Grant to operate North Bend pool approved

City will run pool free in July, August, September

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The World

North Bend got some good news Friday, and the news will open the city pool for free beginning July 1.

City Administrator David Milliron said the city was notified Friday it has been approved for a $187,000 Oregon Community Foundation K-12 Summer Learning grant to be used to operate the North Bend Municipal Pool.

"We will be able to cover all our start-up costs and cover operation of the pool, covering completely for July, August and September," Milliron said.

What that mean for local residents is there will be no cost to use the pool, including no cost for swim lessons.

North Bend received the grant notification just hours after the pool was filled with water for the first time in more than a year. The North Bend Fire Department began filling the pool early Thursday, and city staff stayed at the pool until it was completely filled at 4:40 a.m. Friday.

City Recorder KayLee Marone, who will also run the pool when it reopens, said the pool holds 255,000 gallons of water. Using that much water required the city to work closely with the Coos Bay-North Bend Water Board to ensure enough water was available Thursday.

Marone, who stayed most of the night at the pool as it was filled, headed to Washington state Friday to be recertified as a Star Guard lifeguard instructor. Marone will now be able to train the lifeguards

Culinary class to present at International Symposium on Bread

NORTH BEND — For the first time, North Bend High School's culinary class has been invited to be part of Johnson & Wales University International Symposium on Bread.

"There are people (attending) online from all over the world," said Frank Murphy, culinary teacher at North Bend High School. "And our little town of North Bend will be one of them."

Murphy said his class is creating a video to showcase its use of the mobile woodfire oven, better known as The Blazing Bulldog Oven, which has made them stand out. This video will cover how the oven makes the culinary class unique, including its positive impact on students.

"It attracts 4.0 students and not 4.0 students," he said. "You see kids smiling — especially those who don't belong anywhere else, those who aren't on the football team or in sports but the kid that might get into trouble. They get caught up because its fire and pizza. We do a gig somewhere and someone tells them it was fantastic pizza and (those students) have never heard that. No one says that to them."

To operate the oven, culinary students sign up to help during events around town. Murphy said that "it's kids training kids... I stand in the back."

Remembering even the worst of history

Coos History Museum to place Tucker memorial on Juneteenth

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The World

For a community to grow, it must face its past, even the worst of its history.

On June 19, the Coos History Museum will help Coos Bay do just that when the museum hosts its first Juneteenth celebration. The highlight of the day will be the placing of a historical marker at the museum to remember the lynching of Alonzo Tucker.

In September 1902, Tucker was one of only a few black men living in Coos Bay, and he became the only person officially recognized as being lynched in Oregon.

Marcia Hart, executive director of the Coos History Museum, said Coos Bay has come a long way since 1902, but it must never forget its past.

"That's one of the reasons we feel it's important to bring it out to the community," Hart said.

Oregon facing dangerous wildfire season

JEREMY C. RUARK

Oregon is moving into a more dangerous and more intense wildfire season complicated by the state's continued and deepening drought.

That is the overall assessment presented during a media briefing Thursday afternoon, June 3, conducted by Gov. Kate Brown's office that included a number of state agency representatives.

"We are seeing longer duration and more complex fires," Oregon State Fire Marshal Mariana Ruiz-Temple said. "We are looking at fires in a different way this year and there is significant concern of the fires we are seeing and where these fires are."

Much of Oregon is facing abnormal drought conditions, according to Oregon Department of Forestry Fire Protection Chief Doug Grafe.

"Continued drought conditions persist and weather conditions are complicating the drought," Grafe said. "Over the next three months, temperatures are projected to be above normal and precipitation below normal through August and September."

The official May-June-July forecast from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Climate Prediction Center shows higher chances of above-normal temperatures and below-normal precipitation for most of the

Coos Bay District sells 7 million board feet of timber

The Bureau of Land Management Coos Bay District sold 7 million board feet of timber during a sealed bid auction May 28.

Boise Cascade Wood Products, LLC of Medford was the high bidder for the "Preacher Man" timber sale. The timber sold for $2.048 million, just above the appraised value of $2.032 million. The sale is located on Oregon and California Revested Lands in Coos County. One other company submitted a qualified bid.

The BLM manages 2.4 million acres of forests and woodlands in western Oregon. A sustainable forestry program is critical to the economies in western Oregon.

Local communities rely on the jobs and timber that come from BLM forests, and the BLM is committed to providing predictable and sustainable timber harvest opportunities.

Revenue generated from timber sales on O&C Lands are split between 18 western Oregon counties and the general fund of the U.S. Treasury, as designated under the O&C Lands Sustained Yield Management Act of 1937. Counties use the revenue to fund essential county services. The revenue generated from the timber sales on public domain land is deposited with the U.S. Treasury.

It takes approximately 16,000 board feet of lumber to frame a 2,000-square-foot home.

One million board feet of timber is enough to build approximately 63 family sized residential homes.

coming to work at the pool. "Otherwise we wouldn't be able to pull this off," Milliron said.

With the pool full of water, Marone said the city would filter the water over the weekend before beginning treatment with chemicals next week. Marone said she hopes to have the pool ready to be used for lifeguard training by June 18.

Keeping everything moving forward is important for the city to reach its goal of reopening July 1. Milliron said it has not been easy, but he praised the city employees from different departments who have helped with painting, general maintenance, cleaning and more.

"Everything you see is frozen in time from March of 2020," Milliron said.

While the city has promised to open the pool July 1, Milliron said no one is certain what that will fully mean.

He said how many people can swim will all be determined by COVID restrictions in place July 1.

"We don't have a crystal ball to tell what the restrictions are July 1," he said. "But I will tell you, whatever the restrictions are, we will be in compliance."

And getting there will fall largely on Marone. When the pool opens, she will be in charge while continuing to do her job as recorder and HR director.

"For us to pull this off, KayLee has literally been going through her Rolodex," Milliron said. "We the city could not pull it off without her. She's been doing double duty."

That double duty will only continue through the end of 2021 as North Bend will begin searching for an aquatics administrator to take over in 2022.

