Roseburg Forest Products tops Coos County's taxpayer list

COQUILLE — While many Coos County citizens gulp when they open their annual property tax bills, imagine opening the bill sent each year to Roseburg Forest Products.

The Coos County Tax Office, which mailed its annual property tax statements a few weeks ago, is expecting the forestry and wood-products company to cough up more than $1.6 million to support county, schools and special district operations this fiscal year, which ends June 30, 2027. The Springfield-based industry has been at the top of the county's list of taxpayers since 2022.

It also was No. 1 in 2017-2019, according to Jeff Etzel, the county's chief deputy assessor, who compiles the annual report.

In addition to timberlands in Coos County, Roseburg operates a plywood mill in Coquille and a chip-shipping terminal on Coos Bay. The company's real market value this year in the county is nearly $214 million and its assessed value is nearly $165.5 million. Roseburg's operations stretch from Oregon to Ontario, Canada, to South Carolina, according to Kenny Larson, Roseburg's communication manager. The firm manufactures a variety of sustainably harvested wood-based products.

A property's assessed value — the value a property is taxed on — can go up just 3 percent a year.

"That's a state law, Etzel said, adding that assessed value is the lesser of real market value or the maximum assessed value.

Roseburg Forest Products and other taxpayers face a Nov. 16 deadline to pay the entire amount to avoid interest charges, or at least the first one-third of the total. The remainder is due in two installments, by Feb. 16, 2027, and May 17, 2027.

The county's portion of tax receipts go into the general fund, which provides for the basic operations of the county government.

"The rest is distributed to the individual taxing districts," said Megan Simms, county treasurer. The county's total tax levy for all taxpayers is more than $7.6 million.

Although Roseburg Forest Products led the list again this year, the next two runners-up remained the same as well: Bandon Dunes remains in second place and Pacificorp (Pacific Power) remains in third.

The seven-course golf complex between Bandon and Coos Bay has a tax bill of more than $1.2 million with a real market value of more than $397 million and an assessed value of nearly $128 million.

"They're constantly building," Etzel said. "I always say, all they need is a gas station and a grocery store, and they've got a small town."

Meanwhile Pacificorp, the electric utility, is facing a Coos County tax bill of more than $989,000 on an assessed value/real market value of more than $83 million.

Another forest products company, Weyerhaeuser, moved into fourth place among Coos County taxpayers this year, up from fifth place a year ago. Its taxes this year amount to nearly $683,000 on assessed value of nearly $70 million and a real market value of nearly $122 million.

Also moving up one slot from sixth last year to fifth place in 2026 is Northwest Fiber, also known as Ziply Fiber, which places and maintains fiber-optic lines for communications. Its tax bill is more than $641,000 on an assessed value of more than $48 million and a real market value of $65.8 million.

"The utility companies are assessed by the Department of Revenue," Etzel said, referring to the state agency in Salem.

Charter Communications, another communications conglomerate, dropped from fourth place last year to sixth in 2026. Its tax bill is more than $604,000. The following list shows the remain-

Pacific Seafood operations resume, fire investigation continues at Newport

Coos Bay World

The specific case of the plant fire and the estimated damage costs were pending as the investigation continued this week. (Jeremy C. Ruark / Lincoln County Leader)

Work continues normally at the Charleston/Coos Bay Pacific Seafood plant but at the Newport facility state investigators may use a canine and drones to help track down the cause of a major fire.

According to the Oregon State Fire Marshal's Office Public Affairs Director Kassie Keller, it may be some time before the specific cause of the Oct. 15 Newport plant fire is determined.

"This fire is under investigation, and the report can take approximately 30 days to complete depending on the complexity," she said.

Keller said that typically the fire investigators follow these main steps:

Uses a systematic approach and process to examine the circumstances of the fire. A scientific analysis is conducted, commonly referred to as the scientific method:

- Identify the problem
- Define the problem
- Collect data
- Analyze the data
- Develop a hypothesis
- Test the hypothesis
- Select final hypothesis

During the fire investigation, the investigator or the team will conduct interviews (homeowner, firefighters, business owners, law enforcement, and bystanders), take pictures of the scene, and use special equipment such as a canine, drones, hydrocarbon detectors, etc.), according to Keller.

"The investigator or team will take photos and/or video to help in the process," she said. "OSFM investigators also use the Matterport Lidar scan survey tool carried by our deputy state fire marshals to help in the process."

The estimate of damage is pending but the cold storage facility damaged by the fire is valued at $2.6 million according to Lincoln County property records checked by the Lincoln Chronicle.

Employees were back at the plant as it resumed operations midweek following the fire.

Ashton Meier, Pacific Seafood VP Resource Sales and Processing Aston Meier released a statement following the fire that stated in part:

"Our focus going forward will be on supporting our team members, our neighbors, and the people of Newport. In the days ahead, we will continue to work with public safety officials to make sure they have the access and information necessary to determine the cause of the fire, the extent of the damage, and any ongoing hazards or effects. We appreciate everyone that has jumped into action, provided support, or reached out to us today," Meier said.

Newport city officials are also monitoring the investigation.

"We are pleased to see operations have already resumed at Pacific Seafood and we're thankful that their employees are safe," City of Newport Communications Director john Fuller said.

During a Sunday afternoon, Oct. 15 news briefing, Mayor Jan Kaplan had said the plant is a significant economic asset to the city. But when asked by the Lincoln County Leader what is the plant's specific economic contribution to Newport, Fuller said the city did not have such specific information.

Fuller did say that the plant fire demonstrates the city's ability to deal with such an emergency.

"The fire demonstrated the importance of preparedness for city officials and our community, interagency coordination and timely public communication during a major emergency," he said.

During the incident, a one-mile radius around the fire scene was evacuated forcing businesses to close and residents to move to an evacuation shelter.

"The fire presented significant challenges, including the potential for an ammonia release, the evacuation residents and businesses as a precaution, and the temporary closure of a substantial portion of the Bayfront business district." Fuller said.

The evacuation orders were reduced and eventually cancelled that same day.

Chamber Minute

BY ROSEY THOMAS
Executive Director, Bay Area Chamber Of Commerce

In for another Chamber Minute is Rosey.

The elections are behind us, and now it's time to turn our attention back to what matters most: our families, our businesses, our neighbors, and the future we are building together.

No matter the outcome of an election, the challenges facing our community don't simply disappear. Our work continues. We still have an economy to strengthen, businesses to support, families to care for, and a future to create.

And to do that, we need each other.

A strong, resilient community isn't one that never faces storms. It's one that learns to weather those storms together. It's about holding each other up, finding common ground, and remembering that we have far more to gain by working together than by standing divided.

The Chamber works every day to support our local economy, advocate for business, and bring attention to the issues that affect us. But perhaps one of the most important things we do is bring people together, encourage conversation, and foster collaboration so we can move forward with purpose.

We build that future one day, one conversation, and one partnership at a time.

The Chamber depends on your support to continue this important community-building work. Whether through membership, sponsorship, or volunteering your time and talents, every contribution matters.

Thank you for being part of this community and for helping us build a stronger future together.

Because our Business is helping Your Business.

Amid big changes, Oregon goes steady-state

RANDY STAPILUS
Oregon Capital Chronicle

Across red and purple states, the election news Tuesday, Nov. 3, was big: Massive changes in places where few would have expected them, flips of control of both sides of the Congress.

As for Oregon, well, it went along its usual path.

You could even say that the national election results may mean more change for Oregon than its own state results did.

The big Oregon contest this year, the one that generated serious effort on both the Democratic and Republican sides, was the race for governor. In the second faceoff between incumbent Democrat Tina Kotek and the Republican challenger Christine Drazan, the result was close to what it was in 2022. Even the roster of counties won by Kotek is remarkably similar.

One question sometimes asked about an incumbent officeholder seeking re-election is, did they lose any major base of support — any large group of votes — since the last election? On the evidence of election night, the answer seems to be negative in Kotek's case, which makes her win likely and expected.

Oregon's executive branch stays where it has been.

