Did you know?

Did you know that dental hygiene principles were recorded a thousand years ago by a Middle Eastern doctor?

It's true! About 1100 AD the Persian physician Abulcasis wrote about plaque and tartar on teeth, how infection was transferred to the gum tissue, and recommended scraping the teeth with small tools, much like we do today.

We've come a long way! With excellent dental care from Dr. Strong, you will protect your teeth, look great, and feel even better. We're here to help!

OSU's food preservation hotline open

CORVALLIS – Is it safe to bring deviled eggs to the church picnic? How do I preserve Grandma's piccalilli relish? Do I really need to pressure-can green beans?

For answers to these and other questions about safely serving and preserving summer's food bounty, you can talk to a Master Food Preserver from Oregon State University Extension. Call toll-free 1-800-354-7319 weekdays 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The hotline opens July 10 and closes Oct. 13.

Typical hotline questions include where to get pressure-canner gauges tested, whether an old family canning recipe is still safe and what to do if your refrigerator or freezer goes out. Answers are provided by Extension-trained and certified Master Food Preservers, a volunteer-based program active in 18 Oregon counties.

Master Food Preservers is part of OSU Extension's Family and Community Health program, which provides research-based knowledge on all aspects of food, nutrition and family and community well-being.

When it comes to food safety, calling the hotline is always a better bet than randomly searching the internet, advises Nellie Oehler, an FCH faculty member and Master Food Preserver coordinator in Lane County.

"There's a lot of misinformation online," said Oehler. If you call the hotline, you'll get to talk to a real person, she said. And you can be confident that the information you're getting is current and reliable.

Last year Extension faculty, staff and volunteers fielded 2,760 phone calls, 324 Ask an Expert questions and 1,625 office walk-ins queries on food preservation.

OSU Extension also offers a wealth of online information on the topic. Extension's Ask an Expert service also takes online questions about food preservation and many other topics. Find more information about the Master Food Preserver program at Volunteer Programs.

Summer Free Lunch Program offered

BANDON – The free summer lunch program will continue in the Bandon School District this summer, and will once again be held at the district cafeteria. Longtime food service director Sharon Haga will prepare the hot meals.

The program will be held from June 19-Aug. 11, serving lunch from 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, with the exception of July 4. The district cafeteria is located at 455 Ninth St. SW. The program is open to all children ages 1-18, who can eat for free. There is no sign up sheet and no IDs required in order to get fed. Adults are welcome to eat as well, as a cost of $2.

The summer free lunch program is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

There are other food sites on the South Coast and children can eat at any one of those. Visit summerfood.org for the locations or dial 211 for more information.

Cape Blanco Living History presentations underway

CAPE BLANCO – Scenes depicting life at the Hughes House near Cape Blanco in the early 1900s are underway. Visitors to the historic home can listen in on five-minute conversations between Jane Hughes (played by Inge Licon) and members of her family, neighbors and travelers. The presentations run each Wednesday, between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. with the final presentation Aug. 30.

Jane's conversations include those with her son Edward (played by Greg Ryder) just back from a trip to bustling San Francisco, with neighbor Georgina McKenzie (a role shared by Deborah Wayne and Sonja Mason), with new daughter-in-law Annie (Ruth Barnes), with newly-ordained Father Keveny (Greg Ryder), with a young Irish immigrant Catherine Kelly (Emily Gwyn), and with Jane's young grandchildren Annie and Agnes (Jada Ryder and Lily Albiston).

Kalee Shores, understudy for several roles, will assist the new Living History coordinator Susan Russell with preparations and rehearsals. Local historian Shirley Nelson wrote most of the scripts.

All participants volunteer their time to bring these scenes to life under the auspices of Oregon State Parks and the Cape Blanco Heritage Society.

Admission to Hughes House is free. Donations to the Living History Program are welcomed.

Oregon Coast Music Festival begins with Mingus Park concert

COOS BAY - The Bay Area Concert Band will perform its annual outdoor concert at noon Saturday, July 22, in Mingus Park; this marks the opening of the Oregon Music Festival's 39th year, which the band has been a part of since its inception. Steve Simpkins will be conducting.

The array of musical offerings will include "Andante et Allegro" by J. Ed. Barat, a challenging trombone solo featuring Don Walden. Currently Walden is the conductor of Southwestern Oregon Community Orchestra.

A rather unusual arrangement, "Mazama" by Jay Chattaway, will have the band vocalizing Native American Chants, as well as the effects of Native Flutes with multiple percussion instruments being played. "Mazama" is the Legend of the Pacific Northwest.

Another showcase, Satchmo!, a tribute to Louis Armstrong arranged by Ted Ricketts. The medley will include; "What a Wonderful World," "When the Saints Go Marching In," "St. Louis Blues" and "Hello, Dolly!" Wilbur Jensen will be in the spotlight on this one; rather fitting as he performed with Louis Armstrong on two separate occasions.

Rounding out the performance, tunes from "The Little Mermaid" by Alan Menken as well as traditional marches.

Bring your friends and families and a picnic lunch to enjoy this presentation. This concert is free, but donations appreciated.

The festival will continue at Marshfield High School Auditorium with OCMA's festival orchestra on Tuesday, July 25; Thursday, July 27; and Saturday, July 29. All performances will begin at 7:30 p.m.