When the pool opens, it will remain open through September, before closing again for three months.

During that closure, the city will complete much-needed upgrades and maintenance. Milliron said the city is now applying for a grant from the Judith Anne Morgan Foundation to help offset the expense for the top three pool capital projects: a 35-year-old boiler system, the pool's original filtration system, and inefficient and outdated pump systems.

The pool also needs a new air handling system, instant hot water for showers and various code compliance upgrades. The estimated cost of all the improvements is approximately $565,000, including contingency.

When it reopens in January 2022, it should be ready to go for the foreseeable future.

"I can't wait," Marone said Friday. "This is a huge opportunity for the community."

History

From A1

Hart said Tucker's story is one Coos Bay should know because it's part of the community's story. As a history museum, Hart said both the good and bad should be part of the story it tells.

"Alonzo Tucker was a young black man who lived in Marshfield in the early 1900s," Hart said. "On Sept. 18, 1902, there was an incident reported that he had allegedly accosted a white woman, and a group of miners were upset. An angry mob, they say close to 300 people, started in."

The mob went to the jail and demanded Tucker be released to them, Hart said. Police tried to remove Tucker, with plans to put him on a boat to Roseburg. But when they reached the dock, the boat was not there.

"Alonzo Tucker escaped, hid under a dock during the night and then hid in a local hardware store," Hart said. "The mob found him and shot him. They planned to lynch him on the 7th Street Bridge. He died on the way, but they hung his body on the bridge."

No one was ever charged in the murder or lynching after it was determined Tucker was shot while escaping from police.

Hart said he never received justice legally, but the museum felt his story was one that should be told.

"We've always had the story in our museum," she said. "We've had the story as part of our history here. What happened is about three or four years ago, the Equal Justice Initiative started looking at lynchings across the country."

The EJI created the Community Remembrance Project where the EJI partners with communities to memorialize victims of documented lynchings. The idea is not only to remember victims but also to help communities move forward.

The partnership between EJI and the Coos History Museum began several years ago with the idea of doing something to remember Tucker and his death. In October of last year, the museum and EJI worked together to do a soil sampling ceremony. The idea is to have remembrance and reconciliation. Two jars of soil were filled. One was taken to EJI's museum in Montgomery, Alabama, the second is at the Coos History Museum.

Hart said the ceremony was at a time of heightened racial awareness following the murder of George Floyd and protests around the country.

"It really polarized the significance of the Alonzo Tucker story in our community," Hart said.

After the soil sampling, the city of Coos Bay asked the museum to determine the best location for a historical marker. The museum gathered a group of close to 30 people to help make the decision.

"Almost hands down, everyone agreed the museum is the spot," Hart said. "We're entrusted with the history of our town."

The group then discussed what should be done to remember Tucker, and the decision was made to partner with EJI for a historical marker.

"A lot of the Black community wanted to bring out something of a celebration piece, bring out the culture of the community," Hart said.

The group also decided

Juneteenth would be the right time to unveil the marker, and EJI agreed. On that day, the marker will be unveiled in an invitation-only event, and the museum is planning an all-day celebration.

The museum will open free of charge from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., and plans to have music, food and other items. A lot of the special things, including the marker, will be outside due to COVID-19 concerns, but the museum will be open for anyone who wants to walk through. Masks will be required for entry.

Ariel Peasley, education and community engagement coordinator for the museum, said she is excited about the historical marker and the opportunities it will provide for educating the community.

"I'm super excited about the celebration and I'm also excited about the education part," Peasley said. "People don't realize the Equal Justice Initiative is this huge organization. It's not a random plaque we want to put up, but it's connectivity, and it's connecting us around the country. It may have happened in Marshfield and Coos Bay in 1902, but it's a bigger issue. It really is a great way to teach children about our history."

The historical marker will be placed near the front door of the museum and will be available to be seen any time for free.

The museum has created a week-long celebration about Tucker and Juneteenth and invites the community to participate.

increase, to see their spirits lift, "it's neat," he said. "That's what we're going to talk about ... how this oven makes pizza but a pat on the back changes students. They realize they can do something, can be part of something and that they have skills."

The symposium is an online event that began in May and runs through October. Murphy said the video from his culinary class representing North Bend High School will be shown in July.

Bay Area Chamber of Commerce's Educator of the Year

Not only has Murphy's class brought international attention to the South Coast, but Murphy's excellence in teaching caught the attention of Bay Area Chamber of Commerce. In March, he received the chamber's Educator of the Year Award.

"I was taken aback," Murphy said, having never received the award before. "I'm a Career and Technical Education teacher and ... everyone has had to jump through so many hoops on the fly, on how to keep kids involved... For me to do this, I'm pretty humbled."

Murphy received the award after he got creative delivering his classes to students during distance learning. He looked back to when the pandemic sent students home to learn online, tossing teachers into uncharted territory. For Murphy's culinary class, he set up cameras in an empty kitchen and invited students to cook along with him. He rearranged his classroom, placing cameras to get overhead shots while he cooked.

"I know for myself, teaching this way is a lot harder than having kids in the classroom," Murphy said. "It's a different stress."

Murphy explained that when he put a 10-minute video of his cooking course on YouTube, the process took three hours "to make it because you have to set it up and record it." Not wanting his students to get "bored stiff" while listening to him, he asked the owners of Ciccarelli's Restaurant in North Bend if he could cook in their kitchen and record it for his class.

"...I brought the equipment down to Ciccarelli's," Murphy said. "I brought down some cameras, laptop and microphones. It went ... really well."

Murphy said that before distance learning, taking a school bus somewhere "and bring a lot of kids to one spot" was difficult.

"I think what I will start to do is go out and do our own taping in different facilities to show kid's what's going on and incorporate chefs and owners," he said.

Murphy hopes to expand this idea into the fishing industry, do interviews and then show the students.

During most of the school year's distance learning, Murphy said students had the option to do some in-class cooking while social distancing and wearing a mask. He said the option was available three days a week.

"It was completely voluntary," he said. "Kids (could) sign up and say when they wanted to come in."