Six U.S. House seats were up for election, along with one of the state's U.S. senators, Jeff Merkley. All of the incumbents were easily reelected. As this was written (before all counties had fully reported), the state's unofficial vote count put Merkley's win at 57% — which is what it was in 2020, and which is one point higher than in 2014. You might call that consistency.

Nor did the Oregon Legislature, where about half of the Senate and all of the House was on the ballot, see much change, though Democrats are poised to narrowly increase their existing supermajorities.

One legislative contest stood out as a battle of special interest, in the 32nd House District, where Rep. Cyrus Javadi, elected previously as a Republican, ran this time as a Democrat. You might almost say the voters in that Tillamook-Clatsop area split the difference: They changed their party representation from 2024 and retained Javadi, in turning back a Republican challenger. A closer look will be needed to determine what if anything this says about partisan politics on the north coast.

In Oregon, on the basis of its elections within the state, life goes on.

But there are some larger impacts to what happened on Tuesday.

The biggest and most immediate of those concern the state's two U.S. senators. Ron Wyden is the second-most senior Democratic senator (after Washington's Patty Murray) and he probably could almost have his pick of top chairmanships. Having previously served as chair of Finance, he may well return to it, and in current Washington politics it may be as significant a spot as any. Merkley is currently the ranking (senior) Democrat on the Budget Committee, and he might wind up as chair there — or elsewhere.

Oregon's senators have reached the seniority and accompanying clout that Mark Hatfield and Bob Packwood had decades ago, and now they have the Senate majority to wield

Holy Cow! History

She Saw a Coward; He Was a War Hero

By J. MARK POWELL
InsideSources.com

They say you can't judge a book by its cover. More than 110 years ago, that proved truer than anyone could have believed.

By 1915, World War I was in its second year. The Great War's ghastliness was marked by trench warfare and disease, plus near-suicide-level attacks into machine-gun emplacements protected by barbed-wire entanglements. Not to mention the poison gas attacks. It was a battlefield nightmare far beyond anything mankind had ever experienced.

Consequently, the number of men stepping forward to serve in the British army was declining sharply. The burst of patriotism that had initially filled British ranks was rapidly fading. September's recruiting numbers were less than half of January's; by December, they were even lower. Britain was forced to pass legislation implementing a draft in January 1916.

Throughout 1915, patriotic women around the United Kingdom did their part to help the enlistment drive. By then, it was obvious that a certain segment of physically fit, military-age males was perfectly content to ride out the war safely at home.

So they attacked the shirkers where it hurt most: their manhood and masculine pride.

A campaign launched the previous year sent women into public places. Whenever they saw a strapping male in his prime, out of uniform, they presented him with a single white feather.

It was a badge of shame. The association with cowardice came from cockfighting, where a white tail feather supposedly indicated inferior breeding. They were publicly calling him a coward to his face, where others could easily see.

So it was on Oct. 12. As a young Scotsman in a civilian suit walked down a street in the town of Carnoustie, a woman stepped up and placed a shameful white feather in his hand.

However, she had made a terrible mistake that Tuesday morning. The man she meant to mortify with embarrassment wasn't a coward. In fact, he was the exact opposite.

Six months earlier, that same man had spent an agonizing day on floating barges raked by Turkish machine-gun fire. (The Ottoman Empire was fighting alongside Imperial Germany and Austria-Hungary.) The 2,000-man force needed a makeshift bridge to land aboard the SS River Clyde, a coal carrier pressed into service as a troop transport. The boat had been run aground intentionally to provide cover for the soldiers who would plunge out the large doors that had been cut into her hull to attack a fortified castle above them. To reach it, the men first had to cross an impromptu bridge made up of lighters, flat-bottomed cargo barges fastened together.

That day, the lighters weren't cooperating. They refused to stay connected.

George Samson, a 26-year-old seaman in the Royal Naval Reserve, knew what had to be done. He and a handful of fellow sailors went directly into the merciless gunfire, securing the connections and rescuing the injured. Not just for a few minutes, but for several long, agonizing hours, until Samson himself was shot and injured.

While that initial attack at Gallipoli would become one of World War I's costliest disasters, Samson's efforts helped establish an important beachhead.

Samson returned to his home in Scotland. As he recovered, word came that he was receiving an award for his heroism — not just any award, either, but the Victoria Cross, Britain's highest military award for valor, the equivalent of America's Medal of Honor.

The citation noted that Samson "worked on a lighter all day under fire," attending the wounded and securing lines before being dangerously wounded himself. The honor was personally bestowed by King George V during a ceremony at Buckingham Palace on Oct. 5.

Then, one week later,

Area runners win state titles

JOHN GUNTHER
For The World

(Left) Coquille's Ella Henthorn repeated as state champion Saturday. (Right) Bandon's Beckett Pahls and Jael Legutki both won state titles Saturday.

EUGENE — South Coast runners won four individual titles and brought home three team trophies from the state cross country meet in Eugene on Saturday.

Bandon's Jael Legutki and Beckett Pahls both won individual titles in the Class 2A-1A division and Coquille's Ella Henthorn was a repeat champion. Henry Stone of Siuslaw won the Class 3A boys title and led the Vikings to another team title.

Henthorn had a fabulous race in the new Class 3A division — this is the first year it has been separated from Class 2A-1A for girls.

Her winning time of 17:43 was the fastest ever by a girl from any division under Class 5A.

Corbett freshman Claire Horton was second with her own impressive time (18:00), followed by three runners who led Oregon Episcopal to the team title.

Henthorn ran with the lead the entire race.

"I'm just really happy with that time," she said. "The time that I got was great. I was planning on going out, running my own race, not getting in my head."

Henthorn came in with confidence from her third-place finish at the Rose City Classic in Portland, where she was edged out at the line by South Eugene's Evangeline Johnson Hess, both finishing in 17:01 behind Lincoln star Ellery Lincoln, who set a new course record for all divisions Saturday with her winning time of 16:57 in Class 6A.

"My goal for the season was 17:30," Henthorn said. "I'm thankful to God for letting me blow that out of the water (in Portland) and I'm thankful to God for (me) not getting sick this year."

Last year she was slowed by mononucleosis during the season but recovered in time to take the state title.

Like the girls from the bigger schools, this year she is looking ahead to the regional meet in two weeks in Spokane, Wash.

"This season I got a lot more competition than I have in the past," she said. "I found out I really do belong next to the girls from the big schools. This season has been a confidence boost for me."

Legutki was the first champion of the day and technically also set a course record, since 2A-1A is a new division.

The sophomore followed her 3,000-meter title on the track last spring by winning her first cross country crown in the new division.

Legutki ran with several others for the first half of the race before pulling away.

She finished in 18:57, comfortably ahead of runner-up Evelyn Hodgson of Weston-McEwen, who finished in 19:08.

"I'm excited. I wouldn't say I expected that," Legutki said. "I knew there were a lot of girls who were going to go out fast. That was a good front pack."

The combined Union-Cove team took the title in the new format that includes just four runners for team scores with 40 points, followed by Lakeview (46), Bandon (54) and Heppner-Ione (69). The Bobcats won despite not having an individual in the top 10. Gia Savage led the squad, finishing 12th.

Legutki said she was thrilled both for her performance and that of the Tigers.

"It means a lot," she said. "I am honored to be here and be in this position.

"I'm very proud of my team. We have a lot of new girls this year. The fact that we made it to state and now we get to go home with a trophy is special."

Legutki finished 12th last year.

"This year I put in a lot more miles and a lot more speedwork," she said. "The speedwork helped a lot."

Bandon's Jada Ryder was 26th (22:05), Addison Stallard was 29th (22:31), Scarlett Girard was 30th (22:54), Calliope Miller was 43rd (23:57) and Stella Stallard was 47th (24:25).

After finishing second to a Knappa runner last year, Pahls made sure he was on top this year, also winning his first title.

The Bandon junior pulled away from Knappa's Rowdy Justus in the final half mile to win.

Pahls finished in 15:52 while Justice crossed the line in 15:59. Knappa's Kyler Rodriguez was third (16:22) as the Loggers won the team title.

