-text articles from journals on sciences, arts, medicine, literature and more. Gale e-book has 25 sets of full text encyclopedias and reference materials for you to explore, and Gale News gives you access to a full text newspaper database, empowering you to search for articles on every topic you can imagine.

For local history buffs, CBPL has many resources for local history and information including online resources. We provide access to historic Oregon newspapers from 1879-1916, including the Bandon Recorder, the Coast Mail, the Coos Bay Times and many more. Revisit old times with digital copies of the Marshfield High School yearbook from 1950-2019. The World is also available, without the paywall, so that you can keep up with the latest local news.

Those of you who are interested in business and investments can browse Gale Economics and Theory, Gale Business Insights Global, Morningstar or Value Line. Are you looking to make a major purchase? We offer full access to Consumer Reports and Kelly Blue Book to make sure you are getting the most for your money.

We haven’t forgotten kids, either. There are several resources available for children such as National Geographic Kids, Khan Academy, Discovery Education and DK Find Out! All of these are educational programs designed for children to learn in fun and engaging ways. Next time your kids are stuck inside, challenge them to look through one of these resources and find information on fun topics like animals, space, or whatever they are interested in.

These are just a sample of the many online programs available FREE through your public library. To see all we have to offer, visit coosbaylibrary.org and click Resources and Learning on the blue navigation ribbon and then click on the computer icon labeled Online Resources. You will find something for everyone from recipes on AtoZ World Food to resume writing on GotResumeBuilder. Get the most out of your library card by using all the many resources available to you!

In support of Huit for North Bend School Board

I write this letter in support of Mrs. Anna Huit for the position of North Bend School Board Member. I have known Anna and her family for several years. She is the spouse of a fellow veteran, and a rockstar in the local veteran support community in her own right. More importantly, Anna has in all the time that I’ve known her, been a champion for the children in our community. She doesn’t just look out for her own children, but all children, ensuring they have the resources and guidance to be successful in their endeavors. My own daughter was one of many children Anna has personally helped in this regard.

Our society is now challenged in ways that few of us could have foreseen, not the least of which is the current state of our economy and national priorities, whereby so many households have two working parents and so little time to ensure the physical safety and mental wellbeing of their children. This puts a tremendous burden on school and community resources to fill the gaps of need for today’s youth.

In Anna’s 14 years of volunteering, she’s garnered the experience and knowledge to bring a fresh perspective to today’s problems and situations, and help guide our troubled community in a direction of hope, healing, and collaboration to maintain the things that are working in our school district, and repair the things that are faltering or failed. I truly believe that the participation of Anna and those like her in our community will be instrumental to the success of our schools and our youth. Thank you.

Protest

Saturday, April 19, 2025, we were helplessly at a red light while driving into Coos Bay. A line of protesters holding all kinds of signs lined the right side of the street. Unfortunately, we came to a stop where two older gray-haired men held a sign that was worded with a vulgar, “F U,” at the bottom. That really made us want to jump out of our vehicle and chat with these men with such an “extensive” vocabulary and support their cause! We wondered how many young children saw this sign and many other signs with identical obscene verbiage!

Another older male held a sign, “Hands of my Social Security.” Wow! If the graft and fraud concerning Social Security isn’t reined in, the United States Social Security program may go bankrupt, and no one will receive Social Security! Where is the common sense of these protesters?

Only you can make a change at Bay Area Hospital

Vote in the May 20th Election. BAH has lost $111M since July 1, 2021 through February 28, 2025. That loss has grown.

The CEO should be replaced, Both his botched purchase of EPIC and his outsourcing of the billing department to Savista has cost millions of dollars in lost billings and ongoing fees. Under his administration, we have lost Doctors and services.

The Board raised his salary twice in 2024 from $556K to $584K, then to $643K within seven months. He received a $29K “Achievement Award” for all the losses achieved. The board also approved $330K in bonuses to management that November, 2024.

The board, on the recommendation of the CEO, is considering partnering with Quorum Health owned by a Private Equity firm whose mission is to generate huge returns for investors, not quality medical care for those of us who live in southwestern Oregon. Quorum will borrow funds, leveraging the hospital’s assets, putting it at higher risk of eventual failure.

There may even be a financial benefit to the CEO. This transaction between BAH and Quorum is kept from public scrutiny through a Confidentiality Agreement. If no agreement exists between the CEO and Quorum regarding an equity interest, confidentiality does not apply and we can be told of the equity interest. This question has been raised but not answered. Therefore, there is an equity interest involved. The CEO must publicly declare a direct conflict of interest under Oregon law. This has not happened.

A plan known as the Local Option Solution, proposed by the local health organizations in October and again in December 2024 was abruptly rejected over the objection of a former board member who said “we only talked one day about the local solution.” The board stated it would take too long to develop. There is no record found in board minutes coinciding with these dates.

KEEP BAY AREA HOSPITAL LOCAL. Please VOTE Position 3 – SIMON ALONZO JR, Position 4 – BRANDON SAADA, Position 5 – KYLE STEVENS and Position 6 – DR. JOHN UNO.

Horror Story

Let’s begin with a horror story when Biden brought in 11 million (11,000,000) illegal immigrants, and we found out that possibly 1% of them or 110,000 were criminals of various degrees that had no respect for our laws. We then discovered that possibly 11,000 are dangerous criminals and some belonged to gangs. Now we find out each possible dangerous criminal needs a trial before they can be sent to a foreign prison. Ok, let’s set up 11,000 criminal trials at a cost to American taxpayers of $10,000 each or $110,000,000 in total. Now double this cost to pay extra American justice system personal to investigate, make the arrests, feed, house criminals, fly them home, and we have $220,000,000 as a rough estimate. We have 258 democrat law makers and most of them failed to close the border so aren’t they responsible for the cost of this mess? Now $220,000,000 divided by 258 law makers who failed to close the border, so each owes the American government $852,713. Is this fair? If a contractor builds a house for a family and the foundation sinks, the roof leaks, and the water ruins the hardwood floors who pays for the repairs? The whole community or the contractor who was elected to make the correct decisions.

Manager for the CoosWA. “Everything we do in our daily lives impacts the watershed. Whether that’s how we wash our cars, the kinds of things we put in our yard, the plants that we plant. Basically, everybody is a part of it, so that’s a big theme of this particular event.”

The CoosWA is one of over 90 nonprofit organizations in Oregon dedicated to the study, restoration, and community education surrounding the vast network of waterways that make a watershed. Established in 1994 amid concerns over a reduction in the Coho Salmon population, the CoosWA has spent over 30 years collaborating with groups from all sectors to maintain the ecological health of our waterways, and brought over $31 million to the area in the process.

A watershed is the entire area in which water drains to the same place, so for a coastal region like Coos County that includes 610 miles of rivers, tributaries, sloughs, and creeks. The South Fork Coos and Millicoma Rivers, as well as the South Slough are just a fraction of the area that CoosWA are stewards of.