When students signed up to cook in-class, Murphy made sure that enough was cooked that they could take some home.

"We did desserts twice, but usually it is everything from lasagna, pasta dishes, everything from scratch," he said.

"One class per term, there is a steak. A lot of times we do bread to go with it."

Over the years, Murphy said a family – that wishes to remain anonymous – began donating to support the class. This school year, he said, that donation helped cover the cost of the steaks.

"That's not coming from district funds," he said, adding that the family even doubled their donation this year since it costs extra when "you're sending food home."

The family donated $2,000. For more information about the International Symposium on Bread, or to purchase tickets to see North Bend High School's culinary class in July, visit breadsymposium.com.

Plan to expand Empire Urban Renewal District moves forward

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The World

The Urban Renewal Agency, made up of the Coos Bay City Council, voted unanimously Monday to begin the process of extending and expanding the Empire Urban Renewal District.

The plan approved by the agency would add two properties to the Empire district, John Topits Park and the armory.

The city wants to add John Topits Park to the district because the Urban Renewal Agency could then fund some of the work to build a new facility for the Coos Bay Library. No work would be done until funding for library construction was in place.

Before the major amendment to the plan can be official, it must be approved by taxing districts that equal 75 percent of the total taxes collected.

Coos Bay alone represents close to 50 percent of the district, with other entities including Coos County, county library, county 4-H, Post of Coos Bay, Coos County Airport, Coos Bay School District #9, South Coast ESD and Southwest Oregon Community College.

Elaine Howard, a consultant with the agency, said the city has reached out to the Coos Bay School District and the ESD to support the project. The three combined would top the 75 percent threshold.

In addition to adding property, the major amendment would extend the life of the district from 2031 to 2039 and would increase the amount of debt the district can incur from $15 million to $29 million. The tax rate in any of the districts would not be impacted.

“The Coos Bay School District is not directly impacted by urban renewal,” Howard said. “Both the school district and the education service district are funded by the state, and they are funded on a per-pupil basis.”

The new district as approved Monday includes several specific plans for spending the revenue that comes in. The spending plans include the continuation of the facade program, additional sidewalks in Empire, property acquisition, street improvements, gateway improvements, cleanup at the armory site and improvements to Topits Park to prepare for the library construction.

The district currently brings in just under $2 million annually in tax revenue, with $1.5 million coming from city and the Coos Bay School District taxpayers.

If the amendment is not authorized, the taxing district is scheduled to pay off its debt and be shut down in 2031.

Later attempts to start another Urban Renewal District would bring in much less revenue, Howard said.

“It’s beneficial to keep this running,” Councilor Drew Farmer said. “More money would go back to the state and other taxing districts.”

Mayor Joe Benetti said he was in favor of the amendment.

“It’s a great tool for us to help develop businesses and expand properties and make them more useful,” Benetti said. “I think there’s a lot of projects that are available.”

By law, the Urban Renewal Agency cannot make a final decision on the major amendment for 45 days.

Howard explained the city must mail letters to the other taxing districts to get 75 percent approval, present the plan to the county, have a hearing in front of the planning commission and bring it back to the Urban Renewal Agency on July 21 for a public hearing and possible approval.

region, which indicates that drought conditions are likely to get worse in the coming months.

The Significant Wildland Fire Potential Outlook shows higher chances of wildfire potential east of the Cascade crest throughout Oregon and in southwest Washington by June and July, according to NOAA.

According to the latest water outlook report issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Natural Resources Conservation Service, nearly all reservoirs in the Klamath Basin are storing less than 50% capacity, and basin streamflows are expected to run between 8% to 49% through the summer.

In addition to the worsening impacts already being felt across the region, there is also the potential for dry conditions to impact drinking water, endangered species and wetland ecosystems, and fire danger, the NOAA report states.

Grafe said Oregon has ready experienced 300 fires this year which is well above normal.

Comparing the devastating wildfires that spread across the state last year, Grafe state the 2020 event was an alimant of natural forces that was unprecedented.

“Any weather event that will be close to that, such as dry lightning, will put us at significant risk,” he said.

Oregon Office of Emergency Management Director Andrew Phelps said the state is quickly ramping up its coordinated efforts for the wildfire season, which includes coordinated responses for transportation, mass care, health and medical, sheltering, law enforcement and military support.

The state has also worked with Oregon counties providing mass communication systems to alert the public of emergencies, such as wildfires, and to help coordinate survival efforts. But when questioned by a reporter about the apparent ineffectiveness of such a mass communication system in Jackson County, Phelps acknowledged that no system is perfect.

“These systems rely on humans and mechanical systems,” he said. “Every county needs to take that responsibility seriously and make sure there staff are trained for such systems.”

Phelps said every Oregonian can take steps now to reduce the wildfire risks.

“I am asking every Oregonian to plan being a disaster survivor,” he said. “Disasters are inevitable but there are things that we can do to reduce our individual risks, our families risks and the risks to our communities.”