Last year, Knappa's Wyatt Jacobson edged Pahls in a sprint to the finish. The Bandon runner said that was on his mind during the race Saturday.

"It definitely influenced how I raced," said Pahls, who moved in front before the track and didn't let Justus close the gap. "I know these boys. They're good buddies of mine. They are quick on the track."

Pahls said he was running more for place than time, and was happy with how things came out.

"It was a long season of work," Pahls said. "I'm thankful to God I stayed determined and stayed on track with my training."

Bandon's boys, like the girls, came home with a trophy. Knappa finished with 32 points to 70 for Union-Cove, 113 for Bandon and 140 for Regis.

"I'm super proud of how our boys were able to come together," Pahls said.

The Tigers added Eli Nicholson from Myrtle Point and Pahls said he fit in fine.

"He's the best," Pahls said. "He's one of us. I'm blessed to have him."

Nicholson finished 22nd (17:11), Jonah Brown was 33rd (17:38), Trask Wehner finished 38th (17:50), Noah Brown was 42nd (18:04), Jackson Simonds was 63rd (18:44) and Max Wales was 74th (19:01).

Pahls also was thrilled to see Legutki also win.

"It means a lot," he said. "She has worked so hard. It's really cool to see it pay off for her."

In the Class 3A boys race, Siuslaw's Stone fought through a painful hip injury to take the individual title and lead the Vikings to another state championship.

Stone won a sprint with Gus Kirby of Neah-Kah-Nie to win the race in 15:33. Kirby finished in 15:36. Siuslaw's Bentley Nelson was fifth (16:11).

"That's the best I've felt in a race," said Stone, who recently suffered a pinched nerve. "Glory to God. I've never felt that good. I was praying the whole time, singing 'Jesus Loves Me.'"

It helped that he was running for his teammates.

"We're best friends," he said. "We knew what we had to do."

Stone, Nelson, Ezra King, who was 11th, and Yair Brito Xilot (20th) all are juniors who have been friends since kindergarten.

All the Vikings are underclassmen. Sophomore Greyson Doyle (19th), sophomore Henry Dotson (22nd) and freshman Hudson Lane (24th) all finished ahead of the fourth runner for Neah-Kah-Nie, helping the Vikings to the team title.

Siuslaw finished with 52 points. Neah-Kah-Nie, which had three of the top seven, scored 63. Nyssa (101) and Enterprise-Joseph-Wallowa (151) took the other two trophies.

"We talked about how every place was going to matter," Siuslaw coach Chris Johnson said of the Vikings' mentality going into the race.

"Hats off to Neah-Kah-Nie," Johnson said. "They're tough. They got a lot better. They pushed us to the limit."

Counting the Covid-19 year, when OSAA didn't sponsor championships but the 4A classification ran its own event, it's the fifth time since 2020 and ninth time overall Siuslaw has been boys team champion.

In the Class 4A girls race, North Bend's Addi Horning was 10th, the second straight year she has reached the podium.

"I'm really excited," said Horning, who finished in 19:19. "I definitely wanted to do better, but my ultimate goal was to podium. I was super sick last week leading up to districts."

Lauren Wolfe almost made the podium as well, finishing 12th (19:34) for North Bend.

Kindall Wyatt led Marshfield, finishing 41st (21:05). The Pirates were 11th in the team race. Their other team members were Scarlett Devins in 49th (21:22), Rook Watts in 60th (21:47), Kendall Qualman in 69th (22:43), Kassandra Clayton in 88th (25:06), Natalie Yost in 89th (25:09) and Lily Thompson in 90th (25:13).

Scappoose freshman Katherine Kessi won the individual title in 18:14 before racing home to help the Indians beat North Bend's girls soccer team 4-1 in the playoffs later in the day. La Grande repeated as team champion and also repeated as boys team champion.

In the boys race, North Bend sophomore Angelo Pedrini was 12th, just missing a spot in the podium. He finished in 16:41 after running in the top six for the first half of the race.

Marist Catholic's Corbin Sage repeated as champion in 15:18 and in the process broke the record for Class 4A previously set by Marshfield's Alexander Garcia-Silver in 2022.

The best race of the day came in the afternoon, when Summit's Bjorn Blankenship set a course record in the Class 5A race with a time of 14:19, edging defending champion Garrett Faught of Crater (14:22) as both easily topped the previous all-time best of 14:38 by another Crater runner, Tyrone Gorze.

Myrtle Point wins, North Bend falls in football playoffs

Myrtle Point advanced in the football playoffs Friday with a home win, but North Bend was eliminated with a loss on the road.

The Bobcats avenged an early season loss to Toledo by beating the Boomers 36-8 in the first round of the Class 2A playoffs.

Myrtle Point advances to the quarterfinals and will play top-ranked Heppner, which beat Clatskanie 58-6 in another first-round game.

In other Class 2A games Friday, Glide topped La Pine 57-8, Lowell beat Oakland 52-16, Culver topped Rainier 70-12, St. Paul beat St. Mary's 30-8 and Knappa topped Santiam 41-13. Glide, which won Myrtle Point's special district, will host Knappa in the quarterfinals. Grant Union won at Waldport 16-8 on Saturday in the other first-round game.

BANKS 28, NORTH BEND 14: The Bulldogs fell to the Braves in the first round of the Class 4A playoffs, ending a solid first season for North Bend head coach Ryan Goll.

The Braves built an early 14-0 lead and the Bulldogs twice cut the advantage to seven points, but couldn't get closer.

Banks advances to the quarterfinals and a date with Sweet Home, which beat North Valley 35-15.

In other Friday games, top-ranked Cascade Christian beat Marist Catholic 58-28, Junction City won at La Grande 24-20, Henley shut out Central 27-0, Cascade beat Ashland 66-14, Scappoose topped Baker 56-0 and Estacada beat Tillamook 50-20.

CLASS 3A: The Far West League's squads had mixed results in the opening round of the playoffs.

Pacific boys reach soccer semifinals

Pacific's boys soccer team has reached the semifinals in the Class 2A-1A state playoffs.

The Pirates beat visiting Faith Bible-Life Christian by a 4-3 margin Saturday to advance to Tuesday's semifinals and a date with top-ranked Grand View Christian Academy.

The game will be a rematch of a mid-season contest that was one of just two losses this year for Pacific.

The winner of Tuesday's contest will play for the state title Saturday in the new 2A-1A division. Class 3A was separated out from the two smaller classifications this fall.

Grand View Christian beat Southwest Christian 5-0 in its quarterfinal match Saturday.

CLASS 4A: Sky-Em League champion Marshfield fell to visiting Newport in a first-round match that went to penalty kicks. It was Marshfield's only loss of the season.

Newport scored first in the match and the third-seeded Pirates responded with a goal on a penalty kick by Juan Yanez.

The teams remained tied after the 80 minutes of regulation time and neither team scored in the two 10-minute overtime peri-

Bobcats finish fifth at state tournament

Myrtle Point's volleyball team brought two trophies home from the Class 2A state tournament at La Grande High School.

The Bobcats reached the semifinals by winning their first match in the tournament over Clatskanie 25-20, 25-18, 24-26, 25-16 before ultimately settling for fifth place in the tournament.

Myrtle Point fell to eventual champion Imbler 25-11, 25-13, 22-25, 25-13 in the semifinals and then lost the third-place match to top-ranked Heppner 25-13, 23-25, 25-15, 25-17.

Imbler won a five-set marathon over Class 2A newcomer Crane for the championship, 21-25, 25-22, 13-25, 25-16, 15-12.

In addition to the sportsmanship trophy, Myrtle Point sophomore Delaney La Franchi was named to the all-tournament first team, selected by the coaches.

This is the first year Myrtle Point has earned a trophy at the state tournament since 2006, when the Bobcats also finished fifth in the Class 3A state tournament at Lane Community College in Eugene, losing the third-place match to Oregon Episcopal after beating Vale in the quarterfinals and losing to Gervais in the semifinals.

Just like this year, Myrtle Point received the sportsmanship trophy in 2006. Kayla Hixson was on the all-tournament first team and Ashley Duey and Marley Kennedy were on the second team.

