North Bend Mayor talks reelection, looks for fourth term

By NATE SCHWARTZ
World Editor

North Bend Mayor Jessica Engelke recently announced a fourth run for the position she's held since 2020, when she became the first female mayor in the city's history. Despite a long period away after graduating from North Bend High School, Engelke returned to her home town for what was supposed to be a sabbatical to care for ailing family.

"Look at me, I start to get tears in my eyes," said Engelke. "I was born and raised here, graduated from the local high school... I came back in 2010, my dad got sick."

Shortly before passing from pancreatic cancer, Jim "Bear Claw" Engelke asked his daughter "what are you going to do?". He'd also graduated from North Bend High, raised two daughters, served in Vietnam, and supported local unions wearing many hats in the local construction and trucking industry. His obituary was printed here in the world in August of 2010.

"I can't think of a better place to raise kids," said Engelke, recalling some of the final wisdom her father imparted on her. "And he was right. My daughter was ready to start kindergarten. So, I got her enrolled in Hillcrest that fall. All these things fell in place. I was able to get a teaching job at the college, and before I knew it, I found myself involved with the chamber of commerce."

Engelke recalled her time growing up, remembering herself as someone who was always interested in community development. She brought up memories of starting her school's political action club, and her time on the 1990 July Jubilee Court, a role she now helps foster every year as Mayor.

Engelke spent seven years on the board of the Bay Area Chamber of Commerce, acting as president for a period. She felt it was important to walk the walk for her students at Southwest Oregon Community College, where she still teaches courses in business management and administration. This eventually led to a run for the North Bend City Council, amid encouragement from folks at the chamber and college.

"2018 was a turning point for women, especially at the local government level. We saw a huge surge," said Engelke. "There had been female representation over the years, but very little... I wanted to be a good example for my daughters, I wanted to be a good example for my students."

In that eight-year period, North Bend has seen a lot of change, sometimes incremental

Juneteenth and Beyond, a conversation with the South Coast Health Equity Coalition

By NATE SCHWARTZ
World Editor

The South Coast Health Equity Coalition (SCHEC) is in the midst of organizing their annual Juneteenth events up and down the South Coast. On June 19, the federal holiday marks the day that the last slaves were emancipated in Galveston, TX, two and a half years after Lincoln's emancipation proclamation. While it has been celebrated since the 1860's, starting in the south with community gatherings organized through Texas churches, it was first recognized as a federal holiday in 2021.

Juneteenth in Oregon dates back to 1945, was officially recognized in Portland in 1972, then statewide in 2013. While it is in many ways a celebration of emancipation, resilience, and black culture, the holiday also serves as a sobering acknowledgement. A reckoning with or collective history, the long road down which we've come, and the progress that still lies ahead of us.

As part of their core mission, the SCHEC aims to continue that progress through a community focused lens.

"The mission here is to be a space where community see themselves not only reflected in leadership, but in programs," said Jayden Ruff, executive director. "Community members, community partners, wanted to start looking at their own systems. They wanted to start asking, 'what is our part of this work?'"

The coalition first started activity in 2019, and through funding from the Oregon Health Authority has been able to build that sense of community, offer services that reflect local needs, and establish third spaces for marginalized groups to feel at home and at rest. They are one of ten health equity coalitions in the state of Oregon, which each look different based on the needs of their community.

"What our community calls on us to do is prioritize what a practice of community engagement actually looks like. Where community members are prioritized, where they're listened to, where they're wrapped around, they're seen. While also having visibility and representation in their communities," said Ruff.

Between their two community centers, one in North Bend and one in Brookings, the SCHEC provides a catered approach to service and a sense of belonging.

In Coos, that comes in the form of supporting Marshfield High's Black Student Union, or Soul Food Sunday programs that provide a black-led space open to anyone in the community.

"We do everything from barbecues, to fermentation workshops. We did tide pooling last Saturday," explained Ruff. "It just a moment where community can catch their breath. Here at the Equity Coalition, we prioritize a trauma-informed approach.

Which means, you walk through those doors you are able to take a breath. We're going to feed you; you have soft spaces..."

"Oftentimes when we think about stressors, we know that rest sometimes feels like a privilege. We wanted to make sure that community members and community partners understood that we are led by the people we wrap around, and this is how the community has asked us to be centered," said Ruff.

