Man dies after getting lost while searching for mushrooms

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The World

A 77-year-old man who disappeared while looking for mushrooms with his family was found dead late Tuesday night.

Capt. Gabriel Fabrizio said Jesse Valle was found about 500 meters from where he was last seen. Search and rescue officers located Valle around 11:30 p.m. Tuesday in the woods outside Myrtle Point.

Fabrizio said Valle likely died from exposure. He was found in between two logs, and investigators believe he laid down between the logs in an attempt to get out of the wind and rain the night he disappeared.

Fabrizio said Valle was an experienced mushroomer, who went out Tuesday with friends to look for mushrooms. While out near Weaver Ridge Road area outside of Myrtle Point, Valle reportedly walked off on his own to check an area for mushrooms, but did not return. His friends searched for Valle for hours before contacting authorities for assistance.

The Coos County Sheriff's Office quickly responded to the scene and received assistance from the Douglas County Sheriff's Office, U.S. Coast Guard and friends and family of Valle.

The first responders searched in the rainy and windy conditions late into the night before Valle's body was located.

"We would like to remind anyone going into the woods to please use a GPS if able, as well as to bring equipment for warmth and sustenance," Fabrizio said. "It's easy to get turned around, so please make sure someone knows where you are going. If you find yourself lost, please shelter in place and listen for searchers."

Fabrizio said there was no reason to suspect foul play in Valle's death.

Rick Stillwagon keeps a close eye on rum as it comes out of the distillery at the brewery he built and operates in Charleston.

Stillwagon Distillery stands alone in the crowd

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The World

Rick Stillwagon never dreamed of owning a distillery and making his own liquor. But a lifetime of working with his hands put him in a position to try, and it turns out he loves it.

Now the owner of Stillwagon Distillery in Charleston, Still-wagon is known for making some of the best rums, whiskeys and gins in the region, but it was almost by accident.

A self-professed "tinkerer," Stillwagon has always loved working with his hands. After retiring from a career making cabinets and other wood items, Stillwagon continued to tinker at his Charleston home.

What started as a way to filter water better for his fish turned into an quadraphonics project that needed a distillery. Stillwagon found out making the project would require a state license, and the license cost the same amount as getting a license to make liquor. So why not?

With a license in hand, Stillwagon began tinkering with alcohol and learned not only was he good at it, but he enjoyed it, too.

"I don't drink that much, so this was a whole new world to me," Stillwagon said. "The reason I got into this was essentially water conservation, water recycling. I knew 20 years ago water was going to be critical."

After serving many years in the U.S. Army, including four tours in war zones, and the last eight year with the Coos County Sheriff's Office, Gabriel Fabrizio has announced he is running for sheriff in 2022.

Fabrizio announces run for sheriff

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The World

Gabriel Fabrizio has served his community his whole adult life, first in the U.S. Army and for the last eight years as a member of the Coos County Sheriff's Office. Recently, Fabrizio announced he hopes to continue that service in a new role - as sheriff.

Fabrizio, who currently works as a captain in the sheriff's office, announced last month he is running for sheriff. Incomer Sheriff Craig Zanni has not announced if he plans on seeking another term, but Fabrizio said he met with Zanni before announcing his run.

"He gave his support for me putting my name in, which is wonderful," Fabrizio said.

Before entering law enforcement, Fabrizio served in psychological operations in the Army. He served four terms in war zones and retired in 2013. That's when he began looking for a second career.

Initially, Fabrizio was leaning toward joining the Border Patrol in Arizona, but he and his wife really wanted to return to the

DeFazio: Oregon wins in bipartisan package

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The World

Congressman Peter DeFazio applauded the passage of the bipartisan infrastructure package - and the tens of millions of dollars heading to Oregon - but said the work is not done on Capitol Hill.

During a press briefing Friday, DeFazio said the infrastructure package passed last week will make a big difference in Oregon, but he added the Build Back Better package being considered is equally important for the future of the state and nation.

"We finally passed the bipartisan infrastructure bill," DeFazio said. "A lot of people miss even what this bill means. The overall bill is the largest single investment in transportation infrastructure since the construction of the highway infrastructure. This will deal with problems I've been talking about forever."

In Coos Bay, the bill will enable repairs of the north jetty at the Port of Coos Bay and will also provide funding for repairs at the old Georgia Pacific mill site to enable to a shipping container facility to be built.

While there is a lot to applaud, DeFazio said it is just the start of what's needed.

"This is not the end of the story," he said. "We're now working on the president's Build Back Better."

DeFazio said the infrastructure bill will make a big difference across Oregon.

"Over the term of the bill, we're going to get $3.4 billion for highways and $268 million for bridges and bridge repair."

There will also be $750 million for public transportation programs in Oregon.

"It will benefit smaller cities and rural areas," DeFazio said. "We need to think of more innovative ways to move people."

Another $529 million will be allocated for water infrastructure in the state.

"We have massive needs in Oregon for wastewater and drinking water," DeFazio said. "I did a call a few months ago with counties, and most counties in my district are red, run by Republicans. Their No. 1 need was water and wastewater followed by roads and bridges."

Weather conditions call for awareness of potential hazards

Oregon’s Office of Emergency Management advises residents to be aware – and prepared – for potential hazards due to heavy rains forecasted this week across the state. According to the National Weather Service, expected rainfall amounts may cause potential flooding of creeks and rivers in Oregon, especially along the coastal terrain and Cascades. Heavy rain can trigger debris flows and landslides in steep terrain, and the risk is higher in wildfire burn areas. There is potential for debris flows in the burned areas of the Cascades, including the Riverside, Beachie Creek and Lionshead fire sites. Eagle Creek and Holiday Farm fire areas may also be potentially impacted. The public can remain safe using basic preparedness actions, including staying informed, being aware of surroundings, having a plan for emergencies and being prepared with an emergency kit.

Stay informed
Monitor the weather forecast for watches, warnings or advisories at <https://www.weather.gov>. Sign up for local emergency alerts at <https://oralert.gov>. If told to evacuate, do so immediately.