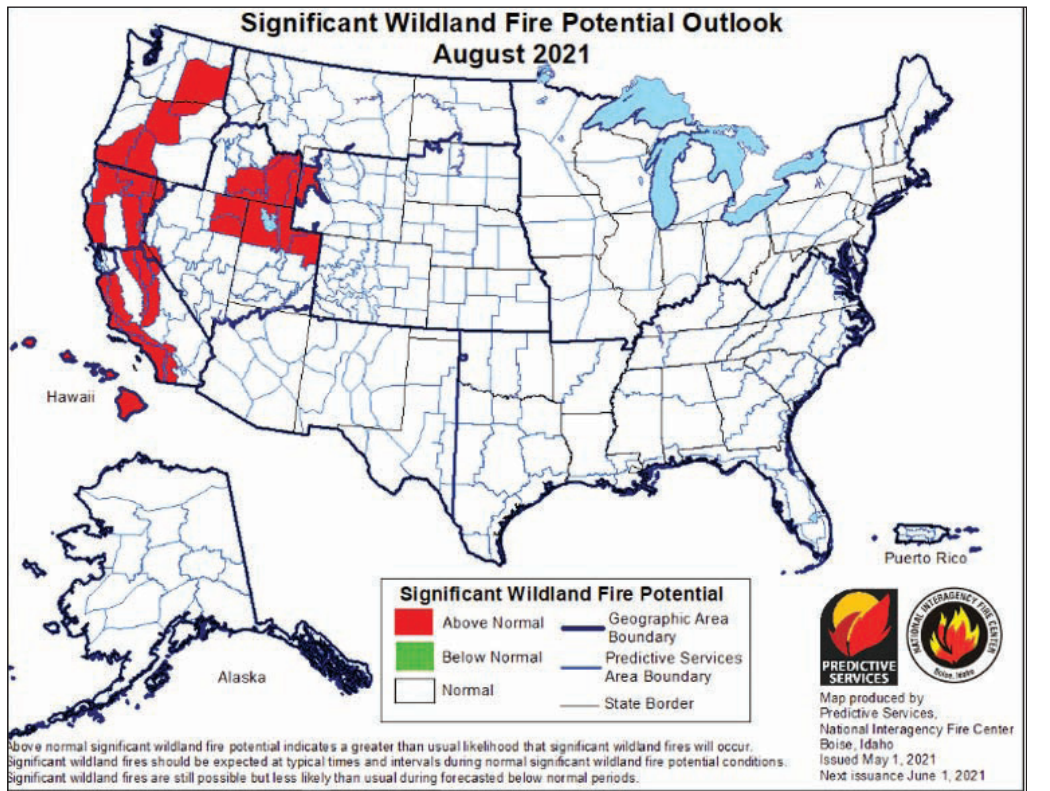

Using a graphic during the Zoom media briefing, Phelps outlined a plan to be ready.

Public Utility Commission’s new temporary rules allowing utilities to switch off power during wildfires to protect the public and property are important. “The power companies are engaging more with the state’s coordination system and the decision to turn off power is the responsibility of the power companies,” Grafe said.

“I see that (the PUC rules) as a good movement,” Ruiz-Temple said. “Senate Bill 762 speaks specially to the PUC response and how they engage. There needs to be a process.”

Ruiz-Temple said the state has made investments in responses, risk reductions and resilience, including implementing the governor’s wildfire council’s recommendations and 2021 legislation.

A Convention of States wouldn't fix the U.S. Constitution

BY THOMAS L. KNAPP

Thomas L. Knapp

The Convention of States Project seeks, as its name reflects, a convention of states as provided for in Article V of the US Constitution. Such a convention, CPS claims, would “only allow” discussion of amendments that “limit the power and jurisdiction of the federal government, impose fiscal restraints, and place term limits on federal officials.”

The magic number of states for calling a convention is 34. According to a map on the CPS site, 15 states have passed the required resolution, while one legislative chamber has passed it in nine, and another 16 have “active legislation” on the matter. So, while it may or may not happen, it’s certainly a live proposal.

The idea comes with quite a few problems.

One is that such a convention would decide for itself what it was “allowed” to do, just as the first such convention exceeded its own mandate (it was only “allowed” to propose amendments to the Articles of Confederation, but instead proposed replacing those Articles with the Constitution).

A second problem is that (fortunately, vis a vis the first) it’s unlikely that the states would be able to agree on much at all.

A third problem is that even if they did agree in convention, it’s unlikely that 3/4 of the states would ratify term limits or fiscal restraints. Every state legislator sees a future U.S. representative, senator or president in the mirror each morning, and they all tend to a (secret, contradicting their campaign rhetoric) variant on St. Augustine’s prayer: “Give me chastity and continence, but not right now.”

The biggest problem, though is that a constitution is, even at its very perfected best, only as good as adherence to that constitution.

Why do supporters of an Article V convention expect the U.S. government would obey the proposed amendments any more than it obeys the existing document?

“In questions of power,” Thomas Jefferson wrote in 1798, “let no more be said of confidence in man, but bind him down from mischief by the chains of the Constitution.”

Three years later, Jefferson was president of the United States. Five years later, he proved himself (and Congress) unbound by those chains with the Louisiana Purchase, an act provided for nowhere in that Constitution.

In 1870, American anarchist Lysander Spooner observed that “whether the Constitution really be one thing, or another, this much is certain - that it has either authorized such a government as we have had, or has been powerless to prevent it.”

In either case,” Spooner concluded, “it is unfit to exist.”

I’m skeptical of the notion that political government can ever be forced to limit its own power and prerogatives. The history of the United States tends to justify that skepticism.

Absent evidence that America’s rulers can be bound down from supposedly forbidden mischief by the chains of the existing Constitution, attempting to amend that Constitution seems more like an eccentric hobby - on the order of building model UFOs or collecting rare tuna cans - than a serious attempt to secure our rights and defend our liberty.

Oxford comma not always the answer

BY JUNE CASAGRANDE

There’s a growing fanaticism in this country — a belief system so extreme its followers are impervious to all logic and facts. If you don’t agree with them, you’re beneath contempt. If you try to reason with them, your words fall on deaf ears, or worse, you’re accused of complicity in any number of blood-curdling atrocities. And though this dangerous extremism has been simmering for decades, the advent of social media has hastened radicalization, posing a threat to reasonable people everywhere.

I’m talking, of course, about the Cult of the Oxford Comma, which reared its ugly head recently on Twitter when an obscure California attorney tweeted an example of the Oxford comma’s supposed superiority.

The tweet was an image of a Politico headline: “How Harry Reid, a Terrorist Interrogator and the Singer From Blink-182 Took UFOs Mainstream.” Above the image was the lawyer’s commentary: “And always remember to use the Oxford comma, kids.”

The dog whistle was heard far and wide. About 8,000 Oxford comma fanatics retweeted it and 80,000 liked it. They agreed that, without an Oxford comma after “interrogator,” the headline suggested that Harry Reid was not just a former United States Senator but also a terrorist interrogator and the front man for a rock band.

In the replies, hundreds of cultists took shots at the headline writer.