Merkley, Wyden press for National Park Service dollars

Oregon's U.S. Senators Jeff Merkley and Ron Wyden joined their Senate colleagues in pressing the Trump Administration on its redirection of tens of millions of dollars from fees paid to the National Park Service (NPS) to fund President Donald Trump's vanity projects in Washington, D.C.

"Visitors to our national parks contribute millions of dollars to the National Park Service's (NPS) budget by purchasing recreation passes and digital versions of the America the Beautiful Pass.

The American people deserve transparency and a complete explanation of where their money is being directed," the Senators wrote in a letter to Secretary of the U.S. Department of the Interior Doug Burgum.

Some of the projects being funded by park entrance fees in the D.C. area include repairing ornamental fountains, recoating the Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool, and covering statues in gold leaf.

"This loss in revenue for our parks could have devastating effects on the future viability of these public natural treasures. As of the end of Fiscal Year 2025, NPS had a backlog of deferred maintenance projects totaling over $24.2 billion. Deteriorating roads, water systems, and other park facilities pose safety concerns for visitors and over time degrade the overall park experience. The redistribution of revenues to D.C. projects could mean multiple millions of dollars lost for individual national parks around the country," the Senators wrote.

Merkley

Under the Federal Lands Recreation Enhancement Act (FLREA), 80 percent of the recreation fees paid are kept for maintenance and upkeep at the national park where the fees were collected and 20 percent can be used for other purposes by the agency. However, the allocation of this amount of park fee revenue funding to support projects for the President's personal enjoyment is unprecedented.

Additionally, the Senators emphasize that the redirecting of this money comes amidst the Administration's drastic budget cuts to the agency and workforce reduction.

"The lack of transparency around awards for these beautification projects, as well as the loss in revenue meant for the maintenance and betterment of our national parks threatens the public's trust and the long-term integrity of our nation's most beloved public lands. Accordingly, as we investigate the potential waste, fraud, and abuse by the administration, we request a detailed explanation for where the revenue from digital passes is being directed and what percentage of this revenue is supporting the D.C. projects rather than supporting the maintenance of our public parks," the Senators concluded.

The letter was led by U.S. Senator Adam Schiff (D-Calif.). In addition to Merkley and Wyden, the letter is signed by U.S. Senators Martin Heinrich (D-N.M.), Michael Bennet (D-Colo.), Kirsten Gillibrand (D-N.Y.), John Hickenlooper (D-Colo.), Angus King (I-Maine), Ben Ray Lujan (D-N.M.), Edward Markey (D-Mass.), and Jack Reed (D-R.I.).

Holy Cow! History

The President's Cufflink Is Missing

By J. Mark Powell

Much has been written about the peculiarly disturbing strain of political assassinations in American history. From Lincoln and Garfield to McKinley and Kennedy, it's a sad and bloody path.

There are also the near misses. Since the first recorded assassination attempt on Andrew Jackson in 1835, there has been a string of close calls, including Harry Truman in 1950, Gerald Ford twice in 1975, and Ronald Reagan in 1981. Two ex-presidents were shot while running to reclaim their old job — Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 and Donald Trump in 2024 — and Franklin Roosevelt was inches away from a would-be assassin's bullet as president-elect in 1933.

Of the 45 men who've served as president, 11 — almost one in four — were targeted. It is, quite literally, a high-risk job.

Compare that to our cousins across the pond. Robert Walpole is generally considered Great Britain's first prime minister, taking office in 1721. Of the 57 men and women who followed him over the next 305 years, one — and only one — was assassinated.

You won't find his face a lawyer, studying hard and working his way up from the bottom. His lowly prospects even put a crimp in his love life. He and his older brother Charles fell in love with two sisters. But big brother had inherited the title of lord, a seat in Parliament and the bulk of daddy's estate. The girls' father eagerly approved of that match. However, as for the poor younger brother and his other daughter: no dice. So, they eloped. And to the father-in-law's utter astonishment, they apparently lived happily ever after.

It took time, but Perceval's law practice prospered. A career in politics followed. He paid his dues and rose through the Tory ranks, becoming chancellor of the Exchequer — Britain's version of treasury secretary — in 1807.

In a twist of fate, it was this job that would lead to his violent demise.

He finally got his nation's top job in 1809 at age 46. He'd come a long way since the days when his lowly station prevented a father from granting his consent to marry.