That stewardship includes restoration, where the CoosWA helps to maintain water channels, the area surrounding them, and the urban areas that drain into the bay. The organization grows and replants native species that are crucial to the ecosystem, and helps remove noxious weeds and invasive species within the watershed. All of this is done on the back of robust monitoring of the watershed through habitat surveys, fish tagging, and stream gauging. The Mayfly Fest falls into the last category of the CoosWA’s mission: Community Education.

Every year, CoosWA put on their free celebration of the watershed. Hands-on science activities and games that teach folks of all ages about the importance of our waterways take place alongside art projects, live music, and local food. That includes seeing live salmon, mayflies, and birds, making costumes, and learning about all of the interconnected parts of the watershed.

“What makes this event unique is that its all activity based and hands-on, so a lot of the learning comes from our activity booths,” said Carleton. “We have over 20 booths this year led by community members. We have artists, scientists, our tribes, schools, libraries, natural resource people. So, each booth has an activity and a message.

“Instead of taking a flyer and walking on, at our event you’re more likely to plunge your hands into the pond with a net to see what lives there, or look through binoculars. Each booth has an activity and a message and all of that ties in with what lives in the watershed, and what is our role in keeping the watershed and all of its critters healthy.”

Local and sustainable food is another highlight of the festival. This year Sea Kitty Seafood is bringing their one-of-a-kind albacore sandwiches to the fest, and Coos Head Co-Op is providing healthy snacks and sandwiches of their own. The North Bend High School Knowledge Bowl Team is providing snow cones and cotton candy.

For further entertainment,

The Throttles will be playing from 1-3 PM. A group of local educators and musicians, the group says “From country to blues, you’ll want your dancing shoes.” Also returning are the Side of the tide Morris Dances, who have been favorites since the first year of the festival.

You may ask yourself, ‘Why the Mayfly?’ According to Carleton, the tiny insect is a crucial species for the health of our waterways. Mayflies are bioindicators, as they can only live in healthy waterways. They are a main food source for salmon and have a fascinating life cycle and purpose.

“[Mayflies] symbolize healthy water, connectivity, re-birth, and the roles that humans can play in helping ecosystems thrive,” says Carleton. “Everything is connected, and we are a part of this.

“Right now, I think a lot of people are struggling with everything that’s going on in the world, and we are feeling that impact at the community level... This festival offers a path forward: gathering as a community and learning, celebrating, talking together about the things we love about our community—and working together to solve the things that need work. This connection is what the world desperately needs right now.”

Come get connected with our local environment from 11-3 on May 17, in Mingus Park. For more information about the fest and its long list of community partners, you can visit: <https://cooswatershed.org/mayfly-festival/>

Lutes record highlights Coos County Meet

JOHN GUNTHER
For The World

Marshfield senior Bodey Lutes stepped up to a former distance at the Coos County Meet on Friday night and in the process broke one of the school records of the greatest name in Marshfield track history.

Lutes provided one of many highlights of the oldest annual meet in the state when he broke Steve Prefontaine's school record in the 800 meters, and the meet record in the process. Friday's meet was the 117th edition.

Lutes specializes in the 400 meters and is one of the state's top athletes in the 200 as well, but he ran the 800 in an attempt to knock off Prefontaine's longstanding mark of 1 minutes, 53.8 seconds from 1969.

An error in the automatic timing system meant there wasn't a completely accurate time for Lutes, but he was hand-timed at the finish line in 1:53.0 and coaches had him a shade faster. Prefontaine's meet later in the season than most years.

Lutes teamed with Hadyn Widdicombe, Jake Day and Carter McGriff to break the meet record in the 4x100 meter relay with a time of 43.01. The quartet trimmed .37 seconds off the time Marshfield's squad ran last year in the same meet.

An attempt at a third record for Lutes in the 4x400 relay came up short, though the Marshfield squad of Lutes, Day, Chandler Wyatt and McGriff won easily in 3:26.75.

The other record was set by Myrtle Point speedster Thomas Ferren, who set a new mark in the 200 meters of 22.51, breaking a standard set 60 years earlier by North Bend's Keith Shriver.

Lutes was named top runner for the boys by the six coaches. The top jumper was North Bend's Miles Baxter, who had a big day of his own. Baxter easily won the high jump, clearing 6 feet 2 inches on his first attempt before failing to get over the bar on both races.

North Bend's Landon Takenaka-Gaul won both the 100 (11.87) and triple jump (39-4).

North Bend's Killion Phaigh was named the top boys thrower after winning the shot put (43-0 1/4) and finishing third in the discus (114-2). Coquille's Jerico Jones won that event (125-11). Powers had the top two finishers in the javelin, Jayce Shorb (156-2) and Tyler Fandel (133-9).

Marshfield's Wyatt won the 400 (52.51). Bandon's Reggie Turner took the 110 hurdles (17.95) while Marshfield's Christian Baugh took the 300 hurdles (44.12).

The Pirates easily won the boys team title with their extensive depth, scoring 207 points, to 94 for North Bend, 92 for Bandon, 44 for Myrtle Point, 43 for Coquille and 32 for Powers.

Coquille, the three-time defending Class 3A girls state champion, won the girls title with 149 points, ahead of two-time Class 2A champion Bandon (117), North Bend (94), Marshfield (81), Myrtle Point (48) and Powers (23).

Coquille had two of the three outstanding girls athletes, double-winners Holli Vigue and Ella Henthorn.

Vigue won the shot put (35-6 1/2) and discus (130-7) and was named outstanding thrower. She was state champion in both events last year.

Henthorn, the Red Devils' talented freshman, was named outstanding runner after posting new person bests in both the 1,500 (4:41.48) and 3,000 (10:24.81). She pulled North Bend's Ellie Massey to her own big personal best in the 1,500, a 4:46.89. Massey is the new Class 4A leader in the event for this season while Henthorn ranks third for Class 3A (she is in the top five in the 800 and 3,000, too).

Henthorn also teamed with Synthia Salazar, Matti Nelson and Ada Millet to win the 4x400 relay in 4:33.06. Salazar won the 800 (2:41.88) and Millet cleared 9 feet to win the pole vault for the Red Devils.

Coquille's Emelia Wirebaugh also had a big new best in the triple jump, winning with a mark of 35-11 that moved her to the top of the state's 3A rankings in the event this season. Wirebaugh also finished second in the high jump by clearing 4-8.

Bandon's Makenna Vierck won that event by clearing 4-10 and was the meet's only triple-winner of individual events and the outstanding girls jumper.

Vierck had a new best of 16-6 3/4 in the long jump, edging Coquille's Bristol Layton (16-5) and Bandon teammate Marley Petrey (16-3 3/4). Vierck also easily won the 400 meters in 1:01.59.

Petrey won one of her specialties, taking the 300 hurdles (46.25). Teammate Caitlyn Michalek, like Petrey state champion last year in her specialty, the javelin, won that event with a toss of 119-6, edging Danika Bushnell from Powers (117-1).

Marshfield freshman Jordyn Mickelson was part of three wins, taking both the 100 (13.30) and 200 (28.15) and teaming with Avery Bartholomew, Annhelena Vancannon and Rylee McNally to win the 4x100 relay (51.89).