“I didn’t know Blink’s singer was named Harry Reid,” one replied.

“People who do not use the Oxford comma deserve a hefty fine, a 90 day jail sentence, and a day and night listening to lectures by Alan Greenspan,” another insisted.

Strong words from true believers. There’s just one problem. They’re wrong. An Oxford comma would not improve the Politico headline. Instead, it would make it ambiguous.

The Oxford comma, also called a serial comma or series comma, is the one before “and” in a list of three or more items. So it’s the second comma in “The flag is red, white, and blue.”

The Oxford comma is optional. The Chicago Manual of Style, followed by many book and magazine publishers, says to use it. But Associated Press style, followed by most news media, say to skip it: “The flag is red, white and blue.”

Both methods are correct. But don’t tell that to Oxford comma cultists like the judge who, in his zeal to promote his comma cause, screwed up a 2017 court ruling. And don’t tell it to the countless thousands of internet denizens who supply “proof” of the Oxford comma’s superiority in the form of a cartoon about JFK, Stalin and strippers.

Their devotion blinds them to the fact that, while an Oxford comma can sometimes remove ambiguity, other times it creates ambiguity.

To see why, it helps to understand appositives. An appositive is a noun that amounts to a repeated reference to another noun: “Your father, a true gentleman, is loved by many.”

Commas set off appositives, which is how we know “a true gentleman” is appositive to your father. Your dad and the gentleman are one and the same, and the commas tell us so.

In the Politico headline, inserting an Oxford comma would suggest “a terrorist interrogator” might be appositive to Harry Reid — he may be the interrogator: Harry Reid, a terrorist interrogator, strikes fear in the hearts of Al-Qaeda members.

But wait, cultists say. Without an Oxford comma, the headline means Harry Reid is both a terrorist interrogator and a singer.

Wrong. True, an appositive can have two nouns: Your father, an officer and a gentleman, is loved by many. But you need the comma after “gentleman” to make it appositive. Otherwise, you’re talking about three people: Your father, an officer and a gentleman walk into a bar.

The same is true for our Politico headline. If you were to put a comma after “the singer from Blink-182,” you would be creating a two-noun appositive to Harry Reid. “How Harry Reid, a Terrorist Interrogator and the Singer from Blink-182, took UFOs Mainstream. But without a comma after Blink-182, there’s zero ambiguity. The original headline can only mean these are three different people. So an Oxford comma would make this headline worse, not better.

Letters to the Editor

I support HB 2021

My purpose in writing this letter is to express my support for HB 2021 as was recently reported on in the OPB article “Oregon’s big climate bill of 2021 generates little friction” by Dirk VanderHart.

100% Clean Energy for All (HB 2021) is part of the Oregon Clean Energy Opportunity campaign and calls for carbon emissions-free electricity by 2040. The bill also allocates funds for community-based energy projects that will provide good jobs with good wages and sound labor standards.

The transition to clean energy is unavoidable and has been proven to work. I envision as healthy of a future as possible for generations to come and it’s vital that we take these steps now. HB 2021 is an opportunity to take this necessary action that will benefit all Oregonians, particularly communities that are most vulnerable.

The 100% Clean Energy for All Bill is also an excellent economic opportunity. My community on the south coast will benefit greatly from the transition to clean energy through good local jobs, sustainable businesses and lower energy costs. Additionally, this bill will help to reduce the coast’s reliance on outside energy, increasing our communities’ independence and resilience in the face of natural disasters. Our legislators should vote yes on HB 2021 to help improve the quality of life of their constituents. Let Representatives David Brock Smith and Boomer Wright know that the South Coast wants Clean Energy for All.

Little Theatre on the Bay will showcase three productions of Love Letters by A.R. Gurney beginning Friday, June 11. Different actors will play the lead roles during each production.

Little Theatre on the Bay opens 'Love Letters' by A.R. Gurney

"Love Letters" by A.R. Gurney opens June 11 and runs for one weekend only, live and in person at the Liberty Theater in North Bend, with CDC and Oregon Health Authority recommendations in place.

An acclaimed and renowned modern play, "Love Letters" has had multiple Broadway productions, a television adaptation and was even a Pulitzer-Prize finalist for drama.

Simple, yet powerful, the story follows two characters Andrew Makepeace Ladd III and Melissa Gardner, through a life-long love affair recounted through their letters. The characters will be portrayed by three sets of actors during the three-show run. LTOB regulars, Michael and Aymee Pedder will take on the roles at 7 p.m. Friday, June 11. New to the Theatre, John Beane and Brenda Sund will take over the roles at 7 p.m. Saturday, June 12. The final performance at 2 p.m., Sunday, June 13, will feature Arnie and Arlene Roblan. The show is directed by Randy Aronson and assistant director, Michele Moore.

As poignant today as ever, the lovers are forever physically apart though spiritually connected as they share with each other life's joys and struggles, ultimately learning that happiness is found in the relationships we build over our lifetime.

Don't miss this unique theatrical format that combines the art of storytelling with the nostalgic beauty of first loves. This is LTOB's first in-person show since the Liberty Theatre went dark in March 2020 due to COVID-19 restrictions. The event is free to LTOB members. If you are not currently a member, you can join by calling 541-756-4336 or visiting www.thelibertytheatre.org. Annual memberships are just $10 per person. Members can reserve a ticket to the show at www.thelibertytheatre.org. More information can be obtained by calling the theatre office at 541-756-4336. The box office is now open for walk up service Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 1p.m.

This show is generously sponsored by Three Rivers Casino. LTOB is also partnering with Restaurant O to provide a three-course meal for theatre goers at a discounted price. See the menu and get more information about the promotion on www.thelibertytheatre.org

The Little Theatre on the Bay is in the process of undertaking a multi-year/multi-phase capital campaign to enhance and expand North Bend's historic Liberty Theatre. This 97-year-old treasure serves as the premier community theatre and performing arts venue in the North Bend/Coos Bay area.