A small, thin, pale man always dressed in black, his rivals sneeringly called him "Little P" behind his back. He was the last prime minister to wear the powdered wig with ponytail

Letter to the Editor

Department of War

Words matter, that's why we speak them, that's why they sometimes get printed. This administration has been making a lot of changes to different things within our government. Whether it's trying to rename buildings and centers for the current president, or changing the names of agencies to get rid of what people call woke culture.

One of the departments that has been renamed by the executive branch, yet to be renamed by the Congress, which is required by law, is the Department of Defense. Pete Hegseth wants it to be called the Department of War, he wants to be the Secretary of War. Maybe we should let him. For decades now we have been calling it the defense department, and being the Department of Defense it always made sense to continue to throw money at it.

Defense is practical. Defense says we are preparing in case something bad happens. Defense says we're not going out of our way to cause problems, nor playing world cop. Because all of these make sense, we dedicate a third of our productivity in the form of money towards our defense. That is a lot of money folks.

Maybe if we do rename it the Department of War, then we will only throw as much money as we need at it when we are actually at war. Perhaps we could be saving billions, correction based on recent proposals, trillions of dollars from our annual budget if we decided not to continue over-funding for the cause of war. If we call it the Department of War, then from time to time we're gonna actually have to ask ourselves: Are we at war and why?

Conservatives are always trying to find ways to save money. If we are lucky, this could be a way they stumbled into it.

Request for Ballot Title Election Date:

November 3, 2026 Governing Body Referring Measure: City of Reedsport Title, Number, or other Identifier: Reedsport Psilocybin Ban Ballot Title Caption: Bans the establishment of psilocybin related businesses Question: Should electors ban the establishment of psilocybin related businesses within the City of Reedsport? Summary: Reedsport voters enacted a temporary two year ban on psilocybin related businesses in November 2022. In November of 2024, Reedsport passed Ordinance 2024 1215 to permanently ban psilocybin related businesses in the city. Oregon state law ORS 475A.718 provides that a city council may adopt an ordinance to be referred to the electors of the city prohibiting the establishment of state licensed psilocybin product manufacturers and/or psilocybin service centers in the city at the next regularly scheduled general election. The City Council believes that a permanent ban on psilocybin product manufacturers and psilocybin service centers within the city's jurisdictional boundaries is needed in order to protect the health, safety and welfare of its citizens. A "Yes" vote will establish a ban on the establishment of psilocybin related businesses within Reedsport. A "No" vote will allow the establishment of psilocybin related businesses to operate within Reedsport. Authorized Official: Rhonda Bryan, City Recorder/Elections Official. Juneteenth

In Curry County, SCHEC’s “Comunidad Curry” program came about when they noticed members of the Latinx community were not using their services. When a listening session, expected to be a 15-or-so person affair, was attended by over 70 people, it blossomed into a Spanish language-led space for folks to engage in community six days a week. That doesn’t mean that you aren’t invited if you can’t speak Spanish, it’s just a space for those who do to feel comfortable and safe in.

The Juneteenth celebrations are just another vehicle through which to foster that sense of community, for the South Coast’s people of color and beyond. While in Coos Bay, that takes the form of a group art project and revelatory block party, it also invites reflection.

Coos Bay has its own past to reckon with. The only documented lynching in Oregon’s history happened here when Alonzo Tucker, a boxer and business owner, was shot and hung from the 7th Street Marshfield Bridge in 1902, by a mob of over 300. He had been accused of sexually assaulting a white woman, and was hunted after leaving the jail the following day.

In 2020, Tucker was honored by the Oregon Remembrance Project and a historical marker was placed at the Coos History Museum in 2021. Though in the wake of the events, many black families fled the area, never to return. While emancipation from slavery was a landmark moment in history, there are still so many questions about life in America for a multitude of marginalized groups.

“What does my own liberation look like? What does my own joy look like?” asked Ruff. “Liberation is often thrown out there, but we never create the space to say what does that actually mean to me? What does it look like for me having that as a practice?”

The legacy of racism in America does not start and end with slavery. Juneteenth is an opportunity to give thought to those questions. Is it liberation when societal and institutional systems of oppression still exist, like those in the realm of healthcare?