Drive with caution
Be aware of the latest road conditions before driving by checking <http://tripcheck.com>. Be alert when driving; embankments along road-sides may fail, sending rock and debris onto the road. Turn on lights, increase following distance and slow down. A Flood Advisory is issued when a specific weather event that is forecast to occur may become a nuisance.

100 YEARS — 1921

Powers and Goss will go east
Selected by the port commission to be at Washington
Will work for the harbor improvements with Congress — meeting is held today

A.H. Powers and John D. Goss will be sent to Washington, D.C., to work in the interests of Coos Bay in securing government aid for the construction for the jet-ties at the mouth of the harbor. This was decided upon at a meeting of the port of Coos Bay commission this afternoon when quite a number of citizens were present.

Philip Buehner of Portland, head of the Buehner Lumber Company of North Bend, stated that he would on his own accord spend some time at Wash- ington and it was also stated that C.A. Smith would be there some of the time.

J.S. Lyons, presi- dent of the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce presented a resolution of that body asking the port to name John D. Goss, the attorney, and A.H. Powers, the president of the port commission, to go to Washington. Sec- retary Anderson of the North Bend Chamber of Commerce also present- ed a petition. The North Bend body wanted A.H. Powers to go if only one was to be sent but if two persons were sent asked that Mr. Powers and Peter Loggie of North Bend be named. Mr. Loggie immediately arose and said that he thought Mr. Goss, the port attorney, would be a more suitable person, and put the motion that Mr. Powers and Mr. Goss be named, and this carried.

Want religion in the schools
Will be taken up by ministerial association

Board looking for help with search

The Coos Bay school board is asking for as- sistance in selecting the school district's next su- perintendent. The board will be selecting up to 20 individuals to assist in the application screening and interview process. If interested, please visit CBD9.net or contact Sarah Eunice, executive assistant to the board at (541) 267-3104 (sarahe@ coos-bay.k12.or.us). This completed appli- cation must be submitted or returned to Eunice by 4 p.m. on December 3. Screening committee members will be chosen by the board on Decem- ber 13.

Superintendents and teachers will meet with the ministers tonight

The regular monthly meeting of the Coos Bay Ministerial Association will be held tonight at 7:30 in Westminster hall of the Marshfield Pres- byterian church.

Supt. Howard of the Marshfield schools, and Supt. Ruring of the North Bend schools, as well as the principals and high school teach- ers, will be present at this meeting at which plans will be formed to take up the matter of religious education in the schools. All minis- ters are requested to be present at this meeting.

North Bend mill will open soon

B.J. Hartsuck, man- ager of the North Bend Mill & Lumber Co., was arranging today to send some men to the Davis slough camp which they closed down over a year ago preliminary to re- suming operations there. Work on the logging railroad and the camp is necessary.

While no definite date has been fixed, Mr. Hartsuck expects to have both mill and camp going about the first of the year. He says the lumber demand is gradually strengthening and while he does not look for much of an advance in prices until the railroads resume buying, he feels that they will be warranted in resuming operations.

With the North Bend Mill & Lumber Co. going again, practically every plant and camp in this section will be again in operation.

All ready for big corn show

Coquille expects to entertain many visitors
COQUILLE — Ar- rangements are com- pleted for the seventh annual corn show which will be held in Coquille this week and which promises to be the larg- est and best ever held in the county.

The corn show proper will be on Friday and Saturday. The Farmers' and Homemakers Week will be on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Most of the latter day will be taken up with the judging of the exhibits at the corn show by the ex- perts who will be here to take part in the program.

Daily sessions
The Farmers' week programs will begin each day at 9:30 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m., at the Liberty theatre.

The programs will close early in the day so the farmers who attend and who live on the riv- er can get home on the afternoon boats.

The program of speakers has already been published. It in- cludes some of the best experts in the state and the farmers who attend the sessions will have opportunity of receiving instruction which they ordinarily would pay tuition for at the winter school of the O.A.C. Subjects of particular interest to this locality will be taken up.

Poultry feature
The poultry show is to be quite a feature and birds are already arriv- ing. The display of poul- try will be in the new Graham garage. There will be some fine poultry shown and the judging will be done by Prof. Krum of the O.A.C.

50 YEARS — 1971

Pirates land five on 5AAA All-Stars
North, South dominate first team
Champion South Eugene and runner-up North Eugene have dominated the coaches' balloting for the 1971 District 5AAA football all-star team as each club landed eight players on the 22-man first unit. Marshfield, which tied for third, followed with three first-team selec- tions while fourth-place Cottage Grove landed the other three spots.

Overall on the two teams selected, Marsh- field landed five players in seven positions while all schools but one were represented either on offense or defense with first- or second-unit selections.

North Bend, which finished in the cellar of the 5AAA standings, was ignored in the bal- loting.

Claiming first-team honors for Marshfield on offense were diminutive guard Larry Reiber, a 5-foot-8, 165-pound senior; and burly center Gary Bell, a 6-foot-2, 194-pound senior who was a second-team choice on defense — a spot he reclaimed this year — in 1970.

Senior end Rick Volchok, a 6-foot-1, 185-pound three-year letterman for the Purple and Gold, dropped down to the second unit offense from the first team of a year ago, but climbed from the second team to the first team on defense this season.

Claiming second-team berths for Marshfield were senior tackle Steve Ednie, a 6-foot-1, 174 pounder who was named to the offensive unit and 5-foot-10, 178-pound junior Ion Yandell, a linebacker named to the defensive team.

Only one 5AAA grid- der was a unanimous choice this year as all the coaches singled out South Eugene quarter- back Jay Mohr for that honor.

Prefontaine wins Pac-8

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Steve Prefon- taine of the University of Oregon was the individual winner for the second year in a row but Washington State was the team victor in the Pacific 8 cross country championships held at UCLA Saturday.

Prefontaine turned the 6 mile, 410 yard course in 29 minutes 6 1-10th seconds to set a course record previously held by Duncan McDonald of Stanford with a time of 31.11.

By virtue of the team win, Washington State will compete in the NCAA meet at the University of Tennessee. Second place Oregon also may compete.

Washington State won with a low score of 31 points. Oregon had 44.