CLASS 3A: Coquille lost both its matches at Marshfield High School, though the Red Devils gave eventual champion Burns a scare in the first set of the quarterfinals before ultimately falling 25-23, 25-21, 25-10.

The Red Devils thrilled the large red-clad crowd on Coquille's side of the gym when they surged to a 7-1 lead in the first set, a run fueled by four kills from freshman Vivian Westgaard, another by Bristol Layton and an ace by Peyton Duey.

Burns chipped away at the lead and caught up at 12-all, but Coquille surged ahead again 17-13 on a kill by Hallie Johnson, a stuff block by Layton and an ace by Kendall Johnson.

But the Hilanders scored seven points in a row, taking the lead for the first time at 18-17 on a kill by former Coquille player Coral Averett.

Three times the Red Devils pulled within a point, on an ace by Hallie Johnson, a kill by Duey and a net error by Burns. But the Hilanders answered each of those Coquille points with kills and clinched the set on a kill by Amaya Ballard.

Coquille had chances late in the second set, but hurt itself with serving errors.

The Red Devils went on to lose in Saturday's consolation semifinals to Creswell 25-17, 25-17, 25-22.

Burns went on to beat Dayton 25-21, 20-25, 25-20, 25-21 in the championship match Saturday night.

Creswell beat Westside Christian 25-21, 13-25, 27-25, 25-22 in the fourth-place match. Sisters topped Catlin Gabel 25-12, 24-26, 22-25, 25-13 in the third-place match.

CLASS 4A: Valley Catholic beat Marist Catholic in a battle of two state champions from last year at North Bend High School, 21-25, 25-19, 25-23, 25-15.

Valley Catholic won its third straight title, the first two coming at Class 3A before moving up this fall.

Marist Catholic, the Sky-Em League champion, was in the title game for the fourth year in a row, having won and lost championship matches against Marshfield before beating The Dalles for the title last year.

The Dalles, which knocked Marshfield out of the playoffs this year, finished fifth, falling to Astoria 13-25, 25-22, 25-22, 21-25, 15-10. Cascade Christian, like Valley Catholic new to Class 4A, beat Henley 23-25, 25-18, 29-27, 25-22 for fourth place.

Seasonal jobs and SNAP benefits: What Oregonians should know before the holidays

From ODHS

With the holiday season approaching, the Oregon Department of Human Services (ODHS) is encouraging Oregonians who are not currently receiving Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits to apply now to see if they qualify. People who previously lost benefits may also be eligible again.

SNAP provides monthly food benefits to help eligible households buy groceries. ODHS wants every Oregonian who qualifies for SNAP to receive it, and applying now gives the agency time to process applications before the holidays. Processing times vary, and benefits are not guaranteed.

For people already receiving SNAP, seasonal employment may offer another opportunity. Did you recently start working at a pumpkin patch or a Halloween store? Are you planning to work at a Christmas tree farm or pick up extra hours during the holidays? That work could help you meet federal SNAP work or activity rules or regain benefits you've previously lost.

ODHS encourages people who start a new job or work additional hours to report changes as required and find out how their employment may affect their SNAP benefits.

"Seasonal employment can be an opportunity to earn extra income while also helping people meet SNAP work or activity rules," said Jessica Amaya Hoffman, ODHS interim Oregon Eligibility Partnership Director. "If you've started a new job, picked up additional hours or are planning to work during the holidays, contact us. We can help you understand how your work and income affect your SNAP benefits and what steps you may need to take."

Seasonal employment can help people meet SNAP work or activity rules

Under federal rules, certain adults ages 18 through 64 must complete at least 80 hours of work or qualifying activities each month to continue receiving SNAP benefits, unless they qualify for an exemption.

Seasonal employment, including jobs at Halloween stores, retail businesses, restaurants, warehouses and other employers preparing for the holidays, may help people meet these requirements.

If you're picking up a second job or working extra hours during the holidays, it's also important to understand how this income may affect your SNAP benefits. Households must report income changes when required under SNAP reporting rules so benefits can be calculated accurately. Contact ODHS if you're unsure whether you need to report your new income.

People who have already lost SNAP benefits because they did not meet work or activity rules may also be able to regain eligibility through employment or other qualifying activities. People may need to reapply for benefits and demonstrate that they meet the requirements.

ODHS encourages people to contact the ODHS ABAWD Team to discuss

No. 8, Southport Forest Products, is a lumber company that harvests mostly smaller trees, Etzel said. "They filled a niche market. They have pretty much an automated sawmill out on the north spit. It's quite an impressive operation to watch."

Southport also is leasing tribal property on the bay north of Ko-Kwel Casino, where it has erected a large gray building, which Etzel said is a pellet-shipping facility. The company manufactures industrial-sized pellets.

"Most of those, if not all, I believe, go to the Orient," he said, where they're used for heating homes.

No. 11, Myrtle Avenue Investments is the company that owns North Bend Medical Center, Etzel said.

No. 12, GMA Garnet Corp. is a Texas-based firm that mines and ships garnet ore from a facility with a dock in Eastside.

No. 13, Howard Willett owns real estate, Etzel said.

No. 15, Ron LaFranchi has Ron's Oil Co., with headquarters in Coquille and fuel stations throughout the region.

No. 16, Yoo Jin Lodging Inc. is the owner of Pony Village Mall, Etzel said.

Etzel said Coos County has nearly 45,000 tax accounts, but his office has just two residential appraisers and one commercial appraiser, who also acts as the county's lead appraiser.

Oregon's Democratic House members mostly are newer among House membership, but their reelections, especially with so many changes from around the country this year, have meant they move up the influence ladder too. The most notable example is likely to be Suzanne Bonamici, in whose case a subcommittee chair seems likely for the coming term.

With the change in partisan clout in Washington may come some change in the relationship between Oregon and the Trump Administration. Maybe.

In all, this may be a case of change coming more through the impact of external elections than internal ones.

he was shamed for his apparent "cowardice" in his own home. And get this — just a few hours later that same day, the village of Carnoustie held a public reception honoring its hometown hero. (It's unknown whether the white feather bestower attended.)

Samson died of pneumonia seven years later at age 34.

So we are reminded again: Appearances can be deceiving. Don't jump to conclusions. And never, ever, judge a book by its cover.

their circumstances, report qualifying hours and learn what steps they need to take to keep or regain benefits.

Check whether you qualify for an exemption before new OHP rules begin

Some Oregonians may have recently received a letter from the Oregon Health Authority (OHA) about upcoming work or activity rules for the Oregon Health Plan (OHP), Oregon's Medicaid program.

These new federal requirements are scheduled to begin in January 2027.

People who qualify for an exemption from SNAP work or activity rules are automatically exempt from OHP work or activity rules.

ODHS encourages people who have questions about their SNAP work or activity rules or potential exemptions to contact the ODHS ABAWD Team now. Staff can review their circumstances and help determine whether an exemption applies.

Keep your address current and read your mail

As federal changes continue, ODHS reminds everyone who receives benefits to keep their contact information, including mailing address, up to date.

Important notices may include information about eligibility, work or activity rules, deadlines, or actions needed to keep benefits.

If you receive a letter from ODHS or OHA:

• Open and read it carefully.

• Pay attention to deadlines and any actions requested.

• Contact the agency if you have questions or need help understanding the notice.

Missing an important notice could mean missing an opportunity to provide information needed to keep benefits.

Oregonians invited to statewide Veterans Day Celebration

The Oregon Department of Veterans' Affairs invites all Oregonians to join in honoring the service and sacrifice of our nation's veterans at the 2026 Statewide Veterans Day Ceremony, taking place at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 11, at Oregon State Capitol State Park in Salem.

The annual ceremony will bring together veterans, military families, state leaders and community members to recognize generations of Americans who have served in the United States Armed Forces.

This year's program will feature remarks from ODVA Director Dr. Nakeia Council Daniels and other distinguished guests, along with traditional military and patriotic observances, including a military flyover by the Oregon Air National Guard's 142nd Wing, presentation of the colors, national anthem, ceremonial wreath laying and the playing of "Taps."