“People would say what’s the point of a coalition like this? I have to think, what would the community look like if we didn’t exist. If there wasn’t this space where communities of color, historically and institutionally under-resourced communities, if they did not have organizations like ours doing the work we’re doing,” said Ruff.

“When we first started Soul Food Sundays, there were no black-led spaces here. There wasn’t a space where our black community could go and openly talk about the things that are impacting their everyday life. Because it wasn’t just health systems, it’s ‘here’s what I’m feeling like walking into the grocery store’. We have a unique position to not only stand in solidarity, but so much deeper than that.”

Those interested in helping the SCHEC’s cause are encouraged to attend their events, volunteer, and be willing to both ask questions and listen. A great place to start is the Community Block Party at Black Market Gourmet in Coos Bay. From 3:00 to 5:30 PM on Saturday, June 20, come eat, dance, and be merry among community.

but constant. Downtown has been in a continual state of revitalization. The city's most recent efforts will see a pocket park and stage installed right along Highway 101, by the North Bend Visitors Center. Around the corner, the city secured a $4 million federal grant to turn the former hospital and county annex into workforce housing. "I'll never forget going to our old City Manager, Terrance O'Connor, when the annex went up for sale. I said 'We need to buy that, let's ask the county if we can have it for $1'. Because that's how much the county got it for from Bay Area Hospital in, I want to say, 1973," said Engelke. "We didn't get the dollar deal, but the Urban Renewal Agency was able to negotiate a deal for about $150,000. I knew that was going to be a game changer for North Bend." While progress on that project, and generally in the slow-moving apparatus of government, hasn't come at the pace Engelke had grown accustomed to in the private sector, the 70-100 or so units will be a huge influx for the main street area. One that businesses are looking forward to. Right on the corner of Sherman and Virginia, where the 101 passes through town, sits the old American Home Furnishings building which is finally up for sale after a long dormant period. That building has the chance to be a flagship business for main street North Bend. That kind of development will need to continue, with cities and counties across the state struggling to keep up financially. Engelke saw those wide spread challenges first hand while serving as president for the League of Oregon Cities last year. She lamented the budget crunch that Measures 5 and 50 have put on smaller towns. The measures limit the amount of property tax that cities can levy. "[Majors 5 and 50] have decimated counties and cities," exclaimed Engelke. "No matter where we went. We could be in Gresham, we could be in Portland, or we could be in Fossil, Oregon. We all have the same issues, right. Housing, maybe some land use issues, homelessness, crime. It's just on a different scale." Engelke spoke to the outsized impact that a small contingent of transients can have on a town that lacks the resources to accommodate them. A dozen or two unhooded does not have the same effect in Portland as it does on a small coastal town. "It puts a stress on the limited resources we have in the city," said Engelke. "We're not that different than most cities... about two thirds of all Oregon cities are about to face a financial cliff. It was going to come sooner but some of the ARPA money has stalled that." It's thanks to funding packages, grants, and levers like the transient lodging tax that developments like the pocket park can continue. That particular project is happening thanks to a large grant from T-Mobile, not because of property taxes. "We've been able to do all the things we are doing because we have a pretty incredible staff. Every single one of them have become excellent grant writers, and it's the only way we've been able to do some of these things," said Engelke, praising the folks at City Hall. Effecting those larger changes at the state-wide level is not something Engelke was willing to rule out, though a run for a State Representative or Senator's office is not in the cards for the immediate future. "I think I would have something to offer if I ever did go down that road, so at this point I don't want to rule anything out, but right now the focus is on North Bend," said Engelke, reticent to enter the partisan political game. "I like my role being non-partisan. I want what's best for North Bend and Coos County. That would be one of the hardest things, is to try to decide where do I belong. I'm not sure where that is." The most recent ballot saw two measures for North Bend, one successful, one not. An increase to the public safety fee, which passed with slim margins, was an interesting win for the city and its police and fire departments. Most fee or tax increases have not been a popular ask in the economic climate. Updates to the city charter did not have the same fate at the polls. Engelke mentioned that grouping all of the changes together may have been a mistake, as feedback suggested that voters were okay with some updates, while wary of others. The construction of the review committee for the charter was different than the previous back in 2000, where the committee numbered in the teens and encompassed a wider berth of the community. Engelke didn't see that as an issue this go-around. "I feel really good about the committee we had, and the people that were involved," said Engelke. "The people are the ones who are ultimately going to decide, so I think we can look at some different potential options, but I don't think there were any issues with how the charter committee was constructed." One other point of discussion was on the North Bend public pool facility. Funding measures to maintain the pool are reaching their end and the need for another levy may be on the horizon if it is to remain open.