North Bend's Drew Hood won the 100 hurdles (17.15).

The area's teams have a couple more weeks to prepare for the district meets with the state meet at the end of the month this year. Many of the area's teams will head to Grants Pass next Saturday for that school's big Rotary invitational, though North Bend will head to Eugene for the Marist Invitational the same day.

Golfers prep for district tournaments

The South Coast's various high school golf programs are less than a week away from their district tournaments, which will determine which teams and individuals advance to the state tournaments.

The boys teams from Marshfield and North Bend, part of Class 4A District 3, will be competing at Running Y Ranch in Klamath Falls on May 12-13. They are part of a district that also includes Henley, Hidden Valley, Klamath Union, Mazama and Phoenix. The top five individuals and top two teams advance to state. At times, a third team also has advanced to the final site.

Meanwhile, Bandon's boys will be close to home for the Class 3A-2A-1A District 3 tournament at Bandon Crossings the same two days. The district also includes Brookings-Harbor, Cascade Christian, Douglas, Gold Beach, Illinois Valley, Myrtle Point, North Valley, Oakridge, Reedsport, Rogue River, Rogue Valley Adventist and St. Mary's of Medford. The top three teams and top five individuals from the tournament advance to state.

The area's girls teams, all part of Class 4A-3A-2A-1A District 4, compete at Sandpines Golf Course in Florence on May 12-13. That district includes Marshfield, North Bend, Myrtle Point, Reedsport, the combined Bandon/Coquille squad, Siuslaw, Brookings-Harbor, Cottage Grove, Creswell, Junction City, Pleasant Hill, Marist Catholic and Weston-McEwen. The top two teams and top five individuals advance to state.

Bandon's boys won the 3A-2A-1A state preview at Trysting Tree Golf Course in Corvallis, breaking a school record set a few weeks earlier with a team score of 290. Columbia River had a 300, East Linn Christian a 306 and Siuslaw a 316.

Bandon's Sevrin Quinn and Siuslaw's Ryan Klampe both shot 69 and Bandon's Peyton Simonds and Brookings-Harbor's Lucas Vanderlip were among four players at 70.

Braedon Millhouser shot a 75 and Jackson Simonds a 76 as Bandon had all four of its scoring players in the top 12 of the event that included many of the teams expected to be at the state tournament.

Bandon is the defending state champion.

The Tigers also won the Marshfield Invitational at Bandon Crossings on Saturday, with a score of 334, beating South Medford (357), Marshfield (358), North Bend (363) and 10 other schools.

Bandon was without Quinn, but Peyton Simonds was third with a 79 and Millhouser tied for fifth with an 81.

Vanderlip won medalist honors by eight strokes with a sizzling 70. Wyatt Winters of Douglas shot a 78. North Bend's Owen Bascom was fourth with an 80. Reedsport's Noah Sullens was seventh (82), Marshfield's Aiden Griffin ninth (84), Jackson Simonds 10th (85) and Marshfield's Enoch Niblett 11th (86).

Marshfield's girls finished first, followed by Cottage Grove and North Bend, in a tuneup tournament at Coos Golf Club last week.

The Pirates had the top three scores, with Analise McCord shooting 96 and Annika Bones and Shay Herzog both shooting 99. Jordyn Prince shot 101 and Lola Davidson 114 for North Bend.

Earlier in the week, Marshfield was third behind Salem Academy and Banks at the 4A-3A-2A-1A state preview at Trysting Tree Golf Course. North Bend was eighth.

McCord was sixth with an 84. Bones was 11th with an 89 and Prince 13th with a 90. Herzog shot a 92 and Addyson Garrett a 98 for North Bend. London Kilborn took medalist honors with an 80 for North Valley.

mark also was hand-timed because the current technology didn't exist then.

Lutes hit the new mark in an unconventional way, running the first 400 in 58 seconds and blazing through the second half of the race, sprinting down the final stretch at full speed and raising his arms as he came across the line and saw his unofficial time on the scoreboard, 1:52.68.

Lutes was part of another meet record set Friday night and a third fell as well, as the county's top athletes put up some fabulous results with the three tries at 6-5.

Baxter also won the long jump, soaring 21 feet, 2 1/4 inches.

Marshfield's Quinton Kloster had another of the top marks in the meet, clearing a new best 14 feet, 9 inches in the pole vault. Kloster is seeking to join the long list of recent state champions in the event for the Pirates.

There were two other double-winners on the boys side. Jaxson Stovall easily won the 1,500 (4:07.95) and 3,000 (9:25.92) for Marshfield, finishing far ahead of the field in

In addition to losing to Powers, Bandon fell in non-league games to Glendale (19-7) and Oakland (9-4) last week. The Tigers are at Myrtle Point on Tuesday and Toledo on Thursday.

Myrtle Point fell to Toledo 16-1 last week and was home for Yoncalla in a non-league game Monday before its games with Bandon and Powers this week.

SKY-EM LEAGUE: North Bend swept its series with Marshfield last week to improve to 5-1 in league play.

The Bulldogs beat the Pirates at home 15-5 and then won the two games on Marshfield's field 12-11 and 8-3.

The opening win was highlighted by the first career home run for Erica McClintock. Tatum Montiel had two homers for Marshfield.

North Bend hosts Marist Catholic on Tuesday and visits the Spartans for two on Friday.

Marshfield has its bye in the league schedule and will play a doubleheader against Banks at Marist Catholic High School on Friday. Marshfield is 1-8 in league play.

FAR WEST LEAGUE: Coquille was swept by South Umpqua in its league series last week, losing 15-0 on the road and 18-0 and 21-2 at home.

The Red Devils will try for their first league win this week when they host Siuslaw on Tuesday and visit the Vikings on Friday.

BubsFest

of Reedsport. The school district let out class early, the Reedsport Community Center was transformed, and a procession was organized including floats, classic cars, emergency response vehicles, and dozens of bike-riding kids. All to fulfil Bubs’ selfless wish to bring joy to his community.

“Since 1983, we’ve granted more than 5,300 local wishes — but we’ve never seen one quite like this,” said Kaitlin Bolduc, Vice President of Marketing and Communications for Make-A-Wish Oregon. “So much time, heart, and care went into creating a parade and carnival that was everything Bubs dreamed of and more. We didn’t know what to expect, but what unfolded was a powerful testament to Bubs, the town of Reedsport, and everyone who stands beside him in his fight.”

At the conclusion of the parade, celebrations began in the community center where complimentary snacks, carnival games with prizes, and a presentation for Bubs was held. Mayor Linda McCollum made a proclamation officially declaring April 29th as BubsFest, and granted him with the key to the city. Ziply Fiber gifted him a new laptop, and well wishes came from every corner of the community. Food trucks and inflatables were available outside as the kids of Reedsport were treated to an inspiring and exciting day.

“It makes my heart very full to see all these people out here supporting Brian, and the cause of making a wish come true,” said Amber Reynolds, Bubs’ mother. “We decided to do this parade and carnival as a thank you to the village for all of their support. It’s been amazing.”