Event Details

• What: 2026 Oregon Statewide Veterans Day Ceremony

• When: Wednesday, Nov. 11, 2026, at 11 a.m.

What to know about Oregon's 2026 election results

JULIA SHUMWAY
Oregon Capital Chronicle

Nationally, the electoral blue wave Democrats hoped for turned out to be more of a tsunami, washing away longtime Republican strongholds.

In Oregon, where Democrats have been in the majority for decades, Democratic gains were more modest. The state will send U.S. Sen. Jeff Merkley and its six incumbent members of Congress — five Democrats and one Republican — back to Washington, D.C., and give Democratic Gov. Tina Kotek another four years in Mahonia Hall.

And Democrats are on track to start the 2027 legislative session with slightly larger supermajorities in both the House and Senate.

Election officials will continue processing and counting ballots received by 8 p.m. or that were postmarked by Election Day, and some current leads, especially in close races, may change. The Capital Chronicle relies on The Associated Press' race calls to name winners or losers in individual contests.

Here's what we know so far.

Congress

Democrats have flipped both the U.S. House and Senate, securing 228 of 435 House seats and 54 of 100 Senate seats as of 1 a.m. Wednesday.

The Associated Press has yet to call 68 House seats, as well as Senate races in Alaska and Mississippi.

Republican incumbent Sen. Dan Sullivan narrowly leads Democratic U.S. Rep. Mary Peltola in Alaska, which uses ranked-choice voting. If no candidates in the four-way race receive more than 50% of first-preference votes, the candidate with the lowest number of votes will be eliminated and their voters will move to their second-choice candidate.

In Mississippi, Democrat Scott Colom led Republican incumbent Cindy Hyde-Smith by fewer than 50 votes in a true tossup.

Gov. Tina Kotek will get another four years to continue working on priorities including housing, behavioral health and standing up to the Trump administration.

The Associated Press called Kotek's win over Republican state Sen. Christine Drazan shortly before 1 a.m., a few hours after Kotek declared victory.

"Because of your work and support, I am proud to stand here as your next governor of the beautiful state of Oregon," Kotek told hundreds of supporters at the Hilton Portland Downtown. "I hope it's OK, but we have four more years together."

Drazan, who also lost to Kotek in 2022, declined to concede Tuesday night.

"Now, all the votes haven't been counted, and I am continuing to pray for the victory for us," Drazan told supporters at her Hillsboro watch party. "But as they are hard at work counting every last eligible vote, I wanted to come out and tell you guys that this state continues to be worth fighting for. There is nothing I wouldn't do to serve the people of this state and make life better for all of you and all of your neighbors, and every single person that lives here, because we desperately need it."

Oregon House

Democrats are on track to control a record number of state House seats in 2027 if current leads hold.

Democrats are leading in each of the 37 districts they held going into the election, as well as two held by Republicans.

Michael Welsh, an occupational safety professional from Keizer, held a nearly 10-point lead in the 21st House District over Rep. Kevin Mannix, a Salem Republican who has been a consistent fixture in state politics for decades.

And in the open 52nd House District in the Gorge, 25-year-old former journalist Hank Sanders had a nearly 10-point lead over Wasco County Commissioner Scott Hege.

The only close House races are in Linn County, where Republican Rep. Shelly Boshart Davis leads Democrat Joanna Robinson by more than 3 points, and on the North Coast, where Rep. Cyrus Javadi leads Republican Max Sherman by 4 points.

Oregon Senate

Democrats are on track to add one seat to their Senate supermajority, with former Salem City Councilor Virginia Stapleton leading former state Rep. Tracy Cramer in the race to fill Republican Kim Thatcher's 11th Senate District.

If her 10-point lead holds, Stapleton will be the 30-member Senate's 19th Democrat.

In two other open races, Republicans Jeff Helfrich and Courtney Bangs grew their leads as more results became available. Helfrich, a current state representative, now has a 4-point lead in the 26th Senate District in the Gorge and Bangs, a Wasco County commissioner, leads by 5 points in the 16th Senate District on the North Coast.

Coastal Caucus hosts economic summit

Will Chappell
Country Media

More than 200 local, state and federal elected officials, government agency staffers and businesspeople gathered at the Seaside Convention Center on October 29, for the Oregon Coastal Caucus Economic Summit.

Throughout the day, presenters discussed different aspects of the coast's economy, ranging from tourism to mariculture in keynote speeches, while discussing challenges to and opportunities for future innovation.

Coastal Caucus Vice Chair Senator David Brock Smith welcomed attendees to the summit on behalf of Representative Court Boice, the caucus's chair, who was unable to attend the conference due to illness. Smith read a statement recognizing Senator Suzanne Weber and Representative Boomer Wright, both of whom are leaving the legislature at the end of the year and recognized the dozen or so state legislators who were in attendance, including Senate President Rob Wagner.

Smith then pivoted to the summit's purpose, saying that the coast is not merely a postcard for the state but a meaningful contributor to its economy. The state's fish economy brought in $517 million in household income for more than 10,000 Oregonians statewide last year, Smith said, with total economic activity topping $1 billion, while the tourism economy, to which the coast is a major contributor, generated $14.5 billion in economic activity statewide.

Workforce shortages, infrastructure challenges and other issues particular to the coast face local economies, Smith said, with the summit convened annually to give policy makers and industry leaders a chance to step outside Salem to identify what's working and what isn't when it comes to advancing the coastal economy. Smith said the coastal caucus had a long history of achieving results on a bipartisan basis, pointing to the Pacific Coast intermodal Port project in Coos Bay receiving $205 million in federal funding as an example.

Smith then turned the stage over to Weber, who introduced Travel Oregon Executive Director Kate Sinner to discuss the economic impact of tourism on the coast.

Tourism

Sinner introduced herself, saying that she had grown up in Washington taking trips to explore the Oregon Coast with her family and would be discussing the impact of tourism and the support Travel Oregon provides to local communities.

Travel Oregon is the state's official tourism office, formed in 2003 to establish Oregon as a destination for business and leisure travel. The organization receives funding from the statewide transient lodging tax (TLT) and aims to bring tourists into the state while helping communities be the best they can, Sinner said.

Of the organization's approximately $40 million annual budget, 30% of funding is invested in Oregon communities, with 65% of funding going to other efforts, mostly promotion and asset development, Sinner said. Travel Oregon sends around $1.1 million to the Oregon Coast Visitors Association annually to help with those efforts on the coast.

Since Travel Oregon was founded in 2003, Sinner said that travel spending in the state has more than doubled, with the tax revenue generated nearly tripling, positively impacting the state, with an outsize benefit to the coast.

The $14.5 billion in statewide economic activity generated by visitors last year helped to support 123,000 jobs, with the coast accounting for $2.6 billion in activity and 26,000 jobs. Broken down further, the north coast, consisting of Clatsop and Tillamook Counties saw $941 million in vis-

As I See It

By Mary Schamehorn

The first photo I am sharing was taken in May of 1961, a little more than a year after the "new" hospital opened on the hill overlooking the Coquille River. Pictured are Carl Lorenz, partner in the M&L Grocery; Edgar Capps, owner of Capps Motor Co.; Margaret Dean, whose husband Jack was a cranberry grower, and John Fasnacht, long-time manager of utilities (city manager) for the City of Bandon. Not pictured was Dr. Ben Grant, board chairman.

The board was celebrating National Hospital Week with an open house and silver scholarship tea. According to figures released by Warren Croston, then hospital administrator, 1,245 patients had been admitted to the hospital since it opened on Feb. 2, 1960; 240 surgeries had been performed and 196 babies were born.

Although the Southern Coos Hospital District was formed in 1955, lawsuits led by a group of Bear Creek ranchers postponed the building of the hospital for 5 years until the courts ultimately ruled in favor of the district, and they built the hospital. During those years without a hospital, local babies, like my youngest sister Mindy, were mostly born in Mast Hospital in Myrtle Point.

Forty years later, in 2000, the current hospital opened. Today the property is part of a !5.5 million parcel of properties owned by the Picerne Group.