The Garden Bug
Urushiol oil
Poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac are all species within the genus Toxicodendron, which means "poison tree." These types of plants are native to the United States and are found in every state. They all contain an oily resin called urushiol, that protects the plant from fungal, bacterial and viral attacks. If urushiol touches your skin, it binds to proteins in your skin cells and can cause redness, itching, swelling and blisters. — Brenda Weaver

COMMENTARY

It's time for the 2026 Summer Reading Program at Coos Bay Library

By Jenny Brownfield and Emily Church

Another school year has come and gone, which means it's our favorite time of year at the library—the Summer Reading Program (SRP)! Our Youth Services Librarians have been hard at work for months lining up great performances, fun activities, and fabulous prizes to go with this year's theme: Plant a Seed, Read! So if you're scratching your head over your summer schedule, read on for a sneak peek of some of the FREE entertainment we're providing for this year's festivities.

Participants of this year's SRP will earn Monopoly-style Coos Bay Public Library (CBPL) "Dollars" by reading and listening to books or completing activities. As players build their fictional fortune, they can decide to cash in their dollars or save up for a big-ticket prize. Smaller prizes include items such as pencils and erasers, while larger prizes like a summer reading T-shirt can be earned by completing reading and activity goals over time. This is a great way for kids to learn how to manage their "money" and plan ahead to save enough for their favorite prizes.

This year's SRP will officially kick off with an all-ages Block Party from 4:00pm – 6:00pm on Thursday, June 18. Join us in the library's back parking lot for an evening of FREE food, games, crafts, books, and fun! Bring the whole family (or just yourself) to this event for a chance to interact with community partners and learn about the opportunities and programs on offer in your area. Enjoy a start to summer fun and pick up a SRP game piece to start earning your CPBL dollars!

Earlier that week on Tuesday, June 16, the Rainbow Dance Theater from Western Oregon University is bringing Code Can Dance to CBPL for two youth workshops and an evening performance open to the public. This unforgettable experience combines coding, dance, music, animation, and technology to create a showpiece using programmable LED costumes that light up and respond dynamically to movement. Using the Avatar Coder app, participants will create an animated dance sequence, visual effects, and interactive scenes while learning real computer science concepts such as sequencing, loops, variables, events, and problem solving. Students don't just learn coding—they perform it! Young people in grades 3-6 are invited to sign up for the 2:30pm – 3:20pm class, while those in grades 7-12 are encouraged to sign up for a more advanced class from 3:30pm–4:20pm. Teens glide across the dance floor showing off their shoulder pads and mullets when the sound of a scream brings the skaters to a screeching halt. Upon investigating, our skaters find the body of Kevin Floosey, the new kid in town, strangled to death with a leg warmer. If you think you have what it takes to find the killer (and are from ages 12-18), don your hottest 80's fashion and join us for an evening of pizza and intrigue.

HOLY COW

and knee breeches that had been fashionable in the 18th century. And while he may have been a lackluster public figure, Perceval was an able administrator.

He was such a non-entity that he might have been lost to history entirely if he hadn't decided to attend a routine meeting in the House of Commons. It was 5:15 p.m. on Monday, May 11, 1812. An unhinged man was waiting in the lobby.

John Bellingham felt he'd been wronged. A businessman working in Russia, he'd spent a year in prison there and believed — incorrectly — that the Crown owed him compensation for his time behind bars. His request had been denied when Perceval was handling the empire's purse strings. He got his revenge that spring evening.

Bellingham approached the prime minister and shot him in the heart.

Perceval muttered "murdered" and then "Oh my God" before collapsing. Carried to a nearby room, he was placed on a table.

When a doctor arrived seven minutes later, he was already dead.

Bellingham sat calmly on a bench awaiting apprehension. He was tried, found guilty and hanged within one week. His body was given to medical students for dissection.

It was soon found that, despite his high position, Perceval was flat broke. He left only 100 pounds for his widow and 12 children. Parliament swiftly awarded them all pensions.