20 YEARS — 2001

State donates hatchery salmon

First time ever: Enor- mous return aids food banks at a time dona- tions are needed most

PORTLAND (AP) — The Oregon Department of Fish & Wildlife will donate 40,000 pounds of hatchery salmon filets to the Oregon Food Bank today, an unprecedented donation in the agency's history.

The department can make the donation be- cause its hatcheries had more returning salmon than it needed for har- vesting eggs.

About 280,000 more salmon and steelhead than needed are re- turning this year to the state's 34 hatcheries. State officials say the food bank contribution is one of many ways the agency deals with excess hatchery fish, including placing salmon bodies in streams to add nutrients and releasing live fish in rivers to give sports fishers an extra chance at catching them.

Trent Stickell, the department's director of fish propagation, said the donation wouldn't be possible without the enormous number of wild and hatchery fish returning to Oregon's waterways this year. The boom is most apparent in the Columbia River, where more than 3.1 million adult salmon and steelhead are projected to return, the most since record-keeping began in 1938.

Bleak economy can't deter a mega-store

Wal-Mart update: Official says Coos Bay store is flourishing

Oregon's bleak economic forecast and concerns about declining consumer confidence haven't slowed plans for a massive growth operation that will more than double the size of what is already one of the area's largest dis- count retail stores and bring new jobs to the Bay Area.

IN fact, Amy Hill, Wal-Mart's community affairs manager for the Western region, said the company's faith in the local economy and its past success in the Bay Area prompted the busi- ness to slate a 9-year- old Coos Bay store for expansion by the spring of 2003.

When asked about a potential weakness in the local retail market, Hill said, "We don't see that at all."

The company's planned enlargement on the southwest corner of Fir Street and Newmark Avenue will add approx- imately 104,845 square feet of floor space to the 101,000-square-foot building.

The new Wal-Mart supercenter will add groceries and dry goods to the existing facility, as well as a tire and lube center and a small increase in current in- ventory.

A Word, Please:
Different style guides

By JUNE CASAGRANDE

Some days, I change “O.K.” to “OK.” On other days, you might find me changing “OK” to “okay.” Sometimes I spend a good deal of time deleting spaces around dashes, other times I insert spaces around dashes. Then there are the mornings when I add an extra s after a possessive James or Charles. In the afternoon, no s.

I’m not confused. I’m not being fickle. I’m not playing God with the rules. Instead, I have the dubious privilege of editing according to two different style guides: the Associated Press stylebook for my newspaper work and the Chicago Manual of Style for my magazine work.

Astute readers might be wondering: If two ways of writing something can both be correct, why worry about them? Why bother putting them in a style book? Just let the writer choose between “okay” and “OK” and between James’s and James’.

That would make sense but for a simple fact: Consistency counts. A lot. If you write “2-year-old” and “two-year-old” on the same page, it looks sloppy and unprofessional. That’s why you should pick your style and stick with it. Here a few of the common issues for which you probably should choose sides now.

OK/okay. AP style prefers “OK.” Chicago doesn’t have a rule but tends toward spelled-out forms like “okay.” No one seems to favor the version with two periods.

Spaces around dashes. When you use em dashes — like this — to set off words in a sentence, news media usually put a space on either side. Book publishers do not.

James’/James’s. AP Stylebook says that, to make singular proper names ending in s possessive, just add an apostrophe: James’ hat. Chicago says to add both an apostrophe and an s: James’s hat. That’s only for singulars, though. Plurals that end in s all follow the same rule: Apostrophe only. The dogs’ tails, the Williamses’ house, the attorneys’ clients.

Serial comma. The serial comma, also called the Oxford comma, is the optional mark before the conjunction in a list of three or more items: red, white, and blue. News media tend to eschew it. Book and magazine publishing tend to use it. Most individuals with an opinion seem to prefer the serial comma and some fans are downright fanatical.

Healthcare/health care. Both are correct, but AP and Chicago style both prefer “health care.” Compounds tend to meld into single words over time: teenager, key board, long-time, goodbye. So even though “health care” is preferred now, “healthcare” could win in the long run.

COVID-19/Covid-19. When a new word bursts into the headlines, often from the field of technology or medicine, publishers have to pick their preference quickly. No time to wait and see how the word will evolve over years or decades. The major authorities are leaning toward all-caps COVID-19, though dictionaries also recognize Covid-19 and even covid-19.

No. 1/#1/number one. I don’t like the pound sign in running text. It looks ugly. And “No.” is just weird because the word “number” doesn’t have an “o” in it. But my opinions are irrelevant. AP says “No. 1,” so that’s what I use for newspaper editing. Chicago doesn’t take a position, but I’ve noticed books often spell it out: number one.

Vaxed/vaxxed. None of the major language authorities have taken an official position on “vax” as a verb. But Benjamin Dreyer, Random House copy desk chief and author of “Dreyer’s English,” argues it’s best written like “taxed” and “faxed.” Publishers of the Oxford English Dictionary appear to favor “vaxxed.”

Italics/quotation marks for composition titles. Writing about a movie, book, TV show or other composition? You can put the title in quotation marks or italics. News agencies, still influenced by the days when italics wouldn’t transmit over wire services, use quotation marks. Book publishing leans toward italics. Pick your preference and stick with it.

Faction: The Founders’ original sin

By KIMBALL SHINKOSKEY

It has long been a truism that the strength of the Republican party lies in its head and the strength of the Democrat party lies in its heart.

The Republican mind says that democracy can only be maintained when the nation preserves liberty and safety for persons and property and promotes economic initiative. It does this by administering the great preponderance of government close to the needs and wants of the people and by deregulating commerce. This happens in the home when parents supervise children closely while also allowing as much freedom for them as they can responsibly handle.

The Democrat heart says that democracy can only be maintained when the nation enfranchises the opinion and talents of all and uplifts the weakest elements among the people. It does this by providing a safety net for the educational, health and social needs of poor, minority and wayward citizens. This happens in the home when parents dedicate extra effort and resources to a struggling child. The founders agreed with both of these priorities and designed a system to implement both.