Bubs, who was born with hydrocephalus and a cleft palate has dealt with respiratory issues all his life. Despite being deaf and non-verbal, he communicated plenty of happiness through broad smiles and excitement at seeing some of his favorite movie characters throughout the parade. Seeing so many of the area’s local kids having a blast made it clear that the wish was a resounding success.

“Bubs could have wished for anything — and he chose to share his wish with the entire community. It was selfless, meaningful, and deeply moving. Watching the community come together, showing up for him and for each other in ways they never had before, was nothing short of extraordinary,” said

Bolduc. “At a time when the world is yearning for joy and connection, this day reminded us that one wish really can bring people together. It felt like we were witnessing humanity at its best.”

The multi-year long process to have the wish come together was worth it. BubsFest was a much more involved effort than the traditional trip to Disney, but with so many organizations chipping in, it became a testament to how close-knit communities can come together to uplift their own.

Southwestern partners with Rotary Clubs to host “Gift of Literacy” Program

COOS BAY, OR – “The more that you read, the more things you will know. The more you learn, the more places you’ll go.”— Dr. Seuss

More than 600 first-graders from throughout Coos County gathered at Southwestern Oregon Community College (SWOCC) for a celebration of books and reading on April 24, 2025. The event marked the culmination of the Gift of Literacy Program, a six-month initiative designed to encourage a lifelong love of reading among young children.

Reading is fundamental. It develops young children’s brains, provides a window into the world around them and helps them do better in all school subjects. Even so, 800 million people around the world cannot read or write.

And many families (and some schools) have no books for children to read.

With the idea of improving children’s access to fun books and reading, the Rotary Clubs and school districts of North Bend, Coos Bay, Reedsport, Bandon, Coquille, Myrtle Point and Powers, along with South Coast Education Service District (ESD), and SWOCC have partnered for the past eight years on the Gift of Literacy Program.

Modeled after the Springfield Gift of Literacy, this well-established, time-tested, award-winning program supports reading and inspires thousands of young children.

Each year, Coos County librarians and teachers choose the books. First-grade classrooms receive a set of the books in November, giving teachers or guest readers an opportunity to read the books in the classroom and build excitement.

The Gift of Literacy Program culminates in the festive celebration at the college with music, guest book readers and a play put on by youth actors with The Little Theatre on the Bay. First-graders receive a bag filled with fun swag, a careers coloring book and the year’s featured brand-new books!

“Literacy is the foundation for lifelong learning, and it’s a privilege to support that journey from the very start,” said Southwestern President and local Rotarian Dr. Patty Scott. “This event reflects our deep commitment — not just to education, but to empowering every child in our community to thrive.”

The Rotary Clubs, ESD and the College also special thanks to Yellow Cab, First Community Credit Union, McDonald’s and Northwest Community Credit Union for their generous support of the Gift of Literacy Program.

Why Bay Area Hospital Needs a New Board: By Charles Hurbis, MD

Please consider voting for a new board that will prioritize financial management for Bay Area Hospital: Kyle Stevens, Simon Alonzo, Dr.John Uno, Brandon Saada Let me explain: The people of our health district cannot in good faith support a Quorum acquisition, as this would prove disastrous for the healthcare of our local population over the long term.

This transaction would only benefit outside financial interests and steal tens of millions from the local healthcare. Quorum does not invest its own money as we are being led to believe; it instead will take out a loan against the hospital's assets to finance any rebuild, putting the hospital even deeper in debt while filling its pockets. "For Profit" remember? Alternatively, the goal of the local plan is to create a healthcare collaboration involving all institutions, where every hospital and each clinic is maintained and kept solvent. In this scenario, if the core institution or BAH is healthy, all entities will be healthy. There would be no cannibalizing of services from other institutions, but rather a shared workload with each able to capitalize on its individual strengths, thus efficiently maximizing the revenue of each institution. The end goal would be a strengthening of all institutions. This plan was not "created in a vacuum" as is being suggested. It was carefully designed with the input of the local medical community, not the union, and was modeled after plans in other similar communities, which have been very successful. It was then presented to the hospital board and administration not once, but twice. It seems they don't remember this being presented, but that's not surprising since, according to those in attendance, one board member walked out during the presentation. It's hard to remember what you didn't see. With all the new housing developments in the area and the planned deep water port on the horizon, there will be plenty of paying patients to go around once BAH is under a new administration. The current group hasn't been making the best decisions, thus Quorum is circling overhead. BAH is a unique institution with its geographical isolation and locally dependent population. Our hospital services patients from Florence to Crescent City. Properly managed, there is zero reason why BAH can't be very successful; it always was in the past. It's not a problem with payor mix. Just recovering the divisions of Urology, Cardiology, and Medical Oncology will more than correct the deficient bottom line. These have all been lost or outsourced under the current administration, sending that money out of the area. Interestingly, just last week, Interventional Radiology also announced they are pulling out, once again unable to work under the current management. This has been an unfortunate recurring theme. It also turns out that there have been large income streams within the pharmacy department that have been ignored. The bleeding will continue until new people are in charge, those who are dedicated to our community and maintaining local control. Do we need a Levy to keep the hospital solvent? Probably not. Does the population support one? Interestingly, a recent poll shows that 54% of our population does. To quote one citizen at a recent hospital board meeting, "I may not be a rich man, but I would support a levy to save our hospital, without which I'd have to leave the area". This seems to be a common theme. Supporting a local plan will not jeopardize the health of the smaller hospitals in the area. If anything, it will strengthen them. A vote for Quorum will do just the opposite. Once we have a new hospital board and a talented management group at the helm, groups dedicated to our community, we can capitalize on what is available. Local healthcare will once again thrive and become the major economic driver it always has been for our community. Please consider voting for a new board that will prioritize financial management for Bay Area Hospital: Kyle Stevens, Simon Alonzo, Dr.John Uno, Brandon Saada.

Drilling

The West Coast Protection Act would permanently prohibit new oil and gas leases for drilling off the coast of California, Oregon, and Washington.
The Clean Ocean and Safe Tourism (COAST) Anti-Drilling Act would permanently prohibit the U.S. Department of the Interior from issuing leases for the exploration, development, or production of oil and gas in the North Atlantic, Mid-Atlantic, South Atlantic, and Straits of Florida Planning Areas of the U.S. Outer Continental Shelf.

The Stop Arctic Ocean Drilling Act, led by Merkley, would permanently ban new or renewed leases for oil, gas, or mineral extraction in the Arctic Ocean Planning Areas of the Outer Continental Shelf, protecting one of the planet’s most fragile ecosystems.
This legislation comes following the 15th anniversary of the Deepwater Horizon oil spill, which resulted in the deaths of 11 workers, 134 million gallons spilled into the Gulf of Mexico over 87 days, the demise of thousands of marine mammals and sea turtles, and billions of dollars in economic losses from the fishing, outdoor recreation, and tourism industries.