Perceval was buried with great pomp and ceremony — and then promptly forgotten. Unlike the murders of Lincoln and Kennedy, which live on in America's legacy to this day, Perceval's untimely passing became barely a footnote in England's long and fanciful history.

SWOCC finishes second at national swim meet

The men's and women's swim teams from Southwestern Oregon Community College each placed second in the NJCAA championships earlier this year and the Lakers had one national champion.

Host Indian River State of Florida dominated the meet, just as the school has for several decades.

In the men's team race, Indian River

State had 1,255 points and SWOCC had 802. Iowa Western Community College, which was third, had 593. In all, 11 teams competed in the event.

SWOCC's women scored 675 points, trailing Indian River State's 1,291. The Lakers were almost 160 points ahead of third-place Iowa Western Community College.

SWOCC's champion was Yuta Kosaka, who won the 400-yard individual medley with a time of 3:53.84.

Kosaka also was second in the 200 butterfly and the 200 breaststroke.

Other Lakers finishing second were Bradley McKenzie in the 50 breaststroke and 100 breaststroke and Victor Dryhaug in the 100 butterfly and 100 individual medley. Gustaf Stokholm was third in the 100 IM and Luis de Vita was third in the 100 breaststroke.

For the women, Andy Garca Jimenez was second in the 100 breaststroke and 200 breaststroke and Cami Tovar was second in the 200 freestyle. Allison Wright was third in the 100 butterfly and 200 butterfly and Tovar was third in the 500 freestyle.

The Lakers were second behind Indian River State in all the relays. Members of the men's team on relay squads included Kosaka, McKenzie, Dryhaug, Stokholm, de Vita, Vasco Asparria, Kody Mathill, Juan Garca Flores and Jack Roberts.

The various women's relays included Wright, Jimenez, Tovar, Isabella Ludvigsen, Nicole Angelova and CC Baurer.

Top-eight national placers for the Lakers during the four-day meet are listed online at www.worldlink.com.

As I See It

By Mary Schamehorn

The thing that really stands out in the first picture, taken in the early 1940s of downtown Bandon, is the number of piling left standing along the waterfront, representing buildings that were lost in the 1936 Bandon Fire.

One of the buildings in the photo survived the fire, which was the Stephen Hotel/bakery in the middle of the photo, which today is Cranberry Sweets. The other buildings were constructed after the fire, including the Bandon Theatre, the Richfield station next to the theater, the small building across the street, Panter Feed Store (top left), now The Big Wheel, and top right is the building that now houses The Wheelhouse/Crow's Nest. The theater property is now vacant, and the Richfield station property is the site of the Harbor Town Event Center building (Bandon Coffee Cafe, Broken

Anyone who went to Ocean Crest Elementary School in the '50s and '60s (and maybe later) will remember the head cook, Ruthie Kimball, (third photo) who was known for kissing a student on his or her birthday. In September of 1993, she was photographed by me in her Baltimore Avenue home with some of her oil paintings, which won many awards at the county fair and graced Bandon homes, including mine.

Old Town, David Kehl, had been arrested recently for criminal trespass and was taken to jail to be booked. As of late last week, he remained on the streets of Coquille, ple regardless of whether they are within audible range of a siren.

I've learned of three local residents who have passed away in recent weeks. Larry Caldwell, who had worked as a meat cutter at McKay's Markets in both Bandon and Myrtle Point for many years, died May 29 of natural causes at the age of 86. He served as head volleyball coach at Bandon High School for some years and was well known in the community. Among his survivors are his wife Linda; three children, Bill and Joann, Nikki (Dan) and Kim (Nova). Jody passed away earlier. Bill Caldwell is CEO of McKay's Markets.

Arlene Moore Hunnicutt Wilson died recently at the age of 74. She was a graduate of Bandon High School with the Class of 1969, and was active in the local VFW Auxiliary for many years. Another long-time resident of Bandon who died recently was Kaye Kingsbury, who was 80 years old. She is survived by her husband Steve and a daughter.

Two new school board members are expected to be appointed at the June school board meeting Monday, June 8, at 4 p.m. in the Ocean Crest gym.