Today the two parties have lost a sense of the whole picture and instead insist that their own partial platform is the nation’s only salvation. Consequently, Republicans have taken personal liberty and wealth accumulation to absurd lengths, and Democrats have forced compassion to the level of uniformity and central administration.

For the past 150 years or more, Republicans have been steadily decreasing the amount of personal wealth they are willing to share with the broader society. They have championed lower and lower maximum tax rates and are grudgingly producing lower and lower levels of philanthropy. At the same time, they have been steadily increasing the degree of financial exploitation of the lower and middle classes, by means of skyrocketing interest rates legally allowed on credit.

For the past 100 years or so, Democrats have been steadily moving the financing and administration of health, education, welfare, and criminal justice programs from localities to Washington D.C., and placing power over them in the hands of party bosses, a handful of legislative leaders and the president.

Democrats are now proposing a massive national welfare program the size of which exceeds the GDP of our entire nation not long ago. They have proposed a four-legged chair consisting of mandatory paid parental leave, child care subsidies, universal free pre-K education and an enhanced child credit against income taxes.

Republicans are now insisting they cannot allow any increased taxation of income, assets, inheritance, or corporations.

Rather than rediscovering the holistic mind and heart of the Founders, the two parties are each dead-set instead on converting the country from a two-party system to one-party rule. Each would be happy to find a populist tyrant within their midst to rule as long as he/she can.

Today, we are seeing the end-game of the problem of “faction” identified by the American founders so long ago. They wrote a constitution designed to prevent fatal factions and a consequent default to autocracy. Our Constitution still mandates that the “police power” — the power to enact, finance, and regulate human affairs — be placed on the state level, and also mandates policy-making by the democratic majority within each state boundary, thus ensuring compassion for all.

Unfortunately, usurpers interested only in wealth (some modern Republicans), and usurpers interested only in power (some modern Democrats) have taken turns thrashing the Constitution so that many of its most important sections have been ripped from its pages.

Robert Kimball Shinkoskey is the author of a constitutional history of the American presidency, entitled The American Kings: Growth in presidential power from George Washington to Barack Obama.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Protect us all

The only remedy that stopped the 1918 Spanish flu worldwide pandemic after 2 plus years was the wearing of masks. As a vacation property owner in Ore. I was disheartened to find that regardless of Governor Brown’s and the Oregon Health Authority’s indoor mask mandate of Aug. 13th, individuals and businesses are not taking the legal rule seriously. Mandates are legal under the 10th and 14th amendments of the U.S. Constitution, are limited to specific situations (like a health pandemic) and are enforceable by law enforcement agencies.

In addition, vaccine mandates are also legal since the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in Jacobson vs. Massachusetts during a smallpox epidemic. This was a precedent setting case and has been upheld time and time again. Justice John Marshall Harlan wrote the majority opinion stating: “...the liberty secured by the Constitution of the United States to every person within its jurisdiction does not import an absolute right in each person to be, at all times and in all circumstances, wholly freed from restraint. There are manifold restraints to which every person is necessarily subject (to) for the common good...real liberty for all could not exist under the operation of a principle which recognizes the right of each individual person to use his own, whether in respect of his person or his property, regardless of the injury that may be done to others.”

That means your individual rights DO NOT...I repeat DO NOT take precedence over the collective rights of the community at large. So put the mask on and get vaxed to protect all of us. COVID isn’t going away. And you may no longer be with the rest of us when the next variant surfaces and goes global.

North Bend’s Proett preparing to work with cattle

ARTICLE BY AMY CALABRETTA
University of Idaho

North Bend’s Makayla Proett first discovered her love for livestock during summers and weekends spent on her grandparent’s cow-calf operation in Lakeview. Internship experiences as a student at the University of Idaho introduced her to her future career working on a feedlot.

Working with Cattle

Proett has always enjoyed working with livestock and knew she wanted a career working with cattle. She enrolled in U of I’s College of Agricultural and Life Sciences to study animal and veterinary science: production option but wasn’t sure exactly what career she wanted.

During her sophomore year, her advisor encouraged her to attend the U of I Career Fair to learn about internship opportunities. She spoke with Agri Beef and learned more about their feedlot in American Falls and decided to take a chance.

“When I originally came to school, I did not think I would want to work on a feedlot,” she said. “I grew up knowing about the ranching side, but I didn’t really know what happens when you sell your calves. So that’s kind of why I wanted to do it at first — to learn the next step. Once I got there, it’s a great opportunity to work with livestock every day but also build a career.”

Proett began considering feedlots as a viable career option after the internship with Agri Beef but decided to complete an additional internship at a different feedlot to make sure that she was on the right path. She attended the Career Fair again as a junior and accepted a position as management trainee intern for summer 2021 at Simplot’s Burbank, Washington feedlot.

As a management

Makayla Proett has always loved livestock, but she learned at the University of Idaho that she can turn that love into a career. At an internship, the soon-to-be college graduate learned how to work with cattle.

trainee intern, Proett was immersed in all areas of running a 60,000 head lot. She learned everything from how to weld, accurately laying down feed in a bunk while driving a semi-truck, and how to spot sick cattle from horseback with the vet crew, to the paperwork involved in the shipping and receiving department.

While she learned a lot about the overall operation, working directly with the cattle remains her favorite part of the job.

“My favorite part was probably the vet crew,” she said. “I really liked getting to work with the cattle every day, hands-on and figuring out what type of vaccines they should get or evaluating them and figuring out which way to go as far as vaccinating them. I liked working hands-on with the cattle and moving them and working the chute, which you get to do every day.”

Exploring Career Paths

Proett’s internship experiences helped her discover how she could turn her love for working with cattle into a career. She encourages all students to complete at least one internship.

“I think internships are something that everyone should do, and it showed me what I want to do,” she said. “Internships are a great way, for 90 days, to figure out if you like something or not. If you don’t like it that’s fine but take the chance while you’re in school to do these opportunities versus waiting until you’re out of school and you have an actual job that you’re committed to.”

“They don’t expect you to have any knowledge. That’s what’s cool about internships. You go in and they are willing to teach you. Through both of my internships they were so nice as long as you wanted to learn.”