The Pacific west coast economy provides over $80 Billion in GDP via industries like tourism, outdoor recreation, fishing, retail, and real estate, supporting more than 825,000 jobs. And BAPPC’s 8,100 business members rely on a clean ocean to drive their revenues and provide for their customers, employees and families, according to Grant Bixby, a founding member of The Business Alliance for Protecting the Pacific Coast.

“We strongly support the West Coast Protection Act and other legislation to prohibit new offshore drilling and protect our businesses by prioritizing a healthy coastal ecosystem,” Bixby said.
In addition to Wyden and Merkley, the West Coast Protection Act is cosponsored by Senators Cory Booker (D-N.J.), Maria Cantwell (D-Wash.), Edward J. Markey (D-Mass.), Patty Murray (D-Wash.), Bernie Sanders (I-Vt.), Adam Schiff (D-Calif.), and Sheldon Whitehouse (D-R.I.) and led by Senator Alex Padilla (D-Calif.).

The COAST Anti-Drilling Act, led by Senators Cory Booker (D-NJ) and Jack Reed (D-R.I.), is co-sponsored by Wyden and Merkley, along with Senators Richard Blumenthal (D-Conn.), Chris Coons (D-Del.), Angus King (I-Maine), Markey, Sanders, Jeanne Shaheen (D-N.H.), Chris Van Hollen (D-Md.), Elizabeth Warren (D-Mass.), and Whitehouse.

Merkley’s Stop Arctic Ocean Drilling Act was co-sponsored by Markey, Blumenthal, Sanders, and Warren, in addition to Wyden.

Marshfield's Misha von Dassow is the 2025 Chess for Success High School State Champion

South Coast's finest chess players competed in the Chess for Success State Tournament April 26 and 27 in Hillsboro. These chess players had to qualify through the regional Coos Curry tournament for their grade level. Ten top players from Bandon, Port Orford, Coos Bay and Coquille gave tough battles in the individual championships.

Misha von Dassow competed in the high school individual section over the course of two days and won four rounds and tied in the last round. With the highest score (and technically undefeated), Misha won the Chess for Success High School State Championship.

The Coquille Valley Elementary Team managed to win two out of five rounds at the elementary team competition.

TheWorldLink.com/community/bandon

As I See It

By Mary Schamehorn

It was more than 60 years ago (November 1963) when I had a front-page article and photo of two young Coast Guardsmen who had narrowly escaped death on the Bandon bar in the Western World.

My uncle, Lou Felsheim, photographed them in their room at Southern Coos General Hospital (on the bluff overlooking the river) where they were held overnight for observation.

The two, Larry Sims, 25, and Marty Mason, 21, (first photo) stationed at the Electronic Repair Station in Empire, told me they were “glad to be alive” after they spent about 45 minutes in rough churning seas (second photo) Monday morning before the crashing breakers washed them onto the beach, about a mile north of the jetties.

“The two were in a 14-foot aluminum skiff on the Coquille river stringing a winch line from a communications truck on the north side of the river when their vessel was hit by a freak swell and capsized.

“Credited with saving their lives were the working type life jackets which the two young men were wearing.

“The boat overturned in the river just north of the Bandon Coast Guard station (third photo) and the two men drifted with the boat in what they termed quite a fast current to the mouth of the river where the boat disappeared.

“The hardy Coast Guardsmen, tossed to and fro through the unusually rough seas, floated around the north jetty and could be seen bobbing up and down in the sea by the large number of horrified onlookers who lined the south jetty.

“Some 45 minutes after the two capsized they washed onto the north beach, about a mile up the coastline and a quarter-mile from each other, where they were picked up by Coast Guardsmen and several townspeople, including Bandon Police Chief D.S. MacDonald, local longshoremen and several Coast Guardsmen.

MacDonald, who had crossed the river in a boat owned and piloted by Leonard Taylor, had jumped off the boat onto the north beach and walked up the coastline. The two had originally hoped to reach the two victims by boat but saw that they were already crossing the bar, which was much too rough for a small vessel to attempt to cross.”

While being interviewed in the hospital, one man said, “I sure was scared because all I could see was salt water, sea and big breakers.”

The Bandon school district took issue with the salary information I shared last week, which came from the union representative for the teachers, which I will refer to as the BEA (Bandon Education Association) information.

The BEA info had Bandon teachers with the lowest starting salary of the ten districts at $42,620, but the district’s information had Bandon teachers at $42,629, but ninth overall, with Port Orford-Langlois being the lowest paid at $41,241. The BEA information showed PO-Langlois with a starting salary of $45,113.

The top salary for Bandon teachers was ranked 10th lowest on both charts, but with different dollar amounts. The union (BEA) figure for Bandon’s top salary was $71,551; the district’s figure was $77,497.

The info sent to me by the district also included contract days which ranged from 185 for Siuslaw to 192 for Brookings-Harbor. Bandon was second lowest with 186 contract days.

The district with the highest starting salary depends on whose stats you are looking at, either Siuslaw at $48,172 or Coos Bay $48,188. The districts with the top salaries were Siuslaw at $90,323 (district’s figure) or Coos Bay, $82,339 (BEA stat).

It’s hard to tell whose figures are correct as salary info varies depending on whose info you are looking at, but it’s clear that Bandon teachers have the ninth lowest starting salary and the tenth lowest top salary of the 10 districts surveyed: Brookings-Harbor, Coos Bay, Coquille, Gold Beach, Myrtle Point, North Bend, Port Orford, Reedsport, Siuslaw and Bandon.

It is interesting that while Port Orford-Langlois had the lowest starting salary (on the district’s stats), they were third from the highest for the top salary.

I learned this week that Charlotte Davis (Cannon), a member of the Bandon High School Class of 1960, died April 24 in Arkadelphia, Arkansas, where she lived with her husband, Doyle Cannon.

A press release from the Red Cross, who spearheaded the installation of free smoke alarms on April 19, aided by members of the Bandon Rotary Club, said they had “made a difference in the lives of 10 neighbors, and then some, as they are now safer from home fires.”

I provided info in my column several times with a number to call if you wanted a free smoke alarm. I do know that one of my friends called the number three times, and waited most of that day, and no one ever came to look at her smoke alarms. If that happened to anyone else, who read the info in my column, please let me know, as they seem willing to return if people were missed because of a glitch in their system.

* * *

I mentioned last week that the candidate forum for people running for the Bandon School Board, originally set for May 8, has been cancelled because an insufficient number of candidates were available, according to a spokesman for the League of Women Voters, who planned to host the forum.

A LWV spokesman said they hope to post videotaped interviews with the candidates on their YouTube page.

Bandon High School was locked down for a short time last Tuesday afternoon at 2:56 p.m. because of police activity in the area, according to a notice sent to parents by the district. “We want to assure you that there was no immediate threat to the school. The lockdown was enacted solely to ensure the safety of our students and staff during this brief period. The police activity in the area was handled promptly, and the lockdown was lifted by law enforcement at 3:01 p.m.”

A Facebook post indicated that the Bandon Police Department evacuated the city park and requested the school lockdown due to a threatening male with a gun, holding it to his head, walking on 11th Street near Beach Loop.