Applying for the vacancies, which occurred with the resignations of Briana Hutchens and Angela Cardas, are Dave Reed, Amber Berg and Doug McKenzie. Reed, a planning consultant with a master's degree in architecture, owns Wayward R Studio; Berg, a substitute teacher, manages the Community Center/Barn for the City, and McKenzie moved to Bandon a year and a half ago from Medford. He has spent 43 years in the field of education as a teacher, coach, administrator, superintendent, principal at all levels and director of special education.

At the meeting, the board will accept the resignation of BHS Principal Sam Dockery and his wife, Daisy, an ELL teacher. They will also hire Amanda Carlton as a HLMS science teacher.

In earlier action, on June 5 the board placed superintendent Shauna Schmerer on paid administrative leave for the duration of a third-party investigation that is underway. Schmerer submitted her resignation in May, with her contract to end June 30. The board also voted to designate Sabrina Belletti Smith as the acting superintendent.

I was invited by my friend Deb Kelley to attend a musical "The Three Trees on The Hill," presented Friday morning by students of the Grace Christian Tutoring School at Seabird Chapel, pastored by Jim Minkler.

The performance included more than 25 students of all ages from pre-kindergarten through high school, with the little ones particularly tugging at the heart-strings of the audience. After the musical, gifts were given to the many volunteers who assist with the school, followed by refreshments and fun activities.

I left a little early to get to the Rotary meeting where we heard a great presentation by Miss Coos County Brinkley Webb on MENopause, which is her platform. A resident of Bandon, she will be entering the Miss Oregon Contest later this month in Seaside, and hopefully she will make Bandon proud as she is beautiful and has a very compelling message. Brinkley was accompanied by her mother Michelle Winters Webb,

Betty Ruth (Major) Ekblad

February 5, 1941 – May 9, 2026

Betty Ruth (Major) Ekblad, born February 5, 1941, passed away peacefully at her home on May 9, 2026, with her grandson Carter by her side.

Betty was the beloved wife of Richard Nels Ekblad, whom she married in June of 1959 after graduating from Marshfield High School in Coos Bay that same year. Their marriage was a lasting testament to love and partnership until Richard's passing in 2015, when Betty remained devotedly by his side.

Betty lived a full and vibrant life centered around family, community, and creativity. She was an active member of her community, contributing through the PTA, volunteering, and sharing her talents as a 4-H cooking teacher. Her many gifts included painting, floral design, gardening, sewing and catering—but above all, she was an extraordinary cook. Betty had a way of bringing warmth and light into any kitchen, creating not just meals but memories.

In 2010, Betty and Richard moved from Coos Bay to Eugene to be closer to their growing family. They also cherished their winters spent in Yuma, Arizona with their beloved dog, Duffy—times filled with sunshine, laughter, and companionship.

Betty is survived by her daughters, Kathy and Donna; her grandchildren, Carter & Shelbi and Olivia & Sam; and her great grandchildren Paige, Blake, Elaina and Elliott. To her grandchildren, she was simply "Nan"—the heart of every gathering and the life of every party. She spent countless hours on the phone with them, as well as coloring, painting, sewing, and cooking by their side. Her love was present in every moment she shared.

Known for her kindness, strength, optimism, and endless love, Betty was truly one of a kind. She was a guiding light to all who knew her, and her presence made the world warmer and brighter.

In her final weeks, Betty was surrounded by love and was able to say her goodbyes to family and friends. Her grandson Carter lovingly cared for her full time during this period, ensuring she was never alone.

In accordance with her wishes, no formal services will be held. Betty will be laid to rest at Sunset Memorial Park in Coos Bay, Oregon, beside her husband Richard, her son Robert, and many cherished family members.

From all who knew her: Thank you, Nan, for being our light. We love you with all our hearts.

Give our love to Pop, Duffy, and Bobby.

Who loves you, baby!!!!!!

Ellen May "Fairy" (Hines) Lovell

November 22, 1934 – January 18, 2026

Ellen May "Fairy" (Hines) Lovell was born November 22, 1934 in Marshfield (Coos Bay) and passed from this life January 18, 2026. A gathering of remembrance will be held for her on Saturday June 27 from 11:00am to 1:00pm at the Lovell home. Family and friends are invited to come and share their stories and enjoy some good food. She was preceded in death by her parents, Virgil Edward "Buck" Hines, Beatrice Ellen (McGriff) Hines and step-mother, Hazel Hines.