LTOB is a non-profit organization whose mission is "to cultivate the arts in Coos County." The roots of the LTOB were formed in 1947 when a group of actors joined together to produce live radio plays in the greater North Bend/Coos Bay area. The popularity of these programs led this grass roots group to coalesce into a formal organization one year later. The next step in their organizational evolution took place in 1951 when the LTOB received 501(c)(3) tax exempt recognition from the IRS.

Nissim "Max" Douk, 73, of Coos Bay, passed away May 31, 2021.

Max was born April 12, 1948 in Casablanca, Morocco to Leon and Mazale Douk. Max spent his childhood in Morocco and Israel. After graduating school, he joined the Israeli Defense Force, serving his country honorably for 3 years.

Max spent several years working and honing his culinary skills on Carnival Cruise ships, where he managed food and beverage services.

Max moved to the United States in 1980, settling in Florida and opening his first Italian restaurant. Later Max moved to the west coast, first residing and operating restaurants in Newport Beach and Costa Mesa, California. Max then moved to the Oregon coast in 2005 with the intent to retire, but instead, he opened Mama Mia restaurant in North Bend. This venture fostered many new relationships, the most important to Max being meeting his love and future wife, Kelly. Together, they would operate Mama Mia until its closing.

Not settling into retired life yet, Max then opened Little Italy restaurant in Coos Bay. Here Max and Kelly continued to serve his beloved Italian cuisine. Amazing food was Max's passion and sharing his creations and a good glass of vino with his many patrons evolved into cherished lifelong friendships.

When away from the restaurant, Max enjoyed taking Sunday drives with Kelly up and down the Oregon coast and frequent vacations to explore and relax in Mexico. And of course, no day went by without a good meal and glass of wine.

Max was loved by many and his exuberant character and passion for experiencing life to its fullest will be missed

DEAR ABBY By Abigail Van Buren

MAN FED UP WITH PROSELYTIZING IN-LAWS

DEAR ABBY: I am having trouble dealing with my wife's extended family, who are mostly evangelicals. My family isn't overly religious and some are atheists. Her family doesn't think twice about asking me if I have a relationship with God, and have even declared that they are praying for me and my children. I chafe at these comments because I feel they do not respect our religious beliefs, as I do theirs.

This has been going on for all of the 40 years we've been married, and I'm ready to disassociate from them altogether. I do not want to be negative about their beliefs, but I should be entitled to mutual respect. Can you help, please? -- LOSING PATIENCE IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR LOSING: I can try. One of the tenets of the faith of evangelicals is evangelizing -- in other words, spreading the word about their beliefs. They feel that by doing this they are following their religion. When you are asked whether you have a relationship with God, your response should be that your relationship with God is as close as you need it to be, thank you -- AND PLEASE DO NOT ASK AGAIN.

When they tell you they are praying for you and your children, say thank you again. A little prayer on our behalf hurts no one, and may make them feel better about their own lives. Limit your exposure if you must, but shunning your in-laws isn't the answer if your wife wants to maintain a relationship with them.

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband had an affair with a woman named "Lily" that lasted for the entire year we were separated. Although we tried to work on things, he continued to sleep with both of us. I got PTSD because of how bad it messed with my head. I wanted to keep my family together, but I was tired of being hurt.

When I finally let go, so did Lily. She got engaged not long after meeting her new boyfriend, but she and my ex still slept together. He had four relationships after her and kept trying to pursue me, but I didn't give him any more chances and met my now-husband.

After cheating in their subsequent relationships, my ex and Lily got back together. (She moved in because her fiancé kicked her out.) Eight months later they are now engaged. I don't feel safe with my son around them because they are so toxic. Am I wrong for wishing they would separate again and both stay out of my life? It's affecting me emotionally again, as well as making it hard for me to love. -- ALMOST DESTROYED IN ILLINOIS

DEAR ALMOST DESTROYED: You are spending too much time focused on your ex and his fiancée. They are birds of a feather and meant for each other. Because you are unable to eliminate your ex from your life -- I presume because of the child you share -- and the stress is affecting your mental health, it's time to consult a licensed mental health professional for help in insulating yourself from this toxic twosome.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Contact Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Coos Bay Library receives grant to increase food security

Coos Bay Public Library has been selected as one of 300 libraries to participate in Libraries Transforming Communities: Focus on Small and Rural Libraries, an American Library Association initiative that helps library workers better serve their small and rural communities.

The competitive award comes with a $3,000 grant to help increase food security, provide food literacy and mitigate barriers that prevent individuals and families in Coos Bay from being food secure.

"We are so proud to be chosen for this opportunity to work with our community" said Reference Librarian Paul Addis. "This grant will allow our library to get to know our residents better and help us build a happier and healthier community for our citizens by providing more access to healthy food and nutritional learning opportunities."

As part of the grant, Coos Bay Public Library staff will take an online course in how to lead conversations, a skill vital to library work.

Staff will then host conversations with residents about food security and literacy, using the grant funds to increase access to the Community Cooking with the Co-op program, a collaboration with Coos Head Food Co-op and their Outreach Coordinator Jamar Ruff.

Fifty community members will receive $20 vouchers to obtain the ingredients needed to participate in the July and August programs on Zoom. In September, the library will hold two community conversations with participants and community partners to discuss these and other grant-related activities.

Coos County's most recent Community Food Assessment stated that "In terms of nutritional health and eating habits of a community, it is evident that poverty and lack of education are serious contributors to the problem."

If you are interested in getting involved or taking part in the conversation, contact Paul Addis at paddis@coosbaylibrary.org or (541) 269-1101 x222.

Since 2014, ALA's Libraries Transforming Communities initiative has re-imagined the role libraries play in supporting communities. Libraries of all types have utilized free dialogue and deliberation training and resources to lead community and campus forums; take part in anti-violence activities; provide a space for residents to come together and discuss challenging topics; and have productive conversations with civic leaders, library trustees and staff.

Tigers top Coquille to stay unbeaten

JOHN GUNTHER
The World

BANDON — The Bandon girls basketball team keeps rolling along, with a 48-20 win over visiting Coquille on Saturday morning the Tigers' third victory in three days and eighth straight to start the season.