As the result of several years negotiations between the City of Bandon and Bandon Dunes Golf Resort, the Resort has agreed to levy a one percent lodging tax, which will go to the city police department annually, and is expected to raise about $350,000 a year. For years, the Bandon Police Department has often been the first responder to calls from the Resort.

Some years ago, the Dunes voluntarily levied a six percent tax (room surcharge), which goes to the Coos County Sheriff’s Department and to support tourism efforts. The six percent generates about $1.5 million annually, with 70 percent going to the sheriff’s department and 30 percent to TSOC (Travel Southwest Oregon Coast) of which Julie Miller is the director.

Chief Cory Dhillon told the city council that the money will be used to hire another sergeant to assist Sgt. Matt Whitmer in supervising the department’s corps of young officers.

I attended the recent Bandon Chamber Mixer, hosted by Kim Bell of Creations by the Sea, located a short distance south of town on the west side of Highway 101.

Kim and her husband John made many improvements to the building which they have rented for several years, and have turned it into a beautiful showcase for Kim’s artistic endeavors and a place for her to teach classes.

I understand that Tom Stadelman recently purchased the building, which originally was Blue Diamond Nursery, but hopefully Kim’s shop will remain there. If you haven’t ever been in her shop, you’re in for a pleasant surprise. Her work is beautiful and not that expensive.

The man who was allegedly responsible for the horrific crash that killed a member of the Umpqua Community College softball team and one of their coaches April 18, Jonathan James Dowdy, 32, Coos Bay, has been arrested on a number of charges.

He was lodged in the Coos County Jail for two counts of manslaughter, three counts of second-degree assault, five counts of third-degree assault, 14 counts of reckless endangering of a person, driving while suspended or revoked, DUI, reckless driving, and second degree criminal mischief.

The speaker for the May 6 Meet and Greet will be Shauna Scherer, superintendent of the Bandon School District.

Hosted by Southern Coos Hospital and Health Center, the speakers for the May 13 Meet and Greet will be Colene Hickman and the SHEBA certified Medicare counselor, Brenna Watkins.

The Bandon History Museum will sponsor the May 20 program featuring “The Church on the Hill, the history of Bandon’s First Church, presented jointly by the congregation of Holy Trinity Catholic Church and the museum.”

“Holy Trinity Catholic Church is in the process of building a new church on the site of two earlier church buildings. This seems like an opportune time to explore the history of that site and the congregations that gathered there,” said Jim Proehl, museum volunteer.

New report outlines drought, pests, disease, ‘biggest threats’ to Oregon’s trees

By JEREMY C. RUARK
Country Media, Inc.

Drought, insect pests, and tree diseases continue to be the biggest threats to the Oregon’s trees.

A new report on the state of health of Oregon’s forests is based on an extensive aerial survey of Oregon’s forests completed last year by the Oregon Department of Forestry (ODF) and the USDA Forest Service.

“A large part of this report is devoted to looking at the impact from climate change, specifically drought,” ODF Forest Entomologist Christine Buhl said. “Drought is often paired with rising temperatures, and together these are often the underlying causes for tree mortality across our landscape. Drought reduces tree growth and increases susceptibility to insect pests and some diseases, which healthy trees may otherwise resist or tolerate.”

Buhl said the report also measures other causes of trees being injured or killed, such as insect pests, diseases, storms, and wildfires.

Last year a record 1.9 million acres were affected by wildfire. However, some of those acres contained sections that were not damaged, not all of the burned areas were forested, and not all forests burned with the same intensity. Some areas that experienced low-intensity wildfires, in many places because of fuel-reduction work, may see a majority of their larger-diameter trees survive, according to the report.

Areas hardest hit by drought, such as the eastern foothills of the Cascades and some parts of northeastern Oregon, saw the largest amount of non-wildfire tree damage—some 2.26 million acres. Within those 2.26 million acres is a mosaic of unaffected and current-year affected acres of forest. In 2024, 580,000 affected acres of damage from these agents were recorded. Damage consisted of 496,000 affected acres of tree injury, most of which (463,000 acres) was caused by Swiss needle cast, a foliar disease from which trees may recover. But 84,000 acres showed tree deaths, the report states.

“We may be under-reporting the impact of many tree-killing diseases, because the signs can often be missed from the air,” Buhl said. “For example, root diseases require ground-based assessment, such as excavating roots, to verify the presence of disease. This is labor intensive so is not done routinely across all forestlands.”

Buhl emphasized the importance of on-the-ground collaborators to help round out the full picture of forest health in Oregon. “In addition to information ODF and the USDA Forest Service gather, we rely on Oregon State University Forestry Extension staff from across the state, and collaborate with other natural resource agencies, universities, public and private forest landowners, and members of the public to gather information,” she said.

In the aerial survey, trained observers fly over all forested lands in the Pacific Northwest in fixed-wing aircraft and record damage to trees from all sources. Flights are staffed with one observer on each side of the aircraft. Survey flights typically fly between 1,500 to 2,500 feet above ground level, following a systematic grid four miles apart and traveling at 90 to 140 miles an hour.

The Pacific Northwest Aerial Detection Survey is the longest continuous survey of its kind in the United States, having been established in 1947 and flown every year since, except 2020 when it was halted due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Report Summary

This report is a joint product from the Oregon Department of Forestry (ODF) - Forest Health and the U.S. Forest Service (USFS) – Forest Health programs. We also rely on reports from other ODF, USFS, and Oregon State University Forestry Extension staff from across the state (Fig. 1 and back cover) and collaborate with other natural resource agencies, universities, public and private forest landowners, and members of the public to gather information.

Each year we provide information on forest health trends and highlights as identified by aerial and ground monitoring efforts (see Monitoring section). A large part of estimating forest health is measuring damage from agents that cause injury or mortality. These agents include pest insects, diseases, and abiotic stressors such as drought, storms, and wildfire. Here, we review major damage-causing agents observed in the past year and provide guidance and resources for management. Some of these agents, such as disease-causing pathogens, are underrepresented in our reporting because they are hard to observe or verify on a large scale. For example, root diseases require ground-based assessment, such as excavating roots, for verification.

This is labor-intensive and may be destructive to the tree. A large part of this report is devoted to climate change and specifically drought, which is often paired with high temperatures. These abiotic stressors are often the primary underlying causes for tree mortality across our landscape. Drought reduces tree growth and increases susceptibility to insect pests and some diseases, which healthy trees may otherwise resist or tolerate.

In 2024... Oregon experienced a historic wildfire season, and many parts of the state are experiencing ongoing drought stress. The largest forest health issue affecting much of the state continues to be drought followed by infestation from opportunistic insects such as bark beetles. New research and tools are being developed to help forest landowners improve climate resilience in their stands by providing resources on appropriate seed sources, updated stand density guides, and landowner assistance funding.