Originally from North Bend, Proett decided to attend U of I because of the smaller campus and hands-on opportunities.

“I didn’t want to go to a huge university, and I wanted to expand and go somewhere by myself,” she said. “I really liked how the department was smaller but still had the Sheep Center, the Beef Center, the dairy, the feed mill, Steer-a-Year, and Vandal Brand Meats. There were still tons of opportunities to do hands-on stuff but on a smaller scale.”

“If you come here, you will get the most personal college experience that I think you could get versus a big university. All the professors are so kind and eager to help you and help you find jobs and careers and opportunities. They really do care about the students.”

Proett will graduate in December 2021 and her internship experiences have helped lay the foundation for her future. She will return to the Agri Beef feedlot in American Falls after graduation, as a management trainee in the cattle department.

“Doctor, I have a suspicious looking mole on my shoulder.”

Stillwagon

From A1

Stillwagon decided early on if he was going to make fine liquors, he was going to do it right. That means starting from scratch with every batch he makes. He starts by filling a 500-gal-lon fermenter. Once the ingredients ferment, they move to stripping stills, where rum is concentrated from 15% to 50% alco-hol. The final step is the distillery where the alcohol is finalized. Then the fun begins.

Every batch has flavoring added, differentiating that makes the difference between rum, whiskey and gin. And the flavors also make the difference between Stillwagon Distillery products and the rest of the market.

“We use a lot of differ-ent spices,” Stillwagon said. “I use basically whole spices. We actually do an infusion of flavors. That’s what makes our flavors different.”

Whole spices, fresh fruit and real ingredients aren’t the easiest way to make li-quor, but it is the best. Last week, Stillwagon extracted juice from habanero pep-pers for one of his liquors with a kick.

“We put the fruit or spices right in the rum,” Stillwagon said. “Alcohol is a great dissolver. So it will liquify the fruit or spices. All we have in our products is rum, fruit and spices. That way we get a true flavor of the fruits and spices.”

When a liquor is finished, Stillwagon puts them into wooden barrels, where they age for up to five years, depending on the kind.

“Bourbon has to be aged in new barrels,” he said. “I use the same process for our gold rum, so a lot of people think our gold rum is a bourbon.”

Stillwagon said the best seller is walnut fig rum, but with more than a dozen flavors there is something for everyone.

As the Distillery has grown, Stillwagon has been able to make a living off it. He has opened tasting rooms in Bandon and Florence and sells his liquor at more than 80 liquor stores in Oregon. The products can be found in Coos Bay and North Bend, and they are always available at the Distillery in Charleston.

Stillwagon said every bottle has his personal ap-proval because he puts his name on each bottle.

“In order for me to sell something, I have to believe in it,” he said. “Blueberries didn’t work, blackberries didn’t work and huckleberries haven’t worked yet. For some rea-son, some fruits just taste better fresh, but the alcohol just doesn’t work with it. If I don’t like it, I won’t sell it.”

Stillwagon also won’t go cheap to make a larger profit. He said he routinely gets calls from companies wanting to sell him liquor that he can then add flavor to. But he believes making it fresh makes it better, so the answer is always no.

“We’re unique in that we actually make our rum,” Stillwagon said. “For me as an artisan, my reputa-tion is paramount. If I put my name on something, I want to know I actually made the product. It makes a difference. People taste the difference.”

Stillwagon Distillery has grown from an experiment to a business with more than a dozen liquors on sale throughout the region.

Fabrizio

From A1

Oregon coast, a place they lived while Fabrizio was a recruiter for the Army.

After moving to Coos County, Fabrizio started looking for a job, a second career.

“I hadn’t honestly con-sidered much of a career in law enforcement, but seeing that had positions to fill, I decided to try it, and I loved it,” Fabrizio said.

Once he was hired as a patrol deputy, Fabrizio went all in. He volun-teered to serve in any way possible.

“I always did a ton of positions inside the sheriff’s office,” he said.

“When the captain posi-tion came open three years ago this month, the sheriff asked if I was interested. A lot of the skills I had in the Army carried over.”

Fabrizio was hired as the administrative captain, where he oversees all the internal aspects of the department, including budgeting. Making the move was easy in some aspects but harder in others. Fabrizio said the hardest change was letting other deputies lead the way during big incidents.

“It’s a pretty huge paradigm shift,” he said. “Probably the hardest thing for any leader to do is to sit back and watch other people do.”

Fabrizio said he has considered a run for sheriff for two years before deciding to make the leap. The nonpartisan seat currently has two announced candidates. If no more run, the race will be decided in the Novem-ber 2022 election. If more candidates join, a primary will be required in May.

“I’ve been considering it a long time,” Fabrizio said. “I made the decision, and once it became reality, I took the leap forward.”

Fabrizio said there are big issues facing the sheriff’s office. One that is discussed a lot is the reduction of inmates that can be held in the county jail. With fewer inmates allowed, some people charged with crimes are released pending trial.

said. “I’ve been talking to the commissioners about plans for the future.”

Another issue is hiring enough personnel, both patrol deputies and jail deputies.

“Finding people who are interested and qual-ified is a challenge,” Fabrizio said. “Sheriff Zanni has done a good job of screening people.”

Another constant issue is limited funding. With county funding limited, Fabrizio said it requires the department to be creative.

“We try to operate on a limited budget,” he said. “I hear a lot of mumbling about how many new vehicles we have. We actually subsist off getting used vehicles from other agencies.”

Fabrizio said one of his goals as a captain and if he’s elected as sheriff is to increase cooperation be-tween the sheriff’s office and other law enforcement agencies in the county.

“I’ve really tried to spearhead inner efficien-cies and cooperation be-tween the sheriff’s office and other departments,” he said. “I actually joined the fire department. I’m a volunteer firefighter in Coquille. That’s to get a better understanding. It’s super important to have cooperation between agencies.”

As he campaigns for office, Fabrizio said he plans to start slow, but hopes to get the word out to as many voters as possible.

“I definitely don’t want to inundate or bombard the people over the holi-days,” he said. “After the holidays, I’ll begin going to town halls or hosting town halls.”