"I think we're doing super good," said Bandon senior Sterling Williams. "What I'm going to put it toward is how well our team is working as a team."

"All of us have a set of skills and we are working together and fitting those skills together like a puzzle."

On Saturday, they overwhelmed Coquille with their press in the first quarter, building a 16-7 lead. Then the Tigers pulled off the press and let their half-court defense and unselfish offense do the work the rest of the way.

"We're just very patient," Williams said. "We transition the ball very well, but we slow down and collect ourselves well."

And the Tigers can do their work inside or outside.

After leading 27-8 at the half, they scored all their points in the third quarter on 3-pointers by three different players — Katelyn Senn, Olivia Thompson and Williams.

By the end of the game, Senn had 15 points and Thompson nine.

Bandon coach Jordan Sammons said he was impressed by the efficiency of the press, particularly because the Tigers have had little time to practice given the busy schedule of games.

"To work on a press, you have to get after it in practice and it is hard work," he said. "It was nice seeing them learn today where they could be successful and where they could rotate to."

In addition to Saturday's game being the third in three days, it came at 9:30 in the morning after a night game in Myrtle Point on Friday.

"Our girls are hard workers," Sammons said. "They don't make excuses for themselves."

"They're skilled players and they do everything that I ask."

The Tigers improved to 7-0 in league play, well on their way to a second straight Sunset Conference title.

"We're in good shape for that, but we are looking ahead to our next game," Williams said. "Gold Beach is our next game (Monday night) and they are going to be looking to take us down."

Williams had eight points in Saturday's win.

In a 49-19 win over Myrtle Point on Friday, Kennedy Turner had 12 points, Senn 10 and Thompson nine. Maddi Reynolds had 11 for the Bobcats.

In a 66-23 win over Toledo on Thursday, Senn had 15 points, Williams 13 and Turner nine.

While Bandon is rolling, Saturday's loss was the sixth in a row for Coquille, which also lost 53-21 to Douglas on Friday and 40-24 at Gold Beach on Thursday.

Coquille coach Dan Hampton pointed out the Red Devils have a lot to look forward to.

"We are looking toward the future," he said. "We have strong junior high classes coming up and we have a lot of young kids (on the team now)."

"We do not have a senior in the program."

But with all those young players and a busy schedule, the Red Devils haven't had a chance to make a big stride this year.

"The toughest thing is we are playing five games in a seven-day stretch," Hampton said.

"We need the practice time."

Hailey Combie had 12 points for the Red Devils against Bandon and Jaylyn Rayevich had five.

"I think we will be fine," Hampton said. "We are taking some growing pains right now."

"And Bandon is just really good."

NB girls win on senior night

North Bend's girls basketball team celebrated senior night with a win over Creswell on Friday in a battle of schools with the same mascot.

The brown and gold Bulldogs beat the red and black Bulldogs 40-21 after building a 28-8 half-time lead that included Creswell not scoring in the second half.

"We played pretty solid defensively," North Bend coach Mike Forrester said.

The Bulldogs jumped out front 18-8 in the first quarter on the strength of solid outside shooting.

"Liz Mahr had a great senior night," Forrester said. "She hit two big 3-pointers in the first quarter that gave us some separation. I was happy to see Liz have such a great game tonight."

Mahr, Caitlyn Anderson and Maja Hartmann are the team's only seniors.

Anderson scored three points in the win. Trinity Barker had 16 and Adrianna Frank 10 for North Bend.

The win improved the team's record to 6-2 and came two days after a 42-24 loss to Willamette and also came in North Bend's final scheduled home game.

The Bulldogs were scheduled to face rival Marshfield at Pirate Palace on Monday (results weren't available by press time) and visit Class 6A Roseburg on Tuesday. The only other game currently scheduled is June 19 at Elmira.

Bandon boys show resilience with victories

JOHN GUNTHER
The World

BANDON — Score another one for Bandon's defense. And for resilience.

The Bandon boys basketball team held off Coquille 44-36 on Saturday morning to firm up their spot in second place in the Sunset Conference. It was the Tigers' second day in a row with a win over one of the league's better teams after a humbling loss to Toledo on Thursday that was Bandon's first defeat of the season.

"I'm proud of them for coming out after getting their butts handed to them by Toledo," Bandon coach Vince Quattrocchi said. "To come back and win back-to-back games says a lot."

Bandon's win was sparked by a defense that was active and feasted on opportunistic turnovers by getting hands in passing lanes leading to breakaway layins, while at the same time making Coquille work extra hard for quality shots.

The Tigers also beat the Red Devils to most of the loose balls and got a majority of the rebounds, even off their missed free throws (foul shooting was maybe the one thing Bandon did least well in the victory, hitting just four of 15 attempts).

"Bandon played great," Coquille coach Willy Layton said. "Those guys came to play."

"I thought we played good defense. We stopped them and then we'd make a stupid pass and give it right back to them."

One key momentum-shifting sequence came at the end of the first half. The Red Devils had the ball trailing by one and milking the clock down for a last shot that would either give them the lead or keep the deficit at a single point.

Instead, an unforced turnover gave the ball to Bandon. And then the Red Devils played great defense, but Bandon's Owen Brown threw up a shot with his off hand at the buzzer that somehow found the net and gave the Tigers a 23-20 lead at the break.

And Coquille only managed five points in the third quarter, sticking with the number 25 on the scoreboard for several minutes bridging the final two quarters.

"The third quarter we came out flat," Layton said.

Once Bandon got the lead up to double digits, Coquille wasn't able to threaten over the closing stretch.

John Gunther, The World

Bandon's Owen Brown applies tight pressure against Coquille's Jaden Sperling during Saturday's game.

The Red Devils, who were coming off a nonleague loss to Douglas a day earlier and a win at Gold Beach on Thursday, have just two league losses. But both are to the Tigers, giving Bandon a tiebreaker if they somehow end up tied.

And Coquille was set to host defending champion Toledo on Monday, with only Sunday — graduation day for senior starters Julien Temp, Jaden Sperling, Jace Haagen and Cort McKinley — separating the two big games.