Ellen was born with white hair and a fair complexion, like a fairy, by which she was known for her entire life. She also had cousins named Jerry and Terry, which rhymes with Fairy and both stories were told. When Fairy was 11 her mother passed away, and then she primarily lived with her grandmother, Effie McGriff, who helped raise her and who she loved deeply.

Fairy married Nova D. Lovell August 8, 1952 in North Bend, Oregon and they were married for 73 years. They had three children, Catherine Foran (Joe), Ronald Lovell (Judy), Linda Conn (Darrell), Seven grandchildren, Laura, Scott, Carly, Bentley, Mallory, Nicholas, Stephanie, fifteen great-grandchildren and two great great-grandchildren. Nova and Fairy also welcomed brother and sister foster children into their home for several years as well.

Fairy was a Coos Bay elementary school librarian for almost 30 years. She loved teaching students to cherish and enjoy books. Her children and grandchildren were raised knowing that books contained the wonders of the world.

She was a dedicated genealogist compiling many family albums of both her and Nova's families. What a treasure for us to have this lasting gift, which couldn't have been completed now without her knowledge.

She was a lifelong member of the Coos Bay

Methodist Church, now known as Harmony United Methodist Church, where she served in many roles and raised her children in the church. She taught Sunday School, helped with church dinners and many other activities. She and Nova spent countless hours compiling pictures and stories of the church and their members in dozens of albums, preserving history that would otherwise have been lost.

She was a 4-H leader and supported her children in all their hobbies and interests. Fairy enjoyed camping trips with family and friends and traveled often to Mexico, where she and Nova celebrated their 50th anniversary. Her home was a certified wild-life sanctuary, with Koi ponds, orchards, flowers, berries and gardens. She loved watching her grandchildren play in the 100 Acre Woods searching for presents left by Pooh Bear. She was a talented Tole painter and made many gifts that are still enjoyed to this day.

Monte Rutherford

August 21, 1947 – June 4, 2026

With profound sadness yet boundless gratitude for a life beautifully lived, we announce the passing of Monte Rutherford after a brave fight with cancer. Surrounded by his beloved family, Monte left this world the same way he lived in it: with quiet strength, deep love, and an unshakable sense of duty.

Born in Shreveport, Louisiana on August 21, 1947, Monte moved with his family to Santa Barbara at age fifteen. He graduated from San Marcos High School in 1965 and soon began what would become an extraordinary sixty year career with GTE (later Verizon, and ATCO). From Central Office Technician and Cable Splicer to Construction Supervisor, Forecast Analyst, OSP Planner, and Engineer, Monte's Knowledge, work ethic, and calm leadership made him a well-respected leader. In six decades, he never took a sick day. He watched an industry transform from copper wire to fiber optics and beyond, always adapting, always reliable, always respected.

In 1970 Monte married Heidi. Fifty-six years later their bond remained as tender as the day they said, "I do." Together they built a home filled with laughter, mutual respect, and later a friendship that lasted for the rest of his life.

Above all, Monte was a father and mentor in the truest sense. To his sons Wyatt and Adam, he gave more than guidance; he gave an example. He taught them integrity when no one was watching, the dignity of hard work, and the quiet courage to stand tall when life isn't always fair. His lessons were never loud, but they echo loudly in the men his boys became.

Monte was preceded in death by his parents, Norman and Mary Rutherford; and his beloved grandson, Dylan Rutherford.

Monte is survived by the family he cherished beyond measure; sons, Wyatt Rutherford of Coos Bay and Adam Rutherford of Bend; grandchildren, Ashley Mauer and Megan Rutherford (children of Wyatt), Karisa Rutherford, Ashley White and Ryan Rutherford (children of Adam); great-grandson, Tristen (son of Karisa); Heidi Goodgame; and several special young women who held a big piece of his heart, Morgan Sugar-Butter of Bend, Nichole Rutherford of Coos Bay, Rachele and Lily Casey of Coos Bay.

A man of few words but infinite heart, Monte leaves behind a legacy measured not in years but in the lives he touched. He showed us that a good life well lived is one rooted in love, loyalty, and showing up, every single day, for the people who matter most. Rest easy, Dad. We'll always remember and love you.

Friends and family are encouraged to sign the online guestbook at www.coosbayareafunerals.com and www.theworldlink.com. Arrangements are under the care of North Bend Chapel, 541-756-0440.