Fabrizio said running for office is never a solo effort, and he said his wife, Chancy, and their 13-year-old daughter are fully supportive.

“My wife is my hero,” Fabrizio said. “She’s probably the most ag-gressively compassionate person I know.”

Fabrizio admits moving to the top spot in the sher-iff’s office will be a big change, but he’s ready for the challenge.

“It’s important, it’s super important,” he said. “It’s also daunting being in charge of the peace for 65,000 people.”

Red Devils romp into Class 2A semifinals

JOHN GUNTHER
For The World

NORTH BEND — Coquille got its second straight dominant football playoff win and was quickly looking ahead to a huge challenge in the Class 2A semifinals.

The Red Devils beat Jefferson 48-8 at North Bend High School to set up a matchup this weekend with 2019 champion Heppner, which is on a 29-game win streak after its 40-0 win over Weston-McEwen on Saturday. The game will be played at noon Saturday at McMinnville High School, before a 5 p.m. contest between Estacada and Marist Catholic in the Class 4A semifinals.

“I’m more than excited,” said Coquille’s Gunner Yates. “It’s a great opportunity.”

Added Coquille coach David Thomason, “If you want to be the best, you’ve got to play the best.”

While Heppner is on a win streak that dates back to a loss to Kennedy in the 2018 playoffs, Coquille has won all seven games it has played on the field this year (the Red Devils had a forfeit loss to Lakeview) and scored at least 40 points in the past six.

Heppner’s defense will provide a much bigger challenge for the Red Devils. The Mustangs have six shutouts this year and had three shutouts in their five wins during the spring season. Heppner also had six shutouts in the 2019 season, when they beat Kennedy 12-7 in the championship game.

The Mustangs likely haven’t

seen a player with the speed of Yates, and Coquille’s offensive line has been efficient in the wing-T setting up Yates and Brock Willis for repeated big plays.

“They help us week in and week out,” Yates said of the line. “We couldn’t do anything without them.”

Yates had his longest run in his distinguished career as part of Coquille’s 42-point first half Friday.

After Hunter Layton intercepted a Jefferson pass at the 1-yard line, Yates went 99 yards on the next play for a score.

Coquille also had a fumble recovery by Grady Arriola deep in its own territory on the opening drive of the game by Jefferson.

The turnovers are big, Yates said.

“It definitely helps us keep the momentum going,” he said. “It’s great for the guys.”

Thomason said the first stop helped set the tone for the game, since Coquille marched for its first touchdown.

“To go the entire distance of the field, that was definitely a big confidence builder,” he said.

The defense then proceeded to routinely stop the Lions, including an interception by Bo Messerle just before halftime. Tony Florez added an interception in the second half.

“Coach (Jake) Cochran is doing a heck of a job,” Thomason said of Coquille’s defensive coordinator.

Willis said the entire defense played well.

Bandon, Bobcats lose in quarterfinals

LAKEVIEW — Bandon’s football season came to a stunning end Friday night when Lakeview scored in the final minute to edge the Tigers 27-26 in the Class 2A quarterfinals.

Lakeview advanced to the semifinals and a game this Saturday at Grants Pass High School against Kennedy.

Bandon had taken the lead when Denver Blackwell intercepted a pass and returned it for a touchdown with just over a minute to go, breaking a 20-all tie.

But Bandon wasn’t able to convert the extra point and Lakeview moved down the field with a series of passes, the last a 29-yard touchdown pass to Max Graham.

The teams traded the lead several times.

Lakeview scored first on a short run by Gavin Patterson, but Reef Berry returned the ensuing kickoff 80 yards for a score and Bandon added the conversion for an 8-6 lead.

The Tigers scored again to take a 14-6 lead to the locker room at halftime, but Lakeview had the first two scores of the second half — a 37-yard run on a reverse by Morgan Ludwig and a short run by Patterson — to go in front 20-14.

Bandon tied the score early in the fourth quarter on a diving catch by Cooper Lang, setting up the frantic final moments.

The teams each had multiple turnovers, including two by Bandon after tying the game in the fourth quarter.

They survived both of those turnovers, including one possession that ended with a missed field goal.

But Lakeview’s kicker didn’t miss the clinching extra point.

POWDER VALLEY 36, MYRTLE POINT 0: The Bobcats were shut out on the road by the No. 2 Badgers in the eight-man quarterfinals on Friday.

Myrtle Point’s season came to an end after it saw the Bobcats reach the playoffs for the first time in several seasons and win a playoff game for the first time in well over a decade.

Myrtle Point wasn’t able to break through against the Powder Valley defense.

But with only one senior, the Bobcats have a lot to look forward to next fall.

Powder Valley, meanwhile, advances to the semifinals and a game Saturday at new Bend high school Caldera against St. Paul.

Top-ranked Pirates keep rolling

JOHN GUNTHER

COOS BAY — Marshfield’s football team moved a step closer to the state championship Friday with a 42-7 win over visiting Henley.

Next up for the Pirates is a neutral site game Saturday against the team Marshfield beat to open the season.

Marshfield and Mazama of Klamath Falls meet in one semifinal while Estacada and Marist Catholic battle in the other semifinal. In the other quarterfinal games, Mazama edged Banks 21-14, Estacada doubled up La Grande 44-22 and Marist Catholic avenged a regular-season loss by pounding Cascade 62-35.

The Marshfield-Mazama game, scheduled for noon Saturday at Grants Pass High School, also is a rematch. Back on Sept. 3, Marshfield beat Mazama 35-20. Mazama also lost to Cascade 31-28, but takes an eight-game win streak into the semifinals.

The top-ranked Pirates remain unbeaten after a dominant defensive outing against Henley, another Klamath Falls-area school, on Friday.

“The kids played tough, physical and pretty disciplined,” Marshfield coach John Lemmons said following the game.

The Pirates dominated throughout, again with an efficient offense, but also with a defense that forced three turnovers. The starting unit again did not give up any points, with Henley’s score coming late.

“Our goal for this week was for the kids to be physical,” Lemmons said. “The kids were physical.”

Marshfield constantly pressured Henley, with quarterback Shaw Stork often having little time to throw and the Pirates getting multiple tackles for loss during the contest.