The second photo depicts what jetty road often looked like before Coos County built the rock berm that now protects the road from looking like it did in this photo, taken in January of 1983, when the road was breached by the surf.

I've learned that the City of Bandon's electric system has once again been targeted by copper thieves, resulting in damage to the city 's infrastructure and an outage affecting a neighboring utility, Coos-Curry Electric Cooperative. During this incident, the city's neutral conductor was cut and fell across CCEC's main feeder line, causing a widespread power outage for their customers.

Bandon's electric crew worked directly with CCEC personnel to identify and safely remove the fault, allowing power to be restored. Kevin Ranegar, the city of Bandon's utility supervisor, said "the coordinated response demonstrated the strong working relationship between our two utilities and our shared commitment to providing reliable electrical service to the community. Copper theft continues to pose a significant safety risk and can result in damage to infrastructure, service interruptions, and impacts beyond the utility directly targeted. The City appreciates the continued cooperation and partnership with CCEC," said Ranegar.

Ranegar also reported that the installation of permanent lighting on the Welcome to Bandon arches in Old Town has been completed. The improvement enhances the visibility and appearance of this prominent landmark, creating a more welcoming atmosphere for residents and visitors during the evening hours, he said.

He also said that the new flagpole has been installed in front of City Hall. The area was without a flag for several weeks while the cement for the pole cured.

There are several events planned to observe Veteran's Day, including a program at the Bandon History Museum's Lynam Event Center on Saturday, Nov. 7, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., featuring guest speakers, military collections and vehicles on display. Speakers include Larry Langenberg, Preston Wayte and several Coast Guard members, beginning at 10:15 a.m.

On Veterans Day, Nov. 11, the local VFW Post will host a parade through Bandon's business and residential areas, with vehicles to gather at the VFW Post for the 10:15 a.m. parade. Shortly before 11, people will gather at the VFW Memorial in City Park for a short program, with U.S. Marine Corps Major Rob Jones (retired) as the speaker. People will then head back to the post on Bates Road for a hamburger/hotdog barbecue lunch. Veterans will eat free, and others will be charged $10. If the weather is bad, the program may be at the Post.

I learned this week that former long-time Bandon resident Betty Gearhart died Oct. 28 at her home in Coos Bay at the age of 96. Betty was born April 26, 1930, in Yamhill County, and married Bud Gearhart July 7, 1949. They were married for 76 years before he died a year ago.

They moved to Bandon in 1952 where Bud worked in the woods and Betty worked in the office at the Rogge Lumber planing mill before retiring. In 2002 they moved to Coos Bay. They were members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. She is survived by sons Rick and wife Lissa Gerhart and Randall and wife Janell Gearhart; daughter, Sandra Merritt, five grandchildren and numerous great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband and her son-in-law, Roger Merritt.

I also learned that long-time Bandon businessman and local artist John Campbell died recently at the age of 76. He owned Campbell Glassworks in Old Town Bandon for a number of years, renting a shop at 275 Second Street from Lynn Davies. Among his survivors is his partner Donna Leveridge-Campbell.

Last week, I wrote about what had been an extensive search for a dog, Jolie, who had pulled away from her owner while walking in the Franklin Avenue area and headed into the brush in the Donut Hole. A friend posted on Oct 27 that Jolie had come home sometime in the night to an open porch door where her bed, her blanket, her food bowl and water bowl "were all lovingly waiting for her." Her owner found her early that morning when he went out to continue searching for her. He was overcome with gratitude for those who helped search for the dog, who he had recently adopted, and he especially thanked Chris, Gina and Kim.

Several Meet and Greet programs have been scheduled for Bandon Fisheries Warehouse, including one this Tuesday, Nov. 3, when Food and Flourish, in cooperation with Coos Health and Wellness, will present a program on how to be a community outreach volunteer. Debbie Richardson, an RN with Coos Health and Wellness, will be the presenter. The program starts at noon and will last about an hour and a half.

On the third Tuesday of both November (the 17th) and the third Tuesday of December (the 20th), Jim Proehl of Bandon History Museum will present the Meet and Greet program. Stay tuned for more details about Jim's always popular programs.

Those wishing to schedule a program should contact Abby or Barry Osborne at Bandon Fisheries Warehouse.

On Monday, Oct. 26, at 7:39 p.m., dispatch contacted Bandon Fire and Bay Cities Ambulance about an automatic crash detection on the highway at milepost 257.5. Dispatch could hear a horn honking in the background; a person said they were okay and off the roadway. A sheriff's deputies was headed that way. The vehicle apparently sheared off a DFN pole. Although it was said to be a non-injury accident, dispatch said that Bay Cities should continue to the scene due to airbag deployment.

On Oct. 26, shortly before noon, Bandon Fire was called to milepost 261 for traffic control for a diesel/oil spill of about 50 gallons. Also requesting Coos Bay Hazmat as the road is very slippery, and there was almost a second motor vehicle accident at the scene.

Two fire calls came in on Oct.27. The first was at Whiskey Run Lane and Beaver Hill for large amount of smoke in the area. CFPA advised this is a controlled burn.

At 6:45 p.m., Bandon Fire was called to a burn complaint at 5th and Grand, where a transient camp was starting a warming fire. Bandon Fire was in the area; unable to locate.

Bandon Fire was called to a residential fire alarm on Two Mile Lane shortly before 10 p.m. Oct. 30, which was coming in as a kitchen smoke alarm. Bandon Fire on scene of the single-story residence, but nothing showed. House appears vacant, but there is an alarm going off inside. No sign of smoke or fire, returning to quarters.

The Coquille Police Department contained an item about former Bandon resident, David John Kehl, 62, who was arrested in the 100 block of North Birch Street in Coquille for criminal trespass, and transported to the county jail. Kehl had been arrested several months ago for repeatedly trespassing in Old Town, and has been in Coquille since being released from custody.

A new sobering center opened in Coquille Oct. 26. giving emergency responders another option for helping people experiencing intoxication in Coos County.

Operated by Adapt Integrated Health Care, the center will provide a supervised, supportive place for individuals to sober up and connect with services such as substance use treatment, mental health care, peer support and housing assistance. Access will be limited during the initial launch. Adapt will work with Coos Bay Police Department on the first several intakes to evaluate operations before expanding to additional law enforcement partners.

Opioid settlement funding from Coos County and the City of Coos Bay, along with support from Advanced Health and Coos Health and Wellness, helped bring the center to opening.

Coming events: Shoreline Education Association's free fall seminar is set for Nov. 7 at 10 a.m. at Bandon Library Sprague Room featuring Dr. Jackie Gai with "Tales from the Wild Side - Caring for Captive Wildlife with Compassion." Come in person or join by zoom link at www.sea-edu.org.

Bandon Open Stage will present its upcoming production of another variety show on Saturday, Nov. 14, 3 p.m., Sprague Community Theater. Information on online ticket sales is coming soon.

Federal support for Oregon's hazelnut, seafood Industries

STAFF REPORT
Coos Bay World

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) will purchase hazelnuts and Pacific Whiting fillets under the agency's Section 32 purchase program," according to a release from Oregon U.S. Senator Jeff Merkley.

These purchases will benefit communities and rural economies across Oregon by supporting domestic production and distribution of these agricultural goods during periods of significant market disruption and economic uncertainty, according to Merkley

Merkley led Oregon Congressional Delegation members—including Senator Ron Wyden and U.S. Representatives Suzanne Bonamici (OR-01), Val Hoyle (OR-04), Andrea Salinas (OR-06), Maxine Dexter (OR-03), and Janelle Bynum (OR-05) announcing the federal purchase after pressure from the delegation.

"Our fisheries and farms deliver incredible products all around the world and are the lifeblood of our communities," Merkley said.

Merkley led the Oregon delegation in pressing USDA to include hazelnuts and whiting in its latest food purchase.

"This announcement ensures Oregon's harvesters, processors, and producers will receive critical financial assistance needed to continue operating and providing services here in Oregon and beyond," Merkley said. "I am elated the USDA has decided to make these purchases—this is a win for communities across our state."

