Audubon Society to meet April 7

BANDON - The Cape Arago Audubon Society and the South Slough National Estuarine Research Reserve are co-sponsoring a free, public presentation by Brian Myers at 10 a.m. on Saturday, April 7, at the South Slough Interpretive Center.

Birders in south Coos County have concluded that it is very hard to tell the difference between Allen and Rufous hummingbirds and further that most of the birds they are seeing are hybrids. Myers has been studying the hybrids in the area for several years. In his talk, Myers will discuss the hybrid zone.

Hybrid zones have received significant attention in biology, although few studies have investigated how behavioral traits vary across these regions of interaction. Data suggests the center of the hybrid zone spans along the coast from Bandon to Port Orford, and several miles inland. Along the coast, the contact zone extends north into the range of Rufous hummingbird (as far north as Florence), and south into the range of Allen's Hummingbird (as far south as Arcata, Calif.)