Meanwhile, Marshfield’s offense again was efficient.

Montiel completed the drive by sprinting 15 yards around the left edge for a touchdown and Albert Castillo's extra point (the first of seven on the night) gave Marshfield a 7-0 lead with 9:34 to go in the opening quarter.

After forcing a punt, Marshfield drove the field again. They appeared stalled facing third-and-goal from the 18 when DJ Daugherty took a handoff and was bottled up on the right sideline before cutting back against the grain and through several defenders to the end zone.

Daugherty quickly was in on two more big plays as the Pirates extended the lead. After a Mitchell George sack, Daugherty intercepted a pass, then completed a halfback pass to Maddux Mateski to set up Montiel's 5-yard pass to Mason Pederson for a 21-0 lead, still in the first quarter.

Henley then had its best first-half possession, driving deep into Marshfield territory. But George slowed Stork long enough for Cobin Bouska to come up with a big sack and Ben Mahaffy intercepted a pass on the next play, preserving Marshfield's lead.

This time, Marshfield's drive ended with a 12-yard touchdown pass from Montiel to Mateski and the Pirates led 28-0.

Marshfield's defense came up with one more big play to help the Pirates get to a 35-point halftime lead ensuring a running clock for the final two quarters. Stork was on a designed quarterback run when he was hit hard by George, Ezra Waterman and Bouska. He fumbled and Sebastian Gabriel Kutsch recovered.

The next play, Montiel found Daugherty behind Henley's defense for a 35-yard touchdown.

Marshfield got its final score on the first drive of the second half, another Montiel-to-Daugherty TD pass, this time from 20 years out.

It was another big game for Marshfield's offense.

"They keep doing what they're doing," Lemmons said. "Everybody is contributing."

"Dom made good throws, the receivers made good plays and our line did a pretty good job."

Waterman had a solid game running the ball behind the line, giving Marshfield a good balance of passing and running.

Henley avoided the shut-out when Garrett Northcutt had a late 3-yard touchdown run.

But it was Marshfield looking ahead to one more week, with the game against Mazama on the horizon.

"Overall, I'm very proud of them," Lemmons said.

"It's not one person — it's all of us," he said.

Jefferson avoided a shut-out when quarterback Jace Aguilar hit Elijah Stelly for a late touchdown and Stelly added the conversion.

That was far too little with Coquille's efficient offense.

While Yates and Willis both had big games, it was Yates on all the touchdowns in the first half — carries of 29, 72, 75, 4, 50 and the 99-yard gallop that broke Joe Harris's school record of 95 yards. Yates finished with 358 yards on 11 carries.

Hayden Gederos scored Coquille's other touchdown from 8 yards out to finish the first drive of the second half.

Thomason was cautious, however, that Coquille needs to play better in the semifinals.

"The last three games, we have had bad mistakes on our side of the field," he said.

"If we are playing Heppner, we can't do that."

Willis is excited Coquille is in the semifinals for the first time since 2016.

"Whatever comes at us, we are always going to try to do our best," he said.

Northern Spotted Owl: USFWS revising critical habitat

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is finalizing a revised designation of critical habitat under the Endangered Species Act (ESA) for the northern spotted owl.

“After a thorough review of scientific and commercial information and evaluation of public comments received on the proposed rule, we are withdrawing the January 15, 2021 rule which would have excluded 3.4 million acres of designated critical habitat through section 4(b)(2) of the ESA,” the USFWS states in a release. “This final rule excludes 204,294 acres of the 9.6 million acres of critical habitat, which is approximately 2% of the 2012 northern spotted owl designation.”

The action will help conserve and recover spotted owls by identifying habitat needed for recovery of northern spotted owls in the long-term, according to the release. Additionally, active management of forests and invasive barred owl populations to make forest ecosystems healthier and more resilient to disease, insect outbreaks and the effects of climate change, such as increased frequency of droughts and catastrophic wildfires, will be vital.

“The importance of maintaining high quality habitat for northern spotted owls cannot be overstated in light of the challenges we’re facing with climate change and increasing competition from the invasive barred owl,” USFWS’s Regional Director for the Columbia-Pacific Northwest Robyn Thorson said. “This designation provides a healthy and resilient landscape for the spotted owl and other native Northwest wildlife while still supporting sustainable timber harvest.”

This exclusion includes 184,133 acres of Bureau of Land Management-administered lands allocated for timber harvest in 15 Oregon counties. Their revised Resource Management Plans for western Oregon incorporate key aspects of the Northern Spotted Owl Recovery Plan that will continue to help conserve and improve habitat for the owl over time on these lands.

Additionally, approximately 20,000 acres of Indian lands are included in the exclusion. These are lands recently transferred under the Western Oregon Tribal Fairness Act to the Confederated Tribes of the Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians and the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe of Indians.

The northern spotted owl is protected as a threatened species under the ESA, and a critical habitat designation identifies those areas that are essential to recovery of the species. The USFWS found that the 3.4 million acres excluded in the January 15, 2021, revised designation would have left too little habitat to conserve the species, ultimately resulting in the extinction of the northern spotted owl.

Critical habitat does not provide additional protections for a species on non-federal lands unless proposed activities involve federal funding or permitting. Critical habitat designations also do not affect land ownership or establish a refuge, reserve, preserve or other conservation area, nor does it allow the government or public to access private lands, according to the USFWS.

The final rule is available online at: <https://www.federal-register.gov/public-inspection/current>.

Investigation: Declines of abalone, sunflower sea stars, bull kelp beds

The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife’s (ODFW) Marine Resources Program has received a federal grant to investigate recent disruption of ecological communities in rocky reef habitats along the southern Oregon Coast.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service provided $250,000 to support work by ODFW marine researchers to fill critical data gaps in population declines of abalone and sunflower sea stars and disruption of their primary habitat in kelp beds. This grant also provides needed equipment to measure changes in ocean temperature and oxygen levels.

Like other regions of the West Coast, Oregon observed a record-breaking marine heatwave beginning in 2013-2015. Coupled with unprecedented hypoxia (low ocean oxygen conditions) in 2019-2021, Oregon’s near-shore waters have experienced important ecosystem changes.