"Iconic state industries like agriculture and fishing count on the U.S. Department of Agriculture to do its job and support Oregonians working hard to keep producing their world-class goods," Wyden said. "I'm glad the full-court press from the delegation has unlocked this win for Oregonians fishing Pacific whiting and growing hazelnuts."

"Oregonians know that hazelnuts and seafood are some of the state's most popular and delicious products," Bonamici said. "Our growers and producers work tirelessly and bolster the local economy. I'm glad the USDA is making this investment."

"These investments from the USDA will support the people who harvest, process and bring Pacific Whiting fish and hazelnuts to market," Hoyle said. "By putting Oregon fishermen and farmers first, we're boosting our coastal and rural economies."

"Oregon's specialty crop growers are the backbone of our economy, but too many are struggling with rising costs and uncertain markets," Salinas said. "In the Willamette Valley, generations of farmers have depended on the hazelnut industry for their livelihoods. That's why I joined my colleagues in pushing USDA to purchase Oregon hazelnuts and Pacific whiting. These purchases will provide much-needed support for our growers and fishing communities while putting more Oregon-grown and Oregon-caught food onto kitchen tables. I'm proud we secured this win for Oregon producers, and I'll keep fighting to make sure our specialty crop farmers have the markets and resources they need to succeed."

"Oregon's farmers and fishermen work hard to feed our communities, and they deserve a federal government that stands behind them," Dexter said. "Our delegation pushed USDA to act, and these $34 million in purchases will support Oregon's hazelnut growers and fishermen during a difficult economic stretch. This investment will help sustain local jobs, strengthen rural and coastal economies, and get nutritious food to families who need it."

"Our farmers are putting in the work every day to keep Oregon families fed," Bynum said. "And they're not just helping put food on the table, they're keeping money with our families, creating good jobs close to home, and giving people what they need to put down roots here in Oregon. Money back in our state and with our farmers is a win-win."

That sent the match to penalty kicks and Marshfield converted the first two, each answered by Newport.

The Cubs' goalie had a save on the third kick and Newport converted its third attempt. After Marshfield missed the fourth kick, Newport's goalie made the clinching goal, giving the Cubs a 4-2 edge.

Newport won again in the quarterfinals Saturday, beating host Phoenix 3-1 to advance to the semifinals Tuesday and a date with Sky-Em League runner-up Marist Catholic, which upset No. 2 seed Valley Catholic 1-0 in overtime on Saturday. The Spartans won at Cascade in their first match, a contest also decided by penalty kicks.

GIRLS SOCCER

CLASS 4A: North Bend won its first playoff match, but lost in the quarterfinals to Scappoose.

The Bulldogs beat host La Grande 4-3 in the opening round with a dramatic comeback from a two-goal deficit in the final five minutes to force overtime.

Lauryn Garrigus had a hat trick for the Bulldogs in the win over the Tigers.

But on Saturday, No. 2 seed Scappoose ended the season for the Bulldogs with a 4-1 quarterfinal win.

Scappoose next plays Henley, which blanked Banks 5-0 on Saturday.

The other semifinal pits top seed The Dalles against defending state champion and Sky-Em League champion Marist Catholic. The Dalles beat Estacada 3-1 in the quarterfinals while the Spartans shut out Klamath Union 5-0. Marist Catholic beat Molalla 8-0 in its first playoff match.

itor-generated economic activity and 9,800 jobs generated by tourism, the central coast, Lincoln and Lane Counties, saw $1.07 billion and 10,880 jobs, and the south coast, Douglas, Coos and Curry Counties, saw $579 million and 6,070 jobs.

Out of $5 billion in direct travel spending across the state in 2025, Oregonians accounted for 37%, other Americans accounted for 57% and international visitors comprised the remaining 6%. Sinner said the last figure represented a drop from the pre-pandemic era, when international visitors regularly made up 10-12% of spending.

In terms of visitor numbers, the 558,000 international tourists that visited the state last year represented 14% fewer than in 2024 and 25% fewer than in 2019. Canadian visitors, by far the largest cohort, were down 25% from 2024, with coastal Canadian visitor numbers down 43% year over year.

Sinner then broke down visits seasonally, saying that 32% of tourism spending had occurred in the summer, with 25% in the fall, 24% in the spring and 19% in the winter. Sinner said that Travel Oregon was focused on increasing visits in the shoulder seasons, with one example being a focus on promoting king tides that occur in the late fall and winter at the coast.

Travel Oregon uses a destination stewardship approach when considering its spending, working to balance economic benefits, environmental conservation and engaging experiences, Sinner said.

Sinner touted Oregon's recent designation by Wheel the World as the first accessibility verified state in the nation, achieved by working with over 800 businesses across the state to assess their accessibility and create itineraries designed around accommodating specific travelers' needs. Sinner also said the organization focused outreach on improving visitor behavior and shared several spots from a new campaign promoting tourism in the state that she said have driven a 23% increase in traffic to the organization's website.

Opportunities for coastal mariculture

Following Sinner's presentation, the group split into several breakout sessions, with one focused on mariculture moderated by Tyson Rasor, the director of coastal communities and fisheries at Ecotrust.

Rasor introduced the panel by saying that its members worked for organizations that are part of the Oregon Coastal Mariculture Collaborative. Consisting of Ecotrust, the Oregon Aquaculture Association, the Oregon Kelp Alliance, Oregon Sea Grant and the Nature Conservancy. The collaborative focuses on restorative mariculture, which Rasor explained is a subset of aquaculture consisting of the cultivation of marine organisms for food in seawater, with a focus on shellfish and seaweed. Rasor said that mariculture could be used to both restore maritime ecosystems and create economic opportunities.

Tom Calvanese, director of the Oregon Kelp Alliance, said that between 2010 and 2022, the Oregon coast had lost 70% of its kelp forest, consistent with worldwide trends.

Calvanese then discussed a restoration project the alliance undertook at Macklyn Cove near Port Orford, which consisted of removing some 600,000 urchins from a 3.5-acre area, allowing wild kelp to return before releasing more than 100 sunflower sea stars. Calvanese also discussed efforts by his organization to grow kelp spores and remove them from crab gear before using them to reseed areas where kelp has disappeared.

These efforts also provide economic opportunities as some urchins removed from kelp beds can be fattened up in onshore "ranches" and marketed as Uni, popular in Japanese cooking, while farmed kelp generates marketable products and restored forests provide habitat for rockfish.

Alexandra Kaminski, a master's student in marine resource management at (OSU) University, discussed her research into funding mechanisms for mariculture endeavors. Kaminski said that mariculture farms provide quantifiable benefits for biodiversity that could be translated into a dollar figure and used to sell credits to buyers seeking to meet corporate responsibility pledges or support environmental sustainability. Kaminski said that a government agency or nonprofit could create the program and manage the credits, with 87% of growers she had interviewed saying they would be interested in participating in such a program.

Kaminski clarified that such a program would be the first of its type in the country and acknowledged it would create lots of questions but said it was an idea she felt held promise to promote mariculture.

Dick Vander Schaaf, associate conservation director of the Oregon coast and marine program at the Nature Conservancy, discussed opportunities for expanding mariculture on the Oregon coast. Vander Schaaf said that his organization had looked at 15 bays in the state as well as offshore areas and evaluated their suitability for harvesting 11 different species, including six shellfish and five species of seaweed to identify which locations would be best suited to which species. Vander Schaaf focused on Tillamook Bay as an example, saying that Olympia oysters would be a strong candidate for cultivation there.

Oregon Sea Grant Director Karina Nielsen discussed the hurdles in the way of achieving those projects, explaining that farmers are currently allowed to cultivate just two types of oysters, neither Olympia, nor can they cultivate other types of shellfish. Nielsen said that there was also no framework for permitting kelp or seaweed cultivation in seawater and that a legal analysis of administrative rules and statutory requirements would be needed before crafting a leasing framework for mariculture enterprises to make use of state-owned waters. Nielsen said Oregon Sea Grant was looking into that process as well as establishing pilot mariculture programs in the state.