Sperling and Temps helped the Red Devils to a good start Saturday, with Sperling hitting a pair of 3-pointers and Temps another as Coquille led 11-8 through one quarter.

Coquille eventually finished with eight 3-pointers in the game, but never got anything going inside against Bandon's defense (the Red Devils had just four two-point baskets).

Temps finished with 12 points and Sperling eight. McKinley and Haagen, though, combined for just nine more — two 3-pointers by McKinley in the fourth and one by Haagen in the second.

Bandon, meanwhile, did most of its damage inside, on fast-break hoops, rebound baskets or drives.

Brown had 14 points, Cooper Lang nine and Trevor Angove eight.

Angove and Brown caused the most problems for Coquille with their pressure outside.

"The key to our success in playing basketball is getting those two guys up top creating havoc and getting transition,"

Quattrocchi said.

The team's overall defense is getting better, too, he said.

Bandon showed great resilience after Toledo hammered the Tigers 65-33 on Thursday.

In that game, Angove scored 11 points and Luke Brown had seven, but Bandon couldn't keep up with the Boomers, who got 21 points from Kellen Howard, 16 from Mason McAlpine and 12 from Gunner Rothenberger.

"We couldn't handle the press very well and turned the ball over too much," Quattrocchi said. "Toledo seemed to not skip a beat defensively from last year."

But Bandon bounced back Friday against Myrtle Point, which nearly beat them earlier this year in Bandon (the Tigers had to rally from a five-point deficit in the final four minutes).

Bandon jumped out to a 25-10 lead in Myrtle Point, but the Bobcats tied the score at 30 before the Tigers finished on a 12-1 run for a 42-31 win as Angove scored 12 points and Lang 11. Gabe Swan and Carson Bradford had eight each for Myrtle Point.

Coquille, meanwhile, lost to Douglas 61-50. Temps scored 13 in that setback for the Red Devils.

In a 67-50 win at Gold Beach, Howard Blanton had 15 points, Temps 12, Haagen 10 and Hunter Layton eight.

Willy Layton kept a positive outlook.

"It's not over," he said. "We've still got games and we're still learning."

School bonds turned down

Vote 122 to 93 against the proposition Board meet to discuss the situation but no definite arrangements are made

The proposed Marshfield school bonds were voted down at the special school election held on Saturday. The vote was 93 for the bonds and 122 against them. The proposition was to bond $85,000 and with the money to buy a site opposite the high school, build a new grade school, buy a site in Ferndale for a school in the future and make some improvements to the Englewood school.

Following the election the school board held a meeting and declared the result. Then the members discussed the situation which confronts them as to what they are to do with the pupils next year. It was suggested that it would be necessary to rent some rooms somewhere else but no decision was reached as to what arrangements would be made.

Put jokers in jail with groom

Night policeman Highley has all guessing Charivari of Felix Wolff results in lot of fun and misgivings Saturday night

Saturday night, a bunch of well known Marshfield men had a lot of fun in a charivari stunt on Felix Wolff, who recently returned from his honeymoon — but before it was over they had some misgivings and perturbations.

Lafe Compton, Fred Endicott, Peter Bue, L.S. Brooks and others arranged the fun. Mr. Wolff and his bride were at the Fireman's dance, and their plans to kidnap him there were thwarted. However, they were in wait for him when he reached home at Ninth and Central and they brought him down town and put him through a parade, dishabile.

Then they called up Night Officer Highley, who took Wolff to the police station. The others went down to join him but Officer Highley grabbed the whole bunch and kept them until 4 o'clock in the morning.

State AAA track

CORVALLIS — While South Eugene was making a runaway of the state Class AAA track and field championships Saturday, Marshfield's Rich McIntosh and Tim Nix were giving a pretty good accountin of themselves.

South Eugene, in capturing its first-ever team title, rolled up an unbelievable total of 88 points — 52 of those by underclassmen.

McIntosh, meanwhile, pulled out in the final three hurdles to win the highs, then matched Sunset's Bob Palm stride for stride — although a half-step behind — to finish second in the 180 lows.

The Air Force Academy-bound Pirate senior clocked 14.26 (14.3 rounded off) for the 120 high hurdles, then was clocked at 19.94 (19.9 rounded off) for his second-place finish in the lows. Palm ran 19.8.

Nix, the two-mile favorite, became an upset victim when South Eugene sophomore Tom McChesney broke away in the seventh lap to win by 25 yards in a fine 9:17.6. Nix was second in 9:22.4, a lifetime best.

Panthers' Curtis takes AA crown in 220

Trivia Question: Now that Marty Curtis is a state champion in track and field from Gold Beach, how many years has it been since 1939 has Gold Beach produced a state champion until Curtis turned the trick Saturday in the State AA spikefest at Bell Field on the Oregon State University campus.

Curtis, a junior, roared to a 22.7 clocking to claim the furlong crown after having placed third in the 440 with a school-record clocking of 50.7.

Duo heads to Oklahoma for national debate competition

More than a year of hard work is paying off for two Marshfield High School seniors.

Blaine Barklow and Matt Lehman will travel to Oklahoma to compete in the cross examination debate at the National Forensic League Tournament, which runs through June 17 at the University of Oklahoma, near Oklahoma City.

The national competition will also be the culmination of hundreds of hours of research and practice for Barklow and Lehman on the topic of privacy and issues surrounding it.

"To be good, we spend about 10 hours a week researching and practicing," Lehman said.

The two have been in debate for their entire high school career and partners since the end of freshman year. Debate's official season begins in late September and lasts until April.

Lehman said they have six banker boxes full of information. Inside each of those boxes are seven to eight expandable file folders, filled with separate sheets of paper. On each sheet of paper, there are three index cards full of information, much of which is found in news stories and on data Web sites.

"We have about 10,000 cards," Barklow said.

Lehman said each team of two people competing in the cross examination debate has five minutes to get arguments together before the competition begins.

These stories were found in the Marshfield Sun Printing Museum newspaper repository stored in Marshfield High School courtesy of Coos Bay Schools.