Left: ODFW staff conducting snorkel surveys at Nellies Cove to document unusually high densities of purple sea urchins in shallow water rocky reef sites. Right: Populations of red abalone have recently declined along the Oregon coast, in part due to loss of seaweeds and kelp as a source of food.

“The shift in nearshore ocean conditions coincided with mass mortality of sunflower sea stars,” ODFW Shellfish Program Leader Steve Rumrill said. “We think that loss of these large and hungry multi-armed predators may be a contributing factor in the dramatic increase in numbers of purple sea urchins at many sites along the southern Oregon Coast. Seaweed and kelp are the primary food sources for the urchins.”

Marine scientists also observed reductions in the extent of bull kelp beds and declines in populations of abalone. Bull kelp beds are recognized as a high priority habitat essential to survival of sea stars, sea urchins, abalone, and numerous species of fishes.

“The magnitude of ecological changes to kelp bed habitat and their associated communities down along the south coast are unprecedented in recorded history” Rumrill said.

The new grant funds will support four integrated components of the research:

Scientists will measure ocean oxygen and temperature conditions over the next two-years.

SCUBA divers will conduct underwater surveys in shallow rocky areas to document populations of purple sea urchins, sea stars, abalone, resident fishes, seaweeds, and kelp.

Local charter vessels will be used to conduct surveys with a remotely operated vehicle (ROV) in deep rocky reef sites.

Aerial surveys and work from small boats will help document the location, spatial cover, and biomass of kelp.

Information generated by this research will help ODFW update the Oregon Nearshore Conservation Strategy and help identify an effective plan to address emerging concerns for the marine species, priority marine habitats, and impacts from climate change.

Water Quality

Oregon’s Natural Resources Conservation Service has funding available to assist ranchers in Coos County through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program. The Coos-Coquille Water Quality Conservation Implementation Strategy addresses water quality resource concerns within seven key sub basins of the Coos and Coquille watersheds through improved floodplain pasture health and management. Cost share assistance is offered on several conservation practices, including establishment of off-stream livestock watering facilities, forage and biomass plantings, riparian forest buffers, fencing, invasive brush management and more. # Transportation Funding: ODOT to receive over $1 billion for statewide projects

The Oregon Department of Transportation will receive over $1 billion dollars in additional transportation funding as part of the federal infrastructure package, according to Oregon Transportation Commission Chair Bob Van Brocklin.

“This past weekend Congress completed work on the largest infrastructure finance bill in history,” Van Brocklin said. “Once signed by the president, the $1.2 trillion bill will allow ODOT to address a number of major challenges in our state.”

The money will go toward projects around the state that will benefit drivers, transit riders, cyclists and pedestrians, help maintain roads and bridges, and address climate change, according to Van Brocklin.

“We’re still analyzing the legislation to determine exactly how much funding ODOT will receive and where it will spend the money,” Van Brocklin said. “Many projects are ready for construction, and others are in the final stages of planning so we should be able to move quickly.”

ODOT plans to conduct a media briefing this week to release additional details. The specifics about that event were pending as of early Monday morning, Nov. 8.

Van Brocklin said the Oregon Transportation

Commission and ODOT will direct the funds, combined with state funding from the Oregon Legislature to “make real progress” on Oregon’s transportation priorities.

A portion of the $1.2 billion will be allocated over the next five years for highway and bridge construction and maintenance, safety improvements, mass transit investments, bicycle and pedestrian facilities, electric vehicle charging stations, and efforts to reduce carbon emissions from transportation sources, according to Van Brocklin.

“These resources will help us address congestion, which is increasing in our urban areas as the state’s population continues to grow; freight mobility, earthquake recovery preparedness, passenger rail, and other elements of the comprehensive mobility system we seek to create,” Van Brocklin said. “All of this work will focus on improving our economy, our environment, and the quality of life of all Oregonians. Working together, we can attain this vision.”

In anticipation of this major new commitment at the federal level, beginning in 2020, the Oregon Transportation Commission and ODOT began working on a number of changes to create a modern transportation system that prioritizes equity, climate, safety, and the delivery of reliable transportation options to serve the diverse need of citizens and businesses across the state, according to Van Brocklin.

“These early efforts position us to quickly invest the federal funds we receive and additional funds we will seek from new and continuing federal grant programs authorized by the bill Congress passed last weekend,” he said.

“The Oregon Transportation Commission and ODOT are deeply grateful for the hard work of our federal delegation to make this historic legislation a reality. We look forward to putting these new resources to work to build a better future for the people of Oregon.”

Sheriff’s office introduces K9 Eros

The Douglas County Sheriff’s Office has a new K9 on patrol and would like to introduce the community to K9 Eros.

Eros, a 3-year-old German Shepherd from Germany was acquired by DCSO last week after testing several available dogs in California. Funding for the new K9 was made possible to a generous gift by an anonymous member of the community. Deputy Oscar Rosas, an experienced K9 handler, and Eros will be partnered together.

“The team will bond and train together over the next several months before beginning to patrol together,” Lt. Brad O’Dell said. “For now, the team will focus building a bond and interacting with each other. Deputy Rosas and Eros will then undergo a several week training program with a master trainer to become certified by the Oregon Police Canine Association,” O’Dell added.

K9 Eros joins K9s Zoro and Ozzy at the Sheriff’s Office. The current Sheriff’s K9 program began in 2013 when the agency acquired K9 Grim, who passed away unexpectedly in September after serving over 8 years.

“I’m very excited for this opportunity to have K9 Eros as a partner and thankful for the opportunity to handle another dog,” Deputy Rosas said.

Lt. O’Dell said “The support of our community who sees the value of these dogs as a policing tool is amazing. We are grateful for the support”

The Sheriff’s Office K9 program, consisting of three K9 teams, is supported financially by private donations and the Friends of Umpqua Valley Police K9 Programs, a non-profit organization whose mission is to support local police K9 teams. Bailey’s Veterinary Clinic provides medical care for the Sheriff’s Office K9 program while Coastal Farm and Ranch Supply provides food.