After the breakout sessions ended, the whole group reconvened in the main assembly hall for an update on federal developments impacting the coast, with Senators Ron Wyden and Jeff Merkley speaking first, before Representatives Suzanne Bonamici and Val Hoyle addressed the crowd.

In response to a question about healthcare on the coast, Wyden said that healthcare was the most important issue and that rural Oregon had been hit by a wrecking ball in last year's spending bill passed by Republicans. Wyden said that he had recently started an investigation into insurance companies' response with the bill with Senator Bernie Sanders of Vermont and was sponsoring a bill to provide support to keep obstetrics departments open in rural hospitals. Wyden said he was also working on a bill to create a long-term care system for elderly adults that would provide homecare and lessen the reliance on nursing homes.

Asked about the economy, Wyden said President Donald Trump's tariffs need to go and touted the $205-million grant to the Pacific Coast Intermodal Port project, encouraging other mayors, city councilors and local elected officials to contact his office with similar ideas.

Merkley agreed with Wyden that the Republican spending package had been devastating to Oregon's healthcare system thanks to its impacts on Medicare and the removal of tax credits for insurance. Merkley pledged that if Democrats retake the majority in the Senate, they will reverse the cuts.

Merkley also highlighted his work with Mississippi Senator Cindy Hyde Smith to form the Office for Rural Healthcare at the Centers for Disease Control, which now receives $6 million annually. Merkley also pointed to an award of $14.5 million to Columbia Memorial Hospital in Astoria for upgrades and the $6 billion in funding received by 19 federally qualified health clinics along the coast each year as major successes.

Merkley mentioned the Coos Bay grant as well as the recently completed work at the south jetty at the mouth of Tillamook Bay and the north jetty in Coos Bay, as well as dredging projects up and down the coast as examples of federally funded projects yielding positive economic impacts. Merkley discussed two programs he was working to help coastal community colleges develop, one for emergency medical technician training and another for a fisherman's academy and said that in addition to focusing on community colleges, he was also seeking ways to reduce the use of plastics.

Addressing educational outcomes, Bonamici said that screen time, social media, stress, isolation and artificial intelligence had created a complicated environment, necessitating a reassessment of how to best meet the needs of today's students. Bonamici said the federal government also needed to fully fund the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and increase funding for low-income schools through title I.

Additionally, Bonamici said that it was important to recognize that not every student would be successful in school and continue and increase funding for career and technical education programs and initiatives like the job corps center at Tongue Point.

Hoyle agreed with Bonamici about the importance of providing alternate pathways for young people outside of college, voicing support for apprenticeship programs beyond the construction trades to help train professionals like accountants.

On the subject of housing, Hoyle and Bonamici both praised the 21st Century Road to Housing Act, passed on a bipartisan basis in 2025, providing funding for water and sewer infrastructure improvements, expanding rural housing vouchers and barring private equity ownership of single homes, among other measures.

Coastal Caucus

Members of the Coastal Caucus then took the stage to give an update on their work.

Weber said that municipal infrastructure was critical and had been a calling card for her since starting in public service. Weber voiced support for the recent increase in systems development charges in the city of Tillamook and said that she was very concerned about the states of Highways 6, 26 and 30.

Smith touted the formation of the blue economy task force by the legislature this year as a major step for the coast (see separate section for further details) and said that the state needed to invest in water distribution systems and support jobs in the industries that build and maintain them. Federal investments are needed to support fish hatcheries, Smith said, while a reduction in regulations will help support fishing boats, as will making it easier to get locally caught fish into local restaurants, schools and grocery stores.

Senator Dick Anderson stressed the importance of housing and education, while Representative David Gomberg echoed his senate colleagues' sentiments about the importance of investment in water systems and brought up the importance of emergency preparedness.

Blue economies keynote

Ephraim Froelich, a political consultant from Alaska focused on maritime economies and founder and managing principal of the consulting firm AKWA-DC, then gave a keynote address on ocean economic clusters around the country.

Froelich said that over the course of his 20-year career as a policy advisor in Washington D.C. and Alaska, he has seen the conception of ocean-based economic activity to expand from encompassing just fishing and transportation, to technological innovations and coastal resilience and energy projects, among other activities.

Discussing the possibilities presented by ocean economic clusters, Froelich focused in on the example of Iceland, where fish processors, researchers, investors and startups collocated around ports to spur economic innovation. One of the most notable successes of the model has been the move to use 100% of a fish, which Froelich said increases the value of an Atlantic Cod from $12 per fish when 40% is used to a stunning $5,000 per fish when 99% is used.

That ocean cluster model has come to the United States, with clusters in Portland, Maine, and Massachusetts on the east coast as well as clusters in each of the west coast states and around the Gulf of Mexico. Froelich said that each of the clusters had a different focus depending on its local conditions, with a cluster in northern California more focused on tech, clusters in the gulf zeroing in on petroleum and those in Alaska concerned with fishing.

Froelich also said that he was watching the blue economy task force formed by the Oregon legislature this year with anticipation, saying he had been telling people elsewhere to keep an eye on its work.

Blue economy task fore

With the lunch keynote concluded, another round of breakout talks started, with Gomberg and Brock Smith hosting a roundtable session to discuss the blue economy task force and solicit ideas.

The 18-member task force was formed by the Oregon legislature in this year's legislative session and has already met twice, including one meeting day before the summit in Cannon Beach. Oregon State Senator Janene Johnson, who represents western Washington County, said that her interest in blue economies had been piqued when she heard about the Maine cluster at a conference, leading her to propose a bill forming the task force to the Interim Committee on Energy and Environment, which the committee put forward jointly.

Smith said he felt the task force was going great and that the somewhat unusual step had been taken to form five subgroups that will investigate various aspects of the coastal economy for six months before reconvening to discuss policy and legislative changes that could help promote coastal economic growth and presenting a final report to the legislaturenext September. The five subgroups will discuss fisheries, fish processing and ports; tourism hospitality and recreation; environment, ecology, transportation and land use; workforce and education; and science and innovation. Each of the subgroups consists of three or four task force members who are looking for additional representatives to participate.

Universities' impact on coastal economies

Another keynote followed the breakouts, with OSU Associate Vice President of Economic Development and Industry Relations Rebecca Robinson discussing the institution's three coastal locations' $4.4 billion in annual economic impact. Combined, the three locations, the Hatfield Marine Science Center in Newport, Port Orford Field Station and Seafood Lab in Astoria, consist of 470,000 square feet spread across 60 acres.

The Hatfield Marine Science Center is the third largest marine lab in the nation, with $59 million in annual research expenditures by OSU and $42 million in expenditures from five collocated state and federal agencies. OSU spends a combined $5.5 million annually on research activities at other locations on the coast.

More than 700 students visit the Hatfield Marine Science Center or are based there on a yearly basis and the center has a fleet of research vessels. Robinson also highlighted the PacWave wave energy test facility, one of just two in the world, located offshore from the center. Over $100 million was invested over the course of more than a decade to bring the center online.

Pacific Coast Intermodal Port update

A group from the Port of Coos Bay then gave an update on the Pacific Coast Intermodal Port project, much discussed throughout the day after its recent federal award.

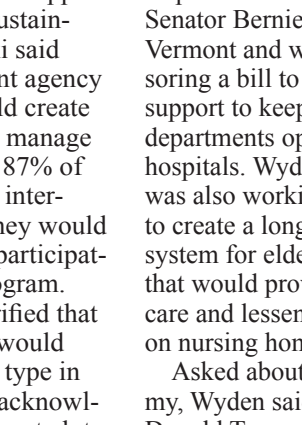

Melissa Cribbins, executive director for the intermodal port project, said that the public-private partnership was an exciting opportunity to upgrade the port's facilities and rail line, with the recent federal dollars designated to support the latter. Cribbins said the project would not be possible without support from the state and federal government.

Cribbins continued that the project team was working on a request for proposal for designs for the port and rail portions of the process and preparing to start the National Environmental Protection Act process to review the project for compliance with federal statute relating to endangered species and sensitive habitats. Both of those steps are expected to begin next year.