The most important forest diseases in Oregon continue to be Swiss needle cast (SNC) and sudden oak death (SOD). We conducted an aerial survey and continue to see SNC impacting large sections of Douglas-fir along the coast. Collaborative disease monitoring efforts and ongoing trials to identify SNC-resistant Douglas-fir varieties are being conducted at several locations. New SOD infections continue to be identified in Curry County, and collaborative efforts of state and federal agencies continue to attempt to slow the spread of the disease.

Most of the forest insect and disease pests on our landscape are native species, and most are impacting our most susceptible trees. However several invasive species are threatening specific tree species, even when they are healthy. In 2024, multi-agency task forces continued to make progress in addressing invasive species such as Mediterranean oak borer, emerald ash borer, and sudden oak death, with emphasis on identifying pests’ presence, slowing their spread, providing mitigation strategies, and increasing public outreach to aid in detection, diagnosis, and management. More recently detected exotic species include the Japanese cedar longhorned borer and Phytophthora austrocedri.

Kotek introduces bill to boost student outcomes, support schools

By JEREMY C. RUARK
Country Media, Inc.

Gov. Tina Kotek is outlining the legislative lynchpin of her 2025 Education Initiative, a plan to renew Oregon’s education accountability system and make sure state education investments translate into high-quality instruction for every student across the state.

The Governor introduces this legislation as she proposes a historic $11.36 billion State School Fund (SSF) investment and legislation to provide school districts with more financial predictability for future budget cycles. In a release, Kotek said she believes the state has a responsibility to make sure increased funding is used in ways that deliver the best education for every Oregon student.

“When schools aren’t delivering for students, we all have to step up. It’s time to be clear-eyed about our numbers and change how the state and districts work together on improving student outcomes.”

Oregon Governor

“Oregon students can’t wait for us to get this right down the road – they need genuine accountability and real results now,” House Speaker Julie Fahey (D-West Eugene and Veneta) said.

“Getting public education right is one of the biggest promises we make to Oregonians. Students and families want a quality public education that works for them,” Kotek said. “When schools aren’t delivering for students, we all have to step up. It’s time to be clear-eyed about our numbers and change how the state and districts work together on improving student outcomes.”

“Pairing additional resources with strong accountability measures will help support our schools as we all work together to improve educational outcomes for our students,” Senate President Rob Wagner (D-Lake Oswego) said. “To secure Oregon’s future economic strength, we must prioritize educating our students today.”

- “We need to be clear-eyed about the challenges facing Oregon’s K-12 system and treat the current situation with the urgency it demands,” House Speaker Julie Fahey (D-West Eugene and Veneta) said. “Oregon students can’t wait for us to get this right down the road – they need genuine accountability and real results now.”
- The Governor said her proposal to renew the accountability system:
- Builds on existing metrics embedded in the Student Success Act (2019) and adds two new metrics to Oregon’s accountability system that research shows are strong predictors of student success.
 - Standardizes the use of “interim assessments,” which measure student performance growth over - the course of the school year, allowing Oregon to better understand what is working as well as allow educators to make real-time adjustments.

- Takes a more hands-on approach to supporting districts when their metrics are not improving over time, including required coaching and support, and eventually state directed spending of up to 25%

- of State School Fund (SSF) and Student Investment Account (SIA) dollars if necessary.
- Allows schools more time to focus on students by requiring the Oregon Department of Education to identify and streamline duplicative reporting, programs, and processes.
- Kotek also said she believes the Oregon Department of Education must deliver for students, be responsive, and operate with best practices. In tandem with legislative action, the Governor has directed the agency to take action to consolidate grants to ease the workload for school districts, strengthen data collection and public transparency, improve internal operations, and elevate existing best practices and responsive support for school districts across Oregon.

Climate change coupled with migration of non-native species pose threat to Northwest fish

By ALEX BUMHARDT
Oregon Capital Chronicle

Some already threatened cold-water fish species in the Northwest will not only face shrinking habitat from climate change but will face growing pressure from invasive fish species fleeing their own warming and dwindling waters, according to modeling from researchers at Oregon State University.

The findings were part of a study published in the journal Global Change Biology by fisheries professor Guillermo Giannico, associate fisheries professor Ivan Arismendi and graduate student Arif Jan. The three found that climate change is likely to compel all kinds of species migration that could lead to increased predation, competition and some localized extinctions of once native species in the Northwest and globally.

Giannico said their models can be run on most species in the world. But for their recent study, the three zeroed in on the northern migration of non-native smallmouth bass and northern pike into threatened and endangered native redband and bull trout habitat in the Northwest. All four of the species are likely to lose habitat as climate change accelerates and are likely to seek homes in colder water at higher elevations.

They created maps using ecological data that indicate the breadth of territory where each species lives and then modeled the impact of changing conditions such as higher temperatures and drought projected through 2070 to see how that would influence the range of all four species’ movement and overlap.

“We forecast how these species would respond to those changing conditions by disappearing from certain regions that will be too warm for them, and appearing in others that maybe today are too cold, but they would be more suitable in the future,” Giannico said. “Because not all shifts are equal, there will be areas where they will be more crowded together, and they would overlap more, and areas where they wouldn’t overlap that much.”

Of great concern is the migration of aggressive and predatory northern pike into redband and bull trout territory, and the increasing likelihood the two will overlap more frequently.

“They all shift, but they end up shifting in a way that the amount of overlap in their distribution is going to be greater,” Giannico explained. “It’s like you have less room to avoid nasty people at the party, and you end up being cornered in the same part of the room with the same people you don’t enjoy, and you’re all packed in the wrong place with the wrong companion.”

Giannico said researchers have long separately studied how climate change will compel the migration of some species and how native species respond to the introduction of invasive species. The modeling done by the Oregon State scientists is an effort to combine the two, and to show how species’ habitats will overlap as climate change compels both native and nonnative species in an area to migrate and cohabitate.

The researchers fear that this increased negative interaction could lead to local extinctions of some native salmonids, similar to those occurring among shrinking populations of bull and rainbow trout from invasive species in southeastern Alaska, Giannico said.

Coquille Indian Tribe and Bay Area First Step hit home run

NORTH BEND – The Coquille Indian Tribe and Bay Area First Step recently formed a community partnership to take a swing at a challenging issue on the south coast, and they expect to bring the results of that partnership home this May. Literally.

In 2023, the Oregon Health Authority (OHA) awarded the Coquille Indian Tribe a $1.2 million grant. $735,000 of that grant award could be passed through to Bay Area First Step under the Tribal Residential and Housing Service Element Program. By the end of 2023, CIT and Bay Area First Step reached a Memorandum of Agreement that has now led, in January of this year, to the closing on some property in North Bend. That property will serve as transitional housing for those in mental health and substance abuse treatment. Transitional Housing provides a safe and supportive environment for people in recovery to live, work, and heal. Steve Sanden, Executive Director of Bay Area First step says this new transitional housing unit will go a long way to help his group fully support their clients.

“This project represents what’s possible when organizations come together with a common goal,” Sanden said. “NARR-accredited recovery housing fills a critical gap in our recovery ecosystem, and this partnership brings hope and stability to people working hard to change their lives. As a peer-run organization, we know that recovery happens best in supportive environments created by people who’ve been there. This new home aligns perfectly with our model — offering not just shelter, but a community rooted in empathy, structure, and real hope.”

Lisa Mielke, Community Services Director for the Coquille Tribe, says this is a win-win for the Tribe and the community. In partnering like this, they have been able to expand mental health and recovery services in the area while providing tribal members with a service closer to home.

“This is a great example of how the tribe continues to support our community,” said Coquille Tribal Chair Brenda Meade. “One of the Coquille Tribe’s core values is promoting the health and well-being of tribal members and our community, and we believe this exemplifies how we live that value.”

Coos bay’s Kara Davidson named Oregon’s elementary principal of the year

Coos Bay, Oregon — In recognition of her outstanding leadership and transformative impact on student learning, Kara Davidson, principal of Eastside School in Coos Bay, has been named the 2025 Oregon Elementary Principal of the Year. The award, given annually by the Coalition of Oregon School Administrators (COSA) and the Oregon Elementary School Principals Association (OESPA), highlights exemplary elementary school leadership across the state.

Davidson, who began her education career as an elementary teacher in Coos Bay, quickly established herself as an innovative instructional leader, first as assistant principal and then as principal at Eastside School. Her strategic implementation of a district-wide Multi-Tiered Systems of Support (MTSS) significantly elevated student achievement, particularly in literacy and math.

Under Davidson’s direction, Eastside School became a beacon for the Science of Reading, dramatically improving student reading proficiency. Her team’s work reduced kindergarten reading deficiencies from 78% at the start of the school year to only 19% by year-end. This remarkable achievement earned statewide recognition and was featured prominently in the Oregon Department of Education’s Science of Reading video series.

Davidson has also been pivotal in fostering a culture of social-emotional learning, employing programs like Character Strong to enhance student resilience, empathy, and behavior management. Her approach is not only academic but deeply relational, strengthening community ties and supporting holistic student growth.

“[Davidson] embodies the very best of educational leadership,” said Dr. Krista Parent, COSA Executive Director. “Her visionary guidance, unwavering dedication to her students, and exceptional contributions to educational practices have profoundly impacted her community and beyond.”

Davidson will be formally honored at the COSA Annual Conference in Seaside, Oregon, this June, where educational leaders statewide will celebrate her extraordinary accomplishments.

Thousands of Oregonians slam Republican senator’s attempt to end mail ballots

Sen. David Brock Smith, R-Port Orford, speaks on the Senate floor on Feb. 12, 2024.

By JULIA SHUMWAY
Oregon Capital Chronicle

Thousands of Oregonians submitted letters opposing a Republican senator’s long-shot attempt to ask voters whether to repeal the state’s decades-old mail voting law, swamping the Legislature’s website on Monday.

The outcry against Sen. David Brock Smith’s Senate Bill 210 could serve as a preview of what’s to come if his proposal or a separate initiative led by one of Brock Smith’s Republican rivals makes it to the 2026 ballot. Oregonians have voted entirely by mail since 2000, after nearly 70% of voters approved switching to mail ballots in 1998.

A quarter-century later, and after Republican party leaders including President Donald Trump spent years spreading debunked claims of voter fraud, Brock Smith argued that Oregon voters should get to decide again.

“I think it’s time, which is why this is a referral for Oregonians to either reaffirm or deny vote by mail in this state,” the Port Orford Republican said during a Monday hearing of the Senate Rules Committee.

The bill, which is unlikely to advance in the Democratic-controlled Senate, would ask voters to approve switching from mail voting to in-person voting on Election Day beginning in 2028. It also would repeal multiple recent laws aimed at making voting easier, including laws that added prepaid ballot-return envelopes and allowed the counting of ballots mailed and postmarked by Election Day that arrive at clerks’ offices up to a week later.

Brock Smith’s proposal would allow people to vote by mail if they’re unable to vote in person on Election Day — if they ask for the ballot at least 21 days before an election and submit a valid Oregon driver’s license, driver permit, state identification card, U.S. passport or military identification card.

Supporters of Oregon’s electoral system have long praised the state’s vote-by-mail system for its convenience. Oregon turnout in both presidential and midterm elections far exceeds the national average, even after automatic voter registration added hundreds of thousands of eligible but unengaged voters to voter rolls beginning in 2016.

But proponents of ending mail voting, including Rep. Court Boice, R-Gold Beach, said convenience shouldn’t be the goal of the state’s electoral system.

“The folks that I represent, the majority, want voting and Election Day to be about responsibility, not about convenience,” Boice said.

Renee Asher lives in rural Coos County, one of the southwest Oregon counties Boice and Brock Smith represent. She attended the hearing virtually to say that she and other neighbors support Oregon’s mail voting.

“I live in a rural community with a lot of people that lack accessibility or ability to get to a polling center,” she said. “We don’t have polling centers here. You have people that work multiple jobs, as I do myself, (and we) do face voter intimidation in our area. I think that it would be a big mistake to repeal mail-in voting.”

Asher was also one of the more than 11,000 Oregonians who submitted written testimony ahead of Monday’s hearing, temporarily breaking the Legislature’s website and slowing it to a crawl for most of the day. More than 85% of the letters submitted opposed Brock Smith’s bill, while testimony in the hearing was more evenly split.

Ayla Hoffer said she drove 100 miles from her rural home near Banks to testify for the bill, which she considered the most important of the thousands of bills lawmakers introduced this year.

“We all come out of the hills just fine to vote,” Hoffer said. “We’re ready to train our volunteers and get on with the old way. We know what it’s like to have somebody stand in front of us, check our signature, know who we are, put a ballot number to our ballot, and it’s all tallied on the same day.”

Sen. James Manning, a Eugene Democrat who lost the Democratic primary for secretary of state last year, said he spent his campaign traveling the state and talking to voters about how the system could be better. Most of the people he talked to liked voting by mail, especially after the paid postage law he championed a few years ago, he said.

“I’m trying to figure out if this is an issue looking for a problem, because I don’t see it here in our state,” Manning said. “I think that this is a national movement to try to make something of nothing.”

Registered Oregon voters automatically receive ballots at their homes, and they can choose to return them by mail, dropping them in a ballot box or turning them in at their county elections office. They can also opt to vote in person — each county elections office must have at least three private voting booths for voters who want the experience of filling out a ballot in a polling place.

Erin Otey, a night shift nurse at a skilled rehab facility in Oregon City, said she came to testify against the bill on behalf of her patients who are able to exercise their right to vote because they receive ballots by mail.

“These people are bedbound,” she said. “And even people that are housebound wouldn’t have the opportunity to get to an in-person place, and it would put their health further at risk by exposing them to germs and viruses that could actually end their life.”

Catherine Stearns, a retired state worker from Corvallis, said she brags to her out-of-state friends about Oregon’s higher voter participation rates and the state’s innovative approach to elections, including being the first state to adopt mail ballots and automatic voter registration.

“In my opinion, Senate Bill 210 takes a giant leap backwards to a time when things worked only for some of the people,” Stearns said.
